POETRY.

IT MAY BE YOUR TURN NEXT.

Judge not too harshly, oh, my friend!
Of him your fellow-man
But draw the veil of charity
About him if you can.
He once was called an honest man,
Before sore trial vexed—
He stepped from out the narrow way—
It may be your turn next.

Fainting upon the great highway
A suffering soul doth lie;
Go staunch his wounds and quench his thirst,
Nor pass him idly by.
God will not brook the swift excuse,
The thoughtless vain pretext;
A fellow-mortal bites the dust—
It may be your turn next.

You heard, one day, a single word
Against a person's name;
Oh, bear it not from door to door,
To further hurt his fame.
If you're the man you claim to be,
Remember, then, the text,
To "Speak no evil," true or false—
It may be your turn next.

The world is bad enough, we own,
And may need more light;
Yet, with true love to all, may we
Help on the cause of Right,
Lift up the sinful and the weak,
The soul by care perplexed,
Well knowing that to drink the gall
It may be our turn next.

MISCELLANEOUS READING,

WHAT HE SAW AND HEARD.

Mr. Augustus Pickerel and Miss Celestine Pettyman paused on the beach and stood for a moment in silence, gazing over the moonlit sea, while the playful ripples just kissed the tips of the polished "Newports."

"How lovely!" murmured Celestine, softly, with eyes uplifted to the moon, like an inspired St. Cecilia.

"Beautiful!" replied he gazing downward into her face.

"I wish that life could be always a moonlight night!" she sighed.

"Why, then, how could people live?" inquired the prosaic Pickerel, with a tender smile. "What would become of business, and—"

She interrupted him with a pretty, impatient motion of her hand.

"Oh, pray, don't talk of business and horrid money-making? Why do you men think so much of money I wonder?"

"Why, for the sake of the ladies, of course," replied he gallantly.

"Cannot women be happy without this money—I mean without being positively wealthy?"

"Could you?" he anxiously inquired.

"Oh, I hate money! Of course, I know that people can't live without it; but why should they be so anxious to get get rich? Now, for my part, I should be as happy in a pretty rose-wreathed cottage as in a palace—perhaps happier.—But let us talk of something else—I hate money!"

Mr. Pickerel looked as though he could then and there take her in his arms and press her to his heart.

Perhaps his countenance betrayed his emotion—for after a moment's silence, she said, shyly casting down her eyes and rubbing her little hands together on his arms:

"Isn't it getting rather chilly?"

And Mr. Augustus Pickerel, a mature man of five and thirty though he was, could not refrain from clasping those fair hands in one of his own as he murmured tenderly:

"Poor little hands! they are cold!"

Then she hung a little heavily upon his arm, and a sudden feeling as of remorse struck him.

"I fear I am keeping you out too long. I forgot that you might be tired."

"Oh, no—not at all tired. How could I be in this delicious moonlight?"

What Pickeral might have said, in answer, can only be conjectured; for at that moment several couples passed them, and their presence sealed the words which trembled upon his lips. And then, people began to go in-doors, and, as it was late, he and his fair companion were compelled to do likewise.

"To-morrow evening!" he whispered, tenderly, and with a look full of eloquent meaning, as, at the foot of the grand staircase, he bade her good-night.

Business required his presence in the city by day; but of late evenings had generally found him promenading the beach or the piazza, or in the ball-room, with his enslaver, the fair Celestine.

He was a cautious man, and, as regarded women, rather timid; therefore, mistrusting their sincerity and disinterestedness, his present mature age found him a bachelor.

But now he had fully made up his mind; in proof whereof he next day purchased a handsome diamond engagement ring, also a magnificent bouquet, and, thus provided, again sought the seaside paradise where all his hopes and happiness were now centred.

There had been heavy arrivals of guests during the day, and the hotels were full. With great difficulty, Mr. Pickerel succeeded in obtaining a closet, just large enough to contain a narrow bed; and on this he lay down to rest for half an hour, before attiring for the evening.

It was warm, and the window wide open, but, being close in an angle of the building, admitted of very little view. Still, an occasional stray puff of sea breeze found its way into the window, and soothed by this Mr. Pickerel fell asleep, nor awakened until the twilight had deepened into darkness without, the moon not yet arisen.

As he raised himself from his pillow and rubbed his eyes, a glare of light flashed in his face. Naturally, he looked in that direction.

In the opposite angle of the wall was a row of windows, the nearest of which was not more than six feet distant from his own. The sash was not closed, and as the lower shade swayed gently in the breeze, Mr. Pickerel had glimpses of a lady almost directly facing him, who was evidently making her evening toilet in front of a mirror, between the two windows of her apartment.

One glance took in the lady's whole appearance. She was thin and sallow, with an angular form visible through her loose dressing sacque. She had very little eyebrows, and her small quantity of pale blonde hair was in the crimping pins. Her lips were puckered and sunken, and when she gave a slight yawn, as if just aroused from a nap, Mr. Pickerel perceived that this appearance was owing to her having no teeth.

Now, Mr. Pickerel was an honorable man, and his first impulse was instantly to turn away and draw down the blinds. What strange influence was it that held him there, spell-bound, as it were, and unconsciously staring at this strange lady?

As he gazed, she took into her hand a something soft and white, and repeatedly and carefully passed it over her face. Straightway, to Pickerel's surprise, her sallow complexion assumed the hue of a lily. Then she even more elaborately touched her cheek, and lo! those desert places blossomed as the rose. A few more touches of those magical fingers, a clear, regular arch surmounted each of her eyes, while a soft shade beneath gave them depth and expression. Then she lifted to her mouth a ghastly set of grinning, skeleton-like teeth, and instantly a delicate row of pearls gleamed from between her now smiling lips.

Up to this moment Pickerel had gazed with a sort of vague and bewildered surprise and uneasiness, but now, as he marked the transformation, a horrible suspicion dawned upon him. Breathlessly he sat, repelling the fearful idea, and striving to convince himself that he was not yet awake—that he was dreaming. But when he saw that strange yet familiar apparition unpin her wisp of hair, and fluff it into an airy puff above her forehead—when he saw her crown her whole head with an artistic fabric of glossy puffs, braids and ringlets—ah, then, indeed, reason could no longer hold out! The mysterious influence was explained, and he knew that he held before him the lady of his love—his fair Celestine.

What aroused him was the mention of his name. Mrs. Pettyman had entered her daughter's room. He could see her majestic form seated at the open window, with her back to him; and their words came to him with an awful distinctness.

"And you really think, Celestine, that he will propose this evening?"

"I am quite sure of it, ma. If you could have seen how he looked and acted!"

"Well, what I have to say is that you must take care to have the thing fully settled. If he hesitates or holds back, see that you bring him to the point, and pin him there. He's such a timid, feeble-spirited creature, that you have to encourage him considerably. Besides, Celestine, you really cannot afford to lose this chance. You'll be thirty in next month, and at that age a girl should give up sentiment and apply herself to serious business. I'm sure I never had an idea that you would do so well; and nothing could be more fortunate for us all. My only fear is that you will let him slip at last."

"Not I! Trust me for that, ma."

"It's very fortunate also, that you met with Pickerel before you had positively committed yourself with your cousin Robert."

"Poor Bob! If he wasn't so poor! I wish he wasn't so poor, and had Mr. Pickerel's money. But I'll make him do something for Bob—take him into partnership or give him the situation of first clerk; and then we'll have him to board with us you know."

"That reminds me, Celestine, of my own plan when you are married. I've been thinking the subject over to-day."

"Well, ma!"

In all this time M. Pickerel had been growing alternately red and pale, and now, with parted lips and staring eyes, he bent forward to listen, oblivious of all feeling of honor in sense of impending evil and instinct of self-preservation.

"Why, in the first place," said Mrs. Pettyman, deliberately, "you will take a large house and furnish it handsomely."

"Of course! I've been thinking of that, magnificent satin and rosewood suite at Fouriero's."

"Then you'll go to Europe with Pickerel—you know he mentioned that he should have to go on business in a few months."

"Oh, certainly, I intend to do that.—And, oh, ma, what lovely things I shall get in Paris and Brussels."

"And I shall offer to keep your house in your absence, and have your sister Lottie with me. Algernon, you know, will be at college. So when you return you will find us there and we shall remain, of course. This will give us a footing in an easy and natural way."

Here a horrible spasm contorted Pickerel's face.

"Certainly, ma, that will be the best arrangement. And as Lottie is about to turn out, she will help to make the house gay—parties and beaux, you know."

"Then I shall be always at hand to stand by you in case of any trouble with your husband. You know, Celestine, your temper is none of the most patient, and Pickerel seems a little obstinate.—You are too hasty and impulsive to overawe a man. Now, I never yet met a person of the other sex whom I could not manage. Look at your sister Amelia's husband, and your aunt Louisia's, and as to your poor, dear father, he was the most quiet and amiable of men, when once he had learned to understand and depend upon me. Poor, dear Richard."

Mr. Pickerel, in the darkness of his room, grinned a horrible, ghastly grin, and wildly clinched his fingers, as one awakened from a nightmare.

A pause ensued, while Mrs. Pettyman delicately wiped her eyes with a corner of her pocket handkerchief.

"Don't you think, ma," said her daughter, pensively—"don't you think we ought to have a carriage?"

"Of course; also a basket phaeton for you and myself and Lottie can drive out alone, with a page, of course there must be a page, seated behind. And now I think of it, we must manage to get rid of Pickerel's sister Annie that he's so fond of. She's such a plain person, and would want to drive out with Lottie, you know."

"And she'd be interfering—a thing which, I shall certainly not allow in my house."

Here Pickerel, with hands tightly clinched and hair on end, gave a gurgling gasp in the attempt to repress his emotions.

"What's that?" said Mrs. Pettyman, starting.

"Nothing. I say, ma, don't you think Mr. Pickerel looks sickly? And don't most men die before they are fifty? And if I should be left a widow, who knows but that I might marry cousin Bob after all? It would be funny—gracious heavens! what is that?"

Funny! So very funny was it that Pickerel, unable longer to restrain his nervous excitement, had burst into a maniacal laugh. Then, snatching up his hat and valise, he rushed headlong down the stairs, paid his bill, sprang desperately upon the boat as she parted from the pier, and was on his way to New York before Miss Pettyman, who had recognized his presence, had stopped screaming.

And from that day to this they have not set eyes on Mr. Augustus Pickeral.

A SENSIBLE MAN.

When an old man was walking past Madison Square a day or two ago, a fellow rushed up to him and shouted:

"Cab, mister, cab?"

"Yes, I see it's a cab," responded the old man to satisfy the frantic individual, who was pointing at the vehicle that he believed him.

"Would you like a cab, sir?"

"Indeed I should. If I could afford it, I'd always keep a cab. I believe the cab to be one of the most eminent civilizers of the Nineteenth century."

"I mean, would you like to engage me to drive you anywhere," explained the cabman with a pleasant smile that stretched across his face and hung down on the shoulder of his rubber overcoat.

"I think I should like to go up Fifth avenue and through Central Park to Pelham. I am fond of scenery."

"Then jump right in, and I'll whirl you through the Switzerland of America so fast you'll think you're skimming the diaphanous bosom of Lake Como."

"Then your horse is fast?"

"Yes, sir, he is; when he gets under way once it's pretty hard to stop him. He moves as gracefully as a swan, and as swift as a Mexican tornado. I have had brakes adjusted to my cab, and with them I manage to stop a Boiling Volcano. Jump right in, sir."

"I don't think I will," replied the old man; "you are altogether too novel for me. Your horse is too fast for a nervous old man with the rheumatism and gout. Now, if your horse could go a mile in eight minutes I'd engage you. I'm not going to go to Pelham and back in ten minutes. I want more time when I go to the country. Have you a cow you can hitch up instead of that horse?"

"No, sir."

"Then I shall pass humbly on. The next time you talk to an old man about your horse, boast of his pensiveness, his slowness and his gentility, and you will be all right. Don't say that he is an equine cannon ball, but assure your prospecting customer that your horse is so indolent that frequently, while on the road, he crawls up on the shafts and goes to sleep." Then the old man passed on his way, and the cabman looked after him in blank astonishment.

"SOMETHING WARMER."

The blear-eyed Rigid crept into Gumbert's saloon this morning on his heelless shoes, and he rubbed his trembling hands together and smiled with an effort.

"Good morning, William," cringed the Rigid.

Studiously cold, the barkeeper grunted and polished the bar with a towel.

"Very cold weather, William," urged the Rigid, with a ghastly assumption of ignoring the icy manner of the barkeeper.

"So I'm told," growled William, still rubbing.

"Could you (ugh!) could you give me a little drop of something warming, William? I'll step in and pay you during the day—I will—so help me——, William."

"Certainly, certainly," responded the barkeeper, with a cheerful readiness that electrified the Rigid. "What shall I give you?"

"Anything, anything, William," said the Rigid, in his thirsty eagerness, clutching the edge of the bar with both hands, and moistening his fevered lips with his tongue.

"Well, let me see—hum—suppose I fix you up a Boston float, Mr. Rigid?"

"Yes, yes, William—anything."

Whistling basely and gravely, William sets a glass of water on the bar, drops a cork into it with the silver tongs, and calmly pushes it toward the Rigid. A sickly grin overspreads the mottled countenance; he makes an effort to laugh—but he gives it up and fairly blubbers instead.

When the contrite William utters an apologetic "Oh, confound it," and hastily puts forth a beer glass and the whisky bottle.—Virginia, Nev., Chronicle.

SILENT MEN.

Washington never made a speech. In the zenith of his fame he once attempted it, failed, and gave it up, confused and abashed. In framing the Constitution of the United States the labor was almost wholly performed in Committee of the Whole, of which George Washington was the Chairman. He spoke twice during the Convention, but his words were so few that they could not fitly be termed speeches. The Convention, however, acknowledged the master-spirit, and historians affirm that, had it not been for his personal popularity and the sincerity with which he spoke, the Constitution would have been rejected by the people.

Thomas Jefferson never made a speech. He couldn't do it. Napoleon, whose executive ability was almost without a parallel, said that his greatest trouble was in finding men of deeds rather than words. When he was asked how he maintained his influence over his superiors in age and experience, when commander-in-chief of the army in Italy, he said, "By reserve." The greatness of a man is not to be measured by the length of his speeches or their number.

DANIEL WEBSTER'S ADVICE.

Daniel Webster wrote as follows to his son: "You are at a most important period of life, my dear son, soon growing up to be a young man, & a boy no longer, & I feel great anxiety for your success & happiness. I beseech you to be attentive to all your duties, & to fulfill every obligation with cheerfulness & punctuality. Above all remember your moral and religious concerns. Be constant at church & prayer, & every other appointment for worship. There can be no solid character & no true happiness which are not founded on a sense of religious duty. Avoid all evil company, & every temptation, & consider that you have not left your father house, & gone forth to improve your own character, & prepare your own mind for the part you are to lead in life. All that can be done for you by others will amount to nothing, unless you do much for yourself. Cherish all the good counsel which your dear mother used to give you, & let those of us who are yet alive have the pleasure of seeing you come forward as one who gives promise of virtue, usefulness & distinction. I fervently command you to the blessing of our Heavenly Father."

A SHARP FAMILY.

The other morning a man called at a hardware store and said he wanted a key to a certain door in his house, and he took up and carried away almost the first key handed out to him. On his way down town after dinner he stopped and exchanged the key for another, explaining that the first wouldn't fit. These changes took place twice a day for the next four days, the citizen being unable to get a key that would fit. On the sixth day he drove up to the store with the door on a wagon, and calling to the proprietor, he said:

"Bring your box of keys out here and we'll git a fit to that lock. Here I have been coming back and forth for about a week, and I might not have got a fit for a whole month if my wife had not suggested that I bring the door down here. Some of those women are mighty smart, I can tell you."

"But why didn't you take the lock off and bring it down in your pocket?"

The buyer looked at him in a vacant way, stared hard at the door and sat down on the curbstone with the remark:

"It's a wonder the whole family was not sent to the fool-house ten years ago."

HOW TO HAVE HONEST HORSE-RACES.

In an eating-house on Jefferson avenue were four or five men at a table, and a single man leaning against the wall and asleep. The party were discussing the subject of horse-racing, and one of them finally declared:

"I do not believe there has been one honest race for money for ten years past."

A second was rather neutral in his opinions, but the third brought his fist down and roared out:

"I tell you this corruption must be stopped, but what is the remedy?"

The stranger awoke, walked over to the speaker and said: "Attend the primaries—blast you! attend the primaries!"—Detroit Free Press.

The Constitutionalist.

VOLUME XIII.

With this issue commences the 13th Volume of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, and we return thanks to our many patrons for the liberal support bestowed the past year for our endeavors to furnish a good family paper. That our efforts in that direction have not been in vain is attested by the large increase of good names on our subscription books, and by the number of paying advertisements among the columns of the paper. While speaking of ourselves we desire to say a few words in reference to Job Printing. It is an undeniable and unfortunate fact that there is a vast amount of patronage of this kind taken outside our city to be done, when there is no occasion for parties desiring such work to do so. There is plenty of facilities in Plainfield for doing good work at fair prices. As regards THE CONSTITUTIONALIST Job Printing Office, we do not hesitate to say that, having a well-selected assortment of all the latest styles of type, with good presses and competent workmen, we can do as fine work as may be turned out in any other office in the State, and at reasonable rates. To successfully run a large printing establishment, such as ours, it is necessary to depend in a great measure upon the profits accruing from Job Printing, therefore, we ask that work of that kind should be given where it belongs, at home. We are constantly being called upon to "puff" this entertainment, that church fair, or this charitable institution, etc., while printing necessary to the same is given to some office in New York city or other place. This is all wrong and should not be.—In a short time we shall be located in our new and commodious quarters in Vanderbeek's new building where we shall have additional facilities, at a considerable expense, for doing first-class printing. We invite a call and trial of our work and prices.

NEW YEAR.

A new year opens, and with it comes thoughts of the past, thanks for the present, and hopes for the future.

Eighteen hundred and eighty is here, and may its record be peace and prosperity.

May our beloved country burnish bright the golden chain of unity, and grow increasingly rich in the fruits of earth and the products of enterprise and industry.

May law and order, virtue and intelligence reign supreme, and discord be a stranger within her borders.

May health and plenty make glad the whole people, and o'er mountain and valley, hill and plain, gratitude arise to Almighty God for merciful and manifold blessings.

Sincerely do we wish all a HAPPY NEW YEAR.

That Returning Board count in Maine is playing havoc with certain Republican party leaders. They are wild and warlike, clench their fists and say naughty words. The Governor and Council claim to have acted in accordance with the letter of State statutes, which could not be said of the great original Returning Boarders of Louisiana, when they, in despite of both law and fact, and to the delight of Blaine, Hamlin and Hale, counted a gentleman into the Presidency whom the people did not elect.

A CENTURY.

The history of the past century, in its relation to this country alone, is indeed marvelous. We know it to be the record of accomplished facts, although, in many particulars, seemingly as strange as fiction.

One hundred years ago, the thirteen American colonies were fighting against fearful odds for their independence as States. They finally won the battle and a national name. The territory they then occupied merely fringed the Atlantic coast, and back of them lay an almost unexplored wilderness.

Now, those thirteen weaklings have become a band of thirty-eight strong armed commonwealths, whose united power makes the American Republic great and influential in the eyes of all nations as the embodiment of freedom, riches, enlightenment and strength, and whose populated expanse reaches across the continent from ocean to ocean.

Sixty years ago, the application of steam power was a rare and costly exception, now, it is of universal use and for every conceivable purpose. Then, a few small steamboats slowly navigated smooth surfaced rivers, now, large and swift floating palaces dot inland waters everywhere, and fleets of majestic steamers traverse with speed and safety the billows of the remotest seas.

Fifty years ago, a few railroads of flimsy and uncertain construction began to engage public attention, now, the whole broad land is bound together with an iron net-work, substantially laid, and fast rushing trains pass with security and clock like regularity even from New York to San Francisco, over lofty mountain peak and across arid penks.

Forty years ago, an eminent scientific gentleman proposed utilizing electricity as a word messenger, and was laughed at, now, telegraph wires flash communication to and from the most distant hamlets, and through the depths of ocean to realms thousands of miles away.

We might go on with comparison to an indefinite extent, but enough has been adduced to faintly reveal the wonder-workings of the past century. Should the coming hundred years progress as rapidly along the pathway of improvement, what will our country be in 1980? The thought is overwhelming. That it may be to the glory of Heaven and the good of humanity is our ardent prayer.

GOV. GARCELON'S EXPLANATION.

Gov. Garcelon, Saturday, Dec. 27th, gave to the reporter of the New York Herald, the following, in answer to a request for an explanation:

"AUGUSTA, ME., Dec. 27, 1879.

"To J. G. BENNETT, Editor of the HERALD:—

"The difficulty grows out of the fact that the Governor and Council confine themselves to constitutional and legal provisions in tabulating and counting the votes as returned by municipal officers. The constitution makes certain things to be done by them imperative; the law supplements others, and our Supreme Court have given official opinions as to what is to be done under certain circumstances. Every year there have been defective returns rejected—that is, not counted—for non-compliance with constitutional or legal provisions. But this year, in addition to the usual occurrences in this direction, a sort of mildew or epidemic seems to have infected several of our larger cities. These returns are fatally defective, not only as would appear to an ordinary mind, but as decided by the rules laid down by our highest judicial tribunal. It is alleged, however, that by a law passed in 1867 the Governor and Council have authority to make alterations or amendments of the returns, but unfortunately for their claim, that law, even constitutional as applicable to Senators and Representatives, confine any correction of the returns to the record made in open town meeting, and in the cases where an attempt has been made for correction, the record, if any existed, was found to agree with the returns. The simple and only question therefore is, shall the Governor and Council follow the mandates of the constitution, the law and judicial decisions explanatory thereof, or in obedience to popular clamor violate their oaths of office, trample the constitution under their feet and forfeit not only all self-respect, but that which they have a right to claim both from friends and foes so long as they adhere to the line of duty? Very truly yours,

"ALONZO GARCELON."

A DISGRACE TO THE CLOTH.

Here is a couple of specimen bricks of Maine clergy:

The Rev. Mr. Sargent, speaking at a Blaine revolutionary meeting, said that they had as much right to resist the usurpation of their prerogatives as did the people of the South. "I am ready," he said, "to go to Augusta. I am a minister of the Gospel and want to go as chaplain, but I would carry a musket over my shoulder and a revolver in each pocket, if necessary, to organize our Legislature and protect the rights of the people." Later on he said: "It is time for every man to rise up and prevent this crime, peaceably if we can, but forcibly if we must."

The Rev. J. Benson Hamilton, a Methodist divine in Lewistown, spoke in his church about the outrage and told his hearers what he thought to be their political duty. He charged the Governor with fraud, theft, disloyalty, treason and dishonor to his State and to the town of his birth. "What shall we do with the thieves?" he asked, meaning the Governor and the Council. "Honor them or hang them? Shall we honor them? Yes, when we honor the sneak thief, the burglar, the highway robber, the assassin. To honor those who have dishonored themselves is putting a premium on vice and dishonesty." "The sun is going down," he said later. "The shadows of night already begin to darken the skies and veil the earth. What of the night? you ask. It may be filled with weariness and sorrow. It may cost much in tears and blood. But the sunrise will come. God does not slumber nor sleep."

THE CASE OF MAINE.

The situation in Maine remains unchanged since our last issue, excepting that a better feeling prevails among the people in support of the Governor in his action. Gov. Garcelon remains firm and has caused the removal of the arms and ammunition from the arsenal at Bangor to Augusta. The attempt to stop their removal, which was done by a mob on Christmas day, was not repeated, and the arms were quietly removed on Tuesday.

There has been a terrible disaster in Scotland. A railroad bridge across the Frith of Tay gave way while a passenger train was crossing it, in consequence, it is supposed, of a terrific gale prevailing at the time, and the whole train, consisting of six cars and a van, was plunged into forty-five feet of water, over eighty feet below. Of the 275 or 300 passengers and employees on board, not one escaped. Divers are at work endeavoring to raise the bodies.

The life of King Alfonso, of Spain, has again been attempted by an assassin. A shot was fired at him as he and the Queen were riding out from the Palace gates. The aim was bad and the ball which weighed an ounce was flattened against the gate. The would-be assassin, a youth aged 19, named Gonzales, was instantly killed.

TO GERMAN REPUBLICANS.

An address to the German Republicans is put forth by Sigismund Kaufmann, calling upon them to refuse to take any part in the movement to make Gen. Grant a candidate for a third Presidential term. It says that a new era in German immigration began in 1848, when the emigrant from the Fatherland came to this country to realize his political ideal of government denied him at home, and that a high ideal of a republican form of government has made the German, even of the strictest party faith, practically useless as a political tool. "The agitators of the 'third term,'" says the address, "is a test of your adherence to Republican principles. The great General of the war was as faithfully supported in the field by you as by the native American, and afterward at the polls Gen. Grant reaped the reward or his hard-earned victories. You cast your ballot as one man for him; and again when the gratitude of the people paid him equal honor with Washington you voted him a second term. Precedent stops here, and it is not pretended that the qualities of Gen. Grant, either as a citizen or a soldier, so far excel those of the Father of his Country as to require a third term to accentuate them.

"It is urged that we need a strong man and a strong government in the face of the conclusive answer given by the result of the civil war—that the Government as it then existed was strong enough to defeat a combination which, from political causes, can never obtain again. The abolition of slavery severed forever the bond which could hold together a Southern Confederacy. The proclamation of Abraham Lincoln freeing the slaves was the greatest victory for the Federal cause of the war; it shed no drop of blood, it cost no treasure. Where graves are the monuments of Grant's victories, millions of freemen are the trophies Lincoln won.

"It may be that the political machinists will, with the aid of Southern delegates, representing no constituents, re-nominate Gen. Grant; but his chief claim to that honor should prove fatal to its being accorded to him. We will but repeat the history of the decline and fall of Republics when the American citizen shall confess himself incapable of guarding the liberties of his country, and no longer jealous of his private rights, by calling for a strong man to be appointed guardian of his person and estate and voluntarily prolong his political infancy through manhood to second childhood. Such a confession will not be made without its inevitable sequence, and we shall have a king in fact long before we have one in name. Under any and every form, not moved by any pretext however specious, let us reject this violation of the fundamental principles of republican government; let the rulers continue to be the people. If we must have a strong man and a strong government let us return to Bismarck and his iron rule. There will be neither hypocrisy nor self-deception there. We shall kiss the iron rod that smites us, knowing that it is an iron rod. Let us be true to our principles, and we shall have none but noble regrets."

Dr. S. M. Osmun, of Morristown, recently expelled from his church, has been re-instated to membership by the Quarterly Conference of the M. E. Churches of Newark District.

The new trial of Jennie Smith and "Cove" Bennett charged with killing policeman Richard Smith, of Jersey City, will commence Jan. 12th.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Mr. R. H. Morris killed a white bluebird in this city on the 26th. The tail feathers and primaries showed a slight pearly tint, the remainder being pure white. The bird is a male of this year, iris normal.—New Haven Courier.

A bird dog match for $500 a side, between Gladstone, owned by Mr. P. H. Bryson of Memphis, and Joe, Jr., owned by Mr. G. W. Campbell, of Columbus, Tenn., took place near Florence, Ala., last week. The dogs worked two days, from sunrise to sunset. Joe, Jr., won, scoring 61 points to 52 for Gladstone. Joe, Jr., is a red setter of large size. He left the field on three legs, one leg giving out on the last day. The dogs were followed by crowds from several States.

A wounded owl presented to a lady of Louisville, Ky., became a favorite, and was soon allowed to wander about her rooms. In time an unusually fine specimen of bluebird was placed upon her table. After it had been "set up" it was so life-like that the owl thought it alive and stared at it night and day. At length he ate the bluebird one night, stuffing and all, and as it was pickled with arsenic, the owl now stands with open beak and outstretched wings poised on the pedestal where the bluebird was poised before him.

Two boys in Paris tied a heavy stone to the neck of a Newfoundland dog, and took him to the Seine to drown. In throwing the animal in, one of the boys fell into the river also. Then the dog, having got rid of the stone, rescued the boy.

After drawing a truck for three and a half years, a horse that had belonged to a fire company of Rochester was taken into his old home. When turned loose he went into his former stall, and at the sounding of the gong ran out and took his old place at the tongue of the machine.

A young man named Cross goes hunting without a gun; his sole and only weapons are smooth round stones which he carries in his pockets. Throwing stones, he kills not only hares, but partridges. Three respectable and truth-telling men assured me, yesterday, that they went out one day with him, they taking their guns; that he killed that day, using nothing but stones thrown from his hand, six hares running and three partridges flying. Last fall he attended our State fair, where a showman exhibited rag babies arranged on steps, and charged five cents for two throws with a ball, at say ten paces. If you struck a baby he gave you a cigar and charged nothing. You have doubtless seen the game. Cross went in, threw, and struck and struck and threw, knocking over a baby every pop, until he broke up the show.—Virginia Paper.

The season for killing or trapping game expires Jan. 1st. Now is the time for farmers and owners of property to see that all violators of the game laws are prosecuted. Send word of any violation to "The New Jersey Game and Fish Protective Society" at Plainfield.

Wm. Moore, Esq., better known as "Uncle Billy," and Mr. E. A. Campbell, who is also better known as "Ellis" both of this city, had a little "controversy" a few days since as to who was the best driver. Result of controversy, bet of $10 and a bottle of wine that "Ellis" could beat "Uncle Billy," the former to pick his horse from the latter's large stock of trotters. Ellis took "Lady Mattison" and Uncle Billy "Gipsie Queen." Scene of the trial, Union Avenue, Saturday last. Lookers-on, Johnny Osborn, with "Buckskin" and the reporter of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST. Time made—of no account. Winner, "Uncle Billy," although "Ellis" enters a protest. When there comes better sleighing—he will out-drive "Uncle Billy." The latter says—"no sir." Well, time will tell.

Bishopric of Northern New Jersey.

Rev. Thomas A. Starkey, D. D., Bishop-elect of Northern New Jersey, has formally accepted the election to the Bishopric. The requisite number of the Dioceses have given their consent to his consecration, and this ceremony will probably take place early in January, at Newark, and will be a very interesting event to the Episcopalians, as it is the first time a Bishop was ever consecrated in Newark.

* * *

In Boston, about 11 o'clock last Monday night, a fire began in the rear of a paper warehouse on Federal street, whence it extended to Devonshire street, causing great destruction of property. The latest estimate is that the loss is at least $1,000,000. The publishing house of Houghton, Osgood & Co., has suffered heavily. The entire Fire Department were engaged in quelling the flames.

A FRAGRANT BREATH AND PEARLY TEETH

Are easily obtained by cleansing your teeth with that justly popular dentrifice SOZODONT. Composed of rare antiseptic herbs, it imparts whiteness to teeth, a delicious aroma to breath, and preserves intact, from youth to old age, the teeth. Acidity of the stomach will destroy the strongest teeth unless its effects are counteracted with SOZODONT, and this pure tooth-wash protects the dental surfaces by removing every impurity that adheres to them.—Ask your druggist for SOZODONT.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Simmons'

LIVER DISEASE and Indigestion prevail to a greater extent than probably any other malady, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Indigestion or want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the shoulders, Cough, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered for these ailments. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for forty years, and hundreds from all parts of the country will vouch for its virtues, viz: Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia; John Gill Shorter, of Alabama; Gen. John B. Gordon, R. L. Mott, of Columbus, Ga., Bishop Pierce, of Georgia, are among the hundreds to whom we can refer. Extract of a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1872: "I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active medicine."

REGULATOR

It is not the quantity eaten that gives strength, life, blood and health. It is the thorough digestion of the food taken, let it be much or little. Therefore, do not stimulate up the stomach to crave food, but rather assist digestion after eating by taking

AN ORDINANCE

An Amendment to an Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to license Cartmen, Expressmen and Hackmen," approved July 22, 1879.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Section 1 of said Ordinance be and the same is hereby amended as follows: By inserting immediately before the words "or other vehicles for the transportation of passengers," the word "stages"; and again, immediately before the words "or other vehicles," the word "stage."

Sec. 2. That Section 2 of the said Ordinance be and the same is hereby amended as follows: Section 2—All licenses granted for the purposes mentioned in the preceding section of this Ordinance, except licenses to keep and use stages for hire shall expire in one year from the granting of the same, and all licenses shall be signed by the mayor and attested by the city clerk, and shall state the purpose for which the same shall be granted, the number of the license, and the location wherein such business is carried on, and the name of the persons licensed. Stage licenses may be granted, to expire in one week from the time of granting the same, or in one year, at the option of the party applying therefor.

Sec. 3. That Section 3 of said Ordinance be and the same is hereby amended as follows: By inserting therein immediately after the words, "for each hack fifteen dollars," the words "for each stage three dollars, when for one week, and fifteen dollars when for one year," and afterwards immediately after the words "and to each person" the words, "except one applying for a stage license only."

Sec. 4. That Section 5 of said ordinance be and the same is hereby amended by adding thereto after the words "and the date hereof" the words "and when the same shall expire."

Sec. 5. That Section 7 of the aforesaid Ordinance be and the same is hereby amended by inserting therein, after the word "hack" and before the words "or cab for the transportation of passengers" the word "stage," and after the aforesaid words "or cabs," and before the aforesaid words "for the transportation of passengers," the words "or other vehicle."

Sec. 6. That Section 8 of the aforesaid Ordinance be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 8—No person licensed as aforesaid to hire out or use for hire or wages, any hack, stage, cab or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers within the city of Plainfield shall charge more than the following rates: Commencing at a point where Farragut Avenue intersects Green Brook; thence following the line of Farragut Avenue to Front Street; thence, in the same direction in which Farragut Avenue runs, in a direct line to Hillside Avenue; thence, through Hillside Avenue, to Prospect Avenue; thence, in a direct line, to Park Avenue at the residence of E. L. Finch, Esq.; thence, in a direct line, to the intersection of Arlington Avenue and Randolph Road; thence, through Randolph Road, to Plainfield Avenue; thence, in a straight line, to the intersection of Spooner Avenue and Eighth street; thence, through Eighth, to Grant Avenue; thence, through Grant Avenue, to the northwesterly city line; thence, following the northwesterly city line, to Farragut Avenue, the place of beginning, twenty-five cents for each passenger, and all beyond fifty cents for each passenger; and when engaged by the hour, one dollar for the first hour and seventy-five cents per hour for each additional hour, under the penalty of five dollars for each and every offense, and a forfeiture of his license upon second conviction.

Adopted Dec. 23, 1879.
Approved Dec. 30, 1879.
NATHAN HARPER, Mayor.
Attest: J. OAKLEY NODYNE, City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE

Designating a City Jail.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the building belonging to Morgan Bird, and now in the occupancy of the city as a police station and lock-up, be and the same is hereby designated and declared to be the jail of the city of Plainfield.

Adopted Dec. 29, 1879.
Approved Dec. 30, 1879.

A HAPPY New Year.

MORE snow has come.

THE ice men are not happy.

THEY will be so before March comes.

SKATERS were on Sylvan Lake last Sunday.

VANDERBEEK has some beautiful sleds for sale.

SHOVEL the snow from your walks and gutters.

THE swearing-off season will commence to-day. Oh! I'll pay you, Mr. ——.

THE Legislature of New Jersey will convene at Trenton, Tuesday, Jan. 13th, 1880.

MORE snow coming. Go to L. M. French's for a beautiful sleigh at low price.

THIS is No. 1, of Vol. 13, of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST. My, how old we are getting.

PLAINFIELD has as yet not been afflicted with a walking match. Let us hope we may not be in 1880.

REV. DR. Vincent will preach from the pulpit of the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church next Sunday morning.

OUR new City Fathers take their seats for the transaction of business on Monday next at 12 m. The old ones retire—of course.

THE hackmen and citizens generally, will be pleased with the new "hack ordinance" which appears in this issue. Undoubtedly.

THE light fall of snow on the last day of the year 1879, has made tolerably good sleighing for callers on the first day of the new year, 1880.

WILLIS, the popular grocer of Netherwood, gave all his customers a Christmas present of groceries. Ed. always does the right thing with his patrons.

TWELVE hundred dollars was the net sum realized from the sale of articles at the Ladies' Bazaar of the Crescent ave. Presbyterian church, held recently.

MICHAEL Sullivan, convicted of killing his daughter's infant illegitimate child at Springfield, this County, has been sentenced to one year in State Prison.

WE doubt whether it is expedient or wise for the Common Council to present and act upon an application for license in one session. It is a bad precedent.

THE sentence against J. C. Letson, Jr., former Collector of the county of Middlesex, convicted of embezzlement, will be delivered on Friday morning, Jan. 2.

LADIES desiring "stamping," should call at the Fancy Goods Store of Mrs. W. L. Force, No. 8 Park Avenue. Also Fringing and Fluting on reasonable terms.

PLAINFIELD'S Town Poet has indited some beautiful verses in commemoration of a "certain event" recently occurring in this city. We have no room for publication.

The Grand Jury of Somerset County found two bills of indictment against ex-Cashier T. W. Frech, for embezzlement, and a bill against ex-President Veghte for misdemeanor.

THIEVES stole a blanket, robe and shawl from the carriage of Mr. John Tilton while the vehicle was standing in front of the Congregational church last Saturday evening.

MORE "New Years Cards" were printed at this office for the "calls" of 1880 than for many previous years. Which not only evidences that "calling" is not out of fashion, but that "callers" know where to get artistic printing executed.

"COOKIE," the faithful carrier of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST the past twelve years, will call upon his patrons within his immediate reach to-day (New Year's) with a fine address. Give him not a rebuff, but a dime, quarter, or a Dollar of your Daddies.

Two cents to an apple that Wm. B. Maxson, Esq., collects the $1,000 bill presented to Common Council by him for services rendered in securing to the city of Plainfield a "Public Park." No room in this issue for a "re-hash" of the story. More anon.

THE Holiday trade among the merchants of Plainfield has been very brisk and prosperous, judging from the reports reaching us. That is as it should be. There is no reason for going out of town to purchase merchandise when we have so many well-stocked stores in our midst.

THOSE members of the Vocal Society who have copies of "Athalie," are requested by Mr. Fitzhugh to loan them to him for a few weeks, and he will see that they are well taken care of and returned in due time and in good order. Mr. R. J. Shaw will receive the copies and have them sent to Mr. Fitzhugh.

JAMES Perrine and James Boyd, alias "Crooked Dublin," charged with participating in the robbery of the dwelling of Mr. W. A. Codington, near Millington, and arrested for that offence by officer Dodd, were convicted of the charge in the Somerville Courts on Monday last.—Boyd gets 4 and Perrine 2 years in State Prison.

EGGERDING, the cigar manufacturer, will remove from his present location on Front Street, to No. 17 Park Avenue, (Mullin's Restaurant) on Monday next. He is compelled to make this move for want of more room to conduct his large and growing business. His C. O. D. 5 cent segars are something superior. Try them once.

THE Iron Era, published at Dover, Morris Co., says there is a well-founded rumor that a Mr. Hopkins, nephew of Judge Lathrop, Receiver of the Central Railroad, has purchased the Dover Rolling Mills, and that there is a possibility of the extension of the High Bridge Branch of the Central Railroad of N. J. from Port Oram to Dover.

VANDERBEEK, the dispenser of musical instruments, guns, pistols, etc., etc., etc., etc., says he is going to give the Senior a handsome pocket knife on New Year's day in consequence of the fact that he (Van) has been the landlord of the Force Bros. for twelve years past. The Senior will accept the gift. Vanderbeek may be found on North Avenue, beneath THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office.

AT a regular meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, held Tuesday evening, Dec. 30, 1879, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, hereby tenders sincere thanks to the members of the Coachman's Social Club for their generous donation to the Hospital Fund.

WM. R. COCK, Sec'y.

WHO will be the Speaker of the House at the opening of the approaching State Legislature, is now the "boom." Well, it is not for us to say. It is, unfortunately, a Republican Legislature. Union county ought to be represented by a Speaker. Hon. Geo. Stiles and Hon. Philip Vernon are the two parties spoken of for the position. Either would make a good representative for their constituents.

THE aspirants for the various city positions in the gift of the Republican Common Council of Plainfield, are numerous. The trouble is, there is not room enough for the "stalwarts" that claim a privilege to be appointed to office for the meritorious work (?) they have done for the party, etc. Well, its none of our fish. Give 'em all an office. The gravel pits need filling in.

JEREMIAH Blair, the well-known mail carrier of African descent, (not the mail) was introduced to President (?) Hayes on Saturday at the depot. "Jerry" approached Mr. H. with a broad grin on his face. His hand was taken and "squeezed" as Jerry says, so that it took him some time to get his fingers apart. Solemn words of advice were also given him regarding his duties. It must not be supposed, however, that Jerry is looking after the Post Office appointment.

For the first time since Plainfield became a city, will the reporter of Council Proceedings for THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, Mr. T. A. Sofield, write of the doings of our City Fathers at their weekly and monthly gatherings under Republican administration, after this issue. Well, as a friend of ours has remarked: "there are lots of good Republicans," and so we believe, from experience. The doings of our city daddies will be just as accurately written up by our reporter and published in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST during 1880, as though it was a "non-partizan" Council.

NOW write it 1880.

For our darling bangs her hair.

A LITTLE boy of Rahway cried all of Christmas Day because he found nothing in his stocking except a $1,000 Rahway City bond which he couldn't pledge even for a pint of peanuts.

MAC EVOYS Hibernicon attracted large audiences at Van Deventer Hall, Christmas night and night following. The performance was a good one each evening and elicited the applause of the audience it deserved.

THE lumber for Vanderbeek's new building, which the workmen have been waiting for so long, arrived on Wednesday, and now we may expect to see the handsome structure rapidly mount skyward.

THE engineer of Engine No. 111 had a big fat turkey slung at him by Uncle David Boice as the coal train to which the engine was attached passed through our city on Wednesday. He got the turkey all the same.

"PINAFORE" did not attract a very large audience at Van Deventer Hall last Tuesday evening. The management was somewhat crippled in rendering the piece, in consequence of the absence of some of the child performers, and orchestra.

A HORSE being driven by a middle aged man, took fright while passing under the railroad bridge at Park avenue, ran away and threw the driver out, on Tuesday afternoon last. The runaway collided with another wagon on the avenue but was soon captured. Nobody hurt and but little damage.

THERE has been a tremendous rush to Compton's Confectionery Store during the present Holiday season. The reputation this establishment has gained for pure and unadulterated candies is the principal cause of it. There is no danger of the little ones being poisoned by eating Compton's candies.

For One Year Only.

It having been stated that constables elected at the recent election were to serve three years in accordance with a law passed by the last Legislature, one of our leading constables wrote to Secretary of State Kelsey for information and received answer "that such a bill was introduced but never became a law," so that the term of constables recently elected will be for one year only.

A Handsome Painting.

The portrait of School Trustee, Jacob Kirkner, painted by Julian Scott, and a gift to the Public School by him, the frame being donated by several other gentlemen, has been placed on exhibition in Shaw's Drug Store, where it will remain a few days previous to its being placed in the Board of Education rooms at the High School Buildings. The portrait is an accurate likeness of Mr. K. and reflects credit upon its designer, Mr. Scott.

A Fowl Deed.

A few nights ago "chicken fiends" paid a visit to the hennery of Mr. Philip Moshute, on the road leading to Rahway and about a quarter of a mile from the Jackson school house. The family being awakened about one o'clock by the ringing of an alarm, which was attached to the hen house and communicating with the bed room of the oldest son, Phil., who on hearing the alarm, hastily dressing, proceeded to interview the thief or thieves with a double barrel shot gun loaded with large shot, but before he reached the chicken coop he saw a man walking from there and hallooed to him to stop, but he paid no head to the summons but quickened his pace, when Phil. fired at him, which act caused the thief to strike a gait that placed the performances of the best runners in the shade. The supposition is that Phil. "winged his bird," or rather man, as he was tracked some distance by the blood. This is the second time this fall that thieves have visited the place, and the next time they call, Phil. expects to bring down his man.

Rutherford B. Hayes

And son, visited the former's cousin, Mrs. A. D. Shephard, of Scotch Plains, N. J., on Saturday last, disembarking from a Philadelphia train due in this city at half-past three in the afternoon. Although the fact that Mr. Hayes would visit his cousin the day in question, was published in the columns of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST and New York papers, it seems as though there was not enough "boom" among the "stalwarts" of Plainfield's Republican citizens to give the distinguished man a reception upon his arrival. To be sure, it was stated in the New York papers that he would be at his cousin's residence, which by the way, these city reporters will contend is in Plainfield, when it is in that small hamlet called Scotch Plains, but then that should not account for the non-arrival of the band and the grand procession, etc., with which the great man was honored (?) upon his (supposed) visit at the "Plains" a few months since. Nevertheless, Plainfield is becoming more noted by these passing notices that "the President visited Plainfield, N. J., yesterday," etc., from the leading papers of the country, and we ought to be thankful—which we are. Mr. Hayes and son, upon their arrival, passed the throng of hackmen and passengers at the depot, and entered the carriage of Mrs. Shephard, which was in waiting, and proceeded to the latter's residence at Scotch Plains. On Sunday Mr. Hayes visited the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church, this city, in the morning and afternoon, making a few remarks to the children from the pulpit on the latter occasion. He departed for his home in Washington on Monday morning on the 10.02 train. There were a number of sight-seers at the depot upon his departure, but no demonstration whatever made.

Odd Fellows.

The following named gentlemen were elected officers of "Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F." to serve the ensuing year, at an election held in their rooms Monday evening last:

N. G.—Wm. E. Jones.
V. G.—Isaac Brokaw.
R. S.—James E. Arnold.
Treas.—T. J. Young.
P. S.—Peter V. Weaver.

Lo! the Poor Indian.

The Potawatomies, who a few years ago were a brave and flourishing tribe, have been scattered and driven from their reservations, and are now scarcely ever heard of. They used to carry the scalps of many New Year's callers on their belts. The tribe is by no means extinct. Should they once more don the war paint it would be bad for some wayward caller among the Modocs who should fall in their path.

A Handsome Sleigh.

Mr. E. P. Thorn, proprietor of the Mansion House, this city, is the owner of the handsomest sleigh we have yet seen. It has just come from the hands of its painter, Mr. W. S. Chase, whose workshop is at New Market. The body of the sleigh is painted purple with lake stripe, and a 1½ inch gold band running around it. The gear is Naples yellow color with a ½ inch gold band running its length. The trimmings of the seat and back are maroon velvet. The rails, handles and steps are silver-plated. Mr. Chase is a fine workman.

He Was Brought Back.

Michael Sweeney, Jr., hackman, who was arrested a couple of weeks since, for assaulting one of the "Purdy" sisters, and who "skipped" out of town before his trial came off, was re-arrested at Miller's Hotel, Dunellen, on Monday night last by officer Dodd and constable Robert Pierce, of Middlesex county, and brought back to this city. He was confined in the station house over night and released the next day by Mr. Ellis A. Campbell becoming his bondsman in the sum of $100 for Sweeney's appearance before Judge Good on Wednesday, to be tried on a charge of disturbing the peace, and to appear also before the Grand Jury at Elizabeth, on a charge of assault and battery. Sweeney appeared for trial on Wednesday, with Wm. B. Maxson as Counsel, and Corporation Counsel Suydam for the city. A jury of twelve men were impanelled, and the matter was left in their hands after a lively tilt between opposing Counsel. After several hour's deliberation the jury returned with a verdict of guilty to a charge of violating the peace and quietness of the city, with a recommendation of mercy to the Court. At the time of going to press the culprit had not put in an appearance.

Masonic Election.

The following officers of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M., of this city, have been elected for the ensuing year:

W. M.—W. A. Freeman.
S. W.—W. F. Scott.
J. W.—T. L. Murphy.
Treas.—Jas. S. Nason.
Sec.—Jas. Lyon.

The following officers were re-elected in Washington Lodge, No. 33, F. and A. M., of Elizabeth, last Friday evening, and will be duly installed on Friday evening next, by P. G. M. Pembrook: John C. Rankin, Jr., W. M.; William Gaston, S. W.; George M. Stiles, J. W.; Robert B. Hooker, Treasurer; Joseph E. Busby, Secretary; Walter A. Turnbull, S. D.; David A. Ball, J. D.; Henry M. Looker, William H. Luster, M. of C.; I. B. Waters, Henry E. Doty, Stewards; Samuel Osborn, Chaplain; W. C. Williams, Organist; John Pick, Tyler; Trustees, L. W. Oakley, Wm. A. Pembrook, Robert M. Moore, A. N. Smith; Finance, George W. Sackett, Wm. M. Oliver, T. B. Budd; Board of Relief, W. H. Hill, H. C. Williams, Chas. Russ; Life Insurance, Wm. H. Meeker, J. E. Busby, J. H. Gray; History, L. W. Oakley, James S. Green.

Personals.

Esquire James Verdon, of North Plainfield, is once more to be seen on our streets after convalescing from a severe illness of several week's duration. We trust to see the 'Squire enjoying good health for many a long day.

Mr. Alex. Titsworth has returned to his place of business in the South, at Selma, Ala., departing from this city on Monday evening last.

Captain Wm. H. Gill, the "war horse" of the Democracy of Union County, and at present enjoying a lucrative position in Washington, under one of New Jersey's representatives, paid a flying visit to his home in Elizabeth last week. The Captain looks well and hearty. He has our congratulations.

We learn with pleasure that Horace F. J. Drake, one of the proprietors of the Elizabeth Herald, has the "inside track" for City Clerk of Elizabeth. "Horace," we hope you will get it. Editors get but little now-a-days, in the way of public patronage.

The Muhlenberg Hospital.

On behalf of the proposed Muhlenberg Hospital, and solely in the interest of what we believe to be a humane and needed work, we respectfully solicit from our fellow-citizens the aid now wanted to render the object we have in view an early and beneficent reality.

A noble-hearted gentleman of this city stands ready to donate a suitable piece of ground as soon as the Board of Governors are financially prepared to erect the Hospital buildings. The balance required to do that is one thousand dollars, and for its realization we thus frankly appeal to your generosity.

We are not unmindful of the many and urgent demands of charity and benevolence, but, knowing that the cause we thus specially plead is eminently praiseworthy, being the alleviation of human suffering, irrespective of denominational name or worldly condition, we cannot do other than confidently rely upon your favorable response.

Donations will be thankfully received and duly acknowledged by either of the undersigned.

Ordered Work.

APPEAL FROM THE RELIEF ASSOCIATION.

The ladies of the Relief Association, connected with the Employment Bureau, desire to call public attention to the department for Ordered Work, hoping to secure the hearty interest and co-operation of the ladies in Plainfield.

In addition to the rough work done by beneficiaries of the Association, there is the best kind of sewing done by women, who need work rather than charity. A competent Superintendent in charge of this department cuts and prepares the work before it is given out, the person ordering the garments providing only the patterns of the articles desired. Specimens of the needlework of some of these seamstresses can almost always be found at the rooms, where all information desired, will be cheerfully given.

It is hoped that all in our city who buy ready-made garments in New York and other places, will be induced to examine the work done by some of the employees of the Association, and give them orders for sewing. We are confident that the work done will be more satisfactory than that bought elsewhere, the prices being quite as reasonable.

In this department the desire is simply to pay expenses.

This enterprise is constantly increasing in public favor as its work and object are understood. It puts employment in the hands of willing and skillful workers, who would otherwise suffer, and the employer receives a full equivalent for money expended.

There are on hand a large number of garments made by the beneficiaries of the society that are sold at less than cost of making and material. The work has been given as a charity, and is not as thoroughly done or nicely finished as in the department for ordered work. It is therefore sold at a reduced price or given gratuitously.

Many ladies in our city can give time better than money. We would direct the attention of such to the fact that all fancy or useful articles donated, will be sold at the rooms for the benefit of the Association.

MRS. B. J. SHREVE,
Sec. Employment Bureau.

A LARGE number of invited guests congratulated Mr. John C. Runyon and wife, at their residence on Arlington avenue, last Tuesday evening, the occasion being the 25th wedding anniversary of the couple. Many handsome presents were left upon the guests departure. Mr. Runyon is the senior member of the firm of J. C. Runyon & Co., of the Central N. J. Times.

The Christmas Festivals.

GENERAL SIMPLICITY AND PLAINNESS—THOROUGHLY GOOD TIMES.

The Christmas Festivals given by the various Sunday Schools of our city have been somewhat remarkable for their simplicity. Heretofore one or more of the schools would have something elaborate in the festival line, but this year with unanimity all the schools have been satisfied with simple entertainments, and we have good reason to suppose that the enjoyment has correspondingly increased. Elaborate entertainments have always over-reached their mark if they were intended to please children. The simpler the entertainments are made, so much the more of enjoyment do the little folks derive. We rejoice to see this new condition of affairs, and earnestly hope it may be permanent. The season was opened by the who, on Christmas Eve, gathered together in the basement of the Seventh-day Baptist lecture room a band of happy children and their parents ready to have the best time imaginable, and they had it. There was a vast supply of cake and candy in addition to the cheerful speech of Rev. R. Lowry and others.

CENTRAL BAPTIST,

METHODIST EPISCOPAL

Sunday School had their joyful time Christmas morning, when the lecture room of the church resounded to the glad voices of happy children. Dr. Vincent made one of his inimitable addresses, after which Rev. J. L. Hurlbut also spoke. Rev. Wm. Day referred pleasantly to his surprise of the night before. Candy and bananas reigned supreme for a time and every one went home and sent for the doctor. No casualties have been as yet recorded.

FRIENDS' FIRST-DAY SCHOOL.

There was a pleasant time in the Friends' Meeting House on Peace street Christmas afternoon, it being the annual festival of the First-day School, and no where could a better appearing and happier assemblage of children be found than on that occasion. All the recitations, both class and single, were admirably delivered and reflected much credit upon the scholars. Those taking individual parts were as follows:

Phemie France—"A Thanksgiving."
Edith Leonard—"The Open Door."
Lizzie Laing—"Summer Birds."
Clara Tolson—"Touch not."
Sadie Grant—"Closing of School."
Winnie Conover }
Laura Runyon } —"Who shall gain."
Flora Hawkins—"Mary and Joe."
Ida Burgess—"Small Beginnings."
Flora Randolph—"Pussy's Misfortunes."
Kitty Case—"Christmas Time."
Belle Hartpence—"Christmas Carol."
Clinton Anson—"Somebody's Mother."

After handing forth abundant refreshments and to each scholar a customary gift, with appropriate exercises, the sixth anniversary of the kind closed.

THE SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST

Entertainment was held Christmas night, and a right royal time was had. Something more elaborate than the other Sunday Schools of town was indulged in, and you may take our word for it "there was no better time in town." Candy, cake and coffee was the bill of fare in the early part of the evening, and the anxious mothers alone can tell how it fared the next morning. Oceans and oceans of paregoric, not to mention peppermint, were in demand. Mothers generally rejoice that Christmas comes but once a year.

THE CONGREGATIONAL

Sunday School also held their Annual Festival Christmas night. Promptly at 7:30, the school, headed by its Superintendent, Geo. W. Rockfellow, marched in the church and took seats reserved for them in the body of the church. Instead of the usual literary exercises, an exercise termed "Jesus our King" was rendered. This piece was altered and adapted by Mr. J. R. France and others, and made one of the prettiest bits of Bible responsive reading we have ever heard. Not a jar or blunder marred the smoothness of the renderings. The music was under the leadership of Mr. Chas. Kellogg, who has caused that school to sing in such a way that no school in Plainfield has yet excelled. Mrs. W. H. Freeman efficiently presided at the organ, and the whole was under the management of Superintendent Rockfellow, who certainly is to be congratulated upon the fine appearance of the school. Several presents were bestowed from classes to teachers, and notable among them was the Rogers' group, presented by the school to Mr. Rockfellow. The presentation speech was made by Rev. Mr. Manchee, who in a few carefully selected words performed his pleasant task. Santa Claus arrived before close of the evening and made himself and every one else happy. Every one went home pleased, and the little folks were satisfied with the usual supply of candy, etc.

GRACE CHURCH

held their Festival Friday evening, Dec. 26th, and of course there was a season of rejoicing. Presents were distributed to the children, after which a dose of refreshments was administered. Several little ones creditably recited selections, and the singing by the school was unusually fine.

Tuesday evening, Dec. 30th, was a "night of it," four Sabbath schools finding it convenient to hold their anniversaries on that occasion.

THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

entertained themselves and friends in a regular Christmas way in their church. A few little folks recited juvenile selections, noticeable was the recitation of "Bennie McKeage, assisted by his sister, Gracie." This was a first rate recitation, and the little solo sung by Miss Gracie heightened the effect. Miss McKeage sang "Bonnie Sweet Betsy," &c. Miss Jessie Smillie also sang "Darling kiss my eyelids down." A quartette selected especially for the occasion, sang Gilmore's would be National hymn "Columbia." This choir was composed of Mrs. Dr. Utter, Miss Jessie Smillie, Mr. A. Vanderbeek and Master "Tom" O. Roberts. "Columbia" was sung as well as it could be sung, but we have no words of praise for it. Candy, cake and ice cream was the order of the evening. While these people were enjoying themselves, the little folks, with mothers, daughters and their aunt's daughters and their grandmother's daughters, were laughing at the efforts of Bryan, of New York. This gentleman, who is a first-class ventriloquist, with the help of "Bob," made a merry place of the First Baptist lecture room, and materially sharpened the appetites of the four hundred or more scholars. The quantities of cake and ice cream stowed away by these little ones would have blanched the face of any one but a First Baptist teacher.

FIRST BAPTIST

THE CRESCENT AVENUE

people held the second part of their Christmas rejoicing on that night. The religious part of the programme had been disposed of last Sunday afternoon. Tuesday night a short literary programme had been prepared. Miss Hattie Smith read several selections, and the little folks contributed their share to the general rejoicing. Candy, cake and ice cream, of course was to busy the most interesting performance.

WARREN MISSION

had on Monday night a little entertainment for the wee ones. Mr. Teale of North Plainfield, with his "magical tricks," successfully acted a part, and the usual refreshments were dispensed. Tuesday night the older scholars were regaled with a regular supper. A pleasant time and a jolly time was had, as was expected.

And now, in closing, we must again speak our approval of the simplicity of these entertainments. Less trouble and disturbance, and vastly more of fun was had, and if in the future, this year's precedent is followed, we can safely guarantee pleasanter times.

Verbum Sap.

The popularity of "Sapanule" is increasing with the increase of the use of the article. Either for man or beast the lotion is excellent, subduing inflammation, allaying irritation, and producing an invigorated condition of the skin and flesh. Mr. Robert Bonner is not given to issuing statements complimentary of remedies which he has not tried. The following certificate which he has cheerfully given speaks volumes in favor of "Sapanule:"

Office of THE LEDGER,
New York, Dec. 2, 1878.

This is to certify that I have used the Lotion known as "Sapanule," and find it to be an excellent article for allaying inflammation. ROBT. BONNER. (From Rev. Dr. Talmage, in "Christian at Work," Dec. 11th, 1879.)

Another 1812 Pension.

This time it is Mrs. Martha H. Burrows, of Plainfield, for services of her late husband, Joseph Burrows, in the U. S. Navy during the war of 1812. A Philadelphia lawyer started this claim over a year ago, and afterwards it was dropped on account of circumstances which were supposed at the time insurmountable. Quite recently Mrs. Burrows' attention was called to Mr. Butts' advertisement in this paper, and she put her case at once into his hands. Mr. Butts' familiarity with the inside workings of the pension office at Washington, D. C., makes him very successful in these matters.

OVER eleven tons of horse-shoes have been sold by Messrs. Curtiss & Griffen within the last year.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY EV'G., Dec. 29, '79.

Council met pursuant to adjournment. Present—Coriell, Depew, Finch, Mayer, Stover, Potts. Absent—Simpson, Redfield, Rushmore, Lithgow, Stewart.

President Potts in the chair.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Mr. Depew presented petition from James Connolly for a saloon license to sell spirituous and fermented liquors, in the building owned and occupied by him situate on Madison Ave. Referred to License Com.

Mr. Coriell presented the following com'n:

To the Honorable the Common Council of the city of Plainfield:

As executor of the estate of Edward F. Randolph, deceased, the undersigned would respectfully petition your Honorable Body to refund to said estate the sum of Twenty-four Dollars and One Cent, ($24.01) paid by said Randolph as an assessment on "New Street-Sewer." Said tax was paid by said Randolph, Sept. 3d, '73, and receipted by Theodore Vail, Collector of Assessments. In April, '75, another bill was presented for Forty-seven Dollars, ($47) and on it was credited the payment of $24.01, leaving a balance of $22.99 in favor of the city; this, however, was not paid.

It is not necessary to say to you that said assessment was illegal, and that there are certain laws by which you are empowered to re-emburse such illegal assessments, as your Honorable Body are well aware of both these facts. Please give the matter your early attention and greatly oblige, as funds are needed to pay city tax now over due. Amount to date, $34.37.

Respectfully yours,
M. F. MARCLEY,
Ex. of above Estate.

Plainfield, Dec. 22d, '79.

Mr. Coriell moved that it be referred to the Law & Ord. Com.

Mr. Depew moved, as an amendment, that it lie upon the table. So agreed to.

Mr. Depew presented claims as follows: Wm. B. Smith, late City Clerk, services as Clerk for month of October, $25; W. W. Coriell, taking ballot box to Elizabeth, $2.10. Ref'd to Com. on Sals., Offices & Elections.

Mr. Finch presented 2 claims of St. Com'r Geo. M. Angleman, for work done on streets, $107.50. Ref'd to Com. on Sts.

Mr. Coriell presented claim of R. Hapenny, special police duty, charter election, $2.75. Ref'd to Police Com.

Mr. Depew, from Finance Com., stated that he had no report to make on the city's finances this evening; in reference to claim of Wm. B. Maxson, he wished an opinion from the Corporation Counsel, and he being present, would probably give it.

Corporation Counsel Suydam then stated that he had received a com'n from Mr. Depew this afternoon, relative to Mr. Maxson's claim, and am of the opinion that the matter lies with the Council. Mr. Maxson was employed to do the work, and he has done it well and faithfully. If a question of law is raised, then an opinion would have be in order; outside of that it lies with the Council to decide.

Mr. Depew stated that he had no written report ready, anticipating a report from Corp. Counsel, and there being but a few of the Council present, would like to have the matter lie over until next meeting.

Mr. Stover thought the matter could be settled this evening; the Corp. Counsel has given his opinion that it is left with the Council to say whether they should pay it or not, and would move that Mr. Depew make a verbal report this evening, which was seconded by Mr. Mayer.

Mr. Potts thought that a full meeting of the Council should be had, and a written report submitted, as the amount was a large one, &c.

Mr. Finch and Mr. Depew were of the same opinion, and after some further discussion, Mr. Depew arose and stated that the Finance Com. were not ready to make any report this evening, written or verbal.

Mr. Coriell, from Police Com., reported correct claim of R. Hapenny, $2.75. Referred to Aud. Com.

Mr. Depew, from Com. on Sals., Offices & Elections, reported correct claims of Wm. B. Smith, late City Clerk, $25; W. W. Coriell, $2.10. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Stover moved that when Council adjourn it adjourn to meet next Friday evening, Jan. 2, 1880. Carried.

Mr. Depew moved that the bills from the Poor fund, found correct by the Aud. Com., now lying on the table, viz: Geo. Mehl, $62, Wm. B. Ayers, $8, Geo. C. Owens, $7, have warrants drawn for the several amounts. Agreed to. All aye.

On motion of Mr. Stover, the Ord. relative to City Jail was taken from the table, read 3d time and passed. All aye.

By the same—Amendment to Hack Ord. taken from the table, read 3d time and passed. All aye.

Mr. Depew offered the following:

Resolved, That as there is a balance of $58.02 in the hands of the City Treasurer, collected from Assessments for regulating road-bed and sidewalk on Park Ave., that he be directed to pay over the balance of said assessments to the General Fund, as an offset, so far as it will go, to the amounts paid Jas. Parker and Platt and Holly.

Plainfield, Dec. 29, 1879.

On motion, adopted.

On motion of Mr. Stover, Council then adjourned.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

The coupons due Feb. 1, 1879, on the North Plainfield Township Bonds, will be paid on presentation to the Township Treasurer, F. N. Gardner, on and after Jan. 6, 1880.

Delinquent tax-payers will read something concerning themselves if they turn to our advertising columns. Collector Boice says the taxes must be paid.

Joseph Blatz, owner of the "Smith's Hotel" property on Green Brook road has purchased the lot adjoining, corner of Somerset street, and contemplates removing the present hotel building to the corner of the above named streets, fit it up in good shape for a hotel and erect sheds and a barn where the house now stands. The location is a very desirable one for a hotel.

Mr. L. E. Barkalew, by authority of the Citizens' Building Loan and Savings Institution of this city, in this issue of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST offers for sale at a sacrifice, some very desirable property, situated in this city and North Plainfield. Read the adv. in another column.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

The Sunday School connected with the Baptist Church of this village, held its Christmas festival last Friday evening. The exercises were of an unusually interesting character. The following programme was presented and successfully carried out:

Organ Voluntary, Miss H. D. Hayes
Singing, Congregation
Prayer, Pastor
Singing—Come Gather, School
Recitation—Grandmamma's Chair, Gertie Rhynhart
Quartette—Star of the East, [illegible]
Recitation—Santa Claus, Willie Pope
Singing—The Seasons, [illegible]
Ella Carey, Gertie Rhynhart, Fannie Putnam, Lou Seliger.
Dialogue— Gracie Smith & Willie Pope
Recitation—Somebody's Mother—Gertie Rhynhart
Singing—Welcome, School
Reading, Victoria Hand
Recitation—My Dollie's, Gracie Smith
Singing—[illegible], School
Quartette—Star, Beautiful Star.
Misses E. & J. Nichol, Messrs. Treadwell & Nicholl
Address, Rev. C. S. Gulick
Secretary's Report.
Singing—Hail, Blessed Morn, School
Distribution of Presents and Plucking the Christmas Tree.
Singing—Happy News, School

At the close of these exercises the friends and congregation were invited into the Lecture Room where refreshments had been prepared by the Ladies of the Sunday School.

On Tuesday, Dec. 30th, Miss Emilie S. Coles, teacher of the Infant Class of the Baptist Sunday School, gave a Christmas Festival to the Golden Rule Mission Band, and her class, at her residence on Mountain Avenue. The earlier part of the afternoon was devoted to singing, recitations, dialogues, etc., by the Band, after which refreshments, distribution of presents, and the dismantling of a mammoth Christmas tree occupied the attention of the little ones. These very interesting exercises over, the children departed to their respective homes, having spent a thoroughly enjoyable afternoon, and all thanking Miss Coles heartily for her very pleasant Christmas treat.

Stephen S. Day, Principal of the Public School, has accepted a position in a Newark, N. J., school, and the Trustees have engaged the services of Mr. I. P. Town as his successor.

A Beautiful Gift.

Jacob Kirkner, Esq., W. M. of Jerusalem Lodge No. 26, F. & A. M., of this city, was on Christmas Day the recipient of the handsomest Past Master's Jewel it has been the lot of many of our Masonic brethren to ever see. The gift came from Brother John E. Hall, in recognition of Mr. K's worth as a brother Mason. The donor wrapped the jewel in a piece of brown paper, took it to Mr. K's house and gave it to that gentleman's wife, telling her to hang it among other gifts on a Christmas Tree in the parlor. To say that the receiver of such an elegant gift was surprised and delighted, is but half expressing it.

FIRE MATTERS.

About 4 o'clock on Sunday morning last, Matthew and Catharine Gleason, living on the road between Bayrestown and Medford, Burlington Co., awoke from their slumbers and discovered that their house was on fire, and that even then the flames had communicated to their bedroom. Hastily jumping from their bed they started down stairs, and then remembered that their three children were still sleeping in an upper room. They made an effort to reach them, but by that time the stairway was all on fire and all communication with the upper rooms was thus cut off. The building was soon enveloped in flames, and the unhappy parents were compelled to stand and see their children burned to death before their eyes without being able to render any assistance. Mr. and Mrs. Gleason escaped with nothing on but their night clothes. The remains of the children were taken from the ruins the next day and presented a shocking sight. Their ages are: John, 2 years; Margaret, 7; Catharine, 10. Their remains were buried at Mount Holly, on Tuesday. Coroner Carr viewed the bodies, but thought an inquest unnecessary. The Gleason's lost everything, including several hogs which had been killed the day before. The house belonged to Benajah Antrim, of Pemberton.—Mt. Holly Herald.

Some one has stolen the silver cup won by Eng. No. 2 of Elizabeth, in a trial some years since. It was taken from its case in the house.

"Warren, No. 3" steamer was taken out for a "wash" on Christmas Day. The fire wells on Crescent Avenue, Fourth and New Streets and Fifth Street and Park Avenue, were successively tried. The engine worked admirably in each trial. On the last well the heavy suction slipped from the hands of those handling it and fell into the waters below, necessitating the lowering of a man to attach a rope to it, so that it could be recovered. The boys feel justly proud of the fine working of their powerful engine.

Country Papers.

The Kinsley, Kansas, Graphic, good humoredly discourses on the work of making a country newspaper: Editing a country newspaper may be just the thing, but we know by a large majority that it isn't. In the first place your wealth does not accumulate so fast but that you can be your own business manager. Not very many country editors keep a carriage, and those that do, have it with the rest of their property in their wife's name. When your paper comes out, about one-half the people in your town feel kindly toward you for the position you took in some local matter, and the other party won't speak to you. The party that feels kindly toward you may set up the cigars and hope you are doing well, but the other side won't even give you a light. About twice a month you may have great difficulty in explaining to a man as big again as you are that you meant just the opposite of what you said about him. But an old editor can always do this. Young editors sometimes get licked, but old ones can talk a bull dog out of countenance. The experience and trouble of a country editor is too big a subject for one issue of a country paper; but that they have their share of torment, while here on earth, and that they will be crowned in glory, we believe, by a large majority.

COMMUNICATED.

For "The Constitutionalist."

An Unwise Precedent.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—

The action of the Common Council at their meeting of the 22d ult., in granting a liquor license that was applied for on that night has been justly criticised by our citizens and condemned by them as a very bad precedent to establish, and one that is not for the best interests of Plainfield. The custom has always been in this city when an application and petition for a license to sell spirituous or fermented liquors, is presented to the Common Council for them to refer the application to the License Committee, and it is their duty to investigate the petition and ascertain whether the ten signers are all qualified under the License Ordinance. One of the requirements of a petition is that no person shall sign more than one petition in any one year; it is stated as a fact that one of the signers to the application for the license that was so hastily granted on Monday evening Dec. 22d, has once before, within a year, signed a like petition. If such is the case, the license in question was illegally granted. The License Committee of the Council should take ample time to thoroughly investigate all applications for licenses and see that they strictly conform to the License Ordinance; in fact, it is their sworn duty so to do. Another reason why a license to sell liquor should not be granted on the same night it is applied for, is that there is no opportunity for citizens to present to the Common Council a remonstrance, if they should desire to do so, which is all wrong, as the sacred right of freemen to petition and remonstrate should not be abridged.

WEAK AND SICKLY PERSONS.

Many persons who are weak and sickly at this season of the year are at a loss to know what will restore their health. It has lately been found by experience that the use of Speer's Port Grape Wine is one of the best restoratives known. Physicians, clergymen and temperance advocates should encourage the use of Port Grape and thus aid the cause of temperance and moderation. It is especially recommended to females for its purity, exquisite flavor and healthy properties. Medical men certify to its valuable medicinal powers. Mr. Speer has been for years engaged in the raising of grapes and perfecting the wine, and it requires a four years process before it is fit for market.—N. Y. Baptist.

In the Whole History of Medicine

No preparation has ever performed such marvelous cures, or maintained so wide a reputation as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long-continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by its timely use in the throat and lung disorders of children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. From their knowledge of its composition and effects, Physicians use the CHERRY PECTORAL extensively in their practice, and Clergymen recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure where cures are possible.

DEAR SIR—I was persuaded by a friend to try Ely's Cream Balm. At that time I could scarcely speak above a whisper, and it was almost impossible to breathe through my nostrils. After using the Balm a short time I was entirely relieved. My head has not been so clear nor my voice so strong in years. I have washed off several cakes since, experiencing immediate relief by its use. I would recommend this admirable remedy to all who are afflicted with Catarrh or Colds in the head.

U.S. Pension Agency
PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Under a recent act of Congress pensions will commence from the date of the discharge or death of a soldier; but only a few short months are allowed claimants in which to file their claims. Under this law a pensioner will now receive as a first payment the lump sum of $1,500 or more, and $8 per month thereafter. A pensioner on account of the death or disability of an officer will receive much larger amounts.

Pensions allowed all officers and soldiers who were in the Army or Navy of the late war, for wounds, disease, rupture, blindness, deafness or other injury; also to their widows and children; also to mothers and fathers, also to all 1812 soldiers and their widows. There are hundreds in this section who are justly entitled and don't know it. If you are in doubt call on me at my office and I will cheerfully give you the necessary information without charge, and in any event I make no charge until the pension is allowed and you receive the money thereon, then only ten dollars as fixed by law.

Remember the law soon expires by limitation. Apply at once!

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

JOHN MORRISSEY AND HIS SCHOOL TEACHER.

John and I (Mrs. Morrissey) were married twenty-five years ago. It was just after the Yankee Sullivan fight.—We were married after he beat John Heenan; and although in those days when he went into the ring I always sent him from me with the injunction to beat his man, my soul revolted at the thought of prize battle. But it was my great hope to have him succeed in life. He came back from California and visited our house in Troy to bring some message from my brother, whom he had left there. In three weeks after that we were engaged, and a few months after that we were married. I knew John as a ragged little boy about Troy, barefooted and belligerent, always looking for a fight. When we were married he could not read nor write, and, to tell the truth, I was only a trifle better off in the matter of educational advantages. I told him he must learn to read, and he said I should teach him. Well, we established lesson hours. Every night before going to bed he devoted himself to his spelling book. The rule of study was inflexible. We made it so. The morning after he fought John C. Heenan, when he was all sore and bandaged, and blind of one eye as well, I propped him up with pillows and made him write.

"How long Mrs. Morrissey did you keep him a pupil?"

"Till his fatal illness. Every night he studied something, and I studied during the day that I might be able to help him. Of course, when I say studied I don't mean in the ordinary school children's way. After we mastered the English branches we took up history, and when he was pretty well posted in that we made the living topics of the day a matter of investigation—the European news, the speeches of the great men. I read them in the day time, and John would go through them at night. Then we took up such books as De Quincey, the writings of Carlyle, and though John Morrissey was a gambler, and by his profession made many enemies, who frowned upon him, he was possessed of knowledge of many subjects independent of city politics and horse racing, which would have put to blush his sternest critics had they been in competition with him."

"Did Mr. Morrissey follow this line of study because of a natural bent of mind?"

"I don't think so." He would say: "Now, this is no good for me, Susie;" but I pressed him on and he would soon get interested. Then he had such an indomitable perseverance. When he found a thing he could not readily understand he would master it out of very spite. I remember once of his throwing down his arithmetic, shortly after we were married, and exclaiming pettishly: "I don't care about these fractions; they're only part of a thing anyway! What's the use of all this study, Susie?" "John," I said, "if you don't beat those fractions, you will never go to Congress." "Oh, that's your lay out for me, is it?" "It is, indeed, my boy," I replied. Then he took up his book again and said: "All right, my dear, we'll go to Congress." And he did.—Phil. Record.

SLEEP.

In a recent work on "Sleep," Dr. Mortimer Granville objects, without reserve, to the use of narcotics in order to produce it. They produce not sleep, but a counterpart of it. When a man says I will take a sleeping draught in order to get a quiet night, he speaks in parables. What he really says is, I will poison myself a little, just enough to make me unconscious, or slightly paralyze my nerve centres, not enough to kill. He declares that if people troubled with sleeplessness would resolutely set themselves to forming the habit of going to sleep at a particular time in a particular way, they will do more to procure regular sleep than by any other artifice. It is not so much matter what a person does to produce sleep, but he should do precisely the same thing at the same time, and under, nearly as possible, the same conditions, night after night, for a considerable period, say three or four weeks old at least.

JANUARY COURTS.

The following terms of the Courts of Oyer and Terminer and Circuit Courts for the following Counties will be held next month:

First District—Justice Reed, Cumberland county, at Bridgeton, 6th; Salem county, at Salem, 20th.

Second District—Justice Woodhull, Camden county, at Camden, 13th.

Third District—Chief Justice Beasley, Mercer county, at Trenton, 20th.

Fourth District—Justice Scudder, Monmouth county, at Freehold, 6th.

Fifth District—Justice Dalrymple, Morris county, at Morristown, 20th.

Sixth District—Justice Dixon, Passaic county, at Paterson, 6th.

Ninth District—Justice Van Syckle, Union county, at Elizabeth, 6th.

The January term of the United States District Court will be commenced at the United States Court House, at Trenton, on Tuesday, January 20, 1880.

UNWARRANTED.

Our esteemed friend of the Rahway National Democrat gives insertion to the following item:

"An old darkey who peddles clams about Newark was heard to remark last week that a horse for which he had paid 75 cents had dropped dead in the shafts on the day after the purchase, and he wound up by saying: 'I'se done now, and buys no more cheap hosses. I'se gwine to have a good hoss nex' time, if I have to go to Plainfield and pay $4 for him.'"

Now that as originally published, made the unfortunate colored horseman of Newark declare that he would go to Rahway for a $4 animal. Plainfield don't deal in the kind of nags he is looking for and had no doubt seen in Rahway. We protest against such an unwarranted use of the name of Plainfield. Here horses, like everything else, are first-class and sell accordingly.

An old lady, who had two watches, was in a Scotch church when a collection was taken up. She said she thought the Lord would not approve of her keeping both timepieces when one would be quite enough. So she put the best one, which was worth about $250, in the collection box.

The season has arrived when the man who searches at night in the pantry for the pepper-sauce bottle can run his fingers into a pumpkin pie.

"Couldn't you lend me $5?" "Yes, I could, but I won't." "Then do you think I wouldn't pay you back?" "Yes, you would, but you couldn't."

SPEER'S
Port Grape Wine,
Used in the principal Churches for Communion purposes.
Excellent for Ladies and Weakly Persons and the Aged.

SPEER'S
PASSAIC, N.J.
Mt. Prospect
Vineyards
WINE

SPEER'S PORT GRAPE WINE!
FOUR YEARS OLD.

This Celebrated Native Wine is made from the juice of the Oporto Grape, raised in this Country. Its Invaluable Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed by any other Native Wine. Being the pure juice of the Grape, produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed. The youngest child may partake of its generous qualities, and the weakest invalid use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated, and suited to the various ailments that affect the weaker sex. It is in every respect A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

SPEER'S
P. J. SHERRY,
The P. J. SHERRY is a Wine of Superior character, and partakes of the golden qualities of the grape from which it is made. For Purity, Richness, Flavor and Medicinal Properties, it will be found unexcelled.

SPEER'S
P. J. BRANDY.
This Brandy stands unrivaled in this Country, being far superior for medicinal purposes.
It is a Pure Distillation from the grape, and contains valuable medicinal properties.
It has a delicate flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled, and is in great favor among first-class families.
See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.
Sold by H. P. Reynolds, R. J. Shaw and W. H. Voorhees, Druggists.

WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTY-FIRST DAY OF JANUARY, A. D. 1880,

at two o'clock p. m., in the first place, that portion of said premises comprised in the mortgage in complainant's bill, first mentioned, and described as follows:

The first tract of said land and premises, situate in township of Westfield, in the then county of Essex] now Union, and State of New Jersey, known as the homestead farm of Sylvanus Pierson, deceased; Beginning at a stake on the northwest side of the main road leading out of the village of Westfield to Elizabethtown, being also the east corner of now or late Eli Marsh's land; thence (1) binding on said now or late Marsh's land, north thirty-four degrees and fifty minutes west eleven chains and thirty-two links to a post at an angle of said now or late Marsh's land; thence (2) still on said now or late Marsh's land north fifteen degrees and thirty-three minutes east three chains and seventy-seven links to a stake on the west side of a gum tree, three links from the centre thereof; thence (3) still binding on said now or late Marsh's land north forty-three degrees east eight chains and forty-six links to a stake on the southwest side of a road leading from the first mentioned road toward the mountain; thence (4) binding on the southwest side of the last mentioned road south forty-five degrees and forty-five minutes east thirteen chains and sixty-eight links to the intersection of the last with the first mentioned road; thence (5) binding on the northwest side of the first-mentioned road south forty-six degrees and thirty minutes west thirteen chains and ninety links to the place of beginning; containing sixteen acres and fifty-five hundredths of an acre be the same more or less.

The second tract of said land and premises situate in the said township of Westfield, county and State aforesaid; on the northerly side of the said Elizabethtown road, and is the same tract of land that David Ross, jr. conveyed to William Pierson by a deed bearing date the twenty-sixth day of March, A. D., 1796; Beginning at a stone on the northerly side of said road, being a corner of a lot of land that John D. Pierson purchased of the executors of Jacob Baker, deceased; thence (1) binding on said road north eighty-eight degrees and thirty minutes west thirteen chains and twenty-five links to a stone in another corner of said Jacob B. Pierson's land; thence (2) binding on his land north forty-five degrees east twelve chains and eighty six links to another corner of said Pierson's land; thence (3) still binding on said Pierson's land, south forty-nine degrees and fifteen minutes east four chains and eleven links to a stake or stone; thence (4) binding on the said Baker lot and running a direct course to the place of beginning; containing (according to said deed) six acres and nine-tenths of an acre of land be the same more or less.

The third tract or lot of said lands and premises, is situate in the foot of the first mountain in the said township of Westfield, county and State aforesaid, and was conveyed to Sylvanus Pierson by Jonathan [illegible] and Lydia, his wife, and Stephen Clark and Elizabeth, his wife, by two separate deeds of conveyance bearing date respectively the first day of March, A. D., 1828, and the fourteenth day of August, A. D., 1828, and is herein described in one lot. Beginning at a stake and stones in the line of land formerly of Baltus Roll, deceased, near the highway; thence (1) according to the first mentioned deed along the highway nearly west seven chains and seventy-six links to a pile of stones; thence (2) according to the last named deed along the line now or late of the heirs of John Porter, deceased, in a direct course two chains and fifty-seven links to a stake on the north side of the road to the Potter line, and a corner of land formerly of Ichabod Clark, deceased; thence (3) on the said Clark line south forty-six degrees east eleven chains and fifty-nine links to a stake in the line of land formerly of James Decker, deceased; thence (4) binding on the said Decker line north fifty-two degrees east two chains and fifty-nine links to a stake in a corner of another lot of said Ichabod Clark; thence (5) on the line of that lot north forty-six degrees west five chains and eighty-one links to a pile of stones in a corner of said Ichabod Clark's lot; thence (6) according to the first mentioned deed and of the said Ichabod Clark about east seven chains and sixty-five links to a stake and pile of stones; thence (7) along the said Roll line north forty-six degrees west five chains eighty-five links to the place of beginning; containing seven acres of land, be the same more or less.

And also all the estate, right, title and interest of the said Silas D. Pierson, of, in and to the following described three several tracts or parcels of land and premises, in the township of Westfield, county and State aforesaid.

The first tract—Beginning at a stake standing in the line of the southwest end of now or late Jonas Williams' lot, and the northernmost corner of Ephraim Williams; from thence with Jonas Williams' line and binding thereon north forty-nine degrees west eleven chains and ten links to a stake in Moses DeCamp's line; thence with it, and binding thereon south forty degrees forty-eight minutes west two chains ninety-four links to John Tucker's corner; thence with his line and binding on it south forty-nine degrees east five chains ninety-two links to another of said Tucker's corners and binding on said Tucker; thence still with said Tucker's line and binding on it south forty degrees forty-eight minutes west five chains ninety-two links to another of said Tucker's corners; thence south forty-nine degrees east three chains sixty-nine links to E. Williams' line binding on the residence of the said E. Williams' line; and binding thereon running north fifty degrees east eight chains ninety-three links to the place of beginning; containing six acres more or less.

The second tract—Beginning at an old oak stump which is the corner of now or late Samuel Richards' and James Roll's land; and running south forty-nine and one-half degrees east thirty-five links to a stake; thence south one chain seventy links to a stone; thence north eighty-two and one-half degrees west two chains and forty-seven links to a stone in Brooks Roll's line; thence north forty-three and one-half degrees east to the place of beginning.

The third tract—Beginning on the main road from Elizabethtown to Plainfield, between Sylvanus Pierson's residence and Eli Mandey's manufacturing establishment; size of the lot fifty feet front and rear by one hundred and fifty feet deep, it being the house and lot William Hayes occupied a number of years.

And in the second place, that portion of the premises comprised in the mortgage in complainants' bill secondly mentioned and described as follows:

All that lot of land and premises being the undivided half part of a lot of salt meadow, situate at Tremley's Point in the township of Rahway, and State of New Jersey: devised by William Pierson to his sons Sylvanus Pierson and John D. Pierson, in and by his last will and testament. Beginning at a stake in the forks of a creek, sometimes called Frazer's creek; thence (1) up a branch of said creek north fifty-four degrees west eleven chains to a stake near the head of said branch; thence (2) north thirty-two degrees east two chains and ninety-eight links to a stake in the line of meadow formerly of Ichabod Ross, deceased, now or late meadow of Isaac French; thence (3) binding on said now or late French's meadow and the aforesaid creek south fifty-four degrees east ten chains to a bend in said creek; thence (4) along down said creek in a southerly direction as it runs to the place of beginning; containing in the whole three acres of salt meadow be the same more or less.

THE TIDAL WAVE.

"Larnin'!" said Obadiah Beales, with a contemptuous sniff, as he threw down an armful of scraps that were intended to replenish the none too generous flame in the open fire-place—"larnin'! What's the good of it? There ain't no need of it, as I can see; and as for keepin' Hetty Moriah any longer at that 'ere school, an' payin' such big bills, I jest ain't a-goin' to do it."

"Now, Diah," remonstrated Mrs. Beales, "you know there ain't no schools here fit to send our gal to, an' we won't be doin' our duty by her unless we give her a good eddication. How proud we'll be of Hetty when she comes home with a diploma, and is able to hold her head as high as any o' Squire King's darters."

"Now, Mandy," said Obadiah, as he seated himself in a low rush-bottomed chair, "there ain't no use of our tryin' to hold a candle to Squire King's folks. They ain't our kind, an' we ain't no business to copy after 'em!"

Mandy Beales was accustomed to these remonstrances from her husband, especially after the receipt of the quarterly bill for Hetty's tuition; and as she drew the mock-orange from the toe of the sock she was darning, she had time to collect her thoughts and make another appeal to paternal pride.

"We've as good a right to do as well by our own child as Squire King does by his'n," said Mrs. Beales, plunging her needle into the ragged edge of a hole the dimensions of which were rather discouraging to the feminine reformer; for it looked as if, when the wearer of the sock set his foot down, he was likely to keep it there firmly until something gave way. "You ain't as proud as you ought to be of Hetty Moriah."

"I am, too," said Obadiah, doggedly. "The trouble is, we're too proud; an' if we go to settin' her up an' puttin' high fangled notions into her head, she won't think we're fit to 'sociate with, or that anything in Crowfield is good enough for her. When she was to home last vacashun she thought the old house wasn't fit to live in."

"Well, it ain't," said Mandy, with considerable spirit. "You know it ain't never had a coat of paint since we lived here, nigh on to twenty years, an' the roof leaks like a riddle, so that them upper chambers ain't no use at all, 'cept in clear weather."

"Well, it costs money to be making improvements all the time," said Obadiah, to whom Mandy's suggestions and hints were like water on a duck's back. "It costs like John; and what's good enough for me is good enough for my children. But that ain't all," he continued, the allusion to his own neglect of duty increasing his consciousness of Hetty's shortcomings; "the last time she was to home she turned up her nose more'n ever at Tom Kennedy; an' a gal don't know which side her bread's buttered on when she snubs such a fellow as that."

"Tom Kennedy," said Mandy, with much the same emphasis and more than the amount of scorn Obadiah had thrown into the "larnin'," with which he began the discussion. "Tom Kennedy, indeed! I hope Mandy won't take up with any of that trash. Not but that he's good enough as far as disposition goes, an' clever enough, maybe; but he ain't never goin' to set the river on fire."

"Well, who wants him to? Hetty Moriah may do worse than to marry Tom Kennedy, who ain't nobody's fool."

The discussion in the Beales family generally began with Hetty Moriah and ended with Tom, who had long served as a bone of contention.

Tom himself was not what you might call a cultivated gentleman, but he had seen a great deal of the world, was shrewd and observing, and his mind was stored with a fund of general information, that made him excellent company for those who seldom took the trouble even to read a newspaper. To this class belonged Diah who would not subscribe to any thing if he could help it, but would lend his ears willingly to any one who would give gratuitous information, and looked upon Tom Kennedy as an encyclopedia prepared for his especial benefit.

Tom happened in one evening with his mind full of topics in which he knew Obadiah would be interested, and which furnished him with an excuse for hearing Hetty's weekly letter, which he took out of a box on his way to Crowfield.

"It's sure to come," said Tom, referring to the tidal wave. "The Signal Service Department has announced the fact, and will be able to give the precise day and hour when it will reach our shores."

"Du tell!" exclaimed Obadiah, his under jaw drooping lower and lower as his interest and amazement increased.

"Yes," replied Tom, as anxious as any story-teller to make a deep impression on his audience. "There will probably be a great convulsion of nature and it is anticipated that lands which were once under water will be again submerged."

"You don't say so!" said Obadiah, who admired Tom's way of telling a story, though he couldn't understand half the words he used.

"Which way is it a-comin'?" he inquired. "'Taint right not to warn them that live on an island to get their goods and chattels together, an' give 'em a chance to get off with a dry skin."

"That's so," said Tom. "Is there a map handy?"

"Shouldn't wonder. Mandy, hain't we got such a thing in the house?"

"A what?"

"A map. We used ter hev one, I'm sartin sure."

"It ain't no good," said Mandy, not willing that Tom should know that the rain had washed it so thoroughly it would be impossible to tell where the Gulf of Mexico began or ended, or whether the Mississippi River had not changed places with the Atlantic Ocean.

"I'll run over and get one," said Tom. "It won't take me a minute," and he was off like a flash, and back again before he was thought to have accomplished more than half the distance. He gleefully brandished an old and well-thumbed copy of a school atlas.

"There!" he began before he had half recovered his breath, "you see it's coming due west, and will strike full tilt against that end of Long Island, and very likely knock it into smithereens."

"Good Lordy!" exclaimed Mandy, just beginning to realise the probable situation of affairs, and the insecurity of real estate. "Ain't there nothing to stop it? Why don't the folks go to work and build a breakwater, so as to keep the water from crowding where it's no business to?"

"Oh, bless you!" said Tom, "a breakwater wouldn't do a mite of good. Why, when this tidal wave comes, it'll just sweep everything before it worse than any spring freshet you ever saw."

"An' it's comin' due west?" said Diah, with his forefinger pressed tightly on the east end of Long Island, as if he would thus arrest the incoming of the great wave that threatened such a work of devastation.

"So they say," answered Tom, pleased with the interest taken in his bit of news. "Of course there isn't any certainty about it, but it's just as well to be prepared for the worst."

"Well, but s'posin' it sweeps right over this island?" said Mandy, as Tom took up his hat to go. "What'll become of us?"

"We'll have to take to boats, I reckon," was the laughing reply, which met with no response from the friends to whom he bade "good night."

To Obadiah especially, the tidal wave loomed up in the near future as awful and imposing as the Day of Judgment; in fact, more awful and imposing, as it seemed more certain. The time was set; the people were talking about it, and speculating over it, and many, doubtless, were making as active preparation as did the Millerites in the day when the Millennium was supposed to be close at hand.

Obadiah Beales went about his work, but was even more taciturn than usual, so that his wife was heartily glad when Hetty Moriah came home for the summer vacation. Whatever did happen, they would be together, and it did brighten up the old house to have a young girl in it who wore white dresses and blue ribbons, and had a world of romance in her heart.

"Father what in the world are you going to do now?" asked Hetty, one morning in July, when Obadiah and his hired man were seen removing a good-sized row boat from the farm wagon, and working it slowly toward the house.

"Never you mind," said Obadiah, "I know what I'm about."

"But, dear me!" continued Hetty, "the house looks disreputable enough now; and with that boat in the foreground the neighbors will certainly think we have taken leave of our senses."

"Well, let them," said her father. "What do I care for the neighbors?"

Hetty wished that he cared a little more for the looks of things. But as remonstrances were useless, she went into the house to complain to her mother that "father was doing his best to make the old house look just like a junkshop, and she was sorry enough she'd invited May Carrol and her brother Sidney to spend a week with her during the vacation." May was room-mate, and Sidney was making a collection of Indian curiosities, and she knew Tom would show him where to find arrowheads and other relics, and do his best to make their brief stay agreeable. But if father was going to be queerer than ever, and would persist in putting an old cellar door on the croquet-ground, and cluttering up the door-yard with what belonged at the back of the house, why, she would feel more like running away from than receiving her expected visitors.

But the eye soon accustoms itself to oddities, and after a few days the old boat ceased to be an unsightly object to Hetty Moriah, who found it necessary to have frequent talks with Tom Kennedy in regard to the proper entertainment of May and Sidney, whom she took pains to extol very highly, that Tom might have a realizing sense of their superiority.

Tom happened in at the Bealeses one evening in July, ostensibly to exhibit some abelona shells which a friend had just brought him from California, but in reality to be near Hetty, whom he couldn't help admiring, because she was so unlike the other girls in Crowfield. It was the dullest, most dead-and-alive place in the country, and those who staid there the year round, and never went outside for material to grow upon, remained stunted in mental stature and perennially green.

This July day had been most oppressive, and the evening was so sultry that the stars seemed to shrink and swoon with languor. Every body and every thing seemed to have lost their wonted vigor except the mosquitoes, whose attentions were most exasperating.

Tom found the family assembled in the sitting-room—Mrs. Beales asleep in the rocking chair, Hetty crocheting or pretending to, and her father studying over the map which Tom had left in his possession.

"I'm 'mazin' glad to see yer," said Obadiah. "Take a cheer. Seems to me it's about time for that 'ere tidal wave to come along, ain't it?"

"Shouldn't wonder," said Tom, as he laid the shells on the table where the light of the lamp would shine down upon them and reveal their prismatic beauty.

"It'll rack things," said Obadiah.

"Yes, it will," said Tom, busy in listening to Hetty's description of some sleeve buttons and other ornaments that looked like immense opals or pieces of the sunset sky. She thought they were mother-of-pearl, but handsomer than any of that material she had ever seen, and was now convinced that they were made of those abelona shells.

All at once a strange rolling sound was heard in the air, like the roar of artillery and Mrs. Beales starting from her nap, exclaimed, "What's that?" as if she detected in the sound something more terrible than the approach of thunder. Then a flood of rain struck the house so suddenly that it seemed too real, and brought them all to their feet.

"It's coming!" said Obadiah; "it's the tid'l wave!"

And there was no denying the deluge that swept down from the sky as if it meant to carry every thing before it. Hetty began to cry at seeing her father and mother so agitated, and cling to Tom as if he alone had power to protect her from the fury of the storm.

"We must go up stairs," said Obadiah, leading the way, lamp in hand. "I'm ready for it! I've got the boat hitched fast to the chimney, an' it's big enough to hold every one of us."

Tom might have smiled if Hetty hadn't been there, but her alarm was so very genuine, and Mr. and Mrs. Beales were so convinced that Lond Island was to be swallowed up, that his sympathy quite overcame his sense of the ridiculous. It was, indeed, a rain of terror, from which an ascent to the upper regions afforded no measurable sense of relief. The roof leaked horribly, and the wind tore off the shingles, and but that the thoughtful Mandy had provided a couple of umbrellas, there would have been no starch left in any of the party. Obadiah stood near the window, watching for the waters to rise and bring the boat on the level with his hand, when, in less time than it took Noah to embark, he would put himself and family on board, including Tom, and locate somewhere above high-water mark.

Tom clasped Hetty in his arms much closer than was necessary, but she made no objection, and the umbrella was not a very large one.

"Hetty," said Tom, in a whisper, "if this was the end of the world, what would you say to me?"

"I—don't—know," said Hetty, tucking her head more closely to his breast.

"Couldn't you—" But at this moment Obadiah called Tom, and that individual felt obliged to relax his hold of the terrified maiden.

"Don't go! don't leave me!" said Hetty, feeling as if without Tom's support she would sink to the floor, and become a prey to the angry elements.

"I'll stand by you forever," said Tom, speaking rapidly, "if you'll only say you love me."

"I've always loved you," said Hetty, the darkness and danger favoring so bold a confession.

"Why didn't you tell me so before?" said Tom, dropping the umbrella as if there were no further need of any such protection, and finding his way to Hetty's lips by a sort of circuitous route that took in her forehead, eyes, cheek and chin, lingering longest, of course, at the final resting place. "Why didn't you tell me before?" Tom repeated, with masculine pertinacity.

"Because," said Hetty, with a funny little laugh, "I didn't find it out until a while ago!" and the answer seemed quite satisfactory to Tom, who gave an elliptical acknowledgment, and moved toward his prospective father-in-law.

"Tom," said Obadiah, with a sigh of relief. "I believe the storm's almost over."

"Looks like it," said Tom, peering thro' the window, the flying clouds and the distant thunder confirming his opinion. All along the western horizon was a line of silver light that shone brightly in contrast with the dark clouds moving like retreating armies from the scene of conflict.

"I'd a durned sight rather hoe turnips all day!" exclaimed Obadiah, in a tone of disgust, as he turned away from the window and prepared to descend the stairs. "An' I never want to come so near bein' scairt to death. Mandy, how this roof leaks!" he added, as if he had just made the discovery.

"I should think it did," said Mandy; "an' it'll leak worse than ever now, for the way them shingles rattled off was a caution. I declare for't I wa'nt half as much afraid of the tidal wave as I was that the house would tumble down, and bury us all under the ruins."

Tom remarked:

"There is a blessing in every calamity," giving Hetty's hand an eloquent squeeze and the storm being over, there was no excuse for his tarrying any longer; so, having said good-night, he went off with a happy swing and a lighter heart than he had carried in his breast for many a day.

Obadiah was right in one conjecture.—That storm was the prelude to the tidal wave which dashed with such fury against the sandy shore on the eastern end of Long Island that great damage was done and several lives were lost. But there were its proud waves stayed, and Long Island still retains its position and its reputation for scrub oaks and sand.

But an event took place in Crowfield that astonished all the inhabitants, and was of sufficient consequence to excite the wonder of Squire King's family, who represented the aristocracy of the place. This was nothing less than the demolishing of the old house where Obadiah Beale's father, grandfather, and great grandfather had lived and died, and under whose roof he had expected to all his days—if the roof had only held out.

May Carrol sent word that she and Sidney wouldn't be able to make the promised visit that summer and Hetty and Tom bore the disappointment with wonderful serenity.

Mandy superintended the erection of the new house, and Hetty insisted on having a piazza, which Obadiah objected to as an additional and unnecessary expense. But Hetty coaxed and cried, and by dint of tears and entreaties managed to secure a sort of compromise. It wasn't in Obadiah's nature to be very liberal, so the piazza was not planned on that scale; but if it was dreadfully narrow, it was a good sight better than none at all, and with Tom as a lover it didn't really matter much.

Mrs. Beales was reconciled to the match since it seemed to meet the desire of Hetty's heart, who had never appeared so lovable and charming—far superior, the doting mother thought, to any of Squire King's daughters; while Obadiah was in a state of unspeakable happiness, for he knew Tom's ways, and was willing to give his daughter and his dollars into such safe keeping.

Tom and Hetty blessed the tidal wave that brought them together, and the old umbrella under which they told their love is preserved as a precious souvenir of that memorable occasion, when it really seemed as if Long Island would be swept into the Atlantic Ocean.

THE PEACHES.

FROM THE GERMAN OF KRUMMACHER.

A countryman carried home from the city six peaches, the finest that could be seen. His children saw this fruit for the first time. Therefore they wondered and were delighted with the beautiful apples with soft down and ruddy cheeks. The father divided them among the children, but reserved one for the mother.

At evening when the children had entered their little bed chamber, the father asked, "How have you enjoyed your beautiful apples?"

"Splendid, dear father," said the eldest, "so tart and of such a delicate flavor. I have carefully preserved the stone, and I will raise a tree for myself."

"Bravo!" answered the father, "thou lookest with prudence to the future as a householder ought to do."

"I ate mine at once," shouted the youngest. "I threw away the stone, and mother gave me half of hers. Oh, it tasted so sweet and melted in my mouth."

The father said, "Indeed, thou hast not been very careful, but natural and child-like, for as yet there is no room for prudence in thy young heart."

Then began the second son, "I picked up and cracked the stone my brother threw away. A kernel was within which tasted as sweet as a nut. But my peach I sold, and received so much money, that with it, when I go to the city, I can buy a dozen."

The father shook his head, and replied, "This is prudence indeed; at any rate it is neither child-like nor natural. May heaven guard you, that thou mayest not become a trader!"

"And thou, Edmund," questioned the father. Edmund, frank and ingenious, replied, "I carried mine to sick George, who has the fever, the son of our neighbor's. He would not accept it. I laid it upon his bed and came away." "Now," said the father, "who has made the best use of his peach?"

The three cried out, "that has brother Edmund done." Edmund remained silent, and his mother, with tears in her eyes, clasped him in her arms.

DO IT WELL.

Whatever you do, do it well. A job slighted because it is apparently unimportant, leads to habitual negligence. "That is a good tough job," said an old man in our hearing, recently, and he meant that it was a piece of work not elegant in itself, but strongly made and well put together.

Training the hand and eye to do work well leads individuals to form correct habits in other respects, and a good workman is, in most cases a good citizen. For one need not hope to rise above his present situation who suffers small things to pass unimproved, or who neglects, metaphorically speaking, to pick up a cent because it is not a dollar.

Some of the wisest law-makers, the best statesmen, the most gifted artists, the most ingenious mechanics, rose from the great mass.

A rival of a certain lawyer sought to humiliate him publicly by saying: "You blacked my father's boots once." "Yes," replied the lawyer, unabashed, "and I did it well." And because of his doing even mean things well, he rose to greater.

Take heart, all who toil! all youths in humble situations, all in adverse circumstances, and those who labor unappreciated. If it be but to drive the plow, strive to do it well; if it be but to wax threads, wax it well; if only to cut bolts, make good ones; or to blow the bellows, keep the iron hot. It is attention to business that lifts the feet higher up on the ladder.

Says the good book: "Seest thou a man diligent in his business, he shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before mean men."

A ROMANTIC MARRIAGE.

A beautiful and highly connected young girl, who contracted an unpropitious marriage, has recently returned to her home in Dorchester county, after an eventful tour around the world, and a temporary residence abroad for several years. Her story is very sad, and filled with eventful incidents. She spent a few days in Baltimore, visiting her friends, who are among the best families in Baltimore, but went home last night by the steamer Georgiana.

She is a native of Dorchester county, highly educated and accomplished. Her musical education was acquired partly in Europe. Some six years ago an adventurer went to Dorchester county to teach music. He was a man of fine appearance, good address, great versatility of talent and of good conversational powers. He therefore succeeded in getting pupils among the best and most conservative families. Among them was the subject of this sketch. An intimacy sprung up between tutor and pupil, and the family of the unfortunate girl tried every method of persuasion to prevent it; but the tie was too strong. The girl loved the professor tenderly and devotedly, and a separation could not be effected without breaking her heart.

The marriage ceremony was performed amid many misgivings of the girl's mother. The bride was only sixteen years old, and her troubles began before the honeymoon was over. Her husband soon undeceived her as to his identity, and told her he bore a different name from that under which they were joined, and that his true name was a matter of no consequence either to her or himself. For the present they would go by the name of Buck. His business was precarious and changeable. Music was a passion or an accomplishment with him, not a profession.

In spite of these startling revelations the bride clung to her husband, and they went to New York to live. Here he got money by robbery, forgery and all kinds of rascality, and beat hotel-keepers and others out of their just dues. The couple would frequently change quarters and start under a new name, the poor wife being constantly bewildered as to what to call herself.

After a few months' residence in New York they started upon a tour of the world, and lived a short time in various European cities. They finally turned up in New South Wales. The husband having murdered a woman in cold blood, that was thought a good place to escape justice, but the villian was arrested, put in prison and properly dealt with.

The young wife was now thousands of miles from her dear old home among the verdant fields and forests of Maryland.—No old and tried friend was near to guard and advise her. The fruits of the marriage were a broken heart and deep misery and embarassment. A beautiful boy was born, which was the only trophy of the happy days of her profound love and devotion. She does not to this day know his real name, since his father has sailed under so many aliases. The wife being highly educated and accomplished, she taught music, etc., in Australia, and got on very well and made many friends.

Mr. Nevitt Steele, Mr. Archibald Stirling and other citizens of Baltimore, hearing of her circumstances, sent her means to come to her home in Dorchester county, where she arrived recently, and she did not fail to visit them during her trip to Baltimore to express her gratefulness for their kind-hearted generosity.

She is now but little over twenty years old, and, nothwithstanding her many hardships and worry of mind, much of her orignal beauty and cheerfulness remains. Providence has been good to her and it is believed she will greatly improve in spirits now that she is among the early associations of her childhood and friendship.

She has obtained a divorce from her husband and goes by her maiden name.—Baltimore Bulletin.

A butcher enters the office of a lawyer.

"Sir, I want your advice. Is the owner of a dog responsible for any damage that the animal may do?"

"Certainly."

"Then your dog has run away with a leg of mutton from my stall, and I will trouble you for ten francs."

"Very well, my friend, have you five francs change?"

"Yes, sir." (Produces them.)

Here is a bit of evolution study, from the Rod and Gun: Our friend, Mr. A. Hubbard of Magog, P. Q., is in a muddle. We do not wonder at his soul's perplexity. Mr. Hubbard set his traps for foxes. He found them full of skunks. Urged on by the market quotations of skunk pelts he accepted the situation, removed the unsavory prey, and set the traps for more. Then came a new surprise. Set for foxes, the traps caught skunks; now set for skunks, they caught only crows. The baffled trapper could not eat crow; so accepting the belief that the traps were bewitched, he set them for the birds, and—of course caught foxes!

This Establishment has been removed temporarily, to North avenue, between the Holly Tree Inn and Megie's Jewelry Store.

THE REASON WHY.

The opponents of Democracy wonder why adopted citizens, as a rule, zealously support that political party.

The reason can be readily stated. It had origin eighty years ago and has never lost vitality and never will.

When John Adams was President, and Federalism arrogantly in the ascendant, there issued, as a becoming result, certain notorious decrees known as Naturalization, Alien and Sedition Laws, which not only required the unreasonable period of fourteen years' residence for citizenship, but clothed the Executive with power to drive aliens out of the country, and to fine and imprison people for speaking disrespectfully of government officers, or in other words, for expressing liberal opinions.

That was Federalism.

It is difficult for a true hearted American, at the present day, to realize the fact that such acts of tyranny, despotic in spirit as a Russian ukase, were ever permitted to soil the statute books of this country. Yet it is the truth of history.

The Democratic party, led on by the illustrious Jefferson, waged uncompromising warfare against Federalism and its atrocious measures, triumphing in his election to the Presidency, and thereby sweeping away the whole batch of oppressive enactments and substituting in their place liberty and justice.

That was Democracy.

During the early years of the Republic referred to, a large number of freedom loving people were seeking an asylum on these shores from the iron rule of Kingly despotism abroad, and finding the Democrats here the sincere friends of humanity, and the only determined upholders and defenders of civil and religious liberty, they naturally and very properly joined hands with them, as, for similar reasons, the great majority of other naturalized citizens have since done and continue to do.

That is why adopted citizens are Democrats, and it reflects honor upon our grand old party, because, in defiance of all the power of political enmity and narrow-minded bigotry, Democracy, after four score years of the severest test, stands to-day as staunchly as ever it did the bulwark of popular rights.

OUR NEW COUNCIL.

There was a full attendance of the newly elected members of Common Council at the organization of that body on Monday evening last, and a large gathering of citizens to witness the same. Councilman W. R. Potts, President of last Council, was unanimously elected President of Plainfield's first straight-out Republican Councilmanic body. That he will make an efficient officer is beyond question. He has shown during the past year that he is a most capable person to preside over the deliberations of Council. His selection of Committees, also, are commendable, as he endeavored in all cases to appoint Councilmen on each Committee who were conversant with the duties devolving upon them in that official capacity. The matter of appointing a City Clerk was laid over until the next meeting for obvious reasons, we presume, which, however, do not tend to show that the members of the new Council were in perfect harmony at their first meeting. The new Council have a fair start financially for the year they are elected to serve; far better than previous Councils, thanks to the careful legislation of the Council of '79. Let us hope they will render a good account at the end of their official career, Jan. 1881.

MAINE.

Both branches of the Maine Legislature organized on Wednesday, on the basis established by the official count made by Gov. Garcelon and the Council. The Republicans endeavored to create a rumpus in the Legislative Chamber, but with a bare quorum of one, and that one, Eugene Hale, who only qualified for the purpose of thwarting the action of Gov. Garcelon. Both branches were organized for 1880, and are now in running order. James D. Lamson was elected President of the Senate, and he is now therefore the acting Governor. John C. Talbot was elected Speaker of the House. The Republicans attempted a desperate game to prevent the organization of the Legislature, but were beaten at their own game.

One Sunday before the late election a Peoria clergyman was rash enough to advise in his sermon that "all Christians should cut loose from party and support the best man." Why this should be considered a very bad thing for a clergyman to say does not particularly appear, but it created a dreadful disturbance in Peoria, and a number of Republicans belonging to the congregation gave notice that they wouldn't attend that church again until it secured a new minister who could be depended upon as solid for their side. The offending clergyman has resigned as a means of peace, and there is now an opening in Peoria for one of those Bangor preachers.—Hunterdon Democrat.

Two agitators are now roaming through our country. One, Mr. Parnell, is making speeches against the tyranny of England and its landlords, and wants money to assist in preventing starvation among the inhabitants of Ireland, the other is Dennis Kearney, who proposes to make a stake by his harangues during the campaign of 1880. These "agitators" do the country or people no good.

THE OLD COUNCIL.

The Common Council of our city for the year 1879 have just cause to feel proud of their record during their term of office, in many respects. They have demonstrated the fact that by judicious management, and by the aid of the additional funds outside of the $10,000 annually appropriated for the running expenses of the city, (which every council have in their power to accept, if they are not fanatical on the liquor license question,) no greater sum than said $10,000 is necessary to be appropriated. The retiring members, all Democrats, have not been "left at home" for lack of capability to fill the office of Councilmen, but because Republican Plainfield have decided by ballot to run the city on a "partisan" basis. Mr. Depew has proven himself an able financier, and has zealously guarded the city's interests as Chairman of the Finance Committee. Mr. Stover has demonstrated his ability as a debater and promulgator of resolutions and ordinances which has saved the city many dollars, while Messrs. Mayer, Stewart and Simpson have always been in accord with their colleagues and faithfully performed their duties as Councilmen. They have the thanks of their constituents for their endeavors.

EDISON AND HIS LIGHT.

It was our pleasure last Saturday evening to visit Menlo Park, the scene of Edison's experiments with his electric light, and view the wonderful invention in all its glory. Upon arrival and making ourselves known at the office, we were courteously shown through the establishment by the gentlemanly clerk, Mr. Edgar Carman, who minutely explained everything connected with this wonderful light, in detail. Edison, the great inventor, was to be seen flitting here and there, attired in rough, working clothes, inspecting this portion of machinery and answering that question, himself, as well as his assistants, keeping a close watch that no vandal hand should injure or take away any part of the delicate machinery, as had been done for two nights previous by visitors. We were shown also, the motor which runs a sewing machine by electricity, and witnessed the same in operation. The following, taken from Pomeroy's Democrat, conveys our idea of what we saw during our visit. We believe the inventor has obtained his object, and that soon, the "daylight" furnished by his invention will supersede gas, and then—good-bye to gas companies and their high prices. The writer says:

What Mr. Edison claims to have accomplished is, in brief, as follows:

1. He has succeeded in producing an electric light—soft, mellow, but brilliant—which can be utilized for all purposes of illumination, both indoor and out, in public and private houses, and at a cost no greater than that of the cheapest oil.

2. This is done with machinery no more complicated than that employed in the manufacture of gas, and so arranged as to be easily transmitted by central machines, and without waste, over a large territory.

2. In cities where gas mains are already in use, they can be employed for transmitting the new light, while the gas fixtures in use can be altered to admit this novel illumination with very slight expense.

4. The light is steady, odorless, without smoke or flame, gives out little heat, is devoid of danger, requires no matches to ignite, and is, indeed, a little sun in itself for every household.

5. The lamps used are simple in construction. The extinguishing of one light does not effect the others in the least, and, by an ingenious advice, the electricity used by each house can be measured or computed the same as is now done by the gas meter.

6. By constructing the generating machine a power is generated capable of performing light work, such as running sewing machines, pumping water, etc. To run an ordinary sewing machine requires the exhaustion for only as much electricity as is required of one jet of light, and the power is obtained by attaching the wheel of the sewing machine to the apparatus by a little belt; and merely touching a knob conveniently arranged.

The point of discovery we make known this morning is that carbonized paper answers the purpose that it was thought platinum alone could serve, and is not only as cheap as ashes, but better than precious metal.

All difficulties but this of the composition of the wick of the electrical candle had been overcome. The generation of electricity has become familiar. There are many well-known electrical machines. The divisibility of the current has been found possible. It is as divisible under Edison's process as a volume of gas.

What of the Edison lamp? It can be made at a cost of twenty-five cents. In its simplest form it is as cheap as a gas tip. It is a plain glass globe, about the size of a small orange or a large lemon. In the bottom is fitted a metallic stopper, through which the copper wires pass, and a strip of carbonized paper, shaped like a horseshoe, connects the wires. The air is exhausted in the globe. Turn on the electricity, which is quite as simple an operation as turning on gas, and the carbon becomes and remains luminous, giving out a soft, brilliant, powerful light, and the wick endures. No limit to this endurance has been found. No matches are needed to strike a light. You touch the key and there is your illumination. The glass globe does not become heated. It grows warm, but by no possibility can there be any combustion. Break the glass and the light is instantly and utterly extinguished. The moment the air enters, the light is out. It would be perfectly safe, therefore, to use such a light in a powder magazine. It will be of inestimable advantage on ship board. It can be employed with the happiest results in mines heretofore extra-hazardous. It will, by abolishing the use of matches in our houses, and introducing a light that neither heats nor enkindles, vastly reduce the liability of fires and thus speedily put down the rate of insurance. This light will do away with the necessity of heat in well lighted apartments. One can produce a dazzling illumination without changing the temperature.

As there is no combustion, there is no smoke, so that this is the light long sought for picture galleries. Wherever a wire can be stretched, light may be cheaply produced, so there will be no excuse for dark alleys. This will be the terror of burglars, for by the noiseless touching of a key, not only an apartment, but an entire house, may be instantly flooded with light, to the terror and discomfiture of all who seek darkness that they may do evil.

It is a light that does not harm the eyes, and that may be shaded and regulated at pleasure—combining the softness of the oil lamp with the splendor of the burning of carbon points.

ACCIDENT ON THE LONG BRANCH RAILROAD.

A serious accident occurred during Tuesday night on the Long Branch Div. of the Central Railroad, whereby a freight train in mistaking a signal at the bridge over Woodbridge creek, ran off the draw into the water and fourteen cars were hopelessly wrecked, catching fire, and with contents being destroyed. They were loaded with hay and charcoal, and it was the first trip of this train. One man only was injured, by jumping from the train, and he not seriously. It appears there is a down grade here, and that may account in part for the accident. Passengers are transferred from Perth Amboy, and it will be a few days before trains are running regularly.

We are in receipt of a copy of Comptroller Stockton's Annual Report of the condition of the State Treasury. We shall refer to its contents in another issue.

Statistics show a decided increase of business at Petersburg, Va., during the past year. The outlook is still more promising. The cotton factories form a very important part in the industrial interests of Petersburg. These have been unusually prosperous. In the city and vicinity there are five factories employing 715 operatives, whose consumption is 9,000 bales of cotton. During the year they manufactured 11,105,000 yards of cloth, which brought from six to eight cents a yard, and was purchased chiefly by Northern jobbers.

Grant is giving the Southern darkies "taffy." At a recent speech in Fernandina, Fla., he after repeating the substance of many of his previous speeches, referred to the report which he made in 1866. He said "that he believed then that the South acted in good faith, but he saw then, and sees now, that they were misled and drawn into a course which produced results now so greatly regretted by all. It was not, however, their fault." Quite right. It was the fault of the Abolition party, who uphold Grant for a third term.

Joseph Letson was sentenced to two years in State Prison and a fine of $500 last week at New Brunswick for embezzling $10,000 while acting as County Collector of Middlesex county. In 1873 he was a member of the House of Assembly, and in the Fall of the same year he ran for State Senator and came near being elected. His father-in-law, Hart Moore, was convicted of a like offence, and his sentence is withheld until some law points concerning his case are reviewed by the Supreme Court.

It is charged that there is a deficiency in the funds of Linden township, and on Saturday evening a public meeting of the residents was held, and in the speeches of prominent persons the Township Committee was severely criticised for the manner in which they have conducted affairs. In coops at a canning factory in Moorestown, N. J., are 2,700 chickens and 600 turkeys that will soon be dissected and encased in tin. Every day they consume 20 bushels of corn, 40 quarts of pure milk, a large quantity of pork, and 280 quarts of water.

The latest dodge of the chicken thief is to saturate a cloth with chloroform, attach it to the end of a stick, push it into the coop until the birds are under the influence, when they can be removed without making a noise, and hence without fear of detection.

Union County Courts.

The January term of Court opened Tuesday morning, with Judges Van Syckel, McCormick, Mulford and Bowne on the bench. The attendance of lawyers, witnesses and spectators was very large. The Grand Jurors entered the Court room at twenty minutes after ten, and were sworn by Clerk Platt, as follows:

GRAND JURORS.

Rahway—Foreman, Uzal M. Osborn; Elihu B. Silvers, Alpheus D. Gibbons, B. Frank Crowell; Elizabeth—Philip Mohr, Frederick L. Heidritter, Thomas D. Terrill, Jr., William Shove, David H. Chatfield, Edward P. Edwards, David W. Odiorne, C. C. Moore; Plainfield—Wm. McD. Coriell, George W. F. Randolph, Jasper G. Cadmus; Fanwood—C. W. L. Martine; Westfield—David G. Fisk; Cranford—William D. Bigelow; Linden—John W. Meeker; New Providence—Bradford Jones; Summit—James Woodruff; Springfield—George Mulford; Union—J. Williams Crane; Clark—Israel Vail.

JUDGE'S CHARGE.

After the oaths were administered, Judge VanSyckel addressed the jurors as follows:

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury:

By virtue of a statute recently passed, an accountant was appointed to make a summary investigation into the financial affairs of the city of Elizabeth. I have in my possession his report, a copy of which I will cause to be served upon your foreman.

You may deem it to be your duty to investigate some matters presented in that report. If you find that any person holding an official position under the city government has used that position corruptly for the purpose of making gain for himself, he is indictable for such misconduct. Or if you find evidence that there has been an arrangement between one or more city officials, and any other person by which the latter was to have an undue advantage over others, in the purchase of bonds from the city, or the sale of bonds to the city for the sinking fund, such person should be indicted for conspiracy to defraud the city. If such abuses have been committed, it will require the closest scrutiny on your part to discover them. While you should be careful to do no injustice to individuals, you should make your investigation so rigid that if an offense of this character has been committed, it shall not go unpunished.

You will be careful, gentlemen, to allow no one to talk with you or solicit you with reference to the matters which will be before you. No one who has a proper respect for you will venture to do so, and you cannot listen to such approaches without a violation of your obligations.

If you will report any such attempted interference to the Court, you will be protected from a repetition of it.

The petit jurors for Plainfield are Whitfield N. Brown, Peter I. TenBroeck and J. Oakley Nodyne.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

The officers of Good Will Lodge 101, K. of P. were installed Thursday last. After the service the D. D. congratulated the Lodge on its general prosperity, its condition financially, but above all, on the spirit of enthusiasm and good fellowship which has governed the actions of the brethren during the past year. H. C. Fithian is C. C. for the present term.

Questions: Who are the Officers of the Fire Department of the Township of Fanwood? How often do they meet? Where are their Headquarters?

A Finis.

The trial, conviction and sentence of Michael Sweeny, Jr., for disturbing the quiet and peace of our city, before the late City Judge, P. P. Good, has come to nought. The jury after having been out seven hours, standing 11 to 1 for conviction, sent for instructions, upon the law, to the Court. The Court put in an appearance, without notice to defendant's Counsel, and charged in his absence. This was illegal, upon the rendering of the verdict in writing to this effect: "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty as charged in the complaint and in order to a unanimous or early decision agree to recommend the defendant to the mercy of the Court." The prosecutor in the absence of prisoner and his Counsel asked the jury as they stood: "Do you then unanimously agree as to the mercy of the Court?" One of the jury spoke out promptly, "we agree to nothing of the kind, our verdict is written." The twelfth juror cried out: "I desire my name stricken from the list." Instead of the jury being sent back they were dismissed. On the second day of January the prisoner was to be sentenced. In the mean time three affidavits were made by three different jurymen, that the proceedings were irregular and that officer Chas. W. Dodd and one Geo. W. Moore, tax collector, had entered the room of the jury while in their deliberations, and interfered with the same, &c. These points Mr. Matson presented to the Judge, which lawfully prevented any further proceedings of the case. Corporation Counsel Suydam then moved that the fine of $10 imposed by the Court on Sweeny some three months since for disorderly conduct be collected. The Judge gave Sweeny 48 hours to pay the fine, in which has not yet been paid.

Larceny.

For a number of weeks past raids have been committed upon our outlying farmers of this city and the adjoining townships. Not only this but carriages in the streets of our city have been divested of their carriage robes and blankets. Constable Pangborn and State Detective Broen were entrusted with the charge of ferreting out the evil doers and the recovery of the stolen property. After many days of close investigation they found that large amounts of honey, at prices below its actual value, had been sold to persons doing business in our city. Complaints were made to Justice Wadsworth, and he issued warrants for the arrest of certain persons who had made sales of this honey. As the identification of this honey required, if possible, the hives or such portions thereof to be found on premises where the accused was in the habit of meeting, a search warrant was granted. This search warrant produced pieces of hives that the sufferers are prepared to swear as belonging to them. The officers also found property in the way of carriage robes and blankets which have been identified as being stolen from vehicles standing in the streets of our city. The accused have been committed to the jail of the County to await the action of the Grand Jury.—They allege that they received the honey but bought it in good faith. The charges against the accused will be fully examined by the Grand Jury now in session. We refrain from giving the names of the parties accused, as they give a plausible excuse for the possession of the stolen goods, and are members of families which have always maintained a respectable standing.

Bargains! Bargains!!

Now is the accepted time. French, the clothier, No. 19 Park ave., next to Mansion House, is selling off his fall and winter stock of Men's, Youth's and Boys' Clothing at less than the wholesale cost of manufacture for two reasons, viz: First, owing to the mildness of the season, he has a surplus of heavy goods of all sizes. Second, that he intends to remove to Front street and does not want to transport any more stock than he can help.—This is no humbug. Call and see for yourself and you will go away happy.

FIRE MATTERS.

Chief Engineer Halsted has received a token of the regard that members of Alert Hose of Plainfield feel for him, in a beautiful silver fireman's hat with gold front. On the front is an engraved steamer over which is the word "Chief" and under "W. A. H." On the broadest part of the brim is engraved "William A. Halsted, from Foreman Saltzman, Alert Hose Co., No. 1, Plainfield, N. J." The little beauty is engraved for a scarf pin and is 1½ inches long and ¾ of an inch high. It was a New Year's surprise to Mr. Halsted.—Bonner.

The total loss by the fire at Red Bank foots up to about $35,000; pretty fully insured. Anthony Reckless, President of the Long Branch Railroad, is the principal loser.

The Celluloid Works, corner of Ferry and Ashbridge streets, Newark, N. J., were destroyed by fire on Monday morning last. Four persons, employees, were burned to death, and five seriously injured.

A small barn situated on the Embury estate, corner of Front and Church streets, was destroyed by fire about half-past eleven o'clock, Monday night last. When the fire companies arrived, the building was nearly destroyed. The truck company pulled the frame down, and No. 2 engine put a stream on the wreck, which soon extinguished the fire. No. 3 engine got the next stream, followed by No. 1. The barn was undoubtedly set on fire. The loss is slight. Only a few garden tools, old furniture, etc., were in the building. Some person thought there was great danger of a serious conflagration, and rang the Presbyterian Church bell, opposite the fire, after the alarm bell had ceased to ring.

On Wednesday evening last the Commissioners met. Minutes of previous meeting read and approved. Members all present except Messrs. Van Winkle and Case. No bills were audited.

Mr. Jones, from com. on extending time in manner of electing Fire Com'rs., reported progress. Report received and com. continued.

Same from com. on Wells reported progress on the Jackson ave. well; he said they had not yet reached water. Report received and com. continued.

The names of Ed. Sebring and Irving Waters were received from Z. H. & Co. Laid over.

No. 2 sent in the names of Henry Pound and Frank Hand. Laid over.

Charges preferred against the first assistant engineer of Warren, for being drunk while on duty Thanksgiving day. Complaint not being specific no action was taken on it.

Messrs. George Clark and Thomas Randolph were elected from No. 2. Matt. Eageny, from same Co., rejected.

Ex-Councilman E. L. Morris was elected a member of Z. H. & L. Co.

Mr. Heidloff of Z. H. & L. Co., asked the Com'rs. to drop the name of C. Johnson. Complied with.

Z. H. & L. Co. sent in a copy of their by-laws for the Com'rs. approval. Pres. Pope appointed Messrs. Steiner, Jones and Van Winkle to peruse the same and report at next regular meeting.

Mr. Jones reported that he had made inquiries about Robert Skinner, whose name was rejected at a previous meeting and found he bore a good character. He would like a reconsideration in this case. Mr. Steiner thought this rule, if established, would do for others as well. The Pres. ruled that the name would have to be sent again from the company (No. 2) for confirmation.

Mr. French made a few remarks in the course of which he said: "That we were getting a very large and interesting Department. The Plainfield Fire Dep't. had always been a pet of his and as an old member of it he took a deep interest in its welfare. He called the officers of the several companies to account for the unnecessary noise and the extra amount of profanity used lately; it was with regret that he was compelled to broach this subject; he hoped the officers would remedy the evil and see that their by-laws were enforced."

The meeting then adjourned.

An adjourned meeting of "Gazelle" engine Co. No. 1, will be held at their parlors next Wednesday evening. The members are requested to be present as business of importance is to be transacted.

Per invitation extended, Foreman David Leeson and Assistant Foreman Aaron Kline, of "Gazelle" Steamer, No. 1, attended the annual ball given by "Passaic" Engine Co. No. 2 of Newark, at Apollo Hall, that city, on New Year's Eve. They were handsomely entertained by the members of the "Passaic", Foreman Quimby, Chief Benedict and members of the Fire Department generally. The orders of dance on the occasion were very handsomely gotten up. The visiting firemen speak in the highest terms of the hospitality of the "laddies" of "Passaic" and have vowed to "return favors" ere long.

When is that Fire Well on Jackson ave. to be completed, is now a question promulgated by the residents in the immediate vicinity. Water has been struck at a depth of 17 feet from the surface, but that six feet of water yet to be obtained, is looked upon with horror by Dave and his workmen. The Com. on Wells have not been "thro' the mill" yet.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

In the Somerset County Courts last week, the jury in the case of Gotlieb Fritz, charged with rape, disagreed, the jury standing eleven for acquittal and one for "guilty."

During the progress of a dance at Heyder's saloon, on Green Brook road, on New Year's Eve, a disorderly person, named Lee Young, was ejected from the room. He retaliated by throwing a club through a window, which struck Mrs. Heyder in the head, injuring her very severely. He was caught by inmates of the ball room, and severely handled.

Mr. Chas. E. Austin has materially added to the attractiveness of his residence on Craig Place by the erection of a handsome iron fence and a substantial board walk in front of the same. There is a spirit of general improvement all about the place.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Two deer were chased through the village of Centreville, Sussex county, on Thursday week. Several shots were fired at them with a revolver but without effect.

Recently myriads of brant appeared on the Round Island meadows. After a stay of a few days, as if by a preconcerted signal, they all took flight for points further South.

Several thousand more salmon trout have been deposited in the Delaware River by order of Fish Com'r. Anderson.

The reports of pigeon and glass ball shooting matches occuring in this city and surrounding towns, which are published in the New York daily papers every Sunday are mostly canards.

A report is going the rounds of the State papers that an effort will be made to amend the laws so as to permit the killing of the English sparrow.

The Board of Directors of "The New Jersey Game and Fish Protective Society" will meet at the Mansion House, this city on Wednesday evening, Jan. 14th, at half-past seven o'clock.

The Gravel Pits.

MESSRS. EDITORS:

The attempt having been made last year to saddle upon the taxpayers of Plainfield at large, the expense of filling in the "gravel pits," about which so much has been said and written for the last twelve months or more, and which has been an important element in the election of members of the Common Council—made so by certain interested parties—that they may be benefitted, provided gratitude takes a practical shape in the actions of the Councilmen, will be renewed again this year with fresh vigor, from the belief that the Council this time is "all right" on the subject. The expense of the work in question would probably be about $2,000; to offset this there has been offered by interested parties $400 toward the work, which would leave for the city to pay about $1,600 out of its Treasury for the improvement of private property; and for the city to pay a single dollar towards such improvements would be a clear and distinct violation of law, and would subject the members of the Common Council to indictment, if they should vote for it; I know there has been a proposition submitted by interested parties to circumvent the law by opening the old Railroad bed as a street, to be called "Midway avenue," the dirt of the old grade to be used in filling in the "Pits;" this scheme is so palpably selfish and irregular that it is doubtful whether the new Council dare lend themselves to its execution. There is no public demand for such a street as proposed, and for the city to pay the large amount of money that the work would require, in addition to the $400 that would be donated by interested parties, would be highly detrimental to the best interests of the taxpayers of Plainfield.

The "Gravel Pits" should unquestionably be filled in as a sanitary measure, but the Common Council have ample power to compel the owners of the land, where such pits exist, to fill them in and abate the nuisance; to prove this I will quote from a supplement of the Charter, approved March 18, 1874: "Sec. 2. And be it enacted, That the Common Council shall have full power to pass ordinances to prevent and punish injuries to public lamps, to abate or remove nuisances of every kind, and to compel the owner or occupants of any lot, house, building, shed or place wherein may be carried on any business or calling, or in or upon which there may exist any matter or thing which is or may be detrimental to the health of the inhabitant, to cleanse, remove or abate the same, from time to time, as often as they may deem necessary at the expense of the owner or occupants thereof." * * * * * *

Now there is an ordinance in force creating a Board of Health, and said ordinance delegates, or was meant to delegate, to the Board of Health, powers that are defined in the above quoted section of the Charter; it is claimed by some that the ordinance in question is not explicit enough; if such is the fact, let the Common Council amend the same, or pass a new ordinance, and then go ahead and kill the bug-bear "Pits," and let the election of Councilmen hereafter hinge upon something else than obnoxious Gravel Pits.

Five Hundred Thousand Strong.

In the past few months there has been more than 500,000 bottles of SHILOH'S CURE SOLD. Out of the vast number of people who have used it, more than 2,000 cases of CONSUMPTION have been cured. All Coughs, Croup, Asthma and Bronchitis, yield at once, hence it is that every body speaks in its praise. To those who have not used it, let us say, if you have a Cough, or your child the Croup, and you value life, don't fail to try it.—For Lame Back, Side or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by Wm. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

A Strange People.

Do you know that there are strange people in our community, we say strange because they seem to prefer to suffer and pass their days miserably, made so by Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Constipation, and General Debility, when Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure them.—Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

We have a speedy and positive Cure for Catarrh, Diptheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache, in Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. A nasal Injector free with each bottle. Use it if you desire health, and sweet breath. Price 50c. Sold by Wm. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds. ja5eow6m.

A FRAGRANT BREATH AND PEARLY TEETH

Are easily obtained by cleansing your teeth with that justly popular dentrifice SOZODONT. Composed of rare antiseptic herbs, it imparts whiteness to teeth, a delicious aroma to breath, and preserves intact, from youth to old age, the teeth. Acidity of the stomach will destroy the strongest teeth unless its effects are counteracted with SOZODONT, and this pure tooth-wash protects the dental surfaces by removing every impurity that adheres to them.—Ask your druggist for SOZODONT.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Simmons' LIVER REGULATOR

LIVER DISEASE and Indigestion prevail to a greater extent than probably any other malady and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Indigestion or want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which Simmons' Liver Regulator is the best remedy that has ever been discovered for these ailments. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for forty years, and hundreds from all parts of the country will vouch for its virtues, viz: Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia; John Gill Shorter, of Alabama; Gen. John B. Gordon, R. L. Mott, of Columbus. Bishop Pierce, of Georgia, are among the hundreds to whom we can refer. Extract of a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1877: "I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active medicines."

It is not the quantity eaten that gives strength, life, blood and health. It is the thorough digestion of the food taken, be it much or little. Therefore, do not attendance on the stomach to starve food, but rather enable digestion after eating by taking SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR GENERAL AND GENUINE, Manufactured only by J. H. ZEILIN & CO., Philadelphia, Pa. Price, $1. Sold by all Druggists. oct1y1

DEMOCRATS.

The members of the Executive Committee of the "Plainfield Democratic Association," are requested to meet in the parlors of Chamberlain's Hotel, next Tuesday evening, Jan. 13th, to consider matters of importance to the party.

JAMES E. MARTINE, President.

JUDGE Runyon, we salute you.

THE Legislature of New Jersey convenes at Trenton Tuesday morning next.

THE New Jersey State Editorial Association will meet at Trenton on Monday next.

COMMON Council refuses to pay the bill of Wm. B. Maxson for his services in securing Plainfield a Park. We shall see.

LADIES of Plainfield are circulating and obtaining names to a petition to be presented to the Common Council praying that body not to grant hotel or saloon licenses.

THE new dwellings of Sandford & Manning on Plainfield avenue and 6th street, are rapidly nearing completion, owing to the able efforts of the contractor, Mr. Isaac Melbourn.

PERSONS desiring old picture frames regilded, or new ones made in the finest style of the art, and at reasonable prices, should call upon R. Waldron, over Will's Fruit store, Front street. He is a first-class workman.

MR. VOORHEES LAING, a son of Plainfield's Pioneer Confectioner, J. L. Laing, has leased the store on Front street, formerly occupied by H. Eggerding, and will in a few days open the same as a Fruit and Confectionery store.

PARTIES in want of furniture should visit the establishment of Mr. R. R. Fairchild on Front street, next to Whitney's Dry Goods store, where may be found a fine assortment of desirable furniture at prices to suit the times.

RICHARD HAFENY proposes firing a salute from the brass piece of the Plainfield Artillery Company, on the morning of Feb. 23d, in commemoration of Washington's birthday, if he can raise sufficient funds to purchase powder.

CROWDS of lookers-on view the rapid growth of Vanderbeek's new building, (the future quarters of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST) in fair weather, which is progressing finely under the skillful hands of the workmen of Isaac and John.

PERSEVERANCE Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., have added to the attractiveness of their Lodge room, by placing therein a handsome Organ. To infer that it is a first-class instrument it is only necessary for us to say that it was purchased of Vanderbeek.

A COLORED gentleman presented an order for groceries from the Overseer of the Poor, at Cutter's Grocery Store the other evening. After he had asked for and received a bag of flour, he said he guessed he would take a box of sardines. "Brick" did'nt give him a box.

IT'S all very nice to talk about fine segars. They are good to smoke, no doubt, but the question is where to get them.—FINE, on Park ave., No. 28, has just the article, not only imported, but if you desire a cheaper article, his five cent Capaduras have no equal. Try them.

GROUND has been broken for a handsome residence on Ninth street, near Broadway, for Mr. W. P. Scott. Mr. Isaac Melbourn has the contract for the mason work and Mr. Mart. M. Schenck, the carpenter work. The design of the building is on the Swiss cottage style.

MANY new buildings are in course of erection in Plainfield, residences, stores, etc., which speaks volumes for the prosperity and growth of our beautiful city. One great reason for this is the fact that our city government is run on an economical plan, and we have no bonded debt. Don't let's have any.

2,300 in premiums have been paid exhibitors at the late Fair of the "Union & Middlesex Counties' Mutual Agricultural Association," held at Plainfield. Over $100 in premiums have not been called for. There has been 700 shares of stock sold. A number more will be sold and further improvements made on the grounds.

AN aspirant for janitorship of the Council Chamber, (a white brother of the "loll" family) indignantly said "he didn't propose to run against any such timber as that!" alluding to the candidacy of Mr. Hamilton, the colored brother, who secured the position. Wait until election day, though, Pete, then you won't hesitate to deal in such "timber."

THE foundation has been built and preparations are making for the removal of the West Elizabeth depot on the C. R. R., about one hundred yards from its present location to the west of Bayway, and just beyond the city limits. The name of the station, it is said, will be changed to Elwood, and the grounds surrounding will be handsomely laid out with park, drives, etc.

THE Hatters' Association of this city held their Annual meeting at Heidsloff's Hotel, on Saturday afternoon and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Felix Lincoln, Pres.; P. H. Stryker, V. P.; John Stewart, Sec'y.; John Brokaw, Treas.; Geo. Winkler, Steward. The Association desire us through our columns to return thanks to Mr. Heidsloff for the gratuitous use of his room.

A SERIOUS runaway was prevented on Front street this morning, only by the prompt action of Mr. A. Berry, who caught the bridle rein of a horse attached to a buggy in which was seated a young girl, as the animal turned short around and attempted to run, in consequence of becoming frightened at a passing bicycle. Is there not an ordinance prohibiting the use of vehicles of the latter description on our public streets? We think there is.

JULIAN Scott, the artist, recently completed the painting of a life-like portrait of a deceased soldier of Plainfield, J. L. Force, who served in Co. I. of the 3d Reg. N. J. Vols., and was killed in action at the battle of the Wilderness. Many of his old comrades, still living, would at once recognize the picture, which was painted after a photograph likeness of the subject. The painting is encased in a handsome heavy gilt-frame, from the establishment of R. Waldron, gilder.

THE "Plainfield and Arizona Mining Company" is the title of a new mining company recently organized in this city as a result of the experience of Mr. Wallace Vail among the silver mines of Arizona on his recent tour of inspection to that locality. Officers were elected last week, but as the list is not all complete we will publish them in a future issue. Mr. Wm. H. Brower, one of the members of the Company, started to-day (Thursday) for Arizona in the interests of the Association at that point, while Mr. Vail remains here, where he will be of more benefit to the Company in consequence of his late experience at the scene where the mines are located the Company being well pleased with the report made by him on his return.

Attention, Pottawatomies!

The braves of the tribe are summoned to meet at Force's Hotel, this city, Saturday evening, Jan. 10th, when business of importance will come before them.

By Order of

THE CHIEF.

Chance for Investment.

Attention is directed to the advertisement in another column of Real Estate at Auction near Evona depot. The land is admirably situated for building purposes, and the owner is determined to sell.

To the Band of Hope.

It is desired that all the members of the Band of Hope should be present at the Holly Tree Inn, at 2:30 p. m., sharp, Saturday afternoon, Jan. 10th, as this meeting will be one of special interest.

ALICE PENNOYER, Sec.

Robert Voorhees.

Those who have never heard the above named famous lecturer, should not fail to attend the next entertainment, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. of this city, at the Congregational Church, the evening of Jan. 15th. Mr. Voorhees is one of the finest lecturers in the country.

He Refutes It.

Geo. W. Moore, who was charged in sworn affidavits by jurymen in the late Sweeny farce, of entering the jury room and influencing the minds of certain of them, is out with a sworn statement, denying the charge. The document is signed by six of the jurymen. "'Ram I right, 'Ram I wrong?'"

Verdict against the City.

In the year 1875, a horse belonging to Jonas H. Platt, of Evona, was precipitated into an excavation at the intersection of Grant avenue and 7th St., caused by the grading of 7th street, and was seriously injured. Mr. Platt sued the city for $250 damages. Judge Van Syckel, on Tuesday last rendered a decision in his favor. Frank Bergen for plaintiff. Suydam & Jackson for the city.

A New Firm.

Mr. Geo. Rockfellow, the well-known Grocer, corner of Park and North aves., has taken a partner in business. The firm name is now Rockfellow & Kilbourn. Mr. D. O. Kilbourn comes from New Brunswick, and is highly spoken of as an energetic business man and a good citizen by the press of his late place of residence. We bespeak for the new firm an increase of the already extensive trade built up by Mr. Rockfellow.

Board of Education.

The Board of Education met for re-organization in the High School Building Monday evening last. The old officers were re-elected, viz: Dr. Chas. H. Stillman, President; Jacob Kirkner, Secretary. A request from the teachers of the Schools, that the Board annul their resolution that they disapprove of presents being given to teachers by scholars, was not complied with. The resolution remains as passed. A report of the financial status of the Board appears in another column.

Perseverance Lodge 74, K. of P.

The members of the above flourishing Lodge were out in full force on Friday evening, the 2d inst., at their Lodge room, the occasion being the installation of Officers for the ensuing term. Brother F. C. Gibbs, D. D. G. E., with the G. K. of R. and S., E. V. Lorton and Brethren from Good Will 101, was announced and received with the grand honors due their position. Before closing the installation service, brother Gibbs complimented the Lodge in fitting terms.

Journalistic.

That staunch Democratic journal, the Clinton Democrat, comes to us this week, enlarged to about the size of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, and evidences from its advertising columns that brother Carpenter is prosperous in his efforts to furnish his readers a good, newsy paper.

That Mt. Holly Herald has had a new "head put on it," and is printed with new and clear type. The paper presents a really handsome appearance by the change. The Herald is a true exponent of Democracy.

The Fredonian, of New Brunswick, has issued a handsome and useful Farmer's Almanac for 1880, a copy of which is sent to each subscriber of that paper. We acknowledge the receipt of a copy. Bro. Babcock is an enterprising newspaper man.

Bee Thieves.

We don't mean that the reader should be; but that there are parties who hanker after the sweets deposited in hives by the busy little bees, who hath "stingers" in warm weather, was demonstrated one night last week, when Mr. Ed. Terry, of Short Hills, was robbed of hives of bees, which contained some 50 lbs. of honey.—From there the thieves went to the premises of Daniel Hetfield, and Frazee and Daniel Lee, in the same locality, where they obtained two hives from each of the parties named. Isaac Little also lost one hive, and the clothes line of Isaac Lambert was despoiled of the day's washing. Load your guns and let loose your dogs. When the dogs bark, shoot.

Presentation.

The members of the Plainfield Saengerbunde, on New Year's Eve, attested their appreciation of the services of the leader, Mr. Geo. Braun, by presenting him with a set of handsome sleeve buttons and studs, composed of gold setting and onyx stones, matching the beautiful ring of that description given him by the same Society last year. All these gifts were obtained from Mr. Benj. Megie's Jewelry store on North ave., next to THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office. They attest to the good workmanship of the employees of the establishment. Mr. B. was taken by surprise, having had no knowledge of the affair. He "responded" in a handsome manner. The presentation took place at headquarters of the Society, Mr. Fred. Caspar's, Second Street. The Saengerbunde is in a flourishing condition, thanks to efficient management. They propose giving another grand entertainment shortly. Success to their efforts.

Trouble in Holland.

Nicholas Guiser had a "head put on him" on New Year's morning from the following cause: Mr. Adam Fritz, the Front street butcher, had entered Lewis' Meat Market, on Park avenue, for the purpose of transacting some business with that gentleman. There he met Mr. Guiser, who is also a dispenser of slaughtered animals. In a short time the matter of the trial of Gotleib Fritz, father of Adam, in the Somerset Courts, came up, and Guiser was asked by the latter why he did not answer to a subpœna on the subject. Guiser denied having received one. Words on the subject brought forth the "lie," then Mr. G. called Adam a very bad name, then he thought there was a thunder storm and lightning had struck him. When he recovered, he found he had been "struck" in several places, and required several yards of sticking plaster. Adam went to a shooting match that afternoon, and Mr. Guiser swore out a warrant for his arrest for assault and battery. The Grand Jury will dispose of the case.

EDSALL & PRICE, Dry Goods merchants, No. 15 East Front street, are busily engaged in taking an account of stock, and their new advertisement will appear in the next issue of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST. This popular firm did a fine and paying business during the holidays. They will immediately put in a large stock of fresh goods suitable to the times.

Union County Executive Committee.

The new members of the Union County Democratic Executive Committee met for organization at Elizabeth, on Monday afternoon last. The following named gentlemen were selected to serve as officers for the ensuing year: Chairman, Jules A. Fay, Jr.; Secretary, Charles A. Ryan; Corresponding Secretary, Chas. C. Stevenson; Treasurer, J. Williams Crane. The appointment of Standing Committees were laid over to the next meeting.

Missing from Her Home.

The parents of a young twelve year old girl named Susie Boyle, residents of Scotch Plains, were in this city on Wednesday last, looking for their child. Susie left her home on New Year's Day, saying she was going to Plainfield to visit a relative, since which time she has not been heard from. She was of medium height, stout build, and had thick, dark hair, and wore plain clothes.

Elizabeth's Expert's Report.

Chas. C. Stevenson, the expert appointed by Hon. B. Van Syckel, to examine into the financial affairs of the city of Elizabeth made a detailed statement to the court on Thursday morning. He finds that there has been "crookedness," especially in the sale of City Improvement Bonds. In some cases bonds were sold to pay for improvements for which no assessments have ever been made. At maturity these bonds were paid from money received for assessments on other improvements. Commissions were allowed in numerous cases, some of which appear to be of questionable character. Many of the bonds were purchased at par and interest when the market price was far below that figure, in some instances as low as 77 flat (interest included). The Grand Jury will investigate the matter. The irregularities were under Republican administration.

Masonic Installation.

H. R. CANNON, M. W. P. G. M., visited Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., in this city, on Tuesday evening last, for the purpose of installing the newly elected officers of the Lodge. There was a large attendance of the brethren in their handsome new rooms, and the ceremonies were conducted in the usual impressive masonic manner. The occasion was made especially commemorative from the fact that it was just a quarter of a century since the installing officer, Dr. Cannon, was elected a Master of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26. The officers installed were:

Jacob Kirkner, W. M.
E. R. Pope, S. W.
Edward Nelson, J. W.
James C. Pope, Treas.
Wm. H. Sebring, Sec.
W. B. Coe, S. D.
John Ulrich, J. D.
B. F. Coriell and John R. Hall, M. of C.
John R. McCall and Wm. F. Adams, Stewards.
C. H. Westphal, Tyler.
Wm. B. Maxson, Wm. Addis and Jacob Adams, Trustees.
B. Woodland, Organist.

Overbaugh vs. The Overseer of the Poor of North Plainfield.

The plaintiff in this case sought to recover $800 for board, &c., for an idiot boy whom she kept for about three years. It appeared he had at one time received relief from one of the former overseers of the poor of North Plainfield and afterwards from Somerset county. That the plaintiff brought him away from North Plainfield to her home in this city and in a few days took him back to the store kept by the present overseer of the poor of North Plainfield, in the absence of the overseer, and that the overseer's partner caused him to be returned to her and she has kept him ever since. She seeks to recover on the ground that the overseer was bound to support him as a Township charge. The defence was that there was no notice given to the overseer that the idiot was a Township charge and no adjudication to that effect and he in fact was not a Township charge and the overseer was not bound in law to provide for him. Judge Van Syckel decided in favor of defendant. R. V. Lindabury, for plaintiff. Suydam & Jackson, for def'nt.

Personalia.

Cashier Carman Parse, of the First National Bank, and wife, have taken rooms at the Mansion House for the winter.

Mr. John B. Peacock, well-known to many our citizens as a former resident of Plainfield, died at his home in New York on Thursday last of paralysis. Deceased had been in poor health for a long time. Mr. Peacock, a number of years since, was engaged in the shoe business in Plainfield, and later, was a manufacturer of printer's card stock in New York city. His funeral occured on Sunday last, with masonic honors.

Mr. H. H. DeCamp, for a number of years connected with Laing's Hotel, paid a flying visit to friends in this city on Sunday last. "High" looks well, and likes farming in Morris County.

We are indebted to ex-Councilman Gilford Mayer, for copies of handsome calendars, issued by the "Phenix Insurance Company," which institution he represents.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

FRIDAY EV'G., Jan. 2, '80.

Council met pursuant to adjournment. Present—Coriell, Depew, Finch, Mayer, Stover, Redfield, Rushmore, Potts. Absent—Simpson, Lithgow, Stewart.

President Potts in the chair.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Mr. Stover presented the following police bills: Robt Randolph, special, $1.25; Geo. Grant, special, $3; M. Conway special, $3.25; Moore, Eaton, Dodd and Tingley, regular, each $41.67. Ref'd to Com. on Police.

By the same—claim of G. W. Rockfellow, $34.46, supplies to Station House. Ref'd to Police Com.

E. H. Depew presented claim of J. O. Nodyne, janitor, &c., $74.50; P. P. Good, $75; J. Maynard, $6; J. Van Winkle, $75. Ref'd to Com. on Salaries Offices and Elections.

By the same—the claims of Leonard & Runyon, printing and advertising, $18.80; W. L. Force & Bro., do., $12.90. Ref'd to Com. on Printing and Stationery.

Mr. Stover presented the following report from City Judge P. P. Good:

City Court of Plainfield,
January 2d, 1880.

To the Honorable Members of the Common Council:

Gentlemen—I herewith transmit my annual report of the business transacted before this Court for 1879, and a recapitulation of the number of cases tried from Sept. 15th, 1874, to Dec. 31st, 1879.

Number of arrests		106
Men	84
Women	22	106

CRIMES COMMITTED.

Drunkenness	53
Disorderly Conduct	18
Assault	18
Selling Liquor without License	1
Larceny	2
Rape	1
Obtaining Money under false Pretenses	1
Bastardy	1
Vagrancy	2	106
Fines Collected		$266 95
Expenditures		137 53
Balance		$129 42
Fined	38
Sent to Jail	[illegible]
Reprimanded	[illegible]	106

Ninety-two families have applied to the Poor Fund during the past year.

Receipts from Taxes from September 15th, 1874, to January 1st, 1880, including City and Poor Taxes	$4,121 15
School Taxes	4,813 [illegible]
Total	$8,9[illegible]

All of which amounts have been paid over to the City and School Treasurers.

There have been tried before me during my City Judgeship 700 cases.

Number of Arrests		[illegible]
Men	[illegible]
Women	[illegible]	700

They are divided under the following classifications:

Disorderly Conduct	3[illegible]5

There were six marriages during the period mentioned.

I have no report to make of the tramps. The business is practically broken up since 1877, on account of refusing to give them accommodations in the Station House, and housekeepers refusing them alms at their doors has done more to abate this system than any other method that has been adopted to get them out of this nuisance.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

PETER P. GOOD, City Judge.

On motion received and placed on file.

Mr. Redfield presented the following report from overseer of the Poor:

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J.

Gentlemen—I beg leave to report the following appropriations that have been made during the year last past:

Orders for Provisions	$868 41
Orders for Coal and Wood	207 33
For Boarding	273 75
For Rent	484 50
For Clothing	5 50
For Children's Home	30 00
For Hands' Poor House	248 92
Medicine and attendance, James Vermeule, Whitfield	41 25
Total	$2,229 [illegible]

Ninety-two (92) families have been assisted, and at present nineteen families are receiving aid.

Respectfully submitted,
T. J. GILLIES, Overseer of Poor.
January 2, 1880.

On motion, received and placed on file.

On motion of Mr. Stover, (the Finance Com. not being ready to report on Mr. Maxson's bill) the Council proceeded to other business.

Mr. Stover, from Law and Ord. Com., presented the following:

The Law and Ordinance committee, to whom was referred the following bills, to wit: The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield to J. R. Coward, Dr. For services rendered as Commissioner of Appeals on State and County taxes, &c., &c. The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield to Lewis E. Clark, Dr. For services collecting State and County taxes for the year 1878, &c., &c. The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield to Joseph A. Hubbard, Dr. For services assessing State and County tax for year 1878, &c., &c. Would report that they do not find any law authorizing the Common Council to pass on said bills, and would therefore recommend that no action be taken thereon. As to the bill of Joseph A. Hubbard for services assessing City taxes for the year 1879, $156.50 and the bill of Lewis E. Clark for services collecting City taxes, 1879, $168, would recommend that said last two mentioned bills be paid.

Respectfully submitted,
R. M. STOVER,
HENRY REDFIELD.

On motion of Mr. Coriell, the report was received and recommendation of Com. adopted. All aye.

Mr. Coriell, from Police Com., reported correct the regular and special police claims presented this evening. Also, claim of G. W. Rockfellow, supplies, &c., station house. On motion claims referred to Aud. Com.

Mr. Rushmore, from Com. on Printing and Stationery, reported correct the claims of Leonard and Runyon, $18.80; W. L. Force & Bro., $12.90. On motion, claims ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Depew, as correct from Com. on Salaries, Offices and Elections the following claims: J. O. Nodyne, (2 bills), $74.50; P. P. Good, $75; J. Maynard, $6; J. Van Winkle, $75. On motion, claims ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Finch, from Com. on Sts., stated that he had no written report to make, but verbally announced that about fifteen miles of road had been repaired, and ten miles of them put in fine order.

On motion of Mr. Depew, a recess of ten minutes was then taken to allow the Aud. and Finance Com's time to make up their reports.

At the expiration of ten minutes, the Pres. called the Council to order, when the following report, relative to Mr. Maxson's claim, was presented:

Plainfield, N. J., Jan'y 2, 1880.

In the matter of the bill of Wm. B. Maxson, Esq., for services in the suit in behalf of the City for possession of property known as the City Park, your Finance Committee beg leave to report that they have conferred with Mr. Maxson on the subject and he is willing, in order to obtain a settlement of the claim for $1,000, to accept the sum of eight hundred dollars.

E. H. DEPEW,
E. L. FINCH.

Mr. Stover moved that the report be accepted. Agreed to.

Mr. Stover then moved that the bill of Mr. Maxson's at the figure named—$800, be passed.

The Pres. then stated that the roll would be called, and upon Mr. Coriell's name being announced, he arose and remarked "that he was not in favor of the claim being paid, even at $800; he cited the Park as a nuisance, and a great many of Plainfield's citizens were of the same opinion; in this same case the defendants employed two able lawyers who charged for their services only $600; he would much rather it would go to Court, and if Mr. Maxson was victorious, the matter would lie with the Council that employed him to do the work, &c."

Mr. Depew wished to be informed by the Corp. Counsel if the bill could be paid unless there was money in the Treasury to pay it.

The Corp. Counsel then stated that bills could be paid to any amount by the Common Council, provided they do not go beyond their limitation, viz: $10,000.

Mr. Stover spoke in favor of the bill.—He stated that Mr. Maxson had performed his work and secured the Park for the city's use, and that it had been twice before the Council, and that the Corp. Counsel had also given it as his opinion that the Council were the parties to decide whether they should pay the claim or not. Mr. S. that the claim ought to be paid, and he should most certainly vote in favor of paying it, &c.

After further discussion pro and con, the roll was then called upon the motion of Mr. Stover, with the following result: Ayes—Stover, Mayer, Depew—3. Nods—Coriell, Potts, Finch, Rushmore, Redfield—5.

Mr. Finch, from Aud. Com. then reported the following claims as correct:

Geo. Rockfellow, $34.46; Runyon & Leonard $18.80; W. L. Force & Bro., $12.90; P. P. Good, $75; J. Van Winkle, $75; J. O. Nodyne, 2 bills, $74.50; Robert Randolph, $1.25; Jas. Maynard, $6; G. Grant, $3; G. W. Moore, $41.67; Isaac Tingley, $41.67; G. Eaton, $41.67; C. Dodd, $41.67; M. Conway, $3.25; Geo. Angleman, $37.50; Plainfield Gas Light Co., $229.30; Spicer & Hubbard, $1.10; Plainfield Gaslight Co., $[illegible]; E. A. Vermeule, $[illegible]; G. P. Suydam, $[illegible]; M. Thorn, $[illegible]; Wm. J. Gates, $[illegible]; [illegible] Seaman, $[illegible]; J. Newton Jenkins, $[illegible]; S. R. Hope, $[illegible]; R. O. Chamberlain, $7.25; W. L. Force & Bro., $[illegible]; M. Keis, $[illegible]; J. S. Carter $77.11; Boice & Runkle, $[illegible]; S. C. Ryder, $4.75; E. Hafeny, $[illegible]; W. W. Coriell, $[illegible]; Wm. S. Smith, $[illegible]; J. R. Coward, $[illegible]; Chamberlain & Co., $[illegible]; G. M. Angleman, $[illegible].

Mr. Stover stated that in the report this evening from the Law and Ord. Com. upon the claims of Collector and Assessor for assessing and collecting city Taxes, viz: L. E. Clark, $168; J. A. Hubbard, $156.50, had been overlooked, and would move that the rules be suspended and the two claims referred to Aud. Com. So agreed to.

Mr. Finch, from Aud. Com. reported the two above claims as correct.

Mr. Stover moved that warrants be drawn for the amount of claims reported as correct from the Aud. Com., this evening, from the General Fund. Carried. All aye.

Mr. Depew moved that when Council adjourn it adjourn to meet to-morrow (Saturday) evening at 7½ o'clock. Agreed to.

Mr. Rushmore presented petition of ex-Mayor Job Male, relative to a lamp at 9th street and 1st Place. Mr. Rushmore stated that this petition was presented some time ago and was referred back to Mr. Male for correction, &c. Mr. R. also stated that as none of the Com. on F. W. & L. were present, he thought the petition could be passed, however; upon his motion, the rules were suspended, and the petition granted.

On motion, Council then adjourned.

SATURDAY EV'NG., Jan. 3d, 1880.

Council met pursuant to adjournment. Present—Coriell, Depew, Rushmore, Redfield, Stover, Potts, Mayer, Finch.—Absent—Lithgow, Simpson and Stewart.

Pres. Potts in the chair.

Minutes of last meeting read, and after slight correction, approved.

There being no communications, petitions or claims presented, and the Finance Com. having been consulted, and not ready to report, the Com., on motion, of Mr. Stover, were allowed further time to make their report, and the Council proceeded with other business.

Mr. Rushmore thought that the Counsel employed in the Park suit was entitled to some remuneration, offered a resolution that Wm. B. Maxson, Esq., be paid $500, provided, he accept same in full for his entire claim against the city relative to the Park suit.

Mr. Depew thought that the resolution was not worded quite right, &c.

Mr. Stover thought that nothing could be done in the matter, it having been settled, he thought, last evening, &c., he cited the fact that there was not enough money in the Treasury to meet the claim. He, for one, would not vote for the resolution; it looked too much like forcing money on the party, without conferring with him on the subject matter.

After some further discussion, Mr. Rushmore withdrew his resolution, to be re-placed by another later in the evening.

Mr. Depew, from Finance Com., presented report of the City Treasurer, which will be found in another column.

Mr. Stover moved that the report be accepted, and published in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST and Central New Jersey Times. Agreed to. All aye.

Mr. Depew, from Finance Com., presented his financial report, with other documents accompanying, which will be found in another column.

Mr. Stover moved that the report be received and published in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST and Central N. J. Times.

Mr. Potts asked if it could not be embodied in the regular proceedings.

Mr. Stover thought that, it should be published and paid for as was the custom heretofore; he did not think that they would care to publish such a lengthy document without some remuneration, &c.—Mr. Stover's motion was then adopted.—All aye.

Mr. Rushmore offered the following:

Resolved, That the Chairman of the Finance Com. be empowered to confer with Wm. B. Maxson, and offer him $500 for his services in conducting the Park suit, which sum we agree to pay provided, he will accept the same in full for his claim against the city. Upon the call of the roll the vote was as follows: Ayes—Depew, Mayer, Potts, Redfield, Rushmore—5. Nays—Coriell, Finch, Stover—3.

Mr. Stover offered the following resolution:

WHEREAS The official duties of this Council are about drawing to a close, and the pleasant and agreeable manner in which we have met and transacted our business for the past year is due, to a very great extent, to our presiding officer; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we tender our sincere and hearty thanks to our worthy President for the able, efficient and impartial manner in which he has presided over our deliberations, and we also tender him our best wishes for the future, and hope that he may never have it to regret that he was called upon to act as the presiding officer of the Council.

Adopted. All aye.

By the same—the following;

Resolved, That we tender our sincere thanks to the Editors and Reporters of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST and the Central New Jersey Times for the correct, impartial and gentlemanly manner in which they have reported the proceedings of this Council during the past year.

Adopted. All aye.

Pres. Potts at this juncture arose and in a few neat remarks thanked the Council for the gentlemanly attention that had been shown him by them during the past year.

Mr. Stover moved that Council now adjourn. Agreed to.

The Pres. then declared the Council adjourned sine die.

MEETING OF COUNCIL OF 1880.

MONDAY EV'G, Jan. 5, 1880.

The new Council convened at 8 o'clock. The members were called to order by Clerk J. O. Nodyne. Upon the call of the roll the following Councilmen responded to their names:

Wm. McD. Coriell, Wm. R. Potts, Henry Redfield, Isaac W. Rushmore, Edward L. Finch, Wm. S. Darling, Abram B. Dunlap, Jno. M. Whiton, Chas. E. Ryder, Wm. Flanders. Absent—Washington Lithgow.

The Clerk stated that the first business in order would be the election of a Pres.

Mr. Whiton nominated Wm. R. Potts. No further nominations appearing, Mr. Potts was unanimously chosen Pres. for the ensuing year.

Mr. Potts, in taking the chair, thanked the members for the honor conferred upon him, and hoped the Republican Council of 1880 would merit the confidence of the citizens of Plainfield.

The next thing in order being the election of a City Clerk, Mr. Whiton moved that we now proceed to that business.

Mr. Coriell moved that the matter be deferred, which was seconded by Mr. Rushmore, and carried, a few of the Council voting in the negative.

Mr. Rushmore moved that we now proceed to elect a Janitor. Carried. Mr. Rushmore nominated Henry Hamilton, (colored) and upon a ballot being taken was declared elected, he having received 9 votes for and 1 against.

The Pres. stated that the election of a Police Board was the next thing in order.

Mr. Ryder wished to know what the duties of a Police Board were.

The Pres. requested the Clerk to read the Ord. relative to a Police Board, &c.

After the reading of the Ord. by the Clerk, Mr. Finch moved that we now proceed to the election of a Police Board. Carried.

Nominations being in order, Mr. Ryder nominated J. M. Whiton; Mr. Darling nominated E. L. Finch; Mr. Rushmore nominated W. S. Darling; Mr. Darling nominated I. W. Rushmore; Mr. Whiton nominated Mr. Redfield. No further nominations appearing, a ballot was had, with the following result: Rushmore, 7; Darling, 6; Finch, 6; Redfield, 5; Whiton, 5; Dunlap, 1. The Pres. then announced the Police Board for 1880 to be Messrs. Rushmore, Darling and Finch.

A motion was made by Mr. Whiton that a committee of three be appointed, with the Pres. included, to revise Rules of Order to govern this Council the ensuing year, and until such revision, that the Rules of 1879 be used, excepting Rules 31 and 33, striking out Com. on Assessments and Sewers and Com. on Railroads in Rule 31; the former Com. to go to the Finance Com., and the latter to the Street Com.; Rule 33, to change the hour of meeting of Council to 8 o'clock all the year round. Mr. Whiton thought that 7½ o'clock was too early for Council to meet, &c.

Mr. Coriell thought the hour of meeting at 8 o'clock would not be convenient for him in the Winter, and would much rather prefer to meet at 7½ o'clock.

Mr. Flanders was of the same opinion.

After some further discussion, Mr. Coriell moved that the rules of Council of 1879 be adopted as a whole, with the exception of Rule 31, until the Com. to revise Rules reported. Agreed to.

The Pres. appointed as the Committee, Messrs. Whiton and Darling.

On motion of Mr. Whiton, the use of Council Chamber was granted to His Honor, Mayor Harper, for the ensuing year, for the transaction of business pertaining to his office.

Pres. Potts then presented the following from His Honor, Mayor Harper:

TO THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Gentlemen:—It being an official privilege of the Mayor to communicate with the Common Council relative to municipal affairs, I avail of your opening session to present a review thereof, and, at the same time, to respectfully tender co-operation in your endeavors to advance the best interests of the people.

The financial condition of the city is as satisfactory as could be expected in view of the tardy payment of taxes. The thorough and intelligent report made by the Finance Com. of the last Council gives every needed information, and to that I specially refer, deeming quotations from it superfluous.

As a possible matter of interest, I submit herewith a statement, prepared from original vouchers, showing the detailed expenditure of money covered by warrants on the City Treasurer, as passed by the Common Council and signed by the Mayor, from Jan. 6th, 1879, to Jan. 2nd, 1880, inclusive, being 367 in number.

The outstanding liabilities of the city, with the exception of a few small amounts, are embraced in a $3,500 loan from the First National Bank, due Jan. 20th, and a bill of Wm. B. Maxson, Esq., for $1,000, professional services rendered and expenses incurred in acquiring public title to the Park.

There are some alleged claims now in course of litigation, which a report of the Corporation Counsel, recently presented to your predecessors, fully detailed, but the anticipated amount the city will eventually be called upon to pay is not large.

I unite through you, as I did through the last Council, express congratulation that the City of Plainfield is free from bonded indebtedness. It is a boon of incalculable value, and I trust nothing will be permitted to jeopardize it.

City and Poor taxes for the past five years, including those for 1879, remaining unpaid December 31st, aggregated over ten thousand dollars.

On the 13th of September last George W. Moore was appointed a regular policeman and at once assigned to the important duty of collecting delinquent taxes. In that capacity he has rendered essential aid to the City Treasury, and I would recommend that his services be continued.

The records of the City Court show 106 arrests during the year 1879, against 126 the preceding year, and for the following enumerated offenses:

Drunkenness, 53; Disorderly conduct, 18; Assaults, 18; Selling liquor without license, 1; Larceny, 2; Obtaining money under false pretences, 1; Rape 1; Bastardy, 1; Vagrancy 2.

By which it will be perceived that here, as in all other cities, the use of intoxicating liquor is the fruitful source of crime.

Efforts have been made, with considerable success, to clear the city of tramps. The State law has been proclaimed, and the Station House kept closed against their accommodation as lodgers. The following figures speak for themselves:

1877.	No. tramps in Station House,	5,784
1878.	" " " "	228
1879.	" " " "	None

The Overseer of the Poor, as almoner of funds raised for the relief of the needy, granted assistance to ninety-six families the past year.

During the Summer months various complaints of nuisances, mostly incidental to the season, were preferred, and under the judicious care and direction of the City Physician, promptly abated.

There has been much and commendable work done upon the streets within the past year. The improvements are practical and greatly to the public advantage. The hope is entertained that the present year will witness further progress of the kind, and that the money at command for the purpose will be distributed equitably over the extended line of thoroughfares.

The preservation of public health is vitally important, nothing more so, and in that connection, I deem it proper to invite attention to a communication of the Board of Health relative to what is known as the gravel pits, laid before Council on the 3d of November, and to solicit therefor your early consideration.

Justice demands that I should publicly acknowledge the faithful and willing discharge of duty on the part of the different municipal officers. I refer with pleasure to my intercourse with all of them.

In conclusion, gentlemen, accept the assurance of my earnest desire to join with you in securing for our city the benefits of a prudent and economical government, and the blessings of order, morality and sobriety.

NATHAN HARPER, Mayor.
Plainfield, Jan. 5th, 1880.

STATEMENT

Showing the detailed expenditure of money covered by warrants on the City Treasurer, as passed by the Common Council and signed by the Mayor, from January 6th, 1879, to January 2nd, 1880, inclusive.

On motion, Council adjourned.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

Birthday Party.

The twinkling stars and beautiful round moon last evening shone down upon a gay party of gallant young lads and bright eyed lasses who, with merry shouts and laughter, wended their way through Washington ave., and with a joyous shout of "Happy New Year," burst into the pleasant home of Miss Annie Finley, one of the prettiest of the Eighth ward's fair damsels, to whom the day had been unusually joyful, as it was also her birthday anniversary. The visit from her friends was a delightful surprise to Annie, as her glee and sincere welcome expressed.—With such an evident assurance of welcome the gay party were not slow in making the occasion one of much pleasure, and dancing and other pastimes were indulged in until a late hour, pleasantly interrupted once by a palatable collation.—Two bewitching ladies of great vivacity, Misses MacQueen and Kelley, from Plainfield, did much to make the occasion joyful.—*Eliz. WEAK AND SICKLY PERSONS.

Many persons who are weak and sickly at this season of the year are at a loss to know what will restore their health. It may be stated that by experience that the use of Speer's Port Grape Wine is one of the best restoratives known. Physicians, clergymen and temperance advocates should encourage the use of Port Grape and thus aid the cause of temperance and moderation. It is especially recommended to families for its purity, exquisite flavor and healthy properties. Medical men speak of its valuable medicinal powers. Mr. Speer has been for years engaged in the growing of grapes and perfecting this wine, and it requires a four years process before it is fit for market.—N. Y. Baptist.

MESSRS. ELY BROS., OWEGO, N. Y.

GENTS:—I take this opportunity for complimenting you upon your very valuable and much needed preparation "Ely's Cream Balm" for the cure of Hay Fever and Catarrh. The form of this medicine and the method of its reaching the diseased membrane (viz: by absorption) renders it far superior to any other remedy of the kind in the market. I have sold several dozen and have yet to hear the first complaint of its failure to do all that you claim for it. I unhesitatingly recommend it to the trade as a very valuable article and to those who are suffering with the above mentioned complaints as the great desideratum that will cure them. Most Respectfully Yours,

R. J. SHAW.

Nothing Short of Unmistakable Benefits conferred upon tens of thousands of sufferers could originate and maintain the reputation which AYER'S SARSAPARILLA enjoys. It is a compound of the best vegetable alteratives, with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and is the most effectual of all remedies for scrofulous, mercurial, or blood disorders. Uniformly successful and certain in its remedial effects, it produces rapid and complete cures of Scrofula, Sores, Boils, Humors, Pimples, Eruptions, Skin Diseases and all disorders arising from impurity of the blood. By its invigorating effects it always relieves and often cures Liver Complaints, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, and is a potent renewer of vitality. For purifying the blood it has no equal. It tones up the system, restores and preserves the health, and imparts vigor and energy. For forty years it has been in extensive use, and is to-day the most available medicine for the suffering sick, anywhere. For sale by all Dealers.

U.S. Pension Agency
PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Under a recent act of Congress, pensions will commence from the date of the discharge or death of a soldier; but only a few short months are allowed claimants in which to file their claims. Under this law a pensioner will now receive as a first payment the lump sum of $1,000 or more, and $8 per month thereafter. A pensioner on account of the death or disability of an officer will receive much larger amounts.

Pensions allowed all officers and soldiers who were in the Army or Navy of the late war, for wounds, disease, rupture, blindness, deafness or other injury; also to their widows and children; also to mothers and fathers, also to all 1812 soldiers and their widows. There are hundreds in this section who are justly entitled and don't know it. If you are in doubt call on me at my office and I will cheerfully give you the necessary information without charge, and in any event I make no charge until the pension is allowed and you receive the money thereon, then only ten dollars as fixed by law.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

DR. BUDD'S ISABELLA.

Mr. Budd picked up the paper and began running his eyes over it, while his wife sat on the other side of the table sewing. Without knowing it, Mr. Budd got to reading the column headed "Grapevine Culture," and presently he exclaimed:

"Why, hello! What's this?"

"What's what?" asked Mrs. Budd.

"Why just listen to this. This paper says that—wait till I read it to you: We regret to learn that our friend Mr. Simpson has had a good deal of trouble with his very fine Isabella."

"Queer, isn't it?"

"What kind of trouble?" asked Mrs. Budd.

"Why," said Budd, "the paper states further: 'Being in a very unhealthy condition, and seeming to lack vitality, Mr. Simpson made a very careful examination and discovered that his Isabella was literally covered with small bugs.'"

"Did you ever hear of such a thing?"

"Bugs! Covered with bugs! Why, what on earth could have been the matter with the woman? I always thought Mrs. Simpson was a scrupulously nice person."

"So did I. But that's what the paper says. Hold on; suppose I see what else there is about it."

Mr. Simpson was somewhat perplexed to know what to do about the matter, but he finally applied a wash of carbolic acid, with good results, and he is now looking every day for his Isabella to leave.

"I don't exactly understand that."

"Leave for where?" asked Mrs. Budd.

"It don't say. Going away for her health, I suppose," replied Mr. Budd. "But there is some more still."

"Mr. Simpson tied the Isabella—"

"Why tied the Isabella?" asked Mrs. Budd.

"Tied the Isabella up to a post, and—"

"Tied her to a post!" exclaimed Mrs. Budd. "Why, I thought you said he wanted her to leave."

"That's what the paper says. It's very queer, isn't it?"

"Tied her to a post and cut off two of the largest limbs—"

"Hello! How's that? Cut off two of her limbs. Incredible. Simpson must be going mad."

"It's the most horrible thing I ever heard of," said Mrs. Budd. "They will certainly arrest him, won't they?"

"I should think so, of course. It's a wonder it didn't kill her. But the story is not done yet."

"He performed the operation a little too late, for his Isabella began to bleed and he feared that he had done a permanent injury."

"I should think so—both legs and arms off. Permanent injury. I can't imagine how it could be anything else than permanent."

"It's dreadful," said Mrs. Budd.

"And here's more: Mr. Simpson thought wood ashes might be good, so he put them all around her and all the soap suds she could take. Upon the whole this treatment may be regarded as judicious."

"That's the editor's opinion. He must be insane too. They'll kill that woman, certain, if they feed her on wood ashes and soap suds."

"If I were you I'd write to the Mayor about it," said Mrs. Budd.

"I think I will. But let's finish the article."

Mr. Simpson declares that if he has much more bother about the matter he will chop the Isabella up and—"

"Chop her up. Did you ever hear of such cold blooded discussion of a possible murder? It is a disgrace to the newspaper."

"There must be certainly something wrong about it," said Mrs. Budd.

"No, the paper says: He will chop his Isabella up and burn it."

"What does it mean? Chop her up and burn it. Danged if I understand such nonsense."

"Is that all?" asked Mrs. Budd.

"Pretty nearly."

"Well, read the rest."

"Why it says, let me see. Oh, yes, it says: Take it all in all Mr. Simpson is convinced that the Isabella is not the best—best—not the best."

"Why, pshaw, Hannah, we've been making a mistake."

"Not the best grapevine to cultivate in this region."

"It was only Simpson's grapevine after all!"

"But, Budd, you're a fool or you would have known that in the first place."

"Maybe I am. Maybe I am," said Budd, wearily, "but I'm not as big a fool as the man who gave such an idiotic name to the grapevine."

And then there was a long flash of silence in the Budd family circle.

"Talk about your narrer 'scapes," said Cardine. "I must tell you 'bout the one I had. Ten years ago last winter I went out into the woods where bear and panthers was thicker than gum chewers in a female school. I soon got my eyes onto a big noble-lookin' bear. My gun had been loaded with a bigger charge of powder than usual. I just pulled a bead onto that bear and crack went the rifle and over went the bear, while my gun just give one powerful kick which laid me out flat on the ground. But the best of the thing was this: I didn't see a big panther which was on a bluff behind me, and as I shot, the cuss jumped for me, only to meet the butt of my gun which was going his way, and the ugly varmint fell dead with his skull crushed in by the gun stock."—Whitehall Times.

LEGAL NOTICES

SHERIFF'S SALE.—In Chancery of New Jersey.—Between John H. Leveridge, complainant, and Silas D. Pierson, et al., defendants. Fi. fa., for sale of mortgaged premises.

By virtue of the above stated writ of fieri facias to me directed, I shall expose for sale by public vendue at the Court House, in the city of Elizabeth, N. J., on at two o'clock p. m., in the first place, that portion of said premises comprised in the mortgage in complainant's bill, first mentioned, and described as follows:

The first tract of said land and premises, situate in township of Westfield, in the (late county of Essex) now Union, and State of New Jersey, known as the homestead farm of Sylvanus Pierson, deceased: Beginning at a stake on the northwest side of the main road leading out of the village of Westfield to Elizabethtown, being also the east corner of now or late Eli Marsh's land; thence (1) binding on said now or late Marsh's land, north thirty-four degrees and fifty minutes west eleven chains and thirty-two links to a post at an angle of said now or late Marsh's land; thence (2) still on said now or late Marsh's land north fifteen degrees and thirty-three minutes east three chains and seventy-seven links to a stake on the west side of a gum tree, three links from the centre thereof; thence (3) still binding on said now or late Marsh's land north forty-three degrees east eight chains and forty-six links to a stake on the southwest side of a road leading from the first mentioned road toward the mountain; thence (4) binding on the southwest side of the last mentioned road south forty-five degrees and forty-five minutes east thirteen chains and sixty-eight links to the intersection of the last with the first mentioned road; thence (5) binding on the northwest side of the first-mentioned road south forty-six degrees and thirty minutes west thirteen chains and ninety links to the place of beginning; containing sixteen acres and fifty-five one-hundredths of an acre be the same more or less.

The second tract of said land and premises situate in the said township of Westfield, county and State aforesaid; on the northerly side of the said Elizabethtown road, and is the same tract of land that David Ross, jr. conveyed to William Pierson by a deed bearing date the twenty-sixth day of March, A. D., 1794: Beginning at a stone on the northerly side of said road, being a corner of a lot of land that John D. Pierson purchased of the executors of Jacob Baker, deceased; thence (1) binding on said road north eighty-eight degrees and thirty minutes west thirteen chains and twenty-five links to a stone in another corner of said Jacob D. Pierson's land; thence (2) binding on said land north forty-five degrees east twelve chains and eighty-six links to another corner of said Pierson's land; thence (3) still binding on said Pierson's land, south forty-nine degrees and fifteen minutes east four chains and eleven links to a stake or stones; thence (4) binding on the said Baker lot and running a direct course to the place of beginning; containing (according to said deed) six acres and nine-tenths of an acre of land be the same more or less.

The third tract or lot of said lands and premises, is situate on the top of the first mountain in the said township of Westfield, county and State aforesaid, and was conveyed to Sylvanus Pierson by Jonathan Hadgley and Lydia, his wife, and Stephen Clark and Elizabeth, his wife, by two separate deeds of conveyance bearing date respectively the first day of March, A. D., 1809, and the fourteenth day of August, A. D., 1828, and is herein described in one lot: Beginning at a stake and stones in the line of land formerly of Harris Ross, deceased, near the highway; thence (1) according to the first mentioned deed along the highway nearly west seven chains and seventy-six links to a pile of stones; thence (2) according to the last named deed along the line now or late of the heirs of John Potter, deceased, in a direct course two chains and fifty-seven links to a stake on the north side of the road in the Potter line, and a corner of land formerly of Ichabod Clark, deceased; thence (3) on the said Clark line south forty-six degrees east seven chains and fifty-nine links to a stake in the line of land formerly of James Meeker, deceased; thence (4) binding on the said Meeker line north fifty-two degrees east two chains and fifty-nine links to a stake in a corner of another lot of said Ichabod Clark; thence (5) on the line of that lot north forty-six degrees west five chains and eighty-one links to a pile of stones in a corner of said Ichabod Clark's lot; thence (6) according to the first mentioned deed east of the said Ichabod Clark about east seven chains and sixty-five links to a stake and pile of stones; thence (7) along the said Ross line north forty-six degrees west five chains eighty-five links to the place of beginning; containing seven acres of land, be the same more or less.

And also all the estate, right, title and interest of the said Silas D. Pierson, of, in and to the following described three several tracts or parcels of land and premises, in the township of Westfield, county and State aforesaid.

The first tract—Beginning at a stake standing in the line of the southwest end of now or late Jonas Williams' lot, and the northernmost corner of Ephraim Williams; from thence with Jonas Williams' line and binding thereon north forty-one degrees west eleven chains and ten links to a stake in Moses DeCamp's line; thence with it, and binding thereon south forty degrees forty-eight minutes west two chains ninety-four links to John Tucker's corner; thence with his line and binding on it south forty-nine degrees east five chains ninety-two links to another of said Tucker's corners and binding on said Tucker; thence again with said Tucker's line and binding on it south forty degrees forty-eight minutes west five chains ninety-two links to another of said Tucker's corners; thence south forty-nine degrees east three chains sixty-nine links to E. Williams' line binding on the residence of the said E. Williams' line; and binding thereon running north fifty degrees east eight chains ninety-three links to the place of beginning; containing six acres more or less.

The second tract—Beginning at an old oak stump which is the corner of now or late Samuel Ricards' and James Reid's land; and running south forty-one and one-half degrees east thirty-five links to a stake; thence south one chain seventy links to a stone; thence south eighty-two and one-half degrees west two chains and forty-seven links to a stone in Brooks Reid's line; thence north forty-three and one-half degrees east to the place of beginning.

The third tract—Beginning on the main road from Elizabethtown to Plainfield, between Sylvanus Pierson's residence and Eli Mundy's manufacturing establishment; size of the lot fifty feet front and rear by one hundred and fifty feet deep, it being the house and lot William Hayes occupied a number of years.

And in the second place, that portion of the premises comprised in the mortgage in complainant's bill secondly mentioned and described as follows:

All that lot of land and premises being the undivided half part of a lot of salt meadow, situate at Tremley's Point in the township of Rahway, and State of New Jersey; devised by William Pierson to his sons Sylvanus Pierson and John D. Pierson, in and by his last will and testament. Beginning at a stake in the forks of a creek, sometimes called Frazer's creek; thence (1) up a branch of said creek north fifty-four degrees west eleven chains to a stake near the head of said branch; thence (2) north thirty-two degrees east two chains and ninety-eight links to a stake in the line of meadow formerly of Ichabod Ross, deceased, now or late meadow of Isaac French; thence (3) binding on said now or late French's meadow and the aforesaid creek south fifty-four degrees east ten chains to a bend in said creek; thence (4) along down said creek in a southerly direction as it runs to the place of beginning; containing in the whole three acres of salt meadow be the same more or less.

POETRY.

PAST DELIGHTS.

Where are the dreams of the days gone by,
The hopes of honor, the glancing play
Of fire, the fancies that filled our sky,
The songs we sang in the middle May,
Carol and ballad and roundelay?
Where are the garlands our young hands twined?
Life's but a memory, well-a-way!
All else flits by on the wings of the wind.

Where are ladies fair and high—
Mary and Hannah and Maud and May,
And merry Kate with the laughing eye—
And all the gallants of yesterday
That found us merry and held us gay?
Under the mound we must look to find
Some; and the others are worn and gray.
All else flits past on the wings of the wind.

I know of nothing that lasts, but I.
Save a heart that is true to its love alway—
A love that is won with a tear and a sigh
And never changes or fades away,
In a breast that is silenter still than gay;
A tender soul and a constant mind—
These are the only things that stay,
All else flits past on the wings of the wind.

Friend, I counsel you, never sigh
For the hopes that the years have left behind.
Mind you have love when you come to die;
All else flits past on the wings of the wind.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

TOO LATE.

"What do you want?"

"I wished to see my husband that I might wish him a merry Christmas, but I beg pardon, for I perceive he is not here."

The question was curt, rude, rough even; the reply was impetuous, cuttingly sarcastic, and with a dash of anger in its tones. You would never have thought that Maxwell Millard, gentleman, as he called himself, and the world called him, could have spoken so to his sweet, young wife, as any coarse, fiery man might, in an imperious mood, to an intrusive servant or an annoying beggar. Nor would you have thought, either, that lovely Alice Maillard could have become so flushed and disturbed or made such a reply, to the husband she loved better than life itself, and then have turned and walked away with such a queenly step from his presence.

It certainly was an unpleasant and unfortunate mood the merchant was in that evening. The close of the year was near at hand, and all day long he had been perplexed by a thousand cares incident to his large business; besides, he had discovered a gross error in the books, the result of an incompetent book-keeper's blunder, and had taken them home with him that evening to endeavor to trace its source and rectify it.

It was while in this mood, his brows knitted with perplexity, that his girl-wife came to him in the quiet little library whither he had retired after dinner, and stealing softly up behind him, had playfully blinded his eyes with one of her white hands, at the same time pushing away the thick ledger over the green baize covered table.

In an instant, the quick, rough question that betokened annoyance burst from his lips, and in an instant more the white hand was snatched away, the little, graceful head tossed high, a red spot appeared on both cheeks, and the cutting, sarcastic answer was given. And in a few moments more the merchant was left alone, his handsomely-shaped head, covered with thick, iron-gray locks, were bent again over his books, with a compression of his lips and a glitter in his eye one seldom saw there, while the girl-wife was sitting in the parlor quiet as a statue, but with that same high color and excited mien with which she had left the library.

For some minutes Alice Maillard sat thus, perfectly motionless, looking straight before her; then her countenance softened—a grieved, wounded look came into her eyes; her lips relaxed and quivered with feeling, and she burst into tears and sobbed as though her very heart would break.

The sobs increased, and the tears rolled down the cheeks now pale with emotion; but after a time she grew calmer.

"I am sorry I spoke so," she said, confessing her fault to herself with as much earnestness as though her husband were a listener. "I am sorry. If Max was rough" (here the lips trembled again), "I was hasty. I suppose those tiresome books troubled him; I will go and apologise."

And, rising, she left the room and walked along the hall to the rear of the house where the little library was situated. But laying her hand on the knob of the door, she was surprised to find it fastened. The lock was turned.

"Unkind," she said now, the red spot deepening again on her cheek; and as noiselessly as she had come she returned to the parlor.

Two, three hours passed away; lonesome enough felt the solitary Alice, striving to pass the time with her sewing, upon which, now and then, a tear dropped silently.

All that time, however, her thoughts were busy; and she clung to her first resolve not to sleep until she had made peace with her husband. For it was a new thing to this lovely young creature—the pet of her girlhood home, and the bride of less than a year—to hear a harsh word or utter an unkind one; and all that long evening, while she sat there in tears, seemed an age to her. Ah, little Alice, can such exquisitely keen suffering ever come again!

Nine, ten, eleven o'clock struck, and then she heard the library door open and her husband's footsteps along the hall. But they did not pause at the parlor, though the door was partially ajar; they passed on, and he ascended the staircase to their chamber.

This was too much. Tears again swelled in the large, sensitive eyes; and womanly indignation prompted her to remain below until she was calm; and when she went up to her room her husband was, or pretended to be, fast locked in sleep.

Next morning at breakfast the young wife was prepared to expect the way might be easier for the establishment of peace between them, but there was a reserve and iciness in Mr. Maillard's manner which quite frustrated this intention. He hurried through the meal, went to the library for his books, looked into the breakfast-room again for a courteous "good-morning," but did not unbend to bestow the customary parting kiss.

Alice felt more than ever grieved, thus thrown back upon herself. All day long she was most unhappy, and could not settle herself about her usual employments.

The feelings she suffered were so new to her; it was something she had never thought would happen—to speak a quick, angry word to one who was all the world to her; and, though she had been betrayed into the utterance, she never could be happy again till it had been explained and forgiven.

She would speak to her husband before sleep again sealed her eyelids; although very sound, indeed, had not been the slumber that visited her last night.

When evening arrived, and Mr. Maillard came to dinner, Alice met him as usual with an affectionate greeting, and put up her lips for the customary kiss; but very icy was the salution, and such a tone of restraint pervaded his manner that she found herself deterred from uttering a word.

At the table, Mr. Maillard was politely attentive, and led the conversation to subjects of general interest, keeping it up so skillfully that not an opening appeared for the introduction of any reference to the particular subject that engrossed his wife's mind, and when he arose he said:

"I have an engagement at the club to-night, Mrs. Maillard, and it will probably be late when I return," and went out.

"Why did I not speak? I won't let it pass so! He is as cold as an iceberg; I will have an explanation before I sleep to-night," said Alice, passionately. "He shan't treat me like a child any longer."

It was late when Mr. Maillard returned and he did not expect to find the watcher who sat in the parlor, and a little surprise was in his glance when he entered, but he made no comment.

"It is past twelve, I know, Maxwell, but I sat up for you. The truth is I wanted to speak to you about—about—" but here she paused.

"Well?"

There was but little encouragement in the cool monosyllable that Mr. Maillard uttered, and the eyes upon which his wife's were turned appealingly evinced no glance of tenderness to lure her on in the path which was now growing painful to her, although he very well knew what was going on in her mind. Was this man a hardened boor?

Society, as I said called, him a gentleman. He had many excellent traits, and he had not really felt comfortable himself since that affair in the library; but he had a strong, passionate nature and an iron will that had never been subdued, and like many of his proud and imperious type he would neither bend to acknowledgements himself nor seem to encourage by any tenderness of manner his wife's. So he sat, stately and rigid, in the seat he had taken by the register.

Meantime Alice, affectionate and sensitive, with her whole heart in her eyes, and those eyes, eagerly beseeching his, stood near him, where she had advanced as she spoke. At first it had been easy for her to utter those words, but that one unimpassioned monosyllable checked further utterance and froze her lips; but at length she burst out passionately:

"I will speak! Maxwell, you know what I want to say? I am very unhappy!" and the hot tears thickened her voice.

"What makes you unhappy, Mrs. Maillard?"

"I am very unhappy because I have suffered—am still suffering; and I want a reconciliation. You know, Maxwell, those words spoken in the library the other night. I was sorry the very minute afterward."

"And I was sorry also, Mrs. Maillard. Any exhibition of impetuousness—temper, I might say—disgusts me. I think any wife ought to know that, and avoid such things. But I forgive you."

Chilled, amazed, humiliated and half-stunned by the turn the matter had taken the poor girl-wife went to her chamber.

Days and weeks and months followed the first rupture between Maxwell Maillard and his wife; and though to all outward appearances they were attentive to each other, and, in society, as happy as ever, yet Alice felt that the gulf between them had never been bridged.

The truth was, his imperious will pampered by the first entire submission on the part of his wife, had grown with what it had fed upon until it overshadowed his whole nature. Had Alice been less submissive—even had she, in acknowledging her error, thrown a portion of it upon her husband's head, he would not have treated her as he did. "Her spirit is not broken yet," Mr. Maillard said to himself; and so he kept up his system of wifely training.

It was at this time that a summons came from Alice's girlhood home. Her mother was dying and Alice hastened to her side.

When the merchant, evening after evening, returned to his handsome house, deserted, save by the servants, he began to grow more dissatisfied with its cheerless aspect than he thought could be possible, or would have acknowledged to another. Entering the drawing-room, so dreary and empty-looking, one evening after he had visited the club, he paused before an exquisitely crayoned portrait on the wall, and said, with more feeling than he had shown for many a month, "Home is lonely without you, Alice!" Ah, if he had only bethought himself to write such a sentence to her!

The days went by; and, in her girlhood home, Alice saw her mother die. On the day following the funeral Mr. Maillard bore his wife back to her home again. At the parting Alice wept unrestrainedly upon the bosom of her twin-brother, then turned to receive her sister's farewell kiss.

After their return home Mr. Maillard's mien softened toward his wife. He could not see her going about in her mourning robes, with her pale, sad face, and quiet ways, without relaxing from his late manner. But still his pride so long dominant, mastered him sufficiently to withhold him from the manifestation of his returning tenderness, except by constant watchfulness and by surrounding her with such luxuries as wealth could procure. Books, the latest music, flowers, every dainty of the season, there came to her. Ah, if he had only known that a tender word to a longing heart is better than any gift gold can buy!

Alice accepted all with sweetness that never failed her now. Indeed, Mr. Maillard marveled to see how submissive she had become. There were no rebellings now; no breaking out of the old high spirit; no passionate outbursts—and, alas! no passionate yearning for tenderness. Her lips were never lifted now for a kiss; her eyes never sought his with wishful eagerness for the fond answering glance; her tender hand no longer slid caressingly into his. That time, with her, was passed.

One Christmas evening, sitting in that same library where she had stolen upon him once, Mr. Maillard began thinking of this.

"How different Alice is from what she was last Christmas. My course was most judicious. Her disposition has improved. But she has grown so pale lately. I think the sea air would have helped her, if she had thought best to have gone from home at this time."

From that soliloquy Mr. Maillard was aroused by a call from the housekeeper, who sat with his wife in an airy, spacious upper room of the large, elegant mansion. An hour later, a baby boy's frail life fluttered into existence, but for one brief moment only, then went out again; and the young mother lay dying on her pillow.

No kind, motherly, sustaining elderly sister was there to close those deep violet eyes with a tearful kiss, and the twin-brother, who loved her with such passionate, enduring tenderness, only came to look upon her white face in her coffin.

Maxwell Maillard stood, mute and bewildered, when they told him his wife's life moments were rapidly passing into eternity. There was no time then for confessions, pleadings or regrets—no time to tell her aught save the few broken sobs that poured in a thick, turbid torrent from his heavily throbbing heart.

Only time to receive the faint pressure of the little outstretched hand, the last meek, loving smile, and hear the two latest words that came from the pale, lovely lips, as her dying gaze was lifted heavenward.

"Mother! Heaven!"

They buried her in the cemetery of her village home, beside her mother; buried her with her dead baby on her breast.

And Maxwell Maillard—the strong, proud man, whose imperious will had never yielded before—was smitten by the fiat of the Almighty. He was left alone with remorse and regret. No need now to open his empty heart; she could never enter more. He must sit down in the ashes of its desolation. No need now to relax his iron rule.

It was too late.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

The path of moderation is the safest to tread.

It is poor foolishness to run down your enemies.

The mother's heart is the child's school-room.

Make yourself necessary and your success is certain.

Hide the faults of others, and make known their virtues.

Reason is the test of ridicule—not ridicule the test of truth.

When reason is against man, a man will be against reason.

Our actions are our own; the consequences belong to heaven.

The festival which bears the greatest fruit is the festival of duty.

Our acts make or mar us; we are the children of our own deeds.

Every undertaking is involved in its faults, as the fire in its smoke.

Oft expectation fails, and most oft there where most it promises.

Age that lessens the enjoyment of life increases our desire of living.

Dost thou love life? Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of.

Commend a fool for his wit or a knave for his honesty, and they will receive you into their bosom.

No triumph is so great as that of the soul over the body. It is inspired by the highest motive.

When gratitude has become a matter of reasoning, there are many ways of escaping from its bonds.

Many a sweetly formed mouth has been disfigured and made hideous by the fiery tongue within it.

A clear conscience can rest easy on a bed of swan's down.

Uphold truth when thou canst, and for her sake be hated; but know thy individual cause is not the cause of truth, and beware that they are not confounded.

He who travels with his eyes open cannot fail to see that others, as well as himself, have their discomforts and drawbacks, and he will thus be all the more disposed to meet his own with a brave spirit.

The happiness of your life depends upon the quality of your thoughts; therefore, guard accordingly, and take care that you entertain no notions unsuitable to virtue and unreasonable to nature.

It is not much thought of, but it is certainly a very important lesson, to learn how to enjoy ordinary life, and be able to relish your being, without the transport of some passion, or the gratification of some appetite.

It is easy to advise a person, but how difficult to receive, under similar circumstances, that same advice from another, because we are so prone to believe that what we accept is truth, and that those who cannot see with our eyes are all wrong.

THE BOY WITH THE BANDBOX.

A day or two ago as the country people who had brought in produce to sell on the market were about ready to start for home, a boy appeared with a blue bandbox under his arm. Among the vehicles was a one-horse wagon belonging to an old woman who had just sold four bags of onions, and was ready to drive home. The boy approached her in an honest, straightforward manner, and remarked:

"Well, aunty, here is that bonnet, at last."

"A bonnet?" she inquired.

"Why, yes; the one you ordered at the store a week ago. You'll look so purty in it that the old man won't know you. It's all paid for all right, and now I'll set it down right here at your feet."

That old woman knew the boy was making a mistake in leaving the bonnet with her, but after the first words of surprise she made no sign. She reasoned that it wasn't her business to correct mistakes, and as soon as the boy had retired, she picked up the lines and drove up the street, every moment expecting to hear the mistaken boy after her, and every moment hurrying the old nag as fast as he could go. After driving a short distance, she felt that the boy could not overtake her, and it was only natural that she should have a lively curiosity to see what sort of a bonnet it was. If plain black it would suit her to a dot; if gorgeous, it would do for her daughter. The horse was reined up to the curb and the driver carefully untied the string fastening the box and lifted the cover. A "yaller" cat of monstrous size, feeling that he could be abused and insulted, and his eyes glaring with hate and contempt, came out of the box like a bullet.

People who happened to be in the neighborhood were treated to a curious spectacle. With one wild, unearthly yell, an old woman was seen to pitch backward over the seat and then sail to the ground by the shortest route. While she was clawing around with her head in a snow-bank, the cat, seeing her out of the way, made a spring from the seat to the horse's back and began a series of performances never known or dreamed of by that old equine, and the way that horse gathered his legs under him and scattered the old wagon for half a block was wicked to see. The woman, dug out of the snow by a considerate bystander, stood on the walk and endeavored to explain. A man in the crowd picked up a wagon wheel and endeavored to remark that the whole outfit wasn't worth scraping together, and some one in the crowd solemnly observed:

"If honesty ain't the best policy, then I don't want a cent."

WEATHER PROPHECIES.

As 1879 is played out, and we thought the readers of the Derrick might wish to make calculations the the present year, we have concluded to delay no longer the publication of our weather prophecies for 1880. Here they are; paste 'em in your shoes.

January—Will be rather warm, but not very warm; somewhat moist, but not very moist; just moist enough. There will be some cold weather, and some not so cold as it might be; just cold enough.

February—The weather will be like that of January, only more so, with slight variations.

March—Can't say weather we'll have any weather this month or not. The game is blocked and the machine won't indicate, but it is safe to say it will rain, and it never rains but it pours.

April—People will be greatly fooled on the weather of this month. We know what it will be, but don't propose to spoil the fun by giving it away.

May—We may have some rain this month, but it will not rain all the time. The sun will shine.

June—By the time we have got along to this month we will all begin to see the effects of the famine. Oh, but it will be hot, some of the time; but it is well enough for some folks to become acclimated.

July—Some dust, rain, clouds and wind, but more sunshine. It will be quite hot.

August—Considerable fair and warm weather, but not more than we can use.

September—Some rain, at least enough to supply milkmen. Sunshine.

October—Talk of a boat race will prevent a storm this month.

November—Some snow and rain, but the great question will be weather the Democrats or Republicans will carry the day.

December—More snow.—Oil City Derrick.

HIS WATER TAX.

Some funny incidents occur at the City Hall in Boston in the payment of taxes, water rates, &c.

Among the crowd who were in attendance at the water register's office, a short time ago, was an irate individual, evidently from one of the annexed wards, who thrusting a brawny arm, to which was attached a tanned fist holding a water bill, across the counter, growled:

"Look a here. How's this? You have just doubled my bill of last year."

The register himself happened to be in attendance, and asked the name and address, and being informed, turned to a page in a bulky book, and then said:

"What was your business last year, Mr. Chalker?"

"Provision dealer," says the surly one, gruffly.

"You do not follow the same business you did when your bill was half this amount?" said the bland official.

"No, I don't," said the complainant, not seeing the trap, and adding with a smile which sent a widening grin over the office, "I am in the milk business now."

The blonde mustache of the register dropped a little closer over his mouth as he closed the book and conversation with the remark;

"We cannot charge you any less for water, Mr. Chalker, at the present price of milk."

The Dover Rolling Mills, owned by Mr. Henry McFarlan, Esq., have been sold, and to parties it is said who are connected with the C. R. R. Co. This it is agreed means that the Central Railroad will turn the mills into a car wheel manufactory, the McFarlan property extending almost from Port Oram, (the terminus of the High Bridge Branch of the C. R. R.) to Dover, so that there will be no difficulty in connecting the mills with the C. R. R., besides which there is room for depot and other buildings. That the mills would make a first-class property for the manufacture of car wheels no one doubts and being right on the ground where the material is mined no better locality can be secured, besides which an extension of the road to the surrounding mines would also greatly add to its business.—Banner, Morristown.

As to the manner in which one of the blast furnaces at Boonton was started the Bulletin, of Boonton, says "one of the furnaces, having been under repairs since Oct. was made ready for the match on the 23d ult. From 15 to 20 cords of well seasoned hickory and oak wood and a great many tons of coal were put into the Furnace before lighting, and the men were busy until noon of Tuesday. Shortly after one o'clock Mrs. J. Couper Lord and family and Mr. George Brown and two sons, accompanied by Messrs. W. G. Lathrop and H. C. Jenkins, entered the front arch of the furnace, where quite a number of our citizens had gathered to witness the re-starting of one of the furnaces that had been out since March 1876. All being in readiness, Mr. Jenkins handed Miss Elsie B. Lord an iron cane finely polished for the occasion, the end of which was red hot. Miss Lord touched the shavings and immediately there was a high flame and in a few minutes the fire had passed into the great furnace."

SOMETHING WRONG.

It must be acknowledged by every candid observer, that there is a disposition prevalent in this country to subvert the rights and privileges of the many in order to gratify the avaricious desires of the few. We speak thus with special reference to the business interests of the people.

It is the spirit of monopoly, or the consolidation of arbitrary financial power, that is at work making money sovereign and freedom of trade and industry subject.

When the American people possessed the uninterrupted opportunity of pursuing their respective avocations, each to the extent of his own ability, and moderate fortunes were the rule and colossal ones the exception, there was real prosperity in the land. All then had a fair chance, as the modern idea of crushing out small dealers by the force of gigantic capital did not exist.

Then millionaires were scarce, but wealth was equitably distributed, and the people at large were comfortable and contented. We now hear of many men boasting of their ten, twenty and thirty million dollars, and looking around, we find the middle classes struggling with little gain or encouragement, and the poor ground down to almost starvation wages.

There is something wrong in the present condition of affairs, and that wrong must be righted before the country can be prosperous in fact. Gentlemen may cry peace when there is no peace, and so may they shout prosperity when the reverse abounds. If legislation is at fault, either through omission or commission, the popular voice should demand a proper remedy. Let each individual, however humble, enjoy the full profit of his labor and enterprise. That is justice, and without justice liberty is deception.

INVESTIGATION.

The effect of the recent law of the State of New Jersey which provides for the examination, by Court appointees, of City, County and Township finances, cannot be other than most salutary, although it may, as it has already in some instances done, reveal past irregularities of an ugly character.

Honest officials will ever desire the sharpest scrutiny into their transactions, and every dishonest handler of public money, no matter who or where, merits exposure and swift punishment.

The law in question is for the protection of the people, who have been time and again shamefully fleeced by thieving office holders, and its great good will be to prevent that grade of swindling in the future. We hail its enactment as wise legislation, and hope it will be made active whenever cause exists to fear crookedness.

A THOUGHT.

A majority of the people of the United States rightfully believe that the vote of Louisiana was legally cast against Mr. Hayes in 1876, and therefore, he was not elected President, however formally valid the trick of an Electoral Commission may have decided his claim. Suppose the Democrats four years ago, by force of arms and partisan ire, had contested the declared result, as Senator Blaine and followers are doing another result in Maine, notwithstanding the Democrats had then far more justification to do so than the Republicans have now, what a continuous yell of rebellion would have pierced the air, from New England to Kansas, and how crimson would have looked the sky because of waving bloody shirts?

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

Which we give in supplement form with this issue, is a clear, concise and comprehensible document. Like our esteemed Chief Magistrate of the State, who believes in action, not words, the message is short but to the point, conveying all necessary information of the affairs of the State in a few words. The message should be read by all.

The Central Railroad Company will shortly commence making decided and valuable improvements about their Ferry House on the New York side of the North River, at foot of Liberty Street, to accommodate their increased passenger and freight traffic. The "Central" is one of the best roads in the country. Plainfield commuters appreciate the efficient management of its officers.

Elizabeth's expert, appointed to investigate the financial operations of Republican managers of the city in years gone by, having reported unfavorably for the parties interested. Our law-abiding citizens are anxiously looking for the Report of Judge Alward, appointed expert to look into Plainfield Township Town Committee's financial record. The Report will come soon enough for the interested parties.

The Freie Presse German newspaper Association, of Elizabeth city, is under a cloud. The Association was started some years since with a capital of $3,000, in shares of ten dollars each, and the concern has not met the expectations of its originators, financially, as they expected. All newspapers are not paying ventures.

Ex-County Collector Joseph C. Letson, who was convicted for embezzlement of the County funds of Middlesex County, and sentenced to the State Prison at hard labor for two years and fined $500, was taken to that institution on Monday morning last by Deputy-Sheriff Wright.

Vice-Chancellor Van Fleet has issued an order for the Acid Works at Elizabeth Port to desist manufacturing for two weeks, on complaint of citizens of Elizabeth, who claim the gases and vapors arising from the manufactory are detrimental to the health of the city.

From State Comptroller Stockton's admirable Annual Report, we find that the State valuation of Union County is $23,865,800 for 1879, a decrease over 1878 of $3,659,200. The taxable valuation of property in Plainfield is set down at $3,686,000.00.

Judge Nixon has rendered another decision against the City of Elizabeth, in the case of the City vs. Goelet, and has ordered a special tax to be levied to satisfy the claim of the prosecutor.

THE STATE COMPTROLLER'S REPORT.

State Comptroller Stockton's annual report presented to the Legislature at its opening last Tuesday, shows the financial condition of New Jersey to be not only prosperous, but highly flattering. The value of the property of the State is given at $11,294,171.72, an increase in the last two years of $902,-856.67. The entire indebtedness of the State is only $2,096,300, being the outstanding war-debt bonds, of which $100,000 mature each year. Against this apparent debt, however, there is invested in good securities in a Sinking Fund $1,428,545.05, the revenue from which is nearly sufficient to pay the interest and retire the war bonds as they mature. Practically the State does not owe a dollar of debt, and the Comptroller says a State tax is no longer necessary. Four years ago the tax was levied at one and a half mills on the dollar. The subsequent year a reduction of one-third, and last year it stood at one-half a mill on the dollar. At the close of the fiscal year all the annual expenses of the year had been met without difficulty, the appropriations paid promptly, and the comfortable balance remained in bank, to the credit of the State, of $530,000.

The total receipts of the State last year from all sources were $2,639,443.64, of which $1,264,255.28 was credited to special funds and the balance to State purposes proper. The latter was collected by a State tax of $532,157.88; tax on corporations, $630,827.95; interest and dividends on bonds and stocks, $31,010; State Prison receipts, $51,462.49, and the balance from licenses, escheats and a few minor resources.

The detailed statement of receipts and disbursements shows the receipts during the year to have been, $2,639,443.64, which, added to the balance in bank at the commencement of the year, made an available aggregate of $3,001,-308.81. This was credited as follows:

"To the State fund, $1,263,705.28; the State Library Fund, $1,550; the School Fund, $235,728.98; the Agricultural College Fund, $6,960; the State School Tax, $1,132,501.38. The disbursements have been on account of State Fund, $1,061,-992.98; State Library Fund, $5,367.28; Agricultural Fund, $6,960; School Fund, $294,193.75; School Tax, $1,132,501.38.—Total disbursements, $2,501,015.37; balance on hand, $500,288.44.

The Comptroller presents a thorough and carefully prepared detailed statement of the sums which will probably be required for disbursement during the ensuing year, which aggregate $910,000. Against this he estimates receipts, with the State tax abolished, of $1,516,657.72 which would leave an estimated cash balance on hand at the close of the fiscal year of 1880 of $606,657.72.

The School Fund, as shown by the report has $2,666,865.03, securely and profitably invested, with a bank balance of $183,509.75. This fund is annually increased. Of the two mill tax fund eight of the twenty-one counties in the State last year paid respectively a larger amount for school purposes than they received back, these counties being Essex, Gloucester, Hunterdon, Mercer, Salem, Somerset, Union and Warren.

ANOTHER DISHONORABLE DEATH.

Benjamin C. Bogert, late Treasurer of the Produce Exchange, New York city, committed suicide by taking laudanum in a house of bad reputation in that city on Friday last. The amount he is charged with defrauding the Exchange is $35,000, so far as known. The Merchants' Exchange Bank has attached Mr. Bogert's property to satisfy a claim of $60,000, of which Mr. Bogert was a Director. Speculations, political aspirations and dissipations, were the causes of the downfall of this once popular man. Mr. Bogert was born in Hoboken, N. J., in 1824. Early in life he went with his father in the flour business in West Street, near Barclay, where he has been with his sons ever since. In 1860 the Senior Bogert lost some property, and, becoming despondent, hung himself. Wm. C. Bogert, after his father's death, purchased property at Hackensack, N. J., and fitted up a dwelling at great expense, taking his two sons with him, both of them being married. He has been County Treasurer of Bergen County, and three years ago sought the office of State Comptroller from the Democratic Legislature. Mr. Bogert was well-known to many of the citizens of this city and was well liked by all who knew him, and the discovery of crime and the final suicide have shocked the whole community, and humbled a large and worthy family.

The search after iron mines in this section is becoming a regular craze, and Pennsylvania capitalists and their agents are making strenuous efforts to secure iron properties. But besides the speculators there are also many reliable furnace companies and owners seeking a source of supply for their furnaces, to meet the wonderful demand for iron that extends from one end of the country to the other. Every property supposed to contain ore is being prospected, and even abandoned mines are being looked into and all examined. That great good will come to us because of this inquiry is not to be doubted, and that some who are seeking to put their money in a business they know nothing about will be bitten may also be taken for granted. You can't most always sometimes tell about an iron mine. We have heard of owners asking $50,000 for mines that practical men would not take to work as a gift.—Era.

A gentleman well up in military matters informs us that the statements going the rounds of the press, to the effect that "applications for arrears of pensions not made by the 1st of January cannot be granted," is altogether an error. The act in relation to pensions was passed Jan. 25th, 1878, and the final date on which application can be made is July 1st, 1880, (not Jan. 1st. 1880.) The law reads as follows:

"Sec. 2nd * * * Provided the application for such pensions has been or is hereafter filed with the Commissioner of Pensioners prior to the 1st day of July, 1880."—Banner, of Morristown.

The attempt of the Republicans of Maine to buy up enough of the Fusionists to prevent a quorum in the Legislature has been established by the oath of those whom they attempted to bribe. A $1,000 bill goes a great ways with a man of Maine who seldom sees so much wealth at one time and a few succumbed to the seductive influence, thus showing that the greenback policy in the North is a fit counterpart for the shot gun policy in the South.

The Springfield Republican, a Grant organ, is charged with saying: "At the State dinners given in regular rotation to Congressmen during Grant's last Winter at the White House, the General took wine regularly, and, while the rest of the guests were served champagne in the conventional tapering glass, Grant took his in a goblet."

Judge Alward, where are you?

An effort will be made at the coming session of the Legislature to repeal the law which requires Justices of the Peace to issue warrants without compensation until an indictment is found. It is claimed that fewer complaints would be made were parties obliged to pay for the warrants.

The twenty-fourth annual meeting of the New Jersey Editorial Association will be held at the American House, Trenton, on Monday, the 19th inst., at noon.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The 104th session of New Jersey's Legislature met and organized at Trenton, on Tuesday afternoon last.—There was a large attendance of the "faithful" and "wire pullers," and a severe contest for the office of Speaker of the House. Union County had two candidates, Messrs. Vernon and Stiles, and as neither one would "back down," of course the County gets nothing in the way of "pap," and Monmouth carries off the "belt," which has "Penn. R. R." inscribed on it. The following are the names of the officers of the Legislature:

The following are the officers chosen in the House:

Speaker—Sherman B. Oviatt, Monmouth.

Clerk—Cummins O. Cooper, Morris.

Assistant Clerk—Asa M. Dickinson, Hudson.

Journal Clerk—Alexander Clark, Essex.

Sergeant-at-Arms—John B. Fell, Mercer.

Engrossing Clerk—Geo. C. Wynkoop, Camden.

Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms—John A. Brown, Gloucester.

Keeper of the Ladies' Gallery—Daniel Kilbourn, Hudson.

Keeper of the Gentlemen's Gallery—William B. Mulford, Somerset.

The Senate chose the following:

President—Gen. Wm. J. Sewell, of Camden.

Secretary—Geo. Wurts, of Paterson.

Assistant Sec.—W. T. Hunt, of Essex.

Engrossing Clerk—F. F. Paterson, of Passaic.

Sergeant-at-Arms—L. L. Mulford, of Salem.

Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms—D. Claypole, of Cumberland.

Gallery Keepers—Albertson, of Atlantic and Fitzgerald, of Middlesex.

Among the matters for legislation that will occupy most attention are the reports of the special commissions on tax laws, municipal government and prison labor; the proposed modification of the Sunday observance and liquor laws; the compensation of the Judiciary; the abolition of the State tax; the "railroad fight" concerning a bridge across the Morris canal basin at Jersey City, involving riparian lands; the Elizabeth City bankruptcy question; the validating of the Jersey City Court House bonds, and the proposed change in the electoral laws; to repeal act of 1879 for the protection of deer and other game; to repeal General District Court act; to make tax liens prior to mortgages; to extend operations of tax liens; repealing that part of the law that compels justices to issue warrants without charging for the same; for a General Local Option law; for the relief of sureties of ex-State Treasurer Sooy; for the registration of all legalized dentists; to pay Grand Jurors; to give Chosen Freeholders mileage; to authorize the Governor to loan war colors at annual re-unions of regiments.

The following are the principal Committees appointed in both Houses of the Legislature:

SENATE.

Judiciary—Messrs. Hobart, Francis and Rabe. Revision of Laws—Messrs. Vail, Deacon and Canfield. Municipal Corporations—Messrs. Francis, Gardner and Rabe. Education—Messrs. Beekman, Schenck and Lawrence. Militia—Messrs. Whiticar, Keasby and Gardner. Railroads and Canals—Messrs. Schenck, Bodine and Rosenbery. Corporations—Messrs. Keasby, Whiticar and Canfield. Agriculture—Messrs. Cramer, Martin and Cooper. Fisheries—Messrs. Vail, Hobart and Lawrence. Banks and Insurance—Messrs. Gardner, Martin and Beekman. Elections—Messrs. Deacon, Keasby and Emson.

HOUSE.

Judiciary—Messrs. Vernon, Axtell, Smith, Meeks and L. J. Martin. Ways and Means—Messrs. Van Duyne, Conkling, Board, Blodgett and Demarest. Municipal Corporations—Messrs. Herring, Stiling, Paterson, Donnelly and Barber. Corporations—Messrs. Burroughs, Gill, Miller, Demarest and Albertson.—Banks and Insurance—Messrs. Paterson, Herr, Lawrence, Honce and L. J. Martin. Elections—Messrs. Bonsall, Voorhees, Wilkinson, Haines and S. M. Martin.—Education—Messrs. Voorhees, Bonsall, Robinson, Honce and Dunn. Revision of Laws—Messrs. Potts, Morehead, Carter, Hunt and Krueger. Riparian Rights—Messrs. Ringlemann, Herring, Parsons, Barber and McDermott. Stationery—Messrs. Miller, Parsons, Morehead, Godown and Krueger. Railroads and Canals—Messrs. Stiles, Carter, Beekman, Blodgett and Meeks. Militia—Messrs. Lawrence, Herring, Laibarrow, O'Connell and Donnelly. Agriculture—Messrs. Laibarrow, Vreeland, Craft, Ramsey and Ferrall. Fisheries—Messrs. Parsons, Garwood, Vreeland, Honce and Fritts.—Joint Committee on Printing—Messrs. Keasby, Hobart, Marsh, Board, Voorhees, Robinson, Marter and Barber.

THE MAINE ANOMALY.

Mr. Bonsall, of Camden, submitted the following resolution on Tuesday:

Resolved, That the major portion of the representatives of the people of New Jersey in State Assembly convened view with amazement and alarm the consummation, through trickery and fraud, of a practical disfranchisement of a large proportion of the voters of a sister State and the nullification of the will of the people through the usurpation by a minority of the prerogative of the majority.

Resolved, That while we have faith in the patriotism and honorable purpose of the majority of the citizens of Maine and confidence in the courts we will yet watch with solicitude the development of the abnormal and anarchic situation and hold ourselves in readiness to do whatever may be done to counteract the effects of this outrage upon their rights and liberties.

Mr. Blodgett, (Dem.) of Ocean County, moved to lay the resolution on the table, which was not agreed to by a strict party vote, and it was then referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

Among the many bills introduced on the first day, were the following important ones:

SENATE.

Mr. Hobart offered a concurrent resolution proposing amendments to the Constitution providing for biennial sessions of the Legislature; making the terms of Senators four years and allowing to counties having more than 100,000 inhabitants two Senators; dividing the Senate into two classes, each class going out of office each two years.

By Mr. Gardner, S. 4, an act concerning cities, provides that in cities where it is not otherwise provided by charter, vacancies in the Board of Aldermen or Common Council shall be filled by the Mayor.

By Mr. Emson, S. 6, an act repealing the 88th section of the school law, which prohibits corporal punishment.

By Mr. Francis, S. 9, an act limiting the time for commencing actions against the assignee of any person making an assignment for the benefit of his creditors to six months from the date of the assignment, except the right of action now exists, when it shall be commenced within six months from the passage of this act.

By Mr. Bodine, S. 13, supplement to township act, providing that counties between 20,000, instead of 24,000, and 36,000 inhabitants shall elect but one chosen freeholder for each township and ward.

HOUSE.

Mr. Herring presented a resolution that Mr. Blodgett, of Ocean, administer the oath to Mr. Vernon, of Union, by whom the members shall be sworn. Adopted.

The Clerk called the counties, and the members in groups proceeded to the desk, and after the oath of office was administered by Mr. Vernon, signed the roll.

During the calling of the roll, Mr. Herring offered a resolution, which was adopted, that the reading of certificates of election be dispensed with except objections be made.

When the name of William H. Brown, of Essex was called, the Clerk stated that he had received a protest from Wm. E. Williams against Wm. H. Brown taking his seat, and that he had placed in his hands the evidence in the case.

Protests were also presented from Jno. Owen Rouse against the seating of Noah D. Taylor, of Hudson; also from Terrence J. McDonald against the seating of Patrick Sheeran, of Hudson.

The Clerk stated that under the 126th section of the "Act to regulate elections," the protests, &c., would be handed to the Speaker when elected. The persons against whom there were protests were sworn.

By Mr. Potts, an act to repeal an act to prevent the spread of infectious pleuro-pneumonia among cattle, approved March 13, 1879.

By Mr. Herring, an act providing for the division into two wards of cities between 5,000 and 8,000 inhabitants.

By Mr. Potts, an act for the abolition of capital punishment, and providing instead imprisonment for life.

During the present session, the terms of the present Chancellor, and that of three Judges of the Supreme Court will expire, and the Governor will have to name their successor. The Judges are David A. Depue, George S. Woodhull and Van Cleve Dalrymple. The candidates for these Judgeships are Henry C. Pitney, of Morris; Flavel McGee, of Hudson; John F. Hageman, of Mercer; Jehiel G. Shipman, of Warren; ex-Senator Magie, of Union, and Peter L. Voorhees, of Camden.

The Governor will also have to appoint Prosecutors of the Pleas for Bergen, Burlington, Cumberland, Cape May, Warren and Salem counties.

The contest for the Comptrollership is likely to excite considerable interest, the candidates being the present Deputy, Major E. J. Anderson, ex-Senators Hayes of Essex, and Jarrard of Middlesex, with the chances decidedly in favor of Major Anderson.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, N. J.

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH, N. J., January 8, 1880.

Pursuant to adjournment, the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County met in monthly session at the Court House, on Thursday, January 8, 1880, at 1 o'clock p. m.

Present—Director Randolph, and Freeholders Briant, Bauer, Crowell, Doty, Forsyth, Fisher, Hubbard, Isenmann, Jewell, Miller, Parse, Roll, S. C. Smith, Thomas H. Smith, Thompson, Wilcox.

Absent—None.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read (reading of bills paid on motion dispensed with) and on motion approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS.

On application from J. Howard Mansfield for a license to build a dock, wharf or pier in front of his lands fronting on the Staten Island Sound, in Linden Township, was on motion received and placed on file.

A communication from J. R. & N. English, presenting the claim of George F. Sauerbrunn for damages received from driving into an unprotected bridge at Westfield, was read, and, on motion, was ordered to lie over until the next regular meeting in February.

The following communication was received:

H. L. MOORE'S ART STUDIO,
No. 59 Broad Street,
ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 7, 1880.

To the Honorable the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County:

GENTLEMEN:—I desire to furnish to the County of Union a picture containing the photographs of the members of your honorable body and its officers.

If agreeable to the Board, I shall be happy to see the different members and officers at my Studio, No. 59 Broad street, at any time that suits their convenience.

Very respectfully yours,
H. L. MOORE.

Freeholder Roll moved that the invitation be accepted, and that the Board tender their thanks to Mr. Moore.

Which was carried.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The committee to issue bonds reported as follows:

Your committee appointed to issue bonds to renew a portion of those falling due January 1st, 1880, to the amount of $23,000, would respectfully report that they have issued in accordance with the instructions of the Board, twenty-three bonds of $1,000 each, payable January 1st, 1890, with half yearly coupons at six per cent. per annum, and that they sold the same to the highest bidder for two per cent. premium, making the total amount received for the bonds $23,460. Which has been passed over to the County Collector and placed to the credit of the county.

J. F. HUBBARD,
GEO. W. DOTY,
SAMUEL C. SMITH,
THOS. H. SMITH,
WM. H. BRIANT,
Committee.

Freeholder Fisher moved that the report be received, placed on file, and spread upon the minutes.

Which was carried.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Freeholder Roll:

Whereas, The Collector of Linden township has, during the last year, paid to the County Collector all moneys collected on arrears of taxes, in accordance with order of mandamus, which has paid the arrears and the year of 1879 tax in full and interest promptly, and also paid all the interest they have collected or are likely to collect, now leaving a small balance of interest not collectable, on the tax of 1878; therefore

Resolved, That the County Collector be authorized to credit the balance of interest to Linden township to balance the account on County Collector's books and that the mandamus be removed.

Freeholder Hubbard moved to amend by striking out all of the resolution except "that the mandamus be removed."

The County Attorney being present, was called upon and explained the law governing the matter.

Vote being taken on the amendment, it was carried by the following vote:

Ayes—Director Randolph and Freeholders Crowell, Doty, Hubbard, Isenman, Jewell, Miller, Parse, S. C. Smith, Thompson, Wilcox—11.

Nays—Freeholders Briant, Forsyth, Fisher, Roll, Thos. H. Smith—5.

Vote being taken on the resolution as amended, it was adopted by the following vote:

Ayes—Director Randolph and Freeholders Bauer, Doty, Hubbard, Isenmann, Jewell, Miller, Parse, S. C. Smith, Thompson, Wilcox—11.

Nays—Freeholders Briant, Forsyth, Fisher, Roll, Thos. H. Smith—5.

By Freeholder Thompson:

Resolved, That one hundred dollars extra be advanced to the Jail Warden to meet demands for this quarter.

On motion, adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Roll:

Resolved, That the application of J. Howard Mansfield for license to build a dock, wharf or pier in front of his lands, on Staten Island Sound, be referred to a committee of three to report upon the advisability of granting the application and the Committee to report to the Board.

On motion adopted, and the following committee appointed by the Director:

Freeholders Roll, Hubbard and Forsyth.

By Freeholder Fisher:

Whereas, It is believed that by connecting the county buildings by telephone with the general office in this city that it would prove a safeguard against the escape of prisoners from the County Jail, therefore

Resolved, That the Committee on Public Buildings be instructed to have the connections made at a cost not to exceed $40 per year, or any terms to be agreed upon by the Committee on Public Buildings not to exceed that amount.

A vote being taken, the resolution was lost by the following vote:

Ayes—Freeholders Crowell, Fisher and Isenmann—3.

Nays—Director Randolph and Freeholders Briant, Bauer, Doty, Forsyth, Hubbard, Jewell, Miller, Parse, Roll, S. C. Smith, Thomas H. Smith, Thompson and Wilcox—14.

By Freeholder Fisher:

Resolved, That the stated meetings of this Board be held on the first Thursday of each month, at 1 o'clock p. m.

On motion adopted.

By Freeholder Thomas H. Smith:

Whereas, The Surrogate of the county is sadly in need of more room for the preservation of the papers and records of his office, and also for a private room for consultation and transaction of business; therefore

Resolved, That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to add a room in the rear of said office to the use of the Surrogate, if the same can be done to advantage, and to build between the two rooms a fire-proof vault.

Vote being taken on the adoption of the resolution, it was carried by the following vote:

Ayes—Director Randolph and Freeholders Briant, Bauer, Crowell, Doty, Forsyth, Fisher, Hubbard, Isenmann, Jewell, Miller, Parse, Roll, Thos. H. Smith, Thompson, Wilcox—16.

Nay—Freeholder S. C. Smith—1.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That when this Board adjourns it be to meet Monday, Jan. 12, at 3 p. m.

On motion, adopted.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That three thousand dollars be transferred from appropriation for Court expenses to account of bridges.

On motion, adopted.

By Freeholder Fisher:

Resolved, That notice be sent to Dr. Breithoff, Superintendent of the Morristown Lunatic Asylum, that it is the desire of this board that he should retain out of the money taken from Samuel B. Higgenbotam on his commitment to the asylum, sufficient to defray the expense otherwise chargeable to this county for his board.

On motion, the resolution was adopted.

Freeholder Fisher moved to adjourn. Which was carried.

The Director declared the Board adjourned to meet Monday, January 12th, at 3 o'clock p. m.

J. L. CROWELL, Clerk.

A Mother's Grief.

The pride of a Mother, the life and joy of a home, are her children, hence her grief when sickness enters and takes them away. Take warning then, that you are running a terrible risk, if they have a Cough, Croup or Whooping Cough, which lead to Consumption, if you do not attend to it at once.—SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE is guaranteed to cure them. Price 10 cts., 50 cts. and $1.00. For lame Back, Side, or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster.—Price 25 cts. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

The Best I Ever Knew Of.

J. G. Starkey, a prominent and influential citizen of Iowa City, says: "I have had the Dyspepsia, and Liver Complaint for several years, and have used every Remedy I could hear of, without any relief whatever, until I saw your Shiloh's Vitalizer advertised in our paper, and was persuaded to try it. I am happy to state that it has entirely Cured me. It is certainly the best Remedy I ever knew of. Price 75 cts. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY, a marvellous Cure for Catarrh, Diptheria, Canker Mouth, and Head Ache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal injector for the more successful treatment of the complaint, without extra charge. Price 50 cts. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

A FRAGRANT BREATH AND PEARLY TEETH

Are easily obtained by cleansing your teeth with that justly popular dentrifice SOZODONT. Composed of rare antiseptic herbs, it imparts whiteness to teeth, a delicious aroma to breath, and preserves intact, from youth to old age, the teeth. Acidity of the stomach will destroy the strongest teeth unless its effects are counteracted with SOZODONT, and this pure tooth-wash protects the dental surfaces by removing every impurity that adheres to them.—Ask your druggist for SOZODONT.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Simmons' LIVER REGULATOR

LIVER DISEASE and Indigestion prevail to a greater extent than probably any other malady, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Indigestion or want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered for these ailments. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for forty years, and hundreds from all parts of the country will vouch for its virtues, viz: Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia; John Gill Shorter, of Alabama; Gen. John B. Gordon, R. L. Mott, of Columbus, [illegible] Bishop Pierce, of Georgia, are among the hundreds to whom we can refer. Extract of a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1872: "I occasionally use when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active medicines." It is not the quantity of food taken that gives strength, life, blood and health. It is the thorough digestion of the food taken let it be much or little. Therefore, do not stimulate the stomach to crave food, but rather assist digestion after eating by taking

THE employees of Potter's Press Works of this city, are paid once a month with checks. It is probably unnecessary to say that the checks are good. We wish we had one drawn for a large amount.

"FRONT street Pharmacy" is the title now used when parents send their children to Killgore's drug store, next to Van Deventer Hall. Mr. Killgore is doing a fine business. His prices are reasonable.

VANDERBEEK, next to THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office, has just the article for marking linen wear in indelible ink. It is in the shape of a handsome holder, with lead marker. The cost is only 25 cents. Try it.

MR. E. P. THORN, proprietor of the Mansion House, has purchased of Mr. John W. Laing a barrel of apple whiskey made in the year 1861, which has been in Mr. L's possession for 17 years. It must be good. Ed. send us a "wee drap."

GRASS is growing, plants are sprouting, black-birds have been seen—all harbingers of Spring, and yet the streams and ponds have not furnished the ice men employment as yet since winter set in. Time enough, yet. Old Feb. is to come.

THE Somerset Gazette had a glowing complimentary notice about preacher Talmage in one column last week and a very funny notice in another column about Talmage's mouth being taken for the funnel of a steamship. Brother Honeyman, you must watch your d—l closer.

A PARLOR entertainment will be given at the residence of Mr. R. C. Dingee, Clinton Avenue, Evona, Thursday evening, Jan. 22d, in aid of the building fund of the "Church of the Heavenly Rest," a new place of worship to be erected at Evona. Tickets, 25 cents. Children, 15 cents.

TESTIMONY was taken before VanWinkle & Maxson on Monday last in reference to the Drive Well suits brought by Green against French and others of North Plainfield. Ernest Webb, Esq., appeared for the prosecutor. This suit is said to be the test case of what is termed the "Drive Well Extortion." The defendants are determined to fight the matter to the bitter end.

THE beautiful granite blocks, on which are inscribed the words—"Park avenue" and "North avenue," set in the masonry of Vanderbeek's new building, on the respective corners of the avenues on which said handsome building is being constructed, came from the marble works of Mr. L. L. Manning, next to the M. E. church, this city. They are an ornament to the building and a credit to Mr. Manning's establishment.

AN exchange gives this short piece of sound advice: "If your local paper happens to tread on your toes a little in performing its mission, don't get your back up and abuse its editor, but stop and take a long breath, and think for a season, and see if you can't remember some of the favors and kindnesses the paper has shown you in the past. Then reflect that it may not be long before you may want some favor again."

AS stated in our advertising column, Eiljenstern & Stone, the leading Plainfield clothiers, are selling their entire stock of clothing at cost. Having had a mild winter, they have yet on hand a very large stock of Men's, Youth's, Boy's and Children's overcoats and suits, which they will sell as stated above, at cost. It will pay you to call and purchase of them. Their goods are made up in first-class style, and fit equal to custom work.

THERE are a good many men who think they could turn out better newspapers than are made by others, whose labor in that direction would result about like that of the tramp who was hired for a week on trial by a newspaper proprietor. After hanging around three days doing nothing, he was accused of incompetency. He indignantly replied: "I can edit yer darned old paper, if you'll jest tell me whar to git the stuff to put into it."

CITY Judge Runyon's first case was that of James Field, arrested on Monday morning last for boisterous conduct in front of a saloon on Front Street the Saturday evening previous. Capt. Dodd took James before His Honor, who held his court in the spacious (?) hall of the City Jail. The prisoner demanded a jury trial, which was granted, Friday, the 16th being the designated time. In default of $100 bail, James is spending the intervening time with Capt. Dodd, proprietor of Plainfield City Jail.

OUR Public Schools still continue in a prosperous condition, thanks to efficient management and good teachers. The attendance, since the commencement of the present session, is from five to six per cent. better average. Despite the theory that "rapid transit" in New York City will tend to induce families to remain in New York suburbs instead of locating here, the rolls of the schools show an attendance of sixteen more scholars this month over the same month of last year. With our excellent schools, sound financial record and good healthy location, Plainfield need not be afraid of "rapid transit" on the elevated railroad system.

CERTAIN capitalists, who have the subject of supplying Plainfield with hydrant water for fire purposes in consideration, have recently made "explorations" about our city. The series drawback to the scheme is the matter of drainage. It seems impracticable to drain into either of the two streams running through the city for health sake. The manner of getting rid of the city's drainage in case of water works being erected, was probably best illustrated in the bill passed last Winter known as "Plainfield City Charter Bill."

ALL interested in Driven Wells are requested to attend a meeting of the Anti-Drive-Well Association, at the house of Warren Eng. Co. No. 2. See advertisement in another column.

WHEN we shall move into our permanent quarters in Vanderbeek's new building, two months hence, the business room of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST will be on the ground floor, next to Flagg's block, on North avenue. The press room will be in the basement. The composing room on the third floor.

AND now the Street Committee have made another mistake. After Park Ave. was made almost impassible in consequence of soil being thrown on top of the macadamized road-bed to repair (?) it, orders have been issued to scrape the mud off. The Street Commissioner has done so and the mud lies along side of the road again, from whence it was formerly taken. Queer work.

SATURDAY evening last about 5:30 o'clock, a lady driving a horse and carriage through the upper part of Front Street, began shouting, "will some gentleman stop my horse?" "Will some gentleman stop my horse?" Two men rushed out and captured the animal. Lady safely deposited on the sidewalk. Horse quieted down and no harm done. Neither was it caused by a Bicycle.

THE way prisoners in Trenton State Prison communicate with their friends outside the prison walls has been found out. When a discharged prisoner left the hospitable walls of the prison, he had a letter from a brother prisoner to a friend outside, concealed beneath a porous plaster which adhered to a part of his person. A large number of plasters have been used the past year.

JOHN MARLETT, Jr., formerly a boss mason of Bound Brook, was found dead in his bed at that village on Monday morning last, death being caused, it is supposed, from bleeding of the lungs, which affliction deceased has suffered from for some five years past. When found dead, the body of deceased lay partly out of bed, as though he had attempted to arise and fallen back when the final attack came upon him. Mr. M. was a young man greatly respected in the vicinity and by all who knew him.

IF suggestions are in order, we would like to present one to the Board of Education, worded something like this: "Resolved, That this Board do hereby rescind the Resolution passed some months since, denying the school children a "right" to present their teachers with a suitable token or gift on holiday occasions, in recognition of the esteem and affection entertained by them (the scholars) for their instructors."

Something like the above would answer. Or else let the scholars and teachers pass a resolution that no more pictures of members of the Board of Education shall be presented to adorn the walls of our School buildings.

Where They Are to be Found.

Union County legislators may be found at Trenton as follows: Senator Vail at the Trenton House; Assemblymen Stilles and Dunn at the American House. Assemblyman Vernon, Trenton House.

For Charity.

The total amount realized by the ball of "The Coachmen's Club, No. 1," of this city, recently held in Van Deventer Hall for the benefit of the "Plainfield Relief Association," amounted to $80.11, and that sum has been paid over to the Association by the Club.

Not Rewarded.

Again has the "party gone back" on "Uncle Steve." We refer to the failure of Mr. S. C. Ryder to secure the position of Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate in the present Legislature. Promises are like pie crust, Steve, easily broken. If ever a man deserved the small position asked, for party work done, that man was Mr. Ryder.

Two Orphans.

This (Friday) evening, the renowned Union Square Comedy Company will render the popular play of the Two Orphans, in Van Deventer Hall. The Company is highly spoken of wherever they have appeared, and this is a rare chance for our citizens to witness such an interesting play. Tickets are for sale at Killgore's Pharmacy, under Van Deventer Hall. Admission 35 and 25 cents. Reserved Seats 50 cents.

Election of Bank Officers.

On Tuesday, Messrs. A. Berry, John Simpson, Manning Stelle, J. D. Titsworth, Lewis Craig, Wm. McD. Coriell, P. M. French, J. R. Van Deventer and E. W. Runyon, were elected as the Board of Directors of the First National Bank. Of course Cashier Parse is re-appointed to that position, with Mr. Frank Runyon as Teller.

The following named gentlemen were elected officers of the City National Bank for the ensuing year on Tuesday last:

Charles Hyde, President.
Elias R. Pope, Vice President.
Joseph M. Myers, Cashier.
E. R. Pope, J. B. Coward, R. McDonald, Chas. H. Stillman, J. F. Hubbard, Chas. Tweedy, Chas. Hyde, J. T. Closson, Lawrence Myers, Directors.

The only change from last year made is in that of Mr. Tweedy for Director, in place of Mr. C. Schepflin.

All Housekeepers Need It.

We refer to Hatfinger's Champion Carpet Sweeper, for which Mr. Stephen O. Staats is agent for Plainfield. It is the best sweeper of the kind we have ever seen. Instead of cog wheels it is worked by belts running on pulleys. It will take up from the carpet minute particles of dust, shreds, etc. We speak from a knowledge of the working of the machine. Specimens may be seen at the Furniture stores of R. R. Fairchild and Green & Co., Front street. Mr. Staats proposes visiting residences in the city, exhibiting the "sweeper."

The Gravel Pits.

Undoubtedly, considerable controversy will arise during the session of Plainfield's 1880 Common Council, regarding the filling in of the Gravel Pits. Already the subject is being argued by newspaper correspondents. Since our last issue we are informed that in addition to the $400 already stated as having been offered by citizens to assist in paying for the filling in of these pits, that residents in the immediate neighborhood, poor men, who have suffered from malaria, arising by the existence of the pits, are willing and ready to donate sums of $50, $25, etc., toward the desired object. It may be that it will not cost the city such a vast sum after all to fill in the Gravel Pits. Keep the ball rolling.

The Pottowatomies

Are not an extinct tribe of aborigines. There are a number of the tribe still in existence, if we may judge by the large attendance of braves at one of their reservations, (Force's Hotel) last Saturday evening, in answer to a call from their Chief, the object of which was to take into consideration the matter of a Grand Ball, given under the auspices of the tribe. Only braves, their squaws and pappooses, and such friends of the tribe as the braves may determine, will be admitted to the Council fires on the occasion. Should there be a surplus of funds arising from the gathering (which undoubtedly there will be) said funds will be donated to some worthy and charitable institution of Plainfield. The affair will be gotten up in fine style, and will occur some time in February. Further particulars will be announced.

THE next lecture of the Y. M. C. A. will occur on the evening of Feb. 5th.

Off for Washington, D. C.

Alexander B. Butts, Esq., of this city, started last evening for Washington, D. C., where he will remain for a few days to prosecute Pension and other war claims left in his charge.

Democratic Organization.

The Executive Committee of the Plainfield Democratic Association, met in the parlor of Chamberlain's Hotel last Tuesday evening, as per call made in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST of last week. After the transaction of business relating to the interests of the party, the Committee adjourned to meet at the same place Tuesday evening, Jan. 20th, at 8 o'clock. It is the intention to secure suitable rooms for the use of the Democracy of Plainfield, and perfect a thorough organization of the party for the approaching campaign.

Another Suit Against the City.

Wm. B. Maxson, Esq., has placed in the hands of R. V. Lindabury, Esq., of Elizabeth, the collection of his claim of $1,000 against the City of Plainfield for services rendered in securing title to the piece of property known as the "City Park." Mr. Maxson was instructed by the Council of 1878 to prosecute the claim. The Council of 1879 refused to pay his bill, and hence he sues for recovery from the present Council. It is singular that when a body employs a person to do work for them without a stipulated price, that proper recompense should be refused for his services.

The Second Recital.

There was a large attendance at the Congregational church last Thursday evening to listen to the Second Musical Recital by Mr. & Mrs. Carl Feininger. To say the occasion was a grand one to the musical-loving population of Plainfield, is but doing it simple justice. Mr. and Mrs. Feininger are so well-known as first-class artists, that it seems unnecessary for us to say ought else than they were received with rapturous applause in the rendition of their respective parts. The assistants at this Recital were Miss Fanny S. Ketcham, Piano Soloist; Miss Carrie Dewey, Pianiste; Miss Esther L. Gavett, Pianiste; Mr. Geo. Wotherspoon, Jr., Accompanist, all of this city, and pupils of Mr. Feininger. Each one were applauded and encored for their efforts. It is a pleasureable fact for us to announce that there is a growing interest in these Recitals by our citizens, and that they have proven successful thus far, enjoyably, financially and in attendance. The next Recital takes place Thursday evening, Jan. 22nd

The School Tax.

By Comptroller Stockton's Report it appears that the proceeds of the two-mill school tax, which were received and distributed during the past year, amounted to $1,132,501.38, being $61,166.04 less than the previous year. This tax was levied upon the taxable property as returned for the year 1877, and the decrease is owing to the reduction in the amount of property in that year, as compared with the year preceding it. Eight of the twenty-one counties of the State paid respectively a larger amount of tax for school purposes than the amount to which they were entitled in the apportionment, the aggregate amount of such excess being $96,273.03. Of these Union County paid $16,632.61; Somerset, $7,716.40; Warren, $4,957.56; Salem, $3,969.35; Mercer, $5,063.10; Gloucester, $2,155.63; Hunterdon, $11,052.50 and Essex, $50,832.48. The total excess being $96,273.03. This excess was distributed among the remaining thirteen Counties which paid respectively less tax than the amount to which they were entitled. Camden has the highest figures, $21,989.50 and Sussex, the least, $14.79. The Comptroller states "that in consequence of a farther decline in the valuation of taxable property for that year, the tax will show a decrease, as compared with that of last year, of over $8,700.00, and, will amount to $1,063,703.70."

Killed by the Cars.

Jacob R. Clark, a former resident of this city, was killed by a railroad train on Long Island, Friday last. The circumstances are as follows: Mr. Clark, in company with a friend named Robert Kay, were driving along a public highway in a farm wagon. Kay was driving and Clark sat in the hind part of the vehicle, with his feet hanging downward from the outside. As they approached Cobb Crossing, near Watermill, a dangerous portion of the railroad on account of a short curve, a woman in advance of them waved her handkerchief, warning them to stop, as she could see an approaching train. Thinking she was merely flirting, Kay drove on. As the horse struck the track, the driver saw the approaching train, and involuntarily checked his horse, afterward urging him forward. The second's delay in thus checking the animal, was fatal. The locomotive struck the hub of one of the hind wheels, shattering the wagon to pieces and hurling the occupants a great distance, Clark seventy-two and Kay seventy-eight feet. Clark was instantly killed and Kay so severely injured as to preclude any idea of his recovery. The remains of Clark were brought to this city by his brothers, who were notified of the occurrence, the funeral occurring from his mother's residence, in Elm Street, (formerly called Water Street) on Tuesday last, the remains being interred at Flemington. What makes the sudden death of Mr. Clark more distressing, is the fact that he was shortly to be married to an estimable young lady of Long Island, both parties having their wedding garments made. Clark was a young man generally esteemed by a large circle of acquaintances. He was a mason by trade. As a member of "Co. E," 3rd Reg. N. G. S. N. J., he did much toward making the Company a success while he belonged to that organization.

Masonic Installation.

The handsome rooms of "Jerusalem" Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M. in Vandeventer's building, this city, was the scene of a public Masonic installation of the newly elected officers of "Anchor" Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M. on Monday evening last. "Anchor" Lodge is a new organization of about a year's growth, and is in a flourishing condition. The meetings of the Lodge are held in "Jerusalem's" rooms. The officers installed were:

W. A. Freeman, W. M.
W. P. Scott, S. W.
T. L. Murphy, J. W.
J. S. Nason, Treas.
Jas. Lyon, Sec.
Chas. Tweedy, S. D.
R. C. Johnson, J. D.
J. R. Dumont, Ferd. Ruttman, M. of C.
E. L. Finch, G. T. Waring, Stewards.
C. W. Westphall, Tyler.

Cards of admission had been sent to a sufficient number as to just comfortably fill the lodge rooms. A large number of the spectators present were ladies, who viewed with a keen interest the impressive ceremonies. Undoubtedly many of them went away with a different impression regarding the ancient order of masonry than when they entered the rooms. The installation ceremonies were performed by Past Grand Master W. E. Pine, of Newark, assisted by Grand Marshall of the Grand Lodge, Charles Ross, of Elizabeth, and other Grand Officers of the State. The opening prayer was delivered by Rev. Marshall B. Smith, P. G. M., who, also later in the evening made a very pleasing address on the history of Masonry. During the ceremonies and at appropriate times, Mrs. Belle Pagals-Collier, Mrs. W. A. Freeman and Messrs. Wm. Cook and Andrew Gavett favored the audience with some fine singing. Mr. Louis Moore, and Mrs. W. A. Freeman presided at the organ. The occasion was a most enjoyable one to all who were in attendance.

Personalia.

One of Elizabeth's young and rising lawyers, R. V. Lindabury, Esq., is mentioned prominently for City Attorney of Elizabeth. Mr. L. would make a most capable officer for the position.

Charles W. Scott, M. D., of Hartford, Conn., visited his mother in this city on Tuesday last. Mr. Scott is a brother to Julian Scott, the artist, and is a rising practitioner of Hartford. He is also editor of the Saturday Night of that city, an able writer and fluent talker.

Mayor Harper was so indisposed on Tuesday last as to not attend business. We are glad to learn he is in better health at present writing.

A Good, Yet BAD Report.

The Investigating Committee, appointed by Judge Dalrymple, to examine into the affairs of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, have completed their labors and rendered their decision. They find much rottenness in the doings of the Board of late years, dating back to 1868. The Committee find that there has been a practice of paying bills without items, like the following:

County of Somerset to Daniel Cory,	Dr.
July 15, 1869, to paying sundry bridge bills,	$123 00
Jan. 18, 1870, To paying sundry bridge bills,	325 00
Feb. 15, To building new bridge in said township,	616 13
Jan. 29, Paying for mat. and labor for b.	462 24

Quite a number of bridges were found in Warren and North Plainfield Townships wholly useless, ofttimes for carrying the water from one side of the road to the other. A county bridge would be constructed where no possible need existed for a bridge at all. Bridges have been built in Warren Township which answers the purpose of mill-dams, at a great cost.

The Washington Avenue bridge, (Plainfield) on the line between Union and Somerset, built in 1875, was constructed at an extortionate, and as to the iron work, unjustifiable price. No such expensive bridge was needed at all. The travel warranted neither the heavy masonry or such heavy iron work. The bids were opened in Plainfield, and without any explanation for the motion or vote, it was resolved to accept the highest bid. Mr. Cory, of Somerset, voting with the Union County Committee, made a majority of one. By this one vote of Daniel Cory in opposition to every other member of the Somerset County Committee, the bridge was ordered to be constructed for nine thousand dollars ($9,000 00), when equally responsible parties offered to build it for seven thousand dollars.

In the examination of Warren township bridge bills we find a large number, thirty at least, and probably many more, drawn in favor of fourteen different persons who never have endorsed them, but their endorsements have been fraudulently made by Daniel Cory. These bills cover thousands of dollars and have been paid by the County Collector, knowing at the time that they were not properly endorsed, as is proved by his own testimony.

The Committee visited North Plainfield and inspected some of the bridges there. On a road less than a mile in length, 12 small bridges were found, not one of which crosses a running stream of water; other bridges were found that had been built expensively where there was no apparent need of them. Some were built 50 feet wide. Notably one in Washington avenue of 50 feet span, was also 50 feet up and down the stream. Others were found upon roads that gave no indications that they were ever traveled at all. The bridge built by Freeholder Van Deventer in 1872 was upon a road that had every appearance of never having been used, and at this time is entirely impassible. It cost $400, and as to the stone work, is a miserable job. No doubt a foolish and extravagant waste of money upon most of these bridges.

Meetings of the Board have been illegally held. Personal bills paid. Miscellaneous bills paid by order of a Committee. Sureties kept in the County at the County's expense. Illegal items in Sheriffs' bills paid.

The County indebtedness has been ascertained as nearly as possible to be at least $125,319.70 on May 13, 1879, at the date of the last annual report.

The amount of indebtedness as reported by the Collector at the aforesaid date was $123,319.70—a discrepancy of $2,000.00.

There was a big steal on the construction of the Bound Brook Bridge.

The book of minutes, contains some other matter which seem to justify special mention in this report. Nov. 7, 1868, at a meeting held at Peapack, the following resolution was passed:

"Resolved, That the Clerk of the Board be authorized to cancel the claim of the Circuit Court of Somerset County against Daniel Cory, of Warren, for assault and battery found against said Cory about the year 1857."

Mr. Cory was a member of the Board and present at the meeting. The amount was $41.59, and had been heretofore paid by the County.

One of the "queer" bills found by the Committee, was that of Berry & Thorn, of this city against Freeholder Daniel Cory. It was for a few nails and spikes, scissors, cream can, brooms, milk pails, ladder, grind stones, scythes, bed cord, hay fork, fixtures, coffee mill, whip, clothes pins, etc., etc. This bill was paid by a bridge order, drawn in favor of Berry & Thorn for "Material for Bridges." No wonder a freshet would sweep away a bridge constructed of such materials.

Inside of ten years $35,962.68 has been paid out for per diems and expense bills of Freeholders.

County Collector Veghte is severely handled in the Report. It is claimed that he has received $11,628.72 more money that has never been charged to him on the County's books.

The investigating Committee were Messrs. William Hilliard, Calvin Corle and Wm. S. Potter.

FIRE MATTERS.

It is nearly time for a Chief Engineer "boom."

When the members of Rolla 2 returned with their engine after the alarm of fire, on Saturday evening, the fire under the boiler was dumped, and, after putting in fresh fuel in case of another alarm, the house door was locked and all present went home. An hour later one of the firemen entered the house on business, and was startled by finding it filled with smoke, and the boiler's steam gauge at the highest notch. But for the timely visit a disaster might have resulted.—Elizabeth Monitor, Jan. 12.

The time set for the Annual Reception of "Alert" Hose Co. No. 1, is the evening of Feb. 25th, at the Park House. The affair will be a recherche one.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

"Excelsior" H. & L. Co., No 1, organized Feb. 1st, 1869, will at their regular meeting, Monday evening next, talk over their "joys and sorrows" during the past eleven years. Let every man answer at Roll Call.

The F. T. F. Dep. have not organized; the Committee having failed to obtain that $400.

The evening services at our Churches during the Week of Prayer were well attended. The Pastors gave notice last Sunday that the services would continue during the present week.

Popular report some weeks ago had it, that several of our leading men had formed a plan whereby this village would boast of having a Public Hall. A Hall will be greatly needed next Fall, and the F. T. F. Dep. are looking for Headquarters, you know

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

It is with pleasure we note the growth and prosperity of the North Plainfield Public School under Principal Barlok's administration. The attendance is increasing and discipline improving. The trustees, at a meeting last week, expressed themselves as well-pleased with the marked improvement.

Certain stock property belonging to Geo. Lewis, and advertised to be sold at Sheriff's Sale on Monday last, was purchased by William Campbell.

Bone pickers entered the yard attached to the residence of Mr. Samuel Hedden, on Duer Street, Monday afternoon last, and stole an old brass kettle that Sam would not have taken a farm for. They also broke a number of pickets from the fence. No member of the family was home at the time.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The repeated absence of the "Wisps" has created quite a stir among our reading public; it seems a loss they do not wish to sustain, and your correspondent will make stronger efforts to have them in their accustomed place every week.

At the trial in Elizabeth, it was proven that Mr. R. French's horse was not his horse, and Mr. F. had to pay Mr. Bowne $125 for the horse, and costs of trial.

W. W. Connoly, Esq., the tax Collector of our Township, has received orders from the Town Committee to levy on and sell personal property found on premises if tax is not paid. Mr. C. has given all delinquents notice that he will enforce the law; he finds that dog and poll tax are the hardest to collect.

There was a marriage at the house of Mr. Daniel Manning on Thursday evening, Jan. 8th, by the Rev. Mr. Gill, of Mr. Richard Yeoman to Miss Nancy Blue, all of this village.

Mr. Dan. P. Fink is the Grand Juryman selected from this village.

The boys accused of disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace, were discharged on Tuesday, Jan. 13, by Justice Jaques, as no one appeared to complain and prosecute.

Mugginsville is very quiet this winter; every one is orderly and obeys the mandates of the proper authorities; not even a school fight going on. Some of the old citizens fear that a terrible storm is brewing, because everything is so quiet, &c.

'Squire Godfrey has vacated the judicial field of this village to 'Squire Jaques.

Mr. Gardner has removed to Greenpoint, where he will carry on the manufacturing of boxes.

Mr. A. Banghart removed last week to Greenpoint to take charge of Mr. Gardner's factory.

A little son of Mr. M. Perine died on Friday night last, aged 2 years and 3 months.

On Thursday of last week, Mr. Wm Applegate was surprised on coming home to find his rooms filled with merry young folks, keeping step to fine music, &c. Mr. A. joined the merry throng, and all enjoyed a pleasant evening.

Our Fire Department is gathering strength every month. The Initiation fee has been placed at $2. Another new member was proposed at their last meeting on Monday night, Jan. 12.

The stormy weather prevented a great many from attending the entertainment at the Lyceum on Monday evening last to hear the Brooklyn Operatic and Dramatic Club. The performance was excellent, and certainly deserved the many encores received.

Atlas Lodge No. 125 elected and installed the following officers on Monday, Jan. 5th:

W. M.—F. R. Pennington.
S. W.—Chas. Haberly.
J. W.—J. R. Conolly.
Treas.—Matthias Clark.
Sec'y.—L. M. Whittaker.
S. D.—A. H. Shopland.
J. D.—W. C. Barton.
S. M. C.—A. Z. Chambers.
J. M. C.—Joel Moffett.
Tyler—E. M. Dobbier.
Trustees—Thos. H. Love, W. A. Macquoid, W. T. Peek.

D. D. G. M. W. A. Macquoid, assisted by Addison S. Clark as Grand Marshall, performed the ceremony. The Lodge hold their meetings every first and third Monday of the month at their rooms in the School House.

We are happy to notice the appearance on our streets of a number of new lamps. We hope to see them lighted dark nights.

The following officers of I. O. O. F. Lodge No. 169, were installed on Wednesday night last, by D. D. G. M. Sanborn of Elizabethport:

N. G.—W. S. Sparkman.
V. G.—Geo. Todd.
R. S.—John R. Barcalow.
P. S.—B. J. Crosby.
Treas.—F. Decker.

The Lodge, although not great in numbers, is in a flourishing condition, and meets every Wednesday night at Atlas Lodge Rooms.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Mr. Wm. H. Herbert, residing near Freehold, while out gunning a few days ago shot a magnificent specimen of the haliaetus leucocephalus, or bald eagle, wounding it in the wing so that, after a severe tussle, he was able to capture him. The bird measured about six feet from tip to tip of the wings, and stands nearly two feet high.

While training a brace of bird dogs on Monday, Mr. E. M. Quimby ran across a flight of woodcock. This is something unheard of for January.—Morris Banner.

Major Anderson, of the State Fish Commission, has received from Prof. Baird, U. S. Fish Commissioner, thirty thousand eggs of the Atlantic salmon, intended for deposit, when hatched, in the Delaware river. These are from the establishment of Bucksport, Maine, instituted under the patronage of the U. S. Government, and have been placed in the hatching house at Bloomsbury, N. J., where there are already half a million California salmon nearly ready for distribution. Prof. Baird has manifested a great interest in the effort to establish salmon in the Delaware, and New Jersey is greatly indebted to him for his earnest endeavors in this direction.

Dr. Asa Trimmer, of Hackettstown, is gaining newspaper notoriety because he owns the Messenger horse, known as Harry G. Seelick, a half-brother to St. Julien, the fastest trotting horse in the world, having a record of 2:12¾, that time having been made by him in California in 1879. Harry G. Seelick is coming four years old and is so docile, kind and well broken that the Doctor has driven him, with another horse, tandem. The Doctor owns what he terms the Speedlawn Stock Farm, near Hackettstown, and talks of laying out a trotting course on his farm for the training of his stock.

Arrangements are being perfected for a grand "shoot" in Plainfield shortly, the prize being a fine breech loading Colt's shot gun. The chances will be $5 each, the objects of destruction, pigeons, rules, Long Island or Bogardus, handicap. Some of the best shots of the city will participate.

Vick's Floral Guide.

This work is before us, and those who send five cents to James Vick, Rochester, N. Y., for it, will be disappointed. Instead of getting a cheap thing, as the price would seem to indicate, they will receive a very handsome work of 100 pages; and perhaps 500 illustrations—not cheap, but elegant illustrations, on the very best of calendered paper, and as a set off to the whole, an elegant Colored Plate that we would [illegible] twice the price of the book. Address James Vick, Rochester, N. Y.

Production of Iron and Steel in 1879.

From the advance sheets of the annual report of James M. Swank, Secretary of the American Iron and Steel Association we obtain his estimates of probable production of some of the more important items. These estimates must be regarded, of course, as being only approximately correct, namely:

	Gross tons.
Pig iron made in 1879	[illegible]
Steel rails made in 1879	[illegible]
Iron rails made in 1879	[illegible]
Bessemer steel ingots made in 1879	[illegible]

Of our production of other forms of iron and steel in 1879, it is impossible, says Mr. Swank, to make an approximate estimate at this time. It is safe to say, however, that it has been in excess of that of 1878.

COMMUNICATED.

For "The Constitutionalist."

MESSRS. EDITORS:

Will you not, through the columns of your excellent journal, suggest to the "powers that be" in the Board of Fire Commissioners that either more help be added in the construction of the Fire Well on Jackson Avenue, or else "rush the job through?" By a careful computation, after viewing the premises, and the manner in which the work is carried on, it will take about 16 years to finish the job. It is not pleasant for the residents near by to have the thoroughfare blocked up that length of time.

JACKSON AVENUE.

We can only say to our correspondent that the Com. on Wells of the Board are the ones to interview on the subject. —[EDS.

Gravel Pit Figures.

MESSRS. EDITORS:

Your correspondent of last week on the subject of the "gravel pits," in the matter of figures, no doubt inadvertently, got the cart squarely before the horse. He said:

"The expense of the work in question would probably be about $2,000; to offset this there has been offered by interested parties $400 toward the work, which would leave for the city to pay about $1,600 out of its Treasury for the improvement of private property."

If he will refer to the published proceedings of Council, Nov. 3d last, he will discover that the "interested parties" offered to grade Midway avenue, from Berkman street to Johnston avenue, and to fill up the unhealthy gravel pits, provided the city would appropriate for the purpose the sum of $400, four hundred dollars.

Deduct $400 from $1,600 leaves the fancy sum of $1,200.

Yours truly,
ANTI SHAKES.

Some of our exchanges are advocating a law compelling the publication in the newspapers of the amounts each tax payer is assessed for, in order that all may see whether they have been assessed equitably with their neighbors, the publication to be made thirty days before the meeting of the Commissioners of Appeals. No honest man can find a word of fault with the enactment of such a law. There is undoubtedly a good deal of "shirking" in the matter of taxes and too great a burden falls on the shoulders of those who do not know the game of hood-winking the assessor and reporting less property than they own. There ought to be a reform right here and right away. Let us all pay in just proportion to our means and we will hear less complaint about high taxes. Taxes are higher than they ought to be because a few have the bulk of them to pay.

Grape Culture and Wine.

The culture of grapes in New Jersey is getting to be one of the most important industries of the State. The principal varieties raised are the Oporto and Concord. Mr. Speer's vineyards at Passaic promises a larger yield this than any previous year. In consequence Mr. Speer has reduced the price of his Port Grape Wine. The oldest can now be had at $1 per bottle from any of the druggists. It is used for medicinal purposes as a superior wine, and in churches for communion purposes. Its properties are not intoxicating so that the weakest person may use it to advantage, and temperance people cannot object to its use for medicine.—Evening Bulletin. For sale by all druggists.

MESSRS. ELY BROS., Owego, N. Y.

GENTS:—I take this opportunity for complimenting you upon your very valuable and much needed preparation "Ely's Cream Balm," for the cure of Hay Fever and Catarrh. The form of this medicine and the method of its reaching the diseased mucous membrane (viz: by absorption) renders it far superior to any other remedy of the kind in the market. I have sold several dozen and have yet to hear the first complaint of its failure to do what you claim for it. I unhesitatingly recommend it to the trade as a very valuable article and to those who are suffering with the above mentioned complaints as the great desideratum that—"Balm of Ely's."

Most Respectfully Yours,

The Hon. John T. Bird, of Hunterdon, has been presented again as the Democratic candidate for Governor.—Mr. Bird received warm support in the last State Convention from Burlington county and if he wants it again we suppose he can have it, as he has lost none of his hold upon the hearts of our people, who are so well acquainted with him. He is a clear, cogent reasoner and his honor is untarnished. He would make an able Governor and would not compromise with his opponents out of mistaken notions of public policy.—Mt. Holly Herald.

Various Causes—

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its operation, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts. It contains neither oil nor dye and will not soil or color white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous. For sale by all dealers.

The present year will be a notable one politically. There is a President and Congress to elect, and in this State a Governor, seven members of Congress and a Legislature.

It is published at $2.50 per year, spot cash."

Invaluable for Rail road Men.

"I suffered for more than a year with indigestion and during the last six months I was very bilious, occasionally having a dumb chill, followed by fevers, which prostrated me. I took Simmons' Liver Regulator, and for several months I have been as stout and hearty as any man could desire to be. I am thoroughly satisfied that it is all it is recommended to be for indigestion and bilious complaints, for mine was certainly a stubborn case. I have heard many of my friends speak of it, and all agree that it possesses all the virtues you claim for it. A. H. HIGHTOWER, Conductor M. and W. R. R."

An official of the Philadelphia Mint says that the demand for cents is so great that the orders cannot be promptly filled. "There are parts of the country," he adds, "where they are as rare as gold dollars are here. In the South the cent is almost unknown, the smallest coin being a five-cent piece. Recently, however, there has been some demand for them from merchants in Georgia and Alabama. In the far West there is but little call for them, but when one gets to St. Louis, or east of that point, then the cent becomes familiar."

Under a recent act of Congress pensions will commence from the date of the discharge or death of a soldier; but only a few short months are allowed claimants in which to file their claims. Under this law a pensioner will now receive as a first payment the sum of $1,000 or more, and $8 per month thereafter. A pensioner on account of the death or disability of an officer will receive much larger [illegible]. Pensions allowed all officers and soldiers who were in the Army or Navy of the late war, for wounds, disease, rupture, blindness, deafness or other injury; also to their widows and children; also to mothers and fathers, also to all 1812 soldiers and their widows. There are hundreds in this section who are justly entitled and don't know it. If you are in doubt call on me at my office and I will cheerfully give you the necessary information without charge, and in any event I make no charge until the pension is allowed and you receive the money thereon, then only ten dollars as fixed by law. MISCELLANEOUS READING.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

After all, we way-station telegraph operators are not without our little bit of romance, occasionally, and I think I can show that we are not entirely without a certain amount of responsibility, but it is seldom if ever recognized, unless one of our member by carelessness suddenly plunges a train into destruction by failing to deliver or understand orders. The time of which I write was one pleasant afternoon in the early autumn the 27th of September, 1876, and as the occurrence has made a deep and vivid impression on my mind, I cannot forget the day, which was Friday. At that time I had been an agent and operative on the —— railroad a little over three months. The line was directly through parts of Indiana and Illinois, and some of the stations had no telegraph office; consequently the order distance was somewhat lengthy, and there was but one office between mine and Cowans, twelve miles west.—On this day I was quietly puffing my meerschaum in the little bay-window of my office, wishing for something to relieve the monotony, when the operator at Cowans called the train dispatcher, and said an engine had sprung her throttle with 140 pounds of steam, and gone east, while the fireman had gone to lunch, and the engineer, who was filing around had no time to get on.—All was still as death for a minute, when the dispatcher began to call C——, the only office between mine and Cowans. For fully five minutes he called him, using the signal "13," which means death, but still no answer, and still the monotonous click of the armature. Presently he answered in a dazed, hurried manner, and when asked about the engine, said it had passed there at a fearful rate of speed at 4:14 o'clock, with no person visible. It was only six miles more to me, and an excursion was on its way west with a heavy load of tired picnickers, and had actually left a station only eight miles east of me, the first telegraph office, at 4:02 o'clock.—The dispatcher called me furiously, and being at hand expectant, I answered immediately. When he said, "Turn your switch and wreck engine No. 11, going east wild." I replied quickly, "I cannot without an indemnity order," and after a hasty consultation with the superintendent, as I afterward learned, he went ahead with an order, whose unusual form and wording roused many a "brass pounder" from a doze. It was like this:

"To Operator—Wreck wild engine No. 11 at your eastern switch gate to save collision. Company will uphold and defend you. D. B. R."

I immediately returned my "13 or understanding," received my "correct at 4:17 p. m.," and turned to look for the engine, when, although the conversation between myself and the dispatcher had consumed but four minutes, I saw her coming at the grandest rate of speed I ever witnessed, and snatching my order, I ran to the switch-gate, about 150 feet, and when I had unlocked and thrown the rail, the roaring monster was only about 150 feet away. I had my watch in my hand and stepped quickly back out of harm's way when at exactly 4:20 she went over, and such an unearthly crash I hope I may never see or hear again! The dirt and stones flew fifty feet in the air, the engine turned clear over, and stopped on her side, pushing a splinter of the cab on the whistle-valve, and there she lay, a seething, hissing, screeching mass of rubbish. But above the din and rattle I heard one wild, despairing shriek for help, and when I could get close enough to see anything I found what, had it not been for the face, would never have been recognized as a man in the crushed and bleeding mass of flesh that lay under the huge driver, but the face was without a scar, and by that was recognized as an escaped madman, who, it seems, had climbed on the engine at Cowans unobserved, and pulling the throttle open, had started on a wild, awful ride to the gates of death. When the excursion train came up ten minutes later, they said they found me standing by the engine, gazing alternately at the bloody driver and my written order, still tightly clasped in my hand. I was unconscious of everything save the fact that I had obeyed orders, and had thereby taken a life. They say I fainted, but I know nothing from the instant I discovered that white, bloodless face until four days after, when I awakened apparently out of a dream. My first question was, "Did the excursion get in safely?"—San Francisco Call.

WOMANLY MODESTY.

Man loves the mysterious. A cloudless sky and a full blown rose leave him unmoved; but the violet which hides its blushing beauties behind the bush, and the moon when emerging from behind a cloud, are to him sources of inspiration and of pleasure. Modesty is to merit what shade is to a figure in painting—it gives boldness and prominence. Nothing adds more to female beauty than modesty. It sheds around the countenance a halo of light which is borrowed from virtue. Botanists have given the rosy hue which tinges the cup of the white roses the name of "Maiden blush." This pure and delicate hue is the only paint Christian virtue should use. It is the richest ornament. A woman without modesty is like a faded flower diffusing an unwholesome odor, which the prudent gardener will throw from him. Her destiny is melancholy, for it terminates in shame and repentance. Beauty passes like the flower of the aloe, which blooms and dies in a few hours, but modesty gives a woman charms which supply the place of the transitory freshness of youth.

HOLD ON.

Hold on to your tongue when you are just ready to swear, lie, speak harshly, or use an improper word.

Hold on to your hand when you are about to strike, pinch, steal, or do an improper act.

Hold on to your temper when you are angry, excited, or imposed upon, or others are angry about you.

Hold to your heart when evil associates seek your company and invite you to join in their mirth and revelry.

Hold on to your name at all times; for it is of more value to you than gold, high places, or fashionable attire.

Hold on to the truth; for it will serve you well, and do you good throughout eternity.

Hold on to your virtue; it is above all price to you in all times and places.

Hold on to your good character; for it is and ever will be your best wealth.

A noted physician says sealskin is unhealthy. We always knew that this was what ailed the girls. And the rest would like to catch the disease.

* * *

A day or two ago a woman entered the telegraph office and said to the receiver of messages that she desired to telegraph her husband who was in Chicago, for money. He pointed her to the counter supplied with blanks and told her the rate for ten words. She struggled away for a quarter of an hour, and then handed in the following:

"Won't you please send me ten dollars by next mail?"

"I don't know whether that will do or not," she said as she felt for the money. "If you were to receive such a dispatch from your wife would you forward the money?"

"Well—well, I might," he replied in doubtful tones.

"Now you wait! I don't like the dispatch at all, because I tried to keep it within ten words. I'll write another."

She tore it up, walked over to the counter, and in three minutes handed in a new one, reading:

"Am out of food and fuel, and want ten dollars as soon as you get it here! If you can't spare it I'll spout the parlor carpet!"

"That would bring the money from me," said the receiver as he read the lines and marked the number of words.

"Then I guess it will from him. Send it along and if I don't get the money inside of two days you'll hear somebody ripping up forty yards of Brussel carpet off the floor."—Detroit Free Press.

What island do the ladies, as we see them on the street, remind us of? Manhatt-in.

* * *

History says that Eve first tempted Adam, but we have never heard her story.

* * *

Time is money, we suppose, but it never reduces the principal on a bad debt.

* * *

There are a great many people who will never go to heaven unless they can go at excursion rates.

* * *

All the clothes Adam had for a long time was the close of the day, while the mantle of night was his bed-clothes.

It hurts a man just about as much to burn him in effigy as it does to have his shadow on a stone wall butted by a goat.

* * *

The flower that was born to blush unseen went up the spout the other night by a can of kerosene. It was the cook.

* * *

A shirt has two arms, the same as pantaloons has two legs. Yet one is called a pair and the other is only one.

* * *

It is estimated that there were 35,000,000 sheep in 1878 in the United States, which produced a total of 210,000,000 pounds of wool.

* * *

The taxable property owned by the negroes of Georgia is valued at $5,182,398. Only four negroes in the State are worth over $10,000.

* * *

One way to tell whether a honey bee is alive or not is to try to push him across a table with your thumb. If he's alive, you'll know it.

* * *

"Sam, why am lawyers like fishes?" "I don't meddle with de subjec', Pomp." "Why, don't you see, nigga, 'cause dey am so fond ob debate."

* * *

Why was Goliath very much surprised when David slung the stone at him? Because such a thing never entered his head before.

* * *

The hardest thing in the world for a young woman to do is to look unconcerned the first time she comes out in a handsome engagement ring.

* * *

Some young ladies are opposed to the telephone. They say they do not care to have a young man whispering in their ears, with his mouth twenty miles away.

* * *

Keep up with the procession of life, young man; right up in front where the band is. If you ever fall to the rear, where the elephants are, you are apt to be walked on.

* * *

When you deprive a boy of the privilege of taking off his coat and vest together at one pull and leaving his boots in the middle of the floor, what do you expect he has to live for?

* * *

A bridal couple from Washoe Valley at breakfast at Reno conversed as follows: He—"Shall I skin you a persimmon, honey?" She—"No, thank you, deary. I have one already skun."

* * *

There's a song entitled, "My love loves me." Perfectly ridiculous! Whom the dickens should she love but you, in case she is your love? Better get up a song and head it, "When my stomach aches it hurts no one but me."

* * *

It is strange how the sudden opening of a parlor door will send two people to the ends of a sofa and set them to counting the figures in the carpet. There must be something powerful in the draft of air to blow human beings around in that way.

* * *

"Men should not allow their wives to split wood," says a mild contemporary. This is rather inconsiderate. How can a man refuse, when his wife comes up with tears in her eyes, and says, "Now do, dear, let me go down cellar and split wood for an hour to get up an appetite."

* * *

A three year old little girl was taught to close her evening prayer, during the temporary absence of her father, with, "And please watch over my papa." It sounded very sweet, but the mother's amazement may be imagined when the child added, "And you'd better keep an eye on mamma, too."

* * *

About this time the twelve year old lad, who was excluded from his older sister's swell party, gets revenge by teaching the innocent, lisping baby to ask her, in the presence of the family, why she kissed, in the observatory, Mr. Start, a young man whom she and all the family, especially her papa, dislikes.

Mt. Prospect
Vineyards
WINE

SPEER'S PORT GRAPE WINE!
FOUR YEARS OLD.

This Celebrated Native Wine is made from the juice of the Oporto Grape, raised in this Country. Its Invaluable

Tonic and Strengthening Properties

are unsurpassed by any other Native Wine. Being the pure juice of the Grape, produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed. The youngest child may partake of its generous qualities, and the weakest invalid use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated, and suited to the various ailments that affect the weaker sex. It is in every respect A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

SPEER'S
P. J. SHERRY,

The P. J. SHERRY is a Wine of Superior character, and partakes of the golden qualities of the grape from which it is made. For Purity, Richness, Flavor and Medicinal Properties, it will be found unexcelled.

SPEER'S
P. J. BRANDY.

This Brandy stands unrivaled in this Country, being far superior for medicinal purposes.

It is a Pure Distillation from the grape, and contains valuable medicinal properties.

It has a delicate flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled, and is in great favor among first-class families.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.

Sold by H. P. Reynolds, R. J. Shaw and W. H. Voorhees, Druggists.

LEGAL NOTICES.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SETTLEMENT.—Notice is hereby given, that the account of the subscriber, administrator, with the will annexed, of Jane De Forrest, deceased, will be audited and stated by the Surrogate, and reported for settlement to the Orphans' Court of the County of Union, on Wednesday the Twenty-eighth day of January next.

Dated Nov. 6, 1879. JOHN B. BROWN.

LEGAL NOTICES.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—In Chancery of New Jersey. Between John H. [illegible], complainant, and Isaac D. Pierson, et al., defendants. Fi. fa., for sale of mortgaged premises.

By virtue of the above stated writ of fieri facias to me directed, I shall expose for sale by public vendue at the Court House, in the city of Elizabeth, N. J., on at two o'clock p. m., in the first place, that portion of said premises comprised in the mortgage in complainant's bill, first mentioned, and described as follows:

The first tract of said land and premises, situate in township of Westfield, in the said county of Union, late Essex, and State of New Jersey, known as the homestead farm of Sylvanus Pierson, deceased: Beginning at a stake on the northwest side of the main road leading out of the village of Westfield to Springfield, being also the east corner of now or late Mr. March's land; thence (1) binding on said now or late March's land, north [illegible] degrees and fifty minutes west [illegible] chains and thirty-two links to a post at an angle of said now or late March's land; thence (2) still on said now or late March's land north fifteen degrees and thirty-three minutes east three chains and seventy-seven links to a stake on the west side of a gum tree, three links from the centre thereof; thence (3) still binding on said now or late March's land north forty-three degrees east eight chains and forty-six links to a stake on the southwest side of a road leading from the first mentioned road toward the mountain; thence (4) binding on the southwest side of the last mentioned road south forty-five degrees and forty-five minutes east thirteen chains and sixty-eight links to the intersection of the last with the first mentioned road; thence (5) binding on the northwest side of the first-mentioned road south forty-six degrees and thirty minutes west thirteen chains and ninety links to the place of beginning: containing sixteen acres and fifty-five one-hundredths of an acre be the same more or less.

The second tract of said land and premises situate in the said township of Westfield, county and State aforesaid, on the northerly side of the said Elizabethtown road, and is the same tract of land that David Ross, jr., conveyed to William Pierson by a deed bearing date the twenty-sixth day of March, A. D., 1795. Beginning at a stone on the northerly side of said road, being a corner of a lot of land that John D. Pierson purchased of the executors of Jacob Baker, deceased; thence (1) binding on said road north eighty-eight degrees and thirty minutes west sixteen chains and twenty-five links to a stone in another corner of said Jacob Baker's land; thence (2) binding on his land north forty-five degrees east twelve chains and eighty-six links to another corner of said Pierson's land; thence (3) still binding on said Pierson's land, south forty-one degrees and fifteen minutes east four chains and seventy links to a stake or stone; thence (4) binding on the said Baker lot [illegible] to the place of beginning, containing [illegible] and four-tenths of an acre of land be the same more or less.

The third tract or lot of said lands and premises is situate in the line of the first mountain in the said township of Westfield, county and State aforesaid, and was conveyed to Sylvanus Pierson by Jonathan Badgley and Lydia, his wife, and Stephen Clark and Elizabeth, his wife, by two separate deeds of conveyance bearing date respectively the first day of March, A. D., 1820, and the fourteenth day of August, A. D., 1820, and is herein described in one lot. Beginning at a stake and stones in the line of land formerly of Sutton Bell, deceased, near the highway; thence (1) according to the first mentioned deed along the highway nearly west seven chains and seventy-six links to a pile of stones; thence (2) according to the last named deed along the line now or late of the heirs of John Potter, deceased, in a direct course two chains and fifty-seven links to a stake on the north side of the road in the Potter line, and a corner of land formerly of Ichabod Clark, deceased; thence (3) on the said Clark line south forty-six degrees east [illegible] chains and fifty-nine links to a stake in the line of land formerly of James Mooney, deceased; thence (4) binding on the said Mooney line south fifty-one degrees east two chains and [illegible] links to a stake in a corner of another lot of said Ichabod Clark; thence (5) on the line of the last lot north forty-six degrees west five chains and [illegible]-one links to a pile of stones in a corner of said Ichabod Clark's lot; thence (6) according to the first mentioned deed and of the said Ichabod Clark about east seven chains and sixty-five links to a stake and pile of stone; thence (7) along the said Bell line north forty-six degrees west five chains eighty-five links to the place of beginning: containing seven acres of land, be the same more or less.

And also all the estate, right, title and interest of the said Silas D. Pierson, of, in and to the following described three several tracts or parcels of land and premises, in the township of Westfield, county and State aforesaid:

The first tract—Beginning at a stake standing in the line of the southwest end of now or late Jonas Williams' lot, and the northernmost corner of Ephraim Williams; from thence with Jonas Williams' line and binding thereon north forty-nine degrees west eleven chains and ten links to a stake in Moses DeCamp's line; thence with it, and binding thereon south forty degrees forty-eight minutes west two chains ninety-four links to John Tucker's corner; thence with his line and binding on it south forty-nine degrees east five chains ninety-two links to another of said Tucker's corners and binding on said Tucker; thence with said Tucker's line and binding on it south forty degrees forty-eight minutes west five chains ninety-two links to another of said Tucker's corners; thence south forty-nine degrees east three chains sixty-nine links to E. Williams' line binding on the residue of the said E. Williams' line; and binding thereon running north fifty degrees east eight chains ninety-three links to the place of beginning; containing six acres more or less.

The second tract—Beginning at an old oak stump, which is the corner of now or late Samuel Richards' and James Bell's land; and running south forty-nine and one-half degrees east thirty-five links to a stake; thence south one chain seventy links to a stone; thence south eighty-two and one-half degrees west two chains and forty-seven links to a stone in Enoch Bell's line; thence north forty-three and one-half degrees east to the place of beginning.

The third tract—Beginning on the main road from Elizabethtown to Plainfield, between Sylvanus Pierson's residence and Eli Mansey's manufacturing establishment; lot of the lot fifty feet front and rear by one hundred and fifty feet deep, it being the house and lot William Hayes occupied a number of years.

And in the second place, that portion of the premises comprised in the mortgage in complainants' bill secondly mentioned and described as follows:

All that lot of land and premises being the undivided half part of a lot of salt meadow, situate at Trembly's Point in the township of Rahway, and State of New Jersey, devised by William Pierson to his sons Sylvanus Pierson and John D. Pierson, in and by his last will and testament. Beginning at a stake in the forks of a creek, sometimes called Frazer's creek; thence (1) up a branch of said creek north fifty-four degrees west eleven chains to a stake near the head of said branch; thence (2) north thirty-two degrees east two chains and ninety-eight links to a stake in the line of meadow formerly of Ichabod Ross, deceased, now or late meadow of Isaac French; thence (3) binding on said now or late French's meadow and the aforesaid creek south fifty-four degrees east ten chains to a bend in said creek; thence (4) along down said creek in a southerly direction as it runs to the place of beginning; containing in the whole three acres of salt meadow be the same more or less.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST--SUPPLEMENT.

Second Annual Message

OF HIS EXCELLENCY,

GEORGE B. McCLELLAN,

GOVERNOR OF NEW JERSEY,

To the Legislature--Session of 1880.

Gentlemen of the Senate and General Assembly:

With the advent of another year it again becomes my duty to present for your consideration a brief outline of the condition of the Commonwealth.

So far as concerns the people at large, the State Government and the vast majority of the local subdivisions of the State, that condition is eminently satisfactory.

I shall not enter upon the details of the various funds and expenditures of the State, but will refer you to the very satisfactory and excellent reports of the Comptroller and Treasurer, wherein will be found in a connected and intelligible form all the information needed to give you a complete knowledge of the subject.

During the financial year just now terminated it has not been necessary to contract any temporary loans, as there has always been more than enough money in the treasury to meet the current demands, so that at its close all balances of appropriations then due had been paid, and the only existing indebtedness was the outstanding war debt, which was then two million ninety-six thousand and three hundred dollars ($2,096,300), and which at the date of this message has been reduced to one million nine hundred and ninety-six thousand three hundred dollars ($1,996,300).

SINKING FUND.

When these bonds were issued it was arranged that about one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) should fall due on the 1st of January in each year, until all be paid, so that it is not within the power of the State to call them in and replace them by new bonds bearing a lower rate of interest.

With the steadily increasing prosperity now prevailing throughout the State, it will naturally be within the power of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund to collect hereafter the interest due on mortgages more closely, without undue and hurtful pressure upon debtors. During the disastrous period following the financial crisis of 1873, not only did real estate decline very materially in nominal value, but for a long time it was almost impossible to sell it at any price, so that in all cases where debtors to the Sinking Fund were really unable to meet their interest obligations, or to pay the principal when falling due, great care, discretion and delicacy of treatment were necessary.

It evidently is not the interest of the State to become the owner of mortgaged property if it can be avoided, because such ownership requires, especially with regard to farming land, a constant and large expenditure to prevent deterioration, with very little probability of deriving income from it. If, during the period in question, the policy had been pursued of rigidly foreclosing and offering at public sale all property upon which the interest was not promptly paid, the result would have been either that a great deal of that property would have been sold for much less than the amount of the mortgage, or that the State would have been forced to bid it in, and thus become possessed of a very large amount of land, entailing a heavy annual expense for maintenance, a large and costly force of inspectors, with little or no immediate return.

It has, therefore, justly, I am confident, been deemed wise and proper to avoid foreclosure in all cases where there was a reasonable probability that, with a little leniency and forbearance, the debtors would be able to meet their obligations.

Under the existing conditions of constantly improving prosperity, there is every reason to feel assured that the State will soon begin to reap the benefit of the considerate policy pursued, and that hereafter the collection of interest due and the sale of such property as has unavoidably come into the possession of the State will be as favorable as can be desired; but it must not be expected that these results will be reached immediately—the depression of all business interests, the losses from depreciation and stagnation, have been so great that some time is necessary for the new and more favorable conditions to produce their full effect.

The laws regulating the disposition of the Sinking Fund appear to be well adapted to the existing condition of affairs, and I do not think that any modification is called for or desirable at present.

STATE FUND.

The condition of the State Fund is eminently satisfactory. Mainly from the diminished rate of taxation, and for other reasons fully explained in the Comptroller's report, the receipts for 1879 were about three hundred and seventy-six thousand dollars ($376,000) less than during the preceding year; but, in consequence of the payment of all outstanding claims during the year 1878, and of diminished expenditures for 1879, the bank balance to the credit of the State Fund on the 31st October, 1879, was three hundred and sixteen thousand six hundred and eighty-eight dollars and ninety cents ($316,688.90), as against a balance of one hundred and nineteen thousand seven hundred and ninety-three dollars and sixty-five cents ($119,793.65) on October 31, 1878, an increase of one hundred and ninety-six thousand eight hundred and ninety-five dollars and twenty-five cents ($196,895.25).

STATE TAX.

It is now abundantly clear that the successive reductions in the rate of the State tax effected by your predecessors in 1878 and 1879 were wise and proper, and I now earnestly recommend to your favorable consideration the proposition to remove the State tax entirely.

You will find in the Comptroller's Report a perfectly satisfactory and clear statement of the case, from which it will appear that, with the balances now on hand, the receipts of the State Fund, independently of those derived from the State tax, will hereafter suffice to meet the necessary expenses, allowing a large margin for contingencies.

I see no reason to believe that it will ever again be necessary to impose a State tax, with the single condition that the appropriations are confined within reasonable limits, and that the honesty and economy which the people have the right to expect—and which they will certainly demand—are also exercised in the future.

Should any extraordinary and large expenditure become necessary or expedient, the means to meet it must be provided in some special manner.

If the State tax is not entirely removed either there will result a large idle and entirely unnecessary accumulation of money in the treasury, or there will follow a lavish expenditure for unprofitable and useless purposes.

No Government which is supported by taxation has any moral right to draw money unnecessarily from the people; its expenditures, while ample to carry into effect the true objects for which it is created, should never exceed what is required to insure that effectual protection of the lives and well-being of the people and that encouragement of their interests which are fundamental purposes of all good government.

Instead of retaining large sums unemployed in the treasury, or encouraging unnecessary expenditures, it is far better for us to leave the money in the pockets of the people, for by them will it be best employed in increasing the wealth of the State and in the development of its resources.

The strain upon our people has been so great of late years, and amid their private embarrassments they have met so patiently and cheerfully the demands of public taxation that they are fairly entitled to that diminution of their burdens which it is now practicable and convenient to afford them.

There is another very important consideration in this connection which cannot safely be overlooked, and that is, that the larger the unnecessary revenue accruing to any government, whether of a large or small community, the greater will always be the tendency to extravagance in all directions.

This is a quality of human nature which may be deplored, but is, nevertheless, well established by experience, and cannot be disregarded. It is not necessary to go beyond our own country to find an example of the effect upon men's minds and habits when they become accustomed to consider and to handle very large amounts of money.

It follows from this that the only safe course is to keep down the revenues of the State to the amount required by a liberal although strict estimate of the expenses necessary for the working of the government, and a wise encouragement of the development of private industries, which will increase the wealth and well being of the people, and consequently the taxable resources of the State.

Therefore, I again urge upon you the entire abolition of the State tax, confident that you will agree with me in the conclusions reached.

At this point let me again impress upon you, and upon the taxpayers of the State, those considerations which I laid before the last Legislature in regard to the expenditures of the subdivisions of the State.

When you have accepted the proposition to dispense with the State tax, our taxpayers will be brought face to face with the far more weighty burden under which many of them labor.

It is the duty and interest of the taxpayers to watch with the most careful scrutiny the operations and expenditures of the counties, towns, and municipalities, for it is just there that they must seek and can find relief.

I am glad to believe that during the past year far more than usual attention has been paid to these subjects, and I again urge their importance in the strongest possible terms, all the more so at the present time, because after the State tax is removed, there will be no possibility of diverting attention from the evils near every man's door by an attempt to mingle the State and local taxes, so that the tax-payers cannot tell how much they pay on each account.

I trust that the reviving prosperity of the people will only serve to induce them to give more attention to the affairs of their respective local governments, not only to prevent any attempt at new extravagance, but also that wise measures may be adopted to take advantage of the improved condition of affairs in order to meet and, as far as possible, reduce existing indebtedness.

With entire confidence in the wisdom, good sense and honesty of the people of our State, I leave this matter to you and to them, with the earnest hope that those of mature years will not only perform their own public duties with energy and zeal, but will teach their children by precept, as well as by example, that it is creditable and profitable to fulfill the duties imposed upon every citizen of a Republic, and also that loss and disgrace are the well merited results to those who neglect them.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

There is nothing unusual to notice in regard to the working of the school system, except a decrease in the product of the "two mill school tax" of a little more than sixty-one thousand dollars ($61,000), as compared with the preceding year. This results from the depreciation of value in the taxable property, and will probably soon rectify itself. Whatever inconveniences may result from this decrease should be met in the school districts by an increase of the district school tax, when necessary, rather than by increasing the two mill tax.

I have seen no reason to change the views expressed in my last annual message in regard to public education.

I regret that obstacles have intervened to prevent the establishment of Technical Schools, but I believe that the way is now essentially clear, and that before the meeting of the next Legislature the system will be in operation. As to the necessity for such a system, the lapse of time and riper reflection only add to the strength of my conviction, that its successful introduction is imperatively demanded by the best interests not only of the working classes, but of all connected with the manufacturing and mechanical industries of the State.

CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS.

The arrangements for the care of those who are proper objects of the charity of the State remain unchanged.

Our own charitable institutions have been managed to my satisfaction during the past year, while the care awarded to the deaf and dumb, the blind and the feeble-minded in the admirable institutions of our neighboring States has been all that could be desired. I am still decidedly of the opinion that it is the interest neither of the State, nor of the recipients of its care, to establish institutions of our own as long as those in New York and Pennsylvania will consent to take charge of these interesting wards of the State.

I would also beg to repeat my conviction that if, in the future, it should prove desirable or necessary to retain these unfortunates within our own borders, it will prove far more desirable to do the work through private corporations, aided by the same paid by the State for the instruction and care of its wards, than to establish State institutions.

The Reform School at Jamesburg has been well managed during the year.

The Hospital and an additional Family Building erected since the last report afford all the accommodation that is now necessary. I think that it should now be laid down as a principle that no increase in the present capacity of this excellent establishment should be permitted for some years to come; that the administration of the institution should be regulated upon that principle, and that it should be so arranged as to pass the boys through the school in the shortest time consistent with the fulfillment of the purposes of its establishment.

It would appear probable that good results could be reached by endeavoring to place the reformed boys on farms in the far west, so that, remote from the scenes of their early trials and temptations and under new influences, they might more readily carve out for themselves useful and honorable careers.

The report of the Trustees of the State Industrial School for Girls will give you all the information desirable in regard to this well-managed institution.

The building formerly used as a Home for Soldiers' Children is now in good repair, and the cost of its care and maintenance is very moderate. It is recommended that the State retain possession of this building with the ultimate purpose of converting it into a State Arsenal, for which it is well adapted.

There is an old balance of two thousand dollars ($2,000) in State bonds to the credit of this institution, and I recommend that the requisite authority be given to cancel and withdraw these bonds.

STATE PRISON.

The administration of this institution has been entirely satisfactory, and is explained in the usual reports submitted herewith. For reasons fully set forth therein, the receipts from the labor of convicts have fallen off; on the other hand, the expenses have decreased, but not to the same extent.

It seems probable that the present year will yield better financial results.

The necessity for a chapel at the Prison, and an extension of the area of the grounds, yet remains to be satisfied. I have seen no reason to change the views expressed in regard to this general subject in my last annual message.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

The care of the health of our population is a growing public concern, to which the State Board of Health is giving faithful attention. The work of the Bureau of Vital Statistics is now producing satisfactory results in securing more complete returns, which are now made available as never before both for legal reference and vital study.

The labors of the Board deserve careful consideration and high appreciation.

STATE GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

The State Geologist has completed a new map of the northeastern portion of the State, covering an area of more than seven hundred square miles, and showing by contour lines the elevations above the sea level; also a map showing the economical geology of the State, its soils, limestones, marls, iron ores, zinc ores, &c.

The appropriation for this work expires with the current year, and it is for the present Legislature to decide as to its continuance. Under the present Board of Managers and State Geologist the labors of the Geological Survey have been prosecuted with the utmost economy, wisdom and success.

Whether it be accidental or not, it is nevertheless true, that the increase in the prosperity of the State has been greatest since the inception and steady prosecution of the work of ascertaining and laying before the public its advantages through the medium of the Geological Survey.

Small in area, but rich in natural resources, and remarkably favored in situation, it is pre-eminently the interest of our State and the duty of its government that we should do all in our power to bring its advantages to light.

In view of the economy with which the work has been prosecuted, the magnitude of the results already achieved, and the consideration that much yet remains to be done to complete this most necessary work, I strongly recommend the continuance of the usual appropriation for another five years.

PLEURO-PNEUMONIA.

At the last session of the Legislature an act was passed authorizing and requiring the Governor to take such steps as might prove necessary to prevent the spread of pleuro-pneumonia among the cattle of this State. Accompanying this message will be found the report of the agent to whom I entrusted the execution of the law. He has performed his duty intelligently, thoroughly and economically—to my entire satisfaction.

I commend the report together with the accompanying documents, to your attention.

Although careful inspections showed that the disease was not so widely spread throughout the State as had been feared, yet it was made clear that it existed to a dangerous extent, and that it was necessary to use the power granted by the law to protect the owners of cattle.

The disease is now well under control, but it is necessary to maintain a close supervision over it for some time to come.

The existence of five hundred and seventy-two cases has been officially reported, of which three hundred and fifteen have been destroyed, leaving two hundred and fifty-seven cases on hand, which will soon be disposed of by natural or other causes.

But the extirpation of the disease where it now exists in the State is a small part of the work to be done; it is necessary to do all that is reasonably practicable to prevent the introduction of new cases from abroad.

The quarantine established on the frontiers of the State accomplishes all that can be expected in this regard.

In consequence of the rigid system adopted in New York, we have no trouble in that direction, and it is now a comparatively easy matter to afford mutual protection.

On the Pennsylvania side the case is different, for the disease, unfortunately, exists extensively in that State, and as its extirpation does not appear to have been seriously undertaken there, we are obliged to rely upon ourselves for protection.

The number of cattle in this State is so great, and their aggregate value so considerable—two hundred and thirty-six thousand seven hundred cattle valued at seven million eight hundred and twenty-eight thousand nine hundred and twenty-two dollars ($7,828,922)—and the well-being of so many persons depends upon the preservation of this important interest, that I regard it as obligatory to continue the work so well begun.

The work of quarantine on our borders being effectually continued we will soon, I am confident, be able to expel the disease from the State, and the expense of carrying the law into effect can soon be reduced to a mere trifle in comparison with the interests at stake.

The most expensive period of the work has passed. We have already been able to reduce the current expenses very considerably, and there will continue to be a constant reduction until that minimum is reached which will simply enable us to protect the frontiers and to examine promptly any new cases that may appear within the State.

I have no doubt as to the necessity and propriety of continuing the work. It is probable that by the time another Legislature assembles we will be in a condition to carry into effect a simple and cheap system which will afford permanent protection.

I should fail in my duty did I not express my sense of obligation to the various transportation companies of the State, as well as those which merely touch our frontiers, for the manner in which they have aided our officials in carrying out the law.

Our own cattle owners also deserve great credit for the good sense and kind feeling they have almost universally displayed in co-operating in the execution of a law which, while intended for their benefit, nevertheless not infrequently interfered with their convenience and sometimes with their apparent immediate interests.

LABOR AND INDUSTRIES.

This bureau has pursued its labors unremittingly during the year, and it is apparent that its work is becoming better understood by the people of the State; as a consequence the distrust and apathy which prevailed last year are gradually passing away.

The returns from many of the industries of the State are quite full, and some branches of manufacture show a considerable increase of business over the year previous, but up to the present only a small advance in the rate paid for labor appears to have taken place.

The rapid growth of the silk industry of the State is a notable instance of what energy combined with capital and skill can accomplish.

Attention has been directed, as suggested in my last message, to the unoccupied lands in the southern part of the State, and a chapter in the present report sets forth some of the advantages which that section offers to agriculturalists. I am satisfied that the tide of emigration once turned toward that part of the State will continue to flow steadily.

The question respecting industrial development still prominently engages the attention of the Bureau. The importance of the fibrous industry, once established, is fully demonstrated in this report, and its furtherance sought in the form of bounties.

I feel assured that the usefulness of this bureau will increase from year to year.

STATE LIBRARY.

The United States Courts having discontinued the use of accommodations in the State House, the available annual resources for the increase and maintenance of the State Library will hereafter be diminished more than one-half. I recommend to your consideration the propriety of increasing the annual appropriation to at least two thousand dollars ($2,000).

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

The strength of the National Guard is essentially the same as it was a year ago; no additional organizations have been created, but all proper efforts have been made to increase the efficiency of the force

The necessary steps have been taken to ensure, as a permanent system, the regular instruction in target practice, both in the armories during the winter and on the ranges in summer.

I am gratified to be able to state that the results are already very satisfactory, showing a marked improvement in marksmanship and discipline.

So far as concerns the equipments, camp equipage, ammunition, etc., everything is on hand to enable the division to enter upon active service without delay.

I must be permitted once more to express the conviction that there are few subjects more deserving of the care of the State than its National Guard.

In accordance with the views expressed by me in other messages, I have endeavored, and I may assert successfully, to place the National Guard of this State in such condition as to enable it to preserve the peace within our own borders, without our calling for assistance from the general government or from any of our sister States.

Of course there is more or less to be done in many directions towards increasing the efficiency of the troops, especially in regard to field service, but they are now in condition to render prompt and valuable service in any probable contingency.

I trust that it may continue to be regarded as one of the traditions of the State that its National Guard is to be a permanent institution, whose efficiency and instruction are to be carefully pushed and never neglected.

The proposition which has been mooted to the effect that the general government should afford larger aid toward the organization and arming of the militia and National Guard has much in its favor, but I would prefer to see even the present annual allowance entirely taken away, rather than accept a very large aid coupled with any conditions which would tend to weaken the present absolute control of the State authorities over the National Guard and militia in time of peace, and which would give the General Government the slightest control and supervision, except over that part which may have been called out by the President, in the manner and under the circumstances provided in the Constitution of the United States.

There could be no more dangerous step toward a change in our form of government than such an one as this, and I trust that in this State such a change would be firmly and effectually resisted, should it ever be more seriously proposed, and that we shall always cling to that clause of the Constitution "reserving to the States respectively the appointment of the officers and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress."

It is not within the limits of probability that the regular army of the United States will ever, in time of peace, be of greater strength than is required to perform its legitimate work under such circumstances, i. e., the control of the savages in our western regions, the protection of our most exposed inland frontier against raids from across the line, and the care of our permanent fortifications.

That it should be sufficiently numerous to accomplish these purposes in an economical and efficient manner, and without throwing an undue strain and unjustifiable exposure upon its members, will no doubt be generally acknowledged.

But neither the probable necessities of the situation, nor considerations of economy, nor a due regard for the nature of the institutions under which we live, will justify or permit more than a liberal fulfilment of these conditions.

The maintenance of an efficient and well organized National Guard, kept within just limits as to numbers, is not only thoroughly in accord with the spirit of our institutions, but is rendered absolutely necessary by their very nature. Such a force weighs lightly upon the finances and resources of the individual States; keeps alive the military spirit, habits and knowledge of the people; furnishes the best possible means of suppressing internal troubles; is capable of performing admirable service in preventing or resisting foreign aggression, and is one of the best and most indispensable guards of the permanence of our free institutions. I confidently commit the interests of the National Guard to the care and wise liberality of yourselves and your successors.

PILOTAGE.

The Report of the Commissioners of Pilotage very properly calls attention to the necessity of some legislative action in regard to the preservation of the channels in the navigable waters of the State. During the last session of the Legislature an act (known as Senate Bill, No. 35) was passed for the better protection of the tide waters of the State of New Jersey. It unfortunately proved to be the case, when at the close of the session the act was laid before me for approval, that, although it was in the main an excellent bill, it had been so drawn as to bring it within the scope of constitutional and other objections, so that I was reluctantly obliged to withhold my signature.

SOLDIERS' HOME.

The report of the Managers of the Home for Disabled Soldiers asks that an extraordinary appropriation of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000) be made for the maintenance of the establishment during the current year.

After a careful examination of the financial statements in the report, it appears clear to me that the balance on hand at the close of the fiscal year, together with the usual annual appropriation, will abundantly suffice for the necessities of the current year, so that I can see no good reason for any appropriation beyond the regular amount of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000).

COMMISSIONERS OF FISHERIES.

The attention of this board has been directed during the past year especially to the enforcement of the laws for the protection of the coast fisheries, the protection and improvement of our valuable shad fisheries, and the propagation and distribution of valuable food fishes in our inland waters. The benefit to the people of the State of a continuance of this work is beyond question, and I trust that the legislature will not fail to encourage the commissioners by proper legislation, as well as by making the necessary appropriations to enable them to carry out the plans indicated in their report, which gives a detailed account of their interesting operations for the year, and presents valuable suggestions for the future.

PRISON LABOR.

The Commissioners appointed in accordance with the act of the last Legislature to examine into the subject of prison labor, have concluded their work. They have given to the subject earnest thought and thorough investigation, and after weighing all arguments on both sides of the question involved, have presented a report that should command the earnest attention of the Legislature.

GENERAL LAWS.

In pursuance of a law of the last Legislature I appointed a Commission to draft general laws for the government of municipalities. The Commission has been engaged during the recess in the performance of the duties entrusted to them, having first visited various parts of the State for the purpose of examining the practical difficulties which they were required to meet. Under the authority given them, they will report directly to the Legislature by bill.

TAX COMMISSION.

The Commission created by the last Legislature for the revision of the tax laws, was duly appointed. They have effected an organization and given the subject considerable consideration, the result of which they will no doubt report to the Legislature.

CONCLUSION.

In reviewing the events of the past year we have every reason for intense gratitude to the Ruler of all things.

We have no wide-spread calamity to deplore, no epidemic has ravaged our State, the means of easy communication have been undisturbed, no new burdens have been added to those already borne by the people. If we have no great and general evils to deplore, we have, on the other hand, many positive blessings to enumerate.

Probably without exception every business interest in the State is in much better condition than a year ago; the number of the unemployed is reduced to the smallest limits, suffering and want are again banished from many homes where they have reigned only too long, justice has been promptly and rigorously administered. The attention of the people has been fixed upon the financial affairs of their local governments, so that it may be hoped that extravagance has been checked, and where any community is too deeply in debt, the fact being known, all possible remedies will be applied and the evil kept within the narrowest possible bounds.

It is no less a source of congratulation that all the institutions of the State have worked well in their appointed spheres, and that we are now enabled to remove the remainder of the State tax.

POETRY.

THE MARRIED MAN.

Down the street the married man
Starts off with buoyant tread,
But from the door a witty voice
Calls, "Don't forget the bread."

He smiles and nods, and turns to go,
That careless married man,
When loud the servant calls, "Oh!
You haven't got the can!"

He nods again, in restful style,
Just pulls down his hat,
And lo, his sister, with a smile,
Cries, "Won't you bring my hat?"

"Oh, yes," he shouts, and truth to tell,
He need not shout so loud;
But shrill his son, with stunning yell,
"Theatre tickets for the crowd!"

The daughter from the window nigh,
Stops him with her call,
She wants a fan, a pair of gloves,
And a new pink parasol.

He hears no more, far down the street
His echoing footsteps fly;
And all day long, in measure fleet,
He hums, "Sweet bay and buy."

And when the evening respite brings,
And his day's toil is done,
Though told to get a hundred things,
He hasn't got a one.

—Burlington Hawkeye.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

NOT TILL YOU WIN ME.

By all accounts it was more than a century ago that Miss Sally Waggs so astonished the people of Danbury, Conn., that they made the remark then, and were given to frequent repetitions of it afterward, that Sally Waggs would have made a great stir in the world had she been a man. Whether it was in 1779 or a few years earlier is not so certain as that it was just as the pumpkin pie of a New Year dinner had been eaten and the hickory nuts were brought from the pantry. It was while all the company was at this dinner that Miss Sally Waggs said a thing to the people that made the grandfather look very stern, and the son go for his gun, and the others, a dozen of them, old and young, forget the heaviness that followed their eating.

What Sally Waggs then said, and what she did for an hour or two thereafter, is a story that has been told in the old Scribner mansion on the Litchfield turnpike over nuts and cider at every New Year night since, and the freshness and delight of it are always the same. It was told this night again, and the faded coat that Sally wore was held up and reverently touched, as it had been on a hundred or more anniversaries.

Now the wonder of it all seems to have been that such a damsel as this young Sally Waggs should have turned such a corner in her manner of life of a sudden. For her character or rather her disposition, like her name, appears to have been, up to the time she was twenty years old, very flat. Moreover, her father, old Timothy Waggs, was of no more account in the community than to be regarded as just the man to dig the graves for the dead, and toll the bell for their funerals, and to touch off the swivel on Kick Hill at auspicious moments.

By reason of her father's business and position, and perhaps because of his name, Sally Waggs had nothing to commend her to anybody. And yet of all the girls in that day there was none who could milk a cow with her, nor sooner find one that had strayed into the woods. This doubtless led 'Squire Scribner to take her into his family for a help to his wife, and Mrs. Scribner used to say that she was past dispute stupid in speech and brisk about her work beyond comparison with any damsel thereabouts.

There happened to be at the dinner at which Sally made the revelation of herself, a young gentleman who was regarded as a man of parts, and especially worthy of consideration, because his father sent a brigantine to the West Indies from New Haven once in a while laden with goods and brought her back filled with sugar and whiskey.

This young fellow was thought to have addressed more than one missive to 'Squire Sribner's daughter Jerusha. At all events, he was friendly with the family, and tried his wit at a jest with Sally, and came off sadly worsted, because she said nothing to him, but only looked at him with a vacant stare in her brown eyes.

He did not like being laughed at, for he had vowed, as a jest, as he was coming home from the sermon, that he would make Sally Waggs say something that would astonish them that day.

"Ninepence ha' penny to a sixpence you fail," said the 'Squire.

"I'll win that, and wear the silver as a token," said young Lathrop.

So he said to Sally, as she brought a pitcher of cider in and put it by the 'Squire's place:

"Sally, what would you do if you were King George of England?"

She looked at him only, and the others smiled.

"Sally," he continued, perhaps a little irritated, "would you 'troth yourself to me if I asked you?"

"Not till you win me," she answered, without seeming to be conscious of any sharpness in the reply.

"And how could I win you?" he persevered.

"By fighting ten red coats at once."

"Only give me the chance and I'll do it."

Sally quitted the room for the nuts or some such desert, and young Lathrop demanded his silver piece of the 'Squire. But the old gentleman refused it, and they had an argument about the merits of the wager, that was so interesting and made such laughter that they minded not the lapse of time.

It was getting so dusk that the forms, but not the faces, were visible, and the 'Squire was for lighting the candles, when the kitchen door was thrown open.

"Don't you hear them?" said Sally Waggs. But as long as he lived, 'Squire Scribner insisted that it was not Sally Waggs who spoke, albeit he could not deny that her body stood in the doorway, and that her eyes, even in the dusk that the firelight brightened, sparkled, and her lips moved.

As for young Lathrop he was beyond all power of making out the meaning of it, so surprised was he; and surprised as he was, he was quick enough to see that there was something about this young woman's look and manner now that forced admiration from him.

"Will you be stupid?" she said, "will you sit there with your pig and pie driving you into a doze, and let them come and prison you and do worse for the women? You may sit still if so be it's your will, but I will fight them 'till they kill me."

She went to the corner of the room, and leaping upon a chest that stood there, reached up and took down a musket that hung upon the wall. Amazed as young Lathrop was at this action, it did not fail to escape his notice that the arm that she put up when she reached for the musket was worth more than a moment's notice, not only because of the whiteness, but also because of the graceful swell of it.

"What mean you, girl?" said Grandfather Scribner, whose mind went back to the year when the settlers in these parts were ready for surprises, and even went to meeting with their flintlocks for walking sticks.

"Tell me, where are your ears?" Sally answered, not yet dismounting from the table, but pouring powder from the horn into her hand, and a tremendous charge of shot, she loaded the weapon and then primed it. Then she put the butt upon the table, and bracing herself therewith, leaned over and opened the window.

"Listen, now," she said. "Hear you not the red-coat Britishers firing? They are coming this way. They'll arson the house as I live. See the light of the flames. Where can be the borough militia?"

The reports of musketry were distinct, and the light that came from over the hills showed the track of the invaders. Then it was that Grandfather Scribner seized the gun and the 'Squire seemed to awaken to the business before them.

"And you," said Sally Waggs, going up to young Lathrop; "will you stand there like Tom Perkin's lad at school with a dunce's cap on? What will you do? Will you go with us, or will you hide somewhere?"

Young Lathrop hesitated not a minute.

"In truth, Sally Waggs, you are a young woman of spirit. You'll not find me wanting."

Just then old Tim Waggs, faint with running and terror, came in, and, spite of his anxiety, his first thought was of his stomach, and he begged for a mug of hot flip, or cold, if they hadn't hot water ready. So they gave him a mighty mug of liquor that he made short ado with, and then told them that a handful of British had given the Continental coasters the slip, and were marching up from the coast, shooting, burning, robbing, and sad work of it they were making, too, he added. For their coming was so sudden, and so many of the young men were away with the Continentals, that the few lads who tried to stop them on Ridgefield Hill were of no more avail than a breath of wind.

"And they've heard of your cattle and whiskey, 'Squire Scribner, and it'll not be two hours later before they are here."

"How many are there, Tim, to the best of your knowledge?" asked the 'Squire.

"Not more than two dozen nor less than a score, 'Squire."

"But we are no match. There are only four men, including you, Tim, who are more likely to run than fight," said the 'Squire.

"Not more than four. I'll venture I'll give the red-coats cause to think that there are more than four, or twice four," said Sally Waggs.

"And what would you do, Sally?"

"This is what I would do and will do. Perceive the darkness coming; that will help us or I mistake. Now, father, go to the great barn and take the three lanterns and light them. Mr. Lathrop, you light the two you will find on the beam back of the kitchen oven, and 'Squire Scribner, if you have your heart in it, prepare powder and shot, and suffer grandfather to load the guns the while, and put no rabbit shot in the muzzles either. I will be back myself in the space of five minutes or thereabouts."

'Squire Scribner said long after that it surprised him, as he thought it all over, that he did not conjecture that this stupid girl was out of her head, instead of implicitly following the commands she gave them.

In five minutes, more or less, the form of a man appeared in the dining room with a gun in his hand, and so much of a stranger that the bewildered women were in a great state of consternation, and it was not until the man spoke with the voice of Sally Waggs, that confidence was restored.

Indeed, the form seemed that of a man, because Miss Sally had upon her head the cocked hat and on her body the regimental coat that Grandfather Scribner had worn in the French war, twenty years back, and as for the short clothes and stockings, or the arrangement by which Miss Sally made herself appear from the knees down like a heavy-limbed fellow was never explained.

"Five men of us," she said, and with no such thought of the picturesque, perhaps comical picture she made as flitted through the quick brain of young Lathrop.

She led them out to the hill that flanks the highway by which the British must come, a matter of a hundred rods from the house. Then she commanded her father to fasten the five lanterns to a long pole, and attach each end of that to a tree, and the moment she gave command he was, by such violent swinging of the pole, to make, by the confusion of the lights, the five lanterns seem as nearly like fifty as the alcohol in his nerves would permit.

Without one word of remonstrance 'Squire Scribner obeyed her, and got behind a tree, and Grandfather Scribner knelt, the better to steady his muscles, by a rock, while Capt. Sally and young Lathrop stood exposed.

By and by the British came along. They were merry with liquor, and Capt. Sally's army could hear their boasts of what would happen in the 'Squire's house within an hour.

Young Lathrop was for shooting when away out of range, and Capt. Sally found it necessary to give him a tap on the hip with the butt of her musket that made him wince before he came into discipline.

At last they got half a dozen of them in the ambush by the hillside.

"Now," whispered Capt. Sally, "when I give the military command, father, see to it that the lanterns quiver like fire-bugs, and we'll give them a reception from the 'Squire's farm that some of their mothers and sweethearts will lament."

Then she stepped out into full view with young Lathrop by her side. She waved her gun with as nearly like the encouraging motion which a commander gives his sword on entering actions as the weapon would permit, and then gave this astonishing order:

"Halt the whole universe, by flank into kingdom—fire!"

The military command astonished the British, but that was nothing to the surprise that followed the volley. Two or three went down, and one staggered, and when the others, looking up, saw the multitudinous display of flickering lanterns, they took no second thought as to whether they had better stay and fight, or go the other way. They went with all speed, not stopping to see who were left behind.

Now, of all the nursing and care that wounded soldiers had in all struggles of the Revolution, none had better than the three men whose bodies had been the targets of Capt. Sally's army, for Sally Waggs nursed them herself.

By the next day the Continental militia were on hand, and had driven these marauders back.

From this time on, Sally Waggs went on a new road. It seemed as if she had awakened that night from a sleep that had lasted since her birth. Her advice was wisdom, her courage inspiriting, and her ambition great. So great, in fact, that some years afterward she married young Lathrop and his ships and other possessions, and more than one of her descendants have been in high places since.

PUTTING ON AIRS.

WHAT TOOK THE FRILLS OUT OF ONE MAN.

He was a shrewd, white-haired old gentleman tourist, who sat sipping a lemonade in Baldwin's the other day, and who remarked, as a self-important looking individual came in and haughtily looked around:

"Now, I s'pose that gentleman is one of your bonanza fellows, and owns about two-thirds of the real estate around here?"

"No," was replied; "he's a much greater personage. He is one of the successful candidates at the late election."

"I might have known it!" exclaimed the old gentleman, emphatically. "He acts just as I did when I was elected to Congress."

"How was that?"

"Well, you see, I was elected M. C. from the fourth district just after the war. We had a pretty lively campaign of it, and as I'd never been in politics afore, I somehow got the idea that the whole country had quit work and was watching my contest with quivering anxiety. Every time the other side accused me of being a chicken-thief, or a bigamist, or something, I'd get back at them with a card in the Reeville Workshop, headed, 'Another Lie Nailed!' and I'd send a marked copy to every leading paper in the country."

"Did, eh!"

"Yes, and I was disgusted to find they never paid the slightest attention to me, neither. What surprised me more was that, although I kept the President and Cabinet advised of everything that occurred, I never got the slightest sympathy from any of them. I thought it was blamed singular."

"Didn't notice you at all?"

"Not at all, sir, and when I was elected, and the boys lighted a bonfire in the main street, and serenaded me, and I spoke for six hours in the open air as to my future course on the tariff and finances, the New York paper merely said that a 'Mr. Gunn had been elected by a small majority,' my name being Gonley, as you know."

"That was hard."

"Well, I put that all down to envy and malice, and started for Washington. I expected that at least the Speaker of the House and a committee appointed by the Senate would be down at the depot to welcome me to the capital."

"Did they do so?"

"The only persons who met me were a committee of hackmen, who tore my overcoat half off, rammed me into a hack and robbed me, with the aid and assistance of the hotel clerk, who then gave me a dark room on the top floor, and asked the first week's board in advance; said it was the rule of the house with Arkansas members."

"The impudent rascals."

"That's what I thought. Well, the next morning I went up to the White House to see if the President would like to stroll down to the House to introduce me and see me sworn in. I sent up my card, and in an hour or two some secretary or other sent back word that the President was at breakfast and couldn't be bothered."

"That was pretty short, wasn't it?"

"Well, I was just dumbfounded. However, I went down to the Capitol and told the Sergeant-at-Arms to go in and announce to the members that I had arrived. He grinned and said, 'That's pretty good, that is;' and rushed off. I expected that, of course, the members would come crowding up to congratulate me, and say something like, 'magnificent speech of yours—the last one—Gonley. Beat 'em by forty-eight votes, too, old fellow.' And then mebbe they'd give me three cheers, and all that sort of thing."

"And did they?"

"No, sir; I hope I may never stir if they didn't give me a back seat in the cloak-room until my name was called, and a doorkeeper fired me out into the corridor twice under the impression that I was a lobbyist. Well, after I had been put on the joint committee on spittoons and window washing, and spent a couple of months trying to wedge in my great four-hour speech on the match tax, something occurred that let down my check-rein, and took all the frills out of me for good."

"What was that?"

"Well, I was taking a drive out to the soldiers' home one afternoon with three members, when a light buggy went by like a streak of greased lightning, the trotter driven by a solemn-looking man in a rusty plug hat, who was smoking a cigar and steadying a small terrier on the seat with his elbow.

"'That's Butcher Boy,' said one of my companions, with great interest; 'trots in twenty. He's a rattling good stepper, bet your life.'

"'Did you notice that dog?' said another. 'Best bred pup in town; tail no bigger than a rat's; very fine dog, that.'

"As I had nothing else to say I casually inquired who the driver was?'

"'Why, that's the President,' said one of them with a yawn. 'By Jove! how I'd like to have one of those pups!'

"That settled it. I've been as meek and sad as a car-horse pulling a picnic, ever since."—San Francisco Post.

When you can say of a man that religion has got hold of his pocketbook, you may be reasonably sure that his religion is the right kind.

God does not love us because Christ died; for Christ died because God loved us. God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son.

True friendship is a plant of slow growth, and must undergo and withstand many shocks of adversity before it is entitled to the appellation.

To fill the sphere which Providence appoints is true wisdom; to discharge trusts faithfully and live exalted ideas, that is the mission of good men.

The work that is to tell in heaven must be that which is done on purpose for heaven. The work that is done for earth goes down with us to our graves.

In the depth of the sea the water is still; the heaviest grief is born in silence; the deepest love flows through the eyes and touch; the purest joy is unspeakable.

The drip of water hollows out, at last, the hardest stone; by industry and patience the mouse gnaws through a ship's rope; and by little strokes the great oak falls.

Life is one unbroken chain of cause and effect, action and consequence, and that, when we have chosen and done, we must accept the results from which no man can deliver us.

Religion stands upon two pillars, namely: What Christ did for us in his flesh and what he performs in us by his Spirit. Most errors arise from an attempt to separate these two.

He that speaks ill of another, commonly before he is aware, makes himself such a one as he speaks against; for if he had civility or breeding, he would forbear such kind of language.

JOHNSON'S WITNESS.

A farmer named Johnson was on trial before a Detroit Justice the other day for assault and battery, and when the prosecution had finished he put a little old man of about 65 on the stage as a witness. The lawyer began:

"What is your name?"

"If you'll tell me your name I'll tell you mine!" was the prompt answer.

"Where do you reside?"

"I won't answer no such foolish question; I've paid taxes in this county for fifty years, and I won't be talked to as if I was a child."

"Well, Mr. Blank, you saw this difficulty, did you?"

"If I hadn't seen it would I be here? Do you 'spose I want to be arrested for forgery?"

"How did it begin?"

"How does anything begin?" snapped the old man.

"Well, now, will you tell the jury all about it?"

"No, sir; I won't! If the jury want to know anything about it they must ask me."

"You must answer the questions," remarked his Honor.

"I will if I want to, but they haven't asked any questions yet."

"Did this plaintiff and defendant have any hard words?" asked the lawyer.

"I 'spose they did—I wouldn't swear to it."

"Did either one call the other a liar?"

"I 'spose they did, and that's what brung on the fuss. I'm over sixty, but if any man calls me a liar I'm going to knock his durned head off!"

"Well, when the plaintiff called the defendant a liar, what was the result?"

"Why, how do I know?"

"Didn't you see a blow struck?"

"Not there, but next day after this fuss I saw the purtiest fight in the world! One of the Jones boys was—"

"Did you see any part of this fuss?"

"No! How could I, when I was miles away: you ought to know better than to ask such foolish questions."

"How did you hear of this difficulty?"

"Mr. Johnson told me."

"That will do—you can go."

DEMOCRACY.

The strength of the Democratic party is in its firm adherence to principles.—That always made it strong and that will keep it so.

Opposing partisans have for years, through false accusation and every manner of intrigue, striven to create prejudice against the Democratic party and to weaken popular confidence in it.—With many such kind of mercenary influence has had an effect, but not among impartial, truth seeking and independent acting citizens, because the fact is patent and cannot be obliterated, that the most substantial prosperity the people of this country ever enjoyed was under Democratic management of national affairs, and that the principles of that political organization are identical with free representative government.

The party has been, in open defiance of truth and decency, charged by designing enemies with every thing venal. Its best endeavors have been perverted into intended wrongs, its statesmen vilified and its laboring masses slurred, yet it remains, aye, proudly remains, the recipient of popular affection and a bulwark of safety.

Democrats! Stand by your party and its principles!

Rally in might for every contest!

Fight on for Liberty and the People!

POLITICAL FLOWERS.

General Garfield, the Republican United States Senator elect from Ohio, at a public reception given him in Columbus, 15th inst., uttered this sentiment—"The flowers that bloom over the garden-wall of party politics are the sweetest and most fragrant that bloom in the gardens of this world, and where we can pluck them and enjoy their fragrance it is manly to do so."

That may sound like extravagance, a burst of florid rhetoric, but reflection can transform it into the soberness of reality.

There is nothing wrong about party politics in the proper meaning of the term. Men will differ in sentiment regarding public measures and official action, and beneath the rule of freedom such a diversity is necessary and health preserving.

Every citizen is entitled to hold and freely exercise his own individual opinion, and when he does so, without interfering with the rights of or forfeiting friendship for another citizen of opposite political views, but greets him with the same personal cordiality and respect he would a member of his own partisan household, he clasps a fragrant nosegay from the "garden-wall of party politics."

They who carry differences of political sentiment into personal bitterness and discourtesy know nothing about the beautiful flowers so admirably word painted by Mr. Garfield. Instead of plucking sweet roses, such people clutch poison vines and suffer from the virus.

RAILROADS.

A law for the more thorough regulation of Railroad Companies has been proposed in New York, which, in addition to many other provisions, contains the following:

Creates a Board of Railroad Commissioners.

Bondholders shall have the right to cast one vote for every $500 worth of bonds at an election for Directors.

No proxies can be given on hypothecated stock.

Increase of capital stock must be with the authority of the Commissioners and after publication for four weeks.

Every corporation must designate in each county through which the railroad runs some person on whom any process of law can be served.

Tracks of all railroad crossings shall be carried above or under streets or avenues.

To borrow money the corporation must have the consent of two-thirds in amount of stockholders assembled at a meeting called with due notice.

Compensation for the transportation of freight shall not exceed 5 cents per ton per mile on any class of freight, and for passage fare not over 3 cents per mile.

Prohibits the pooling of receipts with other corporations.

Provides for the annual filing of detailed statements.

Prohibits all rebates and partiality in charges.

Prohibits payment of dividends except from surplus earnings.

Makes bribery in any form punishable by imprisonment not exceeding five years or a fine of $5,000, or by both.

Freight shall be charged at the same rate per mile whether for a long or short distance.

Prohibits consolidation without the previous consent of the Legislature, and subject to conditions imposed by the Railroad Commissioners.

COSTLY COLLECTION.

The terrible proportions of modern Receiverships appear in the case of the Stuyvesant Savings Bank, New York:

Receipts,	$59,369
Expenses	43,369

Balance $16,000, or first and last dividend to depositors of three cents on the dollar.

It cost seventy-three per cent. to receive $59,369.

Beware of Receivers!

The jury in the Hayden trial has disagreed and has been discharged. This is a conclusion which most people have expected; the jury stood at the close eleven to one, the majority being in favor of acquittal, and the single juror insisting on a verdict of murder in the second degree. It is not probable that Hayden will be tried again.

What the country wants is a tariff framed for revenue, and so intelligently and honestly arranged that no interest of the people shall be injured, and none subsidized at the expense of others, but all treated with equal and exact justice. Such a tariff could be and ought to be adopted and then made permanent.

Governor McClellan in his recent Message, speaks in the highest terms of the manner in which the work of extirpating Pleuro-Pneumonia among cattle in the State has been carried on since the work was commenced. Gen. Sterling, Chief of the Bureau for performing this duty, is to be congratulated upon the success attending his efforts in that direction. The work has received his untiring and undivided attention, for which he has not asked or received a single dollar in remuneration. The cost to the State for each infected cattle slaughtered, has been about $13 a head, so that the expense is not great. The disease has been gotten under control in many portions of the State, the East and South sections now being the principal points to watch and look after. At those points infected cattle are liable to be run into our State from adjoining States. The law on the subject should exist until the disease is entirely stamped out. Efforts, however, are being made to repeal the law by our Republican Legislature, despite the fact that the Governor recommends it not to be. Gen. Sterling's Report gives a detailed statement of the number of infected cattle found, number killed, cost, expenses, &c. We shall publish extracts from it in a future issue.

Act, taking census of school children, takes it from assessors; act, protection of fish in Raritan River, reduces the distance from the dam from 900 to 300 feet; receivers of insurance companies to assess incorporators to pay debts; sup. to act publishing laws in newspapers, provides that they shall be published in papers according to representation of each County, provided there shall not be more than four or less than two, except large counties, where one German paper is included; sup. to elections, gives members of boards of election four dollars instead of $2 per day; game law, $10 for each rabbit trapped or snared when there is snow on the ground; penalty of $5 each for killing squirrels between Jan. 1st to July 1st; sup. to sale of lands, infants; town committees to pass ordinances in special cases; penalty of $10 for each woodcock killed between Jan. 1st and Sept. 1st; act for building bridge at Washington Street, Jersey City, same as last year; validating sale of lands, where sale was only published in one paper; licenses to sell liquor may be renewed without the application being signed by Freeholders; act to provide for officers to apportion taxes in Counties containing not less than 30,000 or more than 50,000; repeal of chap. 128, laws 1879; sup. of an act for elections; act respecting jails; State inebriate asylum; granting licenses, cities; act in relation to sale of lager beer on Sunday; also an act to prevent an indictment for keeping a disorderly house for such sales; act to authorize town committees to grant licenses.

Some 20 or 30 Bills were reported from Committees, a few of which was read a second time and ordered to be engrossed and have a third reading.

The Jersey City Bridge Bill introduced by Mr. Potts, yesterday, was withdrawn to-day (Tuesday). Whether another Bill will be introduced or not, seems a mooted question. Some say that there will be no effort made to pass any such Bill at this session.

Quite an animated discussion was had on Monday evening on the contested election case of Williams against Brown. It seems that the testimony of Williams was taken before a Master in Newark, and on the first day of the session was forwarded to the Speaker, and through the Clerk to the Committee on Elections, before the testimony in behalf of Brown had been taken. Mr. Blodgett, (Dem.) moved that the House return the same to the Master, and when completed to return same to the House.—The resolution was supported by McDermott, of Hudson, Hunt, of Morris, and Dunn, of Union, on the Democratic side, and by Herring, Van Duyne, Potts and Vernon, on the opposite. The minority certainly had much the best of the argument; and showed that the minority has some able debaters and certainly came off victorious in the first contest of the session. The matter was brought to a close by a motion of Mr. Potts, to adjourn. The Committee on Election held a session and the next morning decided to send a sub-committee to Newark to complete the examination, that being all that was asked for.

A number of Tax Bills came before the House, all were postponed awaiting the action of the Commission appointed last Winter, who it is expected will perfect and report a Bill at an early day.

The Governor to-day (Tuesday) sent in to the Senate the name of Chancellor Runyon for re-appointment and the names of four Law Judges, appointed by him last Winter after the Senate had adjourned. The nominations were referred to the usual Committees and are not yet acted upon.

WATER WORKS.

A proposition is made by an interested party to supply Plainfield with hydrant water upon certain conditions, a report of which will be found in Council Proceedings. While the object is a very desirable one, would it not be well to first ascertain how the drainage is to be got rid of. There certainly would be decided opposition to draining into either Cedar or Green Brooks, not only by residents along the same, but by citizens generally, on account of sanitary measures.

Hon. Miles Ross, Representative to Congress from the Third District of this State, on Tuesday last, presented a bill in the House of Representatives providing for the amendment of section 4,237 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, so as to read as follows:

"No regulation or provisions shall be adopted by any States which shall make any discrimination in the rate of pilotage or half pilotage between vessels sailing between the ports of one State and vessels sailing between the ports of different States, or any discrimination against vessels propelled in whole or in part by steam or against national vessels of the United States, or which shall make pilotage or half pilotage compulsory on any vessel; and all existing regulations or provisions making any such discrimination and all laws making pilotage or half pilotage compulsory are hereby annulled and abrogated."

The names of Census Supervisors for the States were sent to the Senate on Monday last. Those for New Jersey are, First District, Elias S. Doremus; Second District, George W. Atherton.

Things are "mixed" in Maine. The Republicans at last accounts, have the best hold of the "animile."

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY EV'G., Jan. 19, '80.

Council met pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Coriell, Darling, Dunlap, Finch, Flanders, Lithgow, Potts, Redfield, Rushmore, Ryder, Whiton.

Pres. Potts in the chair.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Mr. Redfield presented petition, signed by 500 ladies of Plainfield, requesting the Council not to grant any licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors.

Mr. Lithgow moved that the reading of the names be dispensed with and petition referred to Com. on Licenses.

Mr. Redfield moved as an amendment, (as the petition was somewhat vague) that it be received and placed on file.

Mr. Whiton, who seconded the amendment, did not think that the Com. on Licenses would report on a matter they had no power relative thereto.

Mr. Lithgow thought that the matter should be referred to the License Com., out of respect to the petitioners, and they could report accordingly. After some further discussion the amendment was lost, and the motion of Mr. Lithgow prevailed.

Mr. Ryder presented a com'n from Mr. L. V. F. Randolph, relative to the "gravel pits" and proposed improvement on Midway Ave. Mr. R. states that if the city will appropriate $400 he will proceed at once with the work. He further says that he owns no real estate outside of his home, and has no personal interest beyond what should be felt by every citizen.

On motion of Mr. Lithgow, laid over until New Business.

Mr. Rushmore presented petition of Fred. Cooper for a saloon license to sell spirituous and fermented liquors, in the building now owned and occupied by him, situate on 2d St., near Park Ave. On motion, referred to Com. on Licenses.

By the same—Petition for license of James Conneely; to sell spirituous and fermented liquors, in the building owned and occupied by him, situate at 21 Madison Ave. On motion, referred to License Com.

Mr. Flanders wished to call the attention of License Com. as to changing the Ord. so that all licenses will expire at the same time.

Mr. Flanders presented a petition, extensively signed, relative to the "Fund[illegible] Nuisance" near the east end of 5d St. The petitioners request the Council's prompt attention to the subject, and to the adoption of the measures recommended by the Board of Health. On motion, laid over until New Business.

Mr. Finch presented claim of Morgan Bird, rent of Station House, $62.50. Referred to Com. on Sals., Offices & Elec'ns.

Mr. Redfield presented the following Poor account claims:

J. S. Cotter, $124.50; Township of Westfield, $64.75; David Hand, $77.91; City of Elizabeth, $7; A. V. Searing, $57.57; A. M. Runyon, $18; Wm. B. Ayres, $8; Mrs. Bertha Green, $25; Henry Carr, $4; Chas. Hyde, $12; T. J. Gillies, $61; L. A. Bloomme, $67.65.

On motion, referred to Alms Com.

Mr. Coriell presented claim of Berry & Thorn, repairs on lamps, &c., $4. Ref'd to Fire, Water & Lamp Com. Also, claim of I. D. TenEyck, $15.12, interest on an old claim ordered paid by last Council. Ref'd to Law & Ord. Com.

Mr. Lithgow presented claim of Dr. H. H. Lowrie, $25.57, making returns to Secretary of State, of marriages, &c. Also, a similar claim amounting to $19.40. This claim was before the last Council, and it was decided that the city should pay it. On motion of Mr. Lithgow the two claims were ref'd to the Corp. Counsel for a written report in the premises. So agreed to.

Mr. Flanders presented a com'n from L. W. Serrell, relative to an assessment claim of $68.05. Ref'd to Law & Ord. Com.

Mr. Whiton presented the following com'n from His Honor, Mayor Harper:

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 14, 1880.

To the Common Council:

Gentlemen:—Notice of legal proceedings against the Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by Wm. B. Maxson, in the Supreme Court of New Jersey, has this day been served upon me, and duly communicated to the Corporation Counsel.

NATHAN HARPER, Mayor.

On motion, filed.

By the same—The following:

To the Common Council:

Gentlemen:—I submit herewith a communication from George H. Norman, Esq., of Boston, relative to the proposed construction of works for supplying the city of Plainfield with water for domestic, manufacturing and fire purposes.

Mr. Lockwood, a hydraulic engineer and agent for Mr. Norman, was here on a recent date, and after careful examination, pronounced the project of introducing reservoir water throughout the city, of acceptable quality and quantity, to be every way practicable.

The proposition of Mr. Norman now laid before you covers the principal points; of course there are details to be furnished when required.

As the water question is of decided public interest, and worthy of earnest consideration, I would respectfully ask for it an appropriate committee reference.

NATHAN HARPER, Mayor.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 19th, 1880.

To the Mayor and City Council of Plainfield, N. J.:

Gentlemen:—I propose to construct Water Works in Plainfield for domestic, public and manufacturing purposes, provided I can obtain an exclusive right of way for thirty years, and can contract with the city for the supply of water for Fire purposes.

I will construct a complete system of Water Works, and lay fourteen miles of main pipe in the city, and set and connect with the mains 125 fire hydrants, which shall be ready at all times to throw water upon any building in the city, provided the city will contract to pay a rental for said hydrant service of $7,000 per annum. For all extensions of the main pipe, I will place 10 hydrants to each mile of said extensions at a rental of $400 per annum for each mile. Should the city at any time desire more hydrants on the line of mains upon which rental is paid, they shall be placed at the cost of the hydrants, without additional rental.

The city shall have the right to purchase the works at any time after ten years from date of contract, at a price at which the net income from said Water Works will pay six per cent a year.

Respectfully submitted,
GEO. H. NORMAN.

January 9, 1880.

After some explanatory remarks relative to the above com'n by Mr. Whiton, he moved that a Special Committee of three be appointed by the Pres. to look into the matter and report at a future meeting. So agreed to.

The Pres. appointed as that Com. Messrs. Whiton, Lithgow and Darling.

Mr. Whiton, from Finance Com., offered a res. "that the Mayor and City Treasurer be and they hereby are authorized and requested to renew the loan for $3,500 from the 1st National Bank, falling due Jan. 20, 1880." Adopted. All aye.

Mr. Rushmore, from Com. on Licenses, reported on application of Jas. Conneely for a saloon license. Mr. R. stated that this license had been presented also to the last Council, and the Com. after a thorough investigation find it conforms to the Ord., and would recommend that the license be granted, to date at the expiration of the last.

Mr. Whiton arose and stated that a difference of opinion was had by the Council on the license question; the new members had not looked into the matter and were therefore not prepared to vote intelligently. He would move its reference back to the License Com. for another report at the next meeting.

Mr. Lithgow thought the motion of Mr. Whiton was a very extraordinary one. The Com. on License were men that were capable of attending to the duties conferred upon them; this license had been before the last Council for some time, and they now report favorably in the matter; Mr. L. further stated that if the new members were going to examine into every license presented, they had better take sole charge, and the present Com. would retire, &c.

Mr. Whiton was of the opinion that he had the privilege of investigating, before voting, if he saw fit so to do; he was cognizant of the fact that there was a License Com.

Mr. Lithgow, in reply to Mr. Whiton, said, "every one has a right to their opinion, and vote as they may choose; but they should not for a moment be dissatisfied as to the reports coming from the different Committees, and want them referred back, and do the investigating themselves; if they do not like the report of any Committee they have the right to vote against it; and if my friend expects to examine into all the affairs of the different Committees, he will have as much as he can attend to." [At these remarks of Mr. L., the large audience present evinced their approval by applauding.]

Mr. Finch stated that he would stand by the report of the Com. and vote for the license.

Upon Mr. Whiton's motion being put, it was lost by the following vote: Ayes—Messrs. Ryder, Whiton—2; Nays—Coriell, Darling, Dunlap, Finch, Flanders, Lithgow, Potts, Redfield, Rushmore—9.

Mr. Lithgow moved that the report of the License Com. be received, and recommendation adopted. Lost, by the following vote: Ayes—Messrs. Darling, Finch, Lithgow, Potts, Rushmore—5. Nays—Messrs. Coriell, Flanders, Redfield, Dunlap, Ryder, Whiton—6.

Mr. Flanders, from Com. on Printing & Stationery, reported that the Standing Com. cards and roll blanks for use of Clerk, were printed.

On motion of Mr. Finch, the communications laid on the table during the early part of the meeting, were taken therefrom and re-read.

Mr. Lithgow moved that the report of the Board of Health, with the com'n and other documents pertaining to the Gravel Pits, presented this evening, be referred to the Corp. Counsel for report thereon at the next meeting, as to the legality of Council to vote the amount asked for, viz: $400.

Mr. Finch thought that immediate action should be taken.

Mr. Ryder wished to hear the opinion of Corp. Counsel to-night.

The Corp. Counsel being present, the Pres. inquired of him whether a report could be had this evening.

Mr. Suydam stated that he did not think he could make a report on such short notice, as points were to be touched upon that would need careful investigation, &c.

Mr. Ryder wishing to present a resolution, (Mr. Lithgow withdrawing his motion,) offered the following:

WHEREAS, Mr. L. V. F. Randolph has offered at his own expense, and with the aid of such private subscriptions as he may procure to be made, to do all the grading of Midway Avenue, between Beeckman St. and Johnston Ave., and the filling in of the two gravel pits in that neighborhood in this city, in case the city will contribute the sum of $400 for improvements and repairs on that portion of Midway Ave.; and, whereas, we deem it highly important to the good of the city that such improvements be made, therefore, it is hereby

Resolved, That the sum of $400 be paid by the city for necessary improvements and repairs on Midway Ave. between Beeckman St. and Johnston Ave., said sum to be paid when said work is completed and approved of by the St. Com'r.

Mr. Lithgow's former motion, including, also, resolution just offered by Mr. Ryder, was carried.

Mr. Redfield moved that when Council adjourn it adjourn to meet next Thursday evening. Carried.

Mr. Finch moved that the vote whereby Mr. Conneely's license was not granted, be reconsidered. So agreed to.

On motion of Mr. Lithgow, the application was laid on the table until the next meeting, (Thursday evening.)

A res. was offered by Mr. Rushmore that the Corp. Counsel defend the suit brought against the city by Wm. B. Maxson, Esq. So agreed to.

The following report from the Chairman of the Finance Com. of last Council, was presented by the Pres.:

To the Hon. the Common Council of the City of Plainfield.

Gentlemen—In accordance with a resolution passed by the Council of 1879, Jan. 3d, 1880, empowering the Chairman of the Finance Com. to confer with Wm. B. Maxson, Esq., and offer him $800 in settlement of his claim for $1,000 against the City for services in conducting the Park suit.

I beg leave to report that I have had a conference with Mr. Maxson on the subject and he positively declines to accept the sum named, in confirmation of which please find, attached, Mr. Maxson's letter on the subject.

Before closing my report on the subject I desire to state for the information of members of the Council and citizens, who have been misled by statements that this suit was commenced while Mr. Maxson was Corporation Counsel, and that he was paid a salary for conducting the City business, that, at that time no salary was paid to that officer, but special fees paid for services performed and that at no time, directly, or indirectly, has he received any compensation whatever for the services in question.

I sincerely trust that the spirit of compromise manifested by Mr. Maxson in offering to abate $200 from his claim, and accept the sum of $800 may be met in the same spirit, believing as I do, after hearing the opinions of many of our leading citizens on the subject that this will be much more in accordance with public opinion and much less expensive in the end than defending a suit in the courts for services so successfully performed.

Respectfully, E. H. DEPEW,
Chairman of Finance Com., Council 1879.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Jan. 6, 1880.

E. H. Depew, Esq.,—Very Dear Sir:—Thanking you for your efforts in the matter of attempted compromise of my claim to the City, I am constrained after taking eminent legal counsel to decline to authorize you to make the Council an offer to accept $800. Regretting that the Council should have unnecessarily plunged the City into useless litigation, I remain yours truly, WM. B. MAXSON.

On motion, filed.

Mr. Coriell offered a res. that the Council appropriate $100 for repairs on Streets, to be under the supervision of the Com. on Sts. Adopted.

Mr. Whiton presented the following:

Resolved, That the Committee on Licenses be and hereby is directed on receiving any application for a license to sell spirituous or fermented liquors referred to them by a vote of the Common Council; to cause within ten days thereafter and before reporting back to the Common Council any such application so referred, a notice in the following form, with the blank spaces properly filled in, to be inserted once in each of the papers published in this city.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., ...18

Notice is hereby given that .... has made application to the Common Council of the City of Plainfield for a .... license to sell .... liquors at No. .... Street and that said application is signed by .... as citizens and freeholders.

Any person knowing of any good reasons why said license should not be granted, are hereby notified to certify the same to the undersigned or either of them, in writing, on or before the .... day of .... 18.., on which date action on said application will be taken by the Common Council.

.... } License Com.
.... } of
.... } Common Council.

And the Committee on Licenses is hereby directed to attach to such application so referred, any communication received by them or either of them in answer to said advertisement, and report the same to the Common Council.

On motion, adopted.

Pres. Potts then stated that the election of a Clerk was now in order.

No nominations appearing, Mr. Lithgow moved that we now proceed to ballot for a Clerk. Agreed to.

The Pres. appointed Messrs. Coriell and Rushmore as tellers. They announced the result as follows: O. B. Leonard receives 10 votes, and Blank, 1.

On motion, Council then adjourned.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

At a meeting of the New Jersey State Sportsmen's Association held at Jersey City Heights, Jan. 8th, the following named gentlemen were elected officers for the ensuing year: President, John J. Toffey; Vice Presidents, C. Dunlap and Wm. Hayes; Rec. Secretary, W. P. Levering; Cor. Secretary, J. Q. Bird; Treasurer, T. Conover. It was resolved that the Committee on Game Laws should urge upon the State Legislature the passage of a bill abolishing summer woodcock shooting entirely; also that the open season for shooting quail, grouse and rabbits, be from October 15 to December 15 in each year. The "New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society," whose headquarters are at Plainfield, N. J., will heartily co-operate with the "N. J. S. S. A." in the amendment of the game laws. There is need of such amending.

Tuesday evening, January 13th, at the office of the Dittmar Powder Manufacturing Company, N. Y. City, the following named gentlemen were elected officers for 1880 of "The Field Trials Club:" President, H. F. Aten; Vice Presidents, C. Du Bois Wagstaff, J. G. Heckscher, H. A. Gildersleeve, H. N. Munn, Shepard F. Knapp, L. H. Billings; Treasurer, G. C. Colburn; Secretary, Jacob Pentz; Executive Committee, G. L. Lorillard, Frank Palmer, Shepard F. Knapp, J. G. Heckscher, T. Emmett, Charles Banks, W. Wynn, F. N. Hall, W. A. Coster, Jacob Pentz, Travis VanBuren, Ben De Forest, August Belmont, Jr., Martin Van Buren, General E. B. Grubb, Horace Waldo, H. N. Munn, P. H. Morris, G. C. Colburn, Justice von Lengerke. A large number of new members were also elected. The next Field's Trials, which are becoming so popular for the distinguishment of a good dog from a poor one by observing the animal actually at work on wild birds, has not been definitely settled upon. Mr. Jacob Pentz, Field Editor of The Turf, Field and Farm, who was elected Secretary, is to be accredited with a great share of the success attending the first Field Trials held on Robbin's Island, Long Island, in December last, he having labored hard with his pen to bring about the first Trials.

The "New Jersey Game Society urges upon all the sportsmen to rigidly enforce the game laws, and prosecute all offenders caught violating the statute on the subject. The society is also making arrangements to let loose a large number of quail in different parts of the State in the spring."

The above, which originated from an item in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, is being extensively copied by the press of the State. It should be stated, however, that the "New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society" is the Association alluded to, and that the headquarters are at Plainfield.

During the late cold snap in Nevada the thermometer marked twenty degrees below zero. Rabbits were frequently found frozen to death by the roadside.—So it is said.

A FRAGRANT BREATH AND PEARLY TEETH

Are easily obtained by cleansing your teeth with that justly popular dentrifice SOZODONT. Composed of rare antiseptic herbs, it imparts whiteness to teeth, a delicious aroma to breath, and preserves intact, from youth to old age, the teeth. Acidity of the stomach will destroy the strongest teeth unless its effects are counteracted with SOZODONT, and this pure tooth-wash protects the dental surfaces by removing every impurity that adheres to them.—Ask your druggist for SOZODONT.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Simmons' LIVER DISEASE and Indigestion prevail to a greater extent than probably any other malady, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Indigestion or want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms. Simmons' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered for these ailments. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for forty years, and hundreds from all parts of the country will vouch for its virtues, viz: Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia; John Gill Shorter, of Alabama; Gen. John B. Gordon, R. L. Mott, of Columbus, Ga., Bishop Pierce, of Georgia, are among the hundreds to whom we can refer. Extract of a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1872: "I occasionally use when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active medicines."

LIVER

REGULATOR. It is not the quantity eaten that gives strength, life, blood and health. It is the thorough digestion of the food taken let it be much or little. Therefore, do not stimulate the stomach to crave food, but rather assist digestion after eating by taking

THE Mayor of Rahway has caused to be disbanded the police force of that city because there is no funds to pay them with.

MR. and Mrs. Firman Runyon will celebrate their 50th Wedding Anniversary at their residence in South Plainfield, Tuesday evening, Jan. 27th, 1880.

THERE has not a circus visited Plainfield for two years past, but there will be one next Saturday evening when the two Republican factions come together on election of County and City Executive officers.

WHO will be the Mayor's nominees for the offices of Street Commissioner, Police, etc.? is now an anxious theme among those directly interested, and many a one is squirming in his seat—"waiting for the verdict."

"A MIGHTY Good Segar," is the label on a box of "lasters" at Vanderbeek's on North Avenue. Yes, we know they are good, because we have tried them? So has friend Thorn, so has—Oh! go buy one. Price 5 cents.

MESSRS. E. B. Bishop's Sons, of Jersey City, advertise in another column a large *number of Mules for sale. We are in*formed that they are strictly reliable and are among the largest dealers, of the kind, in the State.

JUST to make the mouths of our Ice Merchants water, we repeat that which was told us by Mr. J. E. Dowley this morning, which is that on Tuesday last he saw ice two feet in thickness being cut and housed at Quebec, Canada.

THE New Brunswick daily Fredonian, on the 15th inst., reached the 25th year of its existence. The daily Fredonian, barring its politics, is one of the best and oldest daily newspapers in the State. It stands fourth on the list for age.

WITHIN the past few days we have sent out a large number of bills for amounts due on subscription, aggregating many hundreds of dollars. Some have promptly responded. We return thanks to them and will not forget others when they "settle up."

As Mr. Insley B. Gardner was attempting to seat himself in his butcher wagon on Saturday last, his foot slipped from the step on the side of the vehicle, and he was thrown to the ground, receiving severe injuries to his back. He is confined to his bed.

BACHMAN calls the attention of the public to his large stock of Dry Goods, etc., in this issue. Mr. Bachman, Sr., has had long experience in the business, and as the firm buys cheap for cash they are enabled to sell goods at correspondingly low prices.

R. MACDONALD, the old-established grocer, Front st., near Peace, has a "corner" on new crop N. O. Molasses and is selling the finest grades for 50 cts. per gallon. By close attention to business and buying and selling for cash only, Mr. M. has a large and profitable business.

THERE was a large and fashionable gathering at the residence of Mr. F. Brockway on Seventh street last Wednesday evening, to witness the marriage ceremony between Miss Grace Brockway and Mr. W. F. Kaufman. The happy pair left the city on the 11:06 train for an extensive bridal tour.

MR. Geo. Lewis has retired from the meat business on Park avenue. He announces that he is forever through with the retail meat business, as it does not pay. He will still continue to deal in cattle on the wholesale plan. Mr. Lewis has been engaged in business in Plainfield for a number of years.

A PUBLIC entertainment, consisting of a choice variety of select readings will be given by Mrs. Wm. M. Alberti, at the 7th Day Baptist Church, New Market, Wednesday evening, Jan. 28th, under the auspices of the Ladies Benevolent Society. Admission, 25 cts.; Children, 15 cts. Instrumental music by Prof. Darrow, of New Brunswick.

AT a meeting in the Crescent avenue church, for the election of Trustees, last Monday evening, the old Board were unanimously re-elected. The financial statement showed a reduction of the church debt of $3,800, with a balance in the Treasury of $230. The number of pews now rented is larger than ever before, and the demand for sittings is greater than can be met.

ACCORDING to the Banner, of Morristown, two of the City Fathers of that city, went on an "investigating tour" a few days since, and found a game of "Keerds" going on in the police station, with "chips" as the object point of interest in the game. None of the police force were found engaged in the game, but Chief of Police Lozier has resigned his position, in consequence of the exaggerated and falsified stories circulated about the affair.

ABOUT three weeks ago, while the Western night-express train on P. R. R., was thundering along over the meadows between Jersey City and Newark, the engineer discovered that he had struck some object. Stopping his train, the Conductor and one of the brakemen returned to about where the object should be, when they were both astonished at the approach of a stalwart negro who questioned them as to where "dat feller" was who struck him over the head with a lantern.

OH! what roads! was the exclamation of the unfortunate who had occasion to drive through our streets during the recent mild "spell of weather." Anathemas were hurled at the heads of the Street Committee, Commissioner, and all concerned in making our former smooth and dry macadamized roads now like a bed of mortar. The streets were sloppy, rutty and horribly out of repair. There is plenty of work for the new Council to perform.

IN the case of Zimmer vs. Field, where the latter was charged with disturbing the quiet of the city, in the former's saloon, which came up before City Judge Runyon last Friday, the case was dismissed after a jury had been empaneled, by the culprit promising not to enter Zimmer's place again; and his mother paying the costs, the complainant having withdrawn the charge. The jury were paid the stipend of fifteen pennies and dismissed. Great heads.

THE ladies of Grace Church Guild will give a Japanese Tea party, at Vanderveer Hall, on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Jan. 27th and 28th. This promises to be a very novel and interesting affair. The striking features of the entertainment will be a Japanese Interior, a choice collection of Japanese articles and last but not least, the presentation of a beautiful Japanese cup and saucer to each purchaser of a cup of tea or coffee. The ladies taking part will appear in full Japanese costume and all will be fully repaid by assisting at this charitable and unique entertainment.

On the First Floor.

The business room of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office will be located on the first floor of Vanderbeek's new building, next to Flagg's Hotel, facing North ave., when the structure is completed, which will probably be the middle of March. The composing room will be on the third floor and the press room in the basement.

A Suit Gained.

The suit of G. P. Hotaling for Dr. E. W. South against W. H. Bryan, of Plainfield, an action for the value of medical services, came up in court, in New York, last week. The plaintiff's attorneys, Peckham & Tyler, moved the case on and the Judge gave a judgment for the plain*tiff for the full amount claimed with in*terest and costs of court.

Thanks.

The ladies of the Relief Association have addressed the following letter to the Plainfield Coachmen's Club:

TO THE PLAINFIELD COACHMEN'S CLUB:

At a late meeting of the Plainfield Relief Association, it was unanimously resolved that a vote of thanks be tendered to the Coachmen's Club, for their very generous gift of $80, contributed from the proceeds of their recent ball.

MRS. H. D. BUCKINGHAM, Sec.
Jan. 14th, 1880.

Down by the Lake.

The residence of Mr. John H. Tier, on Bank Place, was the scene of a gay time last Wednesday evening, the occasion being a "Surprise Sociable" given to his son William by the latter's brother Jno. Tier, Jr., and Charles A. Sturtevant. Frazee furnished fine music, and most of the fifty couples present, danced until the approach of daylight warned them to hie to their homes. The supper, during the evening, was one of the features of the occasion. It was gotten up in fine style.

A Suggestion.

We suggest that instead of paying special policemen to perform duty in place of officer Tingley, who is sick, but drawing his regular pay, notwithstanding, that special Officer for the collection of back taxes, Mr. Moore, be entrusted with a baton, perform such duties, and money be saved the city to be used for needed purposes. At present there is but one "regular" policeman doing actual (?) duty. (Eaton) officer Dodd oftentimes being called out of the city on matters per*taining to his title of State Detective and* Capt. of Police.

Accident to a Plainfielder.

A late number of the Daily Alta, of San Francisco, Cal., says: "Yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, the engine of the construction train used for carrying gravel to the new sea wall, jumped the track near the smelting works, and engineer Trueman Moffett had his arm broken. The engine and several cars were slightly injured. After having his arm set, Mr. Moffett returned and superintended the work of replacing the engine on the track. This is the first accident that has occurred on the road since it went into operation, fifteen months ago."

Trials of Plainfield Parties.

In the Union County Courts, at Elizabeth, the trials and sentences of Plainfield parties have been set down as follows:

Michael Sweeney, assault and battery, pleaded not guilty, trial Feb. 3.

Sweeney was locked up in the County Jail on Tuesday in default of bail, to await trial.

Adam Fritz, assault and battery, pleaded guilty, sentence Feb. 7.

Robert Flynn, assault and battery, pleaded not guilty, trial Feb. 3.

Thomas Ryan, larceny of watch, trial Feb. 3.

Flynn secured bail and returned home.

Will They Remove Them?

We refer to the Street Committee or their deputy, and the whitewashed stones planted nearly in the middle of the street in front of certain residences on each side of Plainfield avenue, below Ninth street. Horses are frightened at them, and when there is snow on the ground, covering the stones, accidents are likely to occur by vehicles or sleighs running against them. Said highway is laid out to a prescribed width, and we know of no ordinance or law allowing such obstructions to be placed where they are. Complaints have frequently been made of this "ornamentation" of Plainfield ave., and we trust this will be the "last call."

Another Disagreement.

Plainfield juries are proverbial for disagreeing on a verdict. The latest case is that of trial between Mr. Geo. Lewis of this city and Wm. Bloodgood, of Rahway. Mr. Lewis claimed damages for being run into by Mr. Bloodgood, as both parties were driving in opposite directions on Somerset street some months since. The trial came off and the jury decided that it was not Mr. Bloodgood, but his driver, who should be prosecuted. Mr. Lewis then sued Mr. Conover, the driver, and the jury, after being charged last Friday by Justice Clark, retired to deliberate in Association Hall. After remaining out all night, they were discharged as they were unable to agree upon a verdict. They stood seven for the plaintiff and five for the defendant.

Robert Voorhees.

There was a very fair attendance at the Lecture of Robert Voorhees, the "Rocky Hill Orator," in the Congregational church last Thursday evening, given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., at the close of which his hearers reluctantly left the house, so well-pleased were they with the Lecture. Many who had never before heard him, expressed that it was the best Lecture they had listened to in a long time, and wished for another opportunity of again listening to the brilliant orator. Undoubtedly there were some who listened to his lecture on "The Beauties of Nature," desired rather a different theme, but all must acknowledge that when once Mr. Voorhees enters fully on the subject of his lectures, his flow of beautiful language and portrayal of sights and scenes is something wonderful, and seldom found in more renowned lecturers.

Died While on Duty.

A large ice house was destroyed by fire at New Brunswick on Saturday night last. A fireman known to many of our citizens, a brother to Joseph VanArsdale, of North Plainfield, fell dead while in the performance of his duty. The New Brunswick Fredonian says:

"William W. Van Arsdale, the assistant Foreman of Phoenix Steam Engine Co., No. 3, while in the act of giving an order with his trumpet regarding the adjustment of a length of hose, fell and expired instantly in the roadway. Mr. Van Arsdale ran out from his house at the first alarm and met the steamer in Neilson street on the way to the fire. He ran with it and was engaged in overseeing the placing of the hose until the steamer got to work. As customary with this company the hose and engine were promptly placed, the position of the latter being at the hydrant corner of Hamilton and Neilson streets. After getting to work a length of hose bursted and Foreman Schuyler directed his assistant to attend to it. It was while doing this that Mr. Van Arsdale, who appeared to be almost out of breath by his exertions, suddenly fell dead with trumpet in hand."

Deceased was a good citizen and highly respected by all who knew him. He leaves a wife, but no children. Resolutions of condolence were passed by Phoenix Co. and Board of Engineers, and the sum of $500 appropriated to the widow by the Firemen's Relief Fund Association.

CITY Clerk Leonard is the cognomen by which he is now known.

The Plainfield Athletic Club.

What they offer for the consideration and support of the public.

The Plainfield Athletic Club, an organization that has existed in this city for over ten years and which numbers among its members many of our most prominent citizens, has during the past three months experienced a most rapid and effective financial growth, and its managers are about to throw open to the public one of the finest gymnasiums in the State, with comfortable reception and convenient dressing rooms in connection. The entire building on the corner of North and Park avenues (with the exception of the stores below) has been leased by this Association and at an outlay of some hundreds of dollars it has been entirely re-fitted, painted, furnished, and equipped. On the first floor are arranged the reception room, reading room, dressing room, meeting room and store rooms; while the story above has been thrown into one large hall the size of the entire building, and probably the largest room in the city. This is furnished with all the apparatus, paraphernalia, and implements that may be found in a thoroughly equipped gymnasium, and being finely lighted by day and night forms the most convenient exercising room in the State.

Not only are the uses and advantages of this property to be allowed the public for its own benefit, but the managers of the organization have succeeded in securing the services, (at great expense, we may say) of Prof. Avon C. Burnham of the Academy of Physical Culture in New York and formerly Brooklyn, who will form and instruct, personally, classes in bodily improvement, and who is recommended most highly by the educators of the people, mentally and morally, of those cities.

A competent person will be in charge of the rooms at all times, and the gymnas*ium and its apparatus, as well as the* meeting and reception rooms of the Club, will always be open and at the service of the subscribers. Parents and visitors will also be welcome at any time, the only exception being on the afternoons set apart for the lady members and their classes, during which no gentlemen will be admitted.

On next Saturday afternoon an opening reception will be given, more especially for parents and high school scholars, for which invitations have been issued, and upon which occasion not only will the benefits of physical culture and the efficacy of Prof. Burnham's methods of instruction, be shown by that gentleman himself assisted by a class of young lady and gentlemen attendants of his Academy, selected from the families of well-known residents of New York City, but a programme of musical entertainment, including Mrs. Belle Pagels-Collier, and others will be given, as well as interesting addresses by prominent citizens. In the evening a fine exhibition in heavy gymnastics will be given by members of the Harlem and New York Athletic Club's, which will be open to all.

The attainment of these results cannot be too highly commended and the promulgators and executors of them should receive large and substantial support.—Not only do they provide a means whereby the young men of Plainfield may spend their evenings in exercising their bodies and building up their health, but among sociable companions in congenial occupation they will be sure to find greater attractions than elsewhere at questionable resorts. Men of means should give their financial aid and men of true philanthropy should by their influence assist the growth of an organization that is bound to exert a healthy influence over both the minds and frames of those who are growing up to take their places among the citizens of Plainfield. The rates entitling the subscriber to the privileges of the rooms and their contents, as well as instruction in the class, are as follows:

Three Months,	$3 00
Six "	5 00
One Year,	8 00

As the above show an intention, in the face of the large expenses arising, to place the benefits of the gymnasium within the reach of all, it should receive the support of everyone.

Building and Loan Association.

The regular monthly meeting was held at Association Hall, Monday evening last. Mrs. McDermott, a stockholder, in the first series, accompanied by her counsel, Messrs. Suydam & Jackson, created considerable excitement by her story of alleged wrongs perpetrated upon her by the Board of Directors, she telling them that they had taken advantage of her, because she was a woman. The facts of the case are, as we understand them, as follows: The lady owns five shares of stock in the old series, which are worth about $800. The Board offered her the Bilyeu property, on Division st., valued at $1500, she to give a mortgage on the same for the difference between the value of her shares and the property. This she refused to do, not understanding (as we think) the idea. The Board after repeated attempts to consummate the sale, sold the property to another party, and this Mrs. M. claimed was not using her right. Her counsel finally persuaded her to withdraw, and the meeting then proceeded. After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, 15 shares of City National Bank stock were offered for sale. On motion of Wm. Pangborn, 3 per cent. reduction was ordered on each share. The whole number was soon disposed of at 95½ cents. The Sec. then read the following statements regarding salaries of officers of the Ass'n., as per resolution of Mr. Pangborn, presented at a previous meeting:

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Jan. 19, 1880.

L. E. Barkalew has received since July 1878, for material furnished, for paint and painting, tin work, plumbing work, labor, carpenter work and material for the Citizens' Building and Loan Ass'n.	$321.21
Expenses and time examining property.	14.10
For renting and col. rents,	36.04
Adv'ng, posting and selling property.	37.50
	$408.85
Harris, President, 16 months,	266.66
Extra services,	8.00
Appleton, Sec'y, 17 months,	469.30
1878, extra services,	25.00
1879, do do	27.50

Mr. Pangborn presented the following:

WHEREAS, The number of shares in this Association has been reduced to a small number by withdrawals and settlements and the salaries of the President and Secretary and Treasurer remain the same as when the Ass'n first started, and whereas, the labor and responsibility of the officers is greatly reduced in consequence thereof; therefore be it

Resolved, That the salaries of the President, Secretary and Treasurer of this Ass'n be reduced to correspond to the number of shares now running in this Ass'n., and we hereby request the Directors to so regulate the salaries as above set forth.

Mr. Coriell asked the present salaries paid. The Secretary stated that the President's salary was $50 per year, the Secretary's $225 and the Treasurer's $275. Mr. Coriell moved that the res. of Mr. Pangborn's be laid over until next meeting—inasmuch as the annual election was so close at hand and salaries could then be fixed. Carried.

Mr. Appleton in a few remarks as to the amount of work that is necessary to be done in keeping the books of the Ass'n, as he had kept his, told the members to distinctly understand that he would not take his present position at a reduced salary. Mr. Pangborn asked if the amount named in the above report was all that he had received from the Ass'n. Mr. A. said it was all he had received as Sec.; and that for extra services he had, of course, received extra pay.

A sale of 12 shares of 2nd series stock then took place. Two shares were then sold to John Giles for 4¼, and ten to G. Bachman, for 3 per cent premium. The printing of the annual report, was upon motion of Mr. Coriell, ordered to be in detail, and as explicit as possible. The meeting then adjourned.

Y. M. C. A. Reception.

The deservedly popular Monthly Reception of the Y. M. C. A. of this city, will be resumed this month, the first entertainment for 1880 to be held in Van Deventer Hall the evening of January 29th, at 8 o'clock. Mr. A. G. Waring, of Brooklyn, N. Y., will give magical and sleight of hand performances. The price of admission will be 10 cents. For sale at the door.

Dramatic Entertainment.

The Thespian Amateur Dramatic Association which has during the past two or three years, on several occasions, gratified many of our citizens by their entertainments, have about completed arrangements for two night's performances, at Laing's Hall, Plainfield, on February 9th and 10th, 1880. They will give the Gunmaker of Moscow, as dramatized after the familiar story of that name, concluding with a roaring farce each evening. The amateurs will be assisted by two or three professionals, well-known to metropolitan theatre-goers.

Resignation of a Pastor.

At the close of the morning's service in the Crescent Avenue Church last Sunday, the pastor, Rev. John C. Bliss, requested that the Church and congregation should join him in asking the Presbytery of Elizabeth at its next meeting in April to dissolve the pastoral relation existing between him and them. A vote on the question will be taken next Sunday morning, by ballot, at the close of public worship. The tendered resignation was a great surprise to his congregation, as it is to the pastor's many friends outside of the church. Of course there are reasons for the dissolution asked for, which after the vote taken next Sunday, may become the subject of newspaper comment. Mr. Bliss has been a pastor of the 1st Presbyterian church for many years, and has a host of warm and sympathizing friends who champion his cause in the unfortunate circumstances now existing between himself and a few of the congregation.

New Jersey Historical Society.

At the 35th annual meeting of the New Jersey Historical Society, held at Trenton, Thursday, Jan. 15th inst., the following named gentlemen were chosen officers for 1880:

President, Samuel M. Hamill, of Lawrenceville; Vice Presidents, John T. Nixon, Trenton; John Clement, Haddonfield; Samuel B. Pennington, M. D., Newark; Corresponding Secretary, Wm. A. Whitehead, Newark; Recording Secretary, Wm. Nelson, Paterson; Treasurer, Robert S. Swords, Newark; Librarian, Martin R. Dennis, Newark; Executive Committee, Hon. Marcus L. Ward, Newark; Wm. B. Kenney, Summit; John Hall, D. D., Trenton; Samuel Allinson, Yardville; N. N. Halstead, Kearney; Hon. Joel Parker, Freehold; Joseph N. Tuttle, Newark; George Sheldon, D. D., Princeton, and D. A. Depue, Newark.

The Treasurer's report for the year 1879 showed the receipts to be $2,704.12 and the expenses, $1,504.91.

A New Eldorado.

On Wednesday last Mr. J. E. Dowley, of this city, returned from another prospecting tour to the new Eldorado of Canada, the Gold Mines of St. Francis (Beauce). We were shown specimens of pure gold "washings," obtained by himself in one of the shafts of a mine owned by his Company at a depth of 60 feet. There are railroad facilities at present within 9 miles of the mines which he represents and owns interest in. By August next a railroad will be completed direct to the mines, when it will take only about 16 hours to reach its terminus from N. Y. City. We append the following document drawn by L. C. Blanchet, Notary Public:

GOLD MINES OF ST. FRANCIS, (BEAUCE,)
PROVINCE OF QUEBEC, DOMINION OF CANADA.

A Company from Boston, Mass., represented here by John E. Dowley, Esq., of Plainfield, N. J., bought a large quantity of mining ground along Chaudiere and Gilbert rivers. This Company started its operations some weeks ago, on a large scale and has actually many shafts now at work. The ground bought by Mr. Dowley, (an old experienced California miner), for that Company is one of the best locations along the Chaudiere and the Gilbert. Many years past, some poor Canadian miners, prospected some part of that ground, but were too poor to push their operations far enough, and gave up, having nevertheless, found a certain quantity of gold from the alluvium and top of ore bodies. There are only the St. Onge, the Canada Gold Field Co., North Star and Eureka Mining Co's working actually along the Gilbert, with limited capital and their operations, although being upon a small scale, are giving a satisfactory result.—There is not any doubt now, that the Boston Co., with its large capital, and under the management of Mr. Dowley, will soon give satisfactory results.

Plainfield's Democracy.

On Tuesday evening last, pursuant to the call of the Executive Committee of the Democratic Association of this city, a number of gentlemen, prominent in Democratic Councils, met in the parlors of Chamberlain's Hotel. The Committees, appointed at a previous meeting, made their reports. We take great pleasure in announcing that the objects contemplated by the call of the Executive Committee will meet with a triumphant success. It was the earnest de*sire of the Executive Committee that an* organization should be formed in this city, and that every person residing therein should be entitled to membership by complying with the requirements of the rules of the Organization. Henceforth all believing and holding the tenets of the Democratic faith will have an opportunity of meeting together, and by association, become thoroughly acquainted. We are authorized in saying that proper and sufficient rooms will be obtained, that reading matter will be abundantly supplied, and that these rooms, with all the advantages pertaining to the same, will be nightly thrown open to every Democrat of this city, whether he be an enrolled member of the organization or not. The Executive Committee adjourned until Tuesday evening, 27th inst., at 8 o'clock, to meet in the parlors of Chamberlain's Hotel, where they will perfect all arrangements for the complete establishment of the organization.

New Jersey Editorial Association.

The Twenty-fourth Annual meeting of the New Jersey Editorial Association was held at the American House, Trenton, on Monday last and in the absence of the President, Col. A. W. Jones, Mr. John L. Murphy, of the State Gazette, was chosen to preside.

Several new members were proposed and accepted.

The report of the Treasurer read by Secretary Babcock showed that the receipts and balance were $826.33, and the expenditures $354.66; the balance on hand being $471.97. The Excursion account showed the receipts to have been $1,740, leaving a deficiency of $94.70. The total expenses were $1,834.70.

The Secretary's report was then read, showing that altogether there are 25 Dailies, 3 Semi-weeklies, 143 Weeklies, 1 Bi-weekly, and four monthlies in the State.

The following named gentlemen were chosen officers of the Association for the ensuing year:

For President, Charles H. Folwell, Mt. Holly Mirror; Vice Presidents—First District, Robert Gwynne, Salem Sunbeam; Second District, James D. Flynn, Bordentown Register; Third District, William F. Le Roy, Keyport Weekly; Fourth District, Clark Pierson, Lambertville Record; Fifth District, Le Clerc Vogt, Morristown Banner; Sixth District, Wm. R. Guild, Newark Journal; Seventh District, Edward Gardner, Bayonne Times. Secretary, John F. Babcock, New Brunswick Fredonian; Treasurer, James S. Yard, Monmouth Democrat. Executive Committee, S. Chew, A. A. Vance, Glass, Bechtel and Lewis R. Hyer.

Masonic.

At the Annual Communication of the M. W. G. L. of F. & A. M., of the State of New Jersey, held at Trenton, on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, the following officers were re-elected:

Hamilton Wallis, G. M.
Joseph W. Martin, D. G. M.
Wm. Hardacre, S. G. W.
Henry Vehslage, J. G. W.
Charles Bechtel, G. Treasurer.
Joseph H. Hough, G. Secretary.

Mr. Hough, the Grand Secretary has held the position for 27 consecutive years and is the oldest G.S. in the United States.

Personalia.

Mr. Samuel E. Perry, of Hunterdon County, well-known to many of our citizens, received the "minority" nomination of Clerk of the House, at the organization of the Legislature last week. We congratulate you, "Sammy."

Miss Mamie DeCamp, daughter of H. H. DeCamp, Esq., formerly connected with Laing's Hotel, and now residing at Chester, is visiting friends and former schoolmates in this city.

Mr. Ray Gordon, who for the past few weeks has acted in the capacity of Clerk at the Mansion House, has received a lucrative position in the New York Custom House. He has the wishes of a host of friends for his future prosperity.

Ex-Councilman John Cameron has returned to his home in this city, after the completion of a railroad building contract in Virginia.

Thanks to Hon. Miles Ross for public documents.

Peter Bergen, the "Silver Tongued Orator of Somerset," was in our city on Tuesday last, disposing of pamphlets containing "humorous sketches" of Somerset County Freeholders. Peter says he has prepared a new and impressive lecture, which he would like to deliver in Van Deventer Hall, if the "boys" will help him along with the sale of tickets.—Jim Van P. where are you?

Hon. James Bergen, Prosecutor of Pleas of Somerset County, paid us a short visit on Tuesday last.

We are indebted to Mr. Wm. S. Potter, of Somerset, for favors received from Trenton.

FIRE MATTERS.

The popular foreman of "Alert" Hose Co., No. 1, of this city, Mr. Auguste Saltzman, is the recipient of two kindly notices from recent exchanges lying upon our table. The New Haven Evening Register, of Jan. 15th says:

"A massive solid silver and gold mounted fire trumpet, valued at $250, the property of Auguste Saltzman, foreman of Alert Hose, No. 1, of Plainfield, N. J., is on exhibition in the window of H. B. Armstrong & Co. It was voted to him at a fair held in Plainfield last September. Mr. Saltzman paid a visit to Chief Engineer Hendrick and Fire Marshal Kennedy yesterday."

The New Haven Union of Jan. 14th says:

"The Chief Engineer and Fire Marshal received an official visit last evening from A. Saltzman, foreman of the Alert Hose Company, Plainfield, N. J., who presented them with a slight token of esteem in the shape of a unique and handsome watch charm and lead pencil, emblematical of fire department matters. A visit was made to several engine houses and their guest was otherwise entertained. He has recently been presented with an elegant gold and silver fire trumpet, which will be placed on exhibition on Chapel Street."

All the "laddies" of Plainfield like "Gus," because "He's a jolly good fellow"!!!! "Which nobody can deny."

The "Alert" Hose Company have perfected all their arrangements for holding their Annual Reception and Ball. The affair will be held at the Park House, and mine host, De Revere, will be the caterer on the occasion. Prof. Frazee will furnish the music. As is usual on the occurrence of "Alert's" Receptions, the number of tickets of admission will be limited to members only, with the privilege of each inviting a certain number of friends. Lucky are they who receive such invites, for the occasion will be one of enjoyment and pleasure. It will transpire the evening of Feb. 25th next.

The people of Gloucester are determined to have a new steam fire engine. At present, they have an old hose carriage, a hook and ladder apparatus, but no engine of any kind.

The Z. H. & L. Co., of Plainfield, visited the Zouave ball last night, and enjoyed themselves hugely, making many friends among the firemen of this city and New Brunswick.—Eliz. Monitor.

The Annual Ball of Engine Co., No. 2, at Chamberlain's Hotel last Thursday evening, was largely attended, and proved an enjoyable occasion. Prof. Frazee furnished the music.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

Township Election, Tuesday, March 9.

The fire well on Jackson avenue is not yet finished.

A Veterinary Surgeon (?) made several attempts to bleed a "dizzy" looking nag on Tuesday morning last on Somerset st.

Al. Smalley has rented the Hillman property from Mr. David Stone and will take possession of the same in a week or two.

On Monday night last a stuffed man (making calls) was the cause of much merriment to pushers on, and also, displeasure to those who were unfortunate in receiving a call.

The report that Tom Paff had rented the store property on Somerset street, opposite Emily street, is not true. Mr. P. has leased the DeBaud property for another year and will remain at the Plains.

Judge Dalrymple has postponed his decision in the matter of Johnston Drive, Somerset st. and Grove st. extension assessments, on account of his time being taken up by the Investigating Com. He promises to render a decision inside of three week's time.

A five year old boy named Thomas Canfield, son of Mark Canfield, was taken from home to the office of Dr. H. F. Vanderveer, at Somerville, on Sunday last, to have a piece of glass removed from his foot. The Dr. gave the child chloroform while the father held him. The latter fainted during the operation of removing the glass, and fell over backwards with the child in his arms. When he recovered, the boy was dead. A Coroner's Jury decided that the child came to its death by inhaling chloroform, and exonerated the Dr.

The workmen engaged in digging the Fire Well on Jackson Avenue, have secured two feet of water in the well since our last issue. Citizens in the immediate vicinity complain of the crowds of friends, male and female, of the colored workmen, who congregate about the spot, build fires to warm themselves and use objectionable language. The Com. on Wells should attend to this matter.

The bill of the Experts appointed to examine into the affairs of the Somerset County Freeholders was presented to the Board at their meeting on Wednesday last. It footed up $1,114.96.

"Smith's Hotel" building is being removed to its new location, corner of Somerset Street and Green Brook Road, by Mr. Newt. Jenkins. Joseph Blatz, the owner, will occupy the building which will be re-modelled into a fine hotel.

More Honors for Plainfield.

At the Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the State Agricultural Society, held at Trenton, last Wednesday, Mr. John L. Holly, of Plainfield, was elected one of the Board of Directors for the ensuing year in place of Mr. Wm. J. Schenck. The Treasurer of the Society, Mr. Samuel Manning, reported a balance on hand of $7,200.52.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

The friends of L. H. K. Smalley, Esq., will learn with regret that last week the gentleman was forbidden by his doctor to leave his bed. It is now some three weeks since Mr. S. was taken sick and not able to attend his business or Sabbath school.

J. E. Flannery, once "our village blacksmith," will vacate his residence here this Spring, to reside in the city of Plainfield.

Excelsior Fire boys attended their regular monthly meeting last Monday night, in full force, many venerable and distinguished members being present. Not one received a chromo.

It is only scare boys—Fanwood Township will not support a Board of Fire Commissioners—Inspector of combustibles in the Fire Department, and all that sort of thing. Stick to the truck, men, everytime.

The Presiding Elder, Rev. Dr. Arndt, preached to a very large congregation in the M. E. church, last Sunday evening. After the sermon the Elder baptised and admitted into the church on probation, a number of adult persons, concluding the service by administering the Lord's Supper.

Thursday last, each officer of the Fanwood Fire Department, received notice, "by mail," to meet at Excelsior Truck House, at 7:30 p. m., sharp, Saturday the 17th. All were present at the time stated in the call save one gentleman who has charge of the organization. Not being able to get to business without the gentleman, an agreement was made to adjourn until Thursday the 22d, same hour and place. They, "the F. F. Dep't.," went home as limp as a greenback.

At the close of the work and business of Good Will Lodge K. of P. last Thursday evening, a happy and an agreeable surprise awaited the brethren in a sumptuous repast prepared especially by their commander. It was indeed a happy sight, and no "brother of the mystic tie" ever enjoyed themselves better. The genial, happy hours they shared together on Thursday evening in true fraternity and love will long be remembered.

The "Ellis" family will give one of their pleasing entertainments at the Baptist church on Monday evening next, Jan. 26th, at 7:45 o'clock, p. m. Come and hear the child wonder, Fanny May, only ten years old. Admission, adults, 25 cents. Children, 10 cents.

WESTFIELD WHIPS.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST of last week, went off like hot cakes, and Wittke could not supply the demand.

Harry Bourne, our youthful traveler, received a stuffed young alligator last week, from his friends in Jacksonville, Fla. It measures 13 inches.

The colored folks have organized a debating society. They meet every Wednesday evening at Mulford station. Geo. Burrill, Ch'mn; Theo. Williams, Sec.; James Newman, Judge; Major Gaines, Ass't Judge. Which was of more worth to man, "Education or Money," was the last question debated. It was decided in favor of Education. Our old friend, Jno. Nelson, belongs.

An accident happened to a coal train on Monday morning last, which luckily, did not amount to much. A wheel came off a short distance from the depot. The car fell on the outside of the track. Had it been the other way, a serious accident would have been the result, as the Phila. Express came thundering by a few minutes after the accident.

The Union Prayer Meetings are being continued this week. They are being held at the Baptist Church.

The Town Committee met at the Town Rooms on Tuesday last.

Atlas Lodge was favored at its last communication by the presence of three W. P. M's., Wm. A. Macquoid, Addison S. Clark and Dr. Sherman Cooper. Rev. Dr. Drumm, Rector of Grace Church and Mr. Blazier, Principal of our School, were also present. Mr. B. took charge of the organ.

ORGANIZED AT LAST.

The Republican Common Council of the city of Plainfield perfected their organization last Monday evening, by the selection of Mr. O. B. Leonard, for City Clerk. It would seem from the vote cast—ten for and one blank, that the Council were unanimous on the subject. Either of the other candidates mentioned in connection with the office would have creditably filled the position, as Mr. Leonard undoubtedly will. Considerable bad party feeling has been engendered by the choice, but as we were taught when younger—"don' put your finger in other people's pie," and so we won't.

MESSRS. EDITORS:

Dear Sirs:—Being one of the fortunate ones present at the lecture of the Y. M. C. A. Course last Thursday evening, by Robert Voorhees, I do not hesitate to say I was both delighted and astonished at the wonderful thoughts, clothed in still more wonderful language, of the speaker. His descriptive powers, his imagery, rivited the attention of every intelligent man and woman in that audience, many pronouncing it to be one of the best Lectures ever given to a Plainfield audience. More than this, the Com. of these Lectures were so thoroughly pleased and profited that they desired him to give another of his classic lectures the following week.—Judge of my astonishment on reading the criticisms in your daily contemporary; a report so contemptible in spirit, so ungenerously and ignorantly expressed, reflects only on that sprig-of-a-pen, the reporter. Robert Voorhees and his lecture on the "Beauties of Nature," will live in the hearts and memories of all who had the exquisite pleasure of listening to it, and him, when the wielder of that puny pen and his learned "reporter" has sunk into the insignificance from which it arose.

HOMER.

For "The Constitutionalist."

MESSRS. EDITORS: As the time for the Township Election in North Plainfield, Somerset county, is close at hand, it will not be amiss to call the attention of the voters thereto; and, it being customary for the several officers to be more or less criticised at this season every year, allow me to mention one who has given general satisfaction and who is highly spoken of as a public officer: I refer to Mr. F. H. Gardner, to whom the citizens are indebted. Mr. G. has spent much time and trouble in finding out the true indebtedness of the Township. He has been the best financier that the Township ever had and should be re-elected to the Town Committee.

MESSRS. ELY BROS., Owego, N. Y.

GENTS:—I take this opportunity for complimenting you upon your very valuable and much needed preparation "Ely's Cream Balm," for the cure of Hay Fever and Catarrh. The form of this medicine and the method of its reaching the diseased mucous membrane (via the absorption) renders it far superior to any other remedy of the kind in the market. I have sold several dozen and have yet to hear the first complaint of its failure to do what you claim for it. I unhesitatingly recommend it to the trade as a very valuable article and to those who are suffering with the above mentioned complaints as the great desideratum that—"Balm of Ely's."

Most Respectfully Yours,
R. J. SHAW.

South Jersey oysters are being shipped to England, France, Holland and other points of Europe. The demand is constantly increasing.

By Universal Accord,

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, and their extensive use, by Physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, proves them the best and most effectual purgative Pill that medical science can devise. Being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use. In intrinsic value and curative powers no other Pills can be compared with them, and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them when needed. They keep the system in perfect order, and maintain in healthy action the whole machinery of life. Mild, searching and effectual, they are specially adapted to the needs of the digestive apparatus, derangements of which they prevent and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest physic to employ for children and weakened constitutions, where a mild, but effectual cathartic is required. For sale by all dealers.

$10,000 AWARDED.—"I was so sick and low-spirited that I thought I would give anything to get well; and if any one had assured me the good health produced by using Simmons' Liver Regulator, and charged me a thousand dollars, I would willingly have paid it if I had had it; in fact, ten thousand dollars would be worth less to me than what it has done for me." Invaluable for Railroad Men.

"I suffered for more than a year with indigestion and during the last six months I was very bilious, occasionally having a dumb chill, followed by fevers, which prostrated me. I took Simmons' Liver Regulator, and for several months I have been as stout and hearty as any man could desire to be. I am thoroughly satisfied that it is all it is recommended to be for indigestion and bilious complaints, for mine was certainly a stubborn case. I have heard many of my friends speak of it, and all agree that it possesses all the virtues you claim for it. A. H. HIGHTOWER, Conductor M. and W. R. R."

RATES OF INTEREST IN THE SEVERAL STATES.

In view of the fact that the six per cent. law went into effect in New York January 1st, the Brooklyn Eagle publishes the following, showing the rate in the several States:

In Alabama the legal rate of interest is eight per cent. There is a provision that on usurious contracts the principal only can be recovered.

Arkansas fixes the rate at six per cent. If both parties, agree to it, any rate can be charged, not exceeding ten. Usury forfeits both principal and interest.

In California ten per cent. after a debt becomes due. But parties may agree upon any rate.

Colorado allows ten per cent.

Connecticut places the figures at seven per cent. Usury forfeits interest, taken in excess of the legal rates.

In Dakota the rate is seven per cent. Permits parties to contract for any rate not exceeding twelve per cent. Usury forfeits all the interest taken.

In Delaware the rate is six per cent. The penalty for usury is the forfeiture of a sum equal to the money lent.

In the District of Columbia six per cent. is the rate. It is competent for parties to stimulate in writing for ten per cent. If usury is shown the party loaning forfeits all the interest.

In Florida eight per cent. is considered the proper rate, but all usury laws have been repealed and money may be loaned at any rate.

In Georgia the rate is seven per cent. but parties may contract for as high as twelve. A higher rate than twelve forfeits interest and excess.

In Idaho Territory the rate is ten per cent. It is legal, however, for persons to agree in writing for any rate not exceeding two per cent. a month. The penalty for a greater rate is three times the amount paid, a fine of $300 or six months' imprisonment, or both.

In Illinois the legal rate is six per cent.; parties, however, may agree in writing for ten. The penalty for usury is the forfeiture of the entire interest.

In Indiana the rate is also six per cent.; but parties may agree in writing for any rate not exceeding ten per cent. Beyond that the rate is illegal as to excess only.

Iowa also fixes her legal rate of interest at six per cent., but if it is agreed on in writing you may go as high as ten. Go beyond that, however, and you forfeit ten per cent.

Kansas fixes the legal rate of interest at seven per cent., though parties are allowed to agree for any rate up to twelve. Beyond that it is regarded as usury, and the excess is forfeited.

Kentucky allows six per cent., though written contracts may be made as high as ten per cent. Usury forfeits the whole interest charged.

In Louisiana the rate is six per cent. Eight per cent, may be stipulated for if embodied in the face of the stipulation. No higher than eight per cent. is allowed.

In Maine the legal rate of interest is six per cent. Maine, however, allows parties to agree in writing on any rate.

In Maryland six per cent. Usurious contracts cannot be enforced for the excess above the legal rate.

In Massachusetts, also the rate is six per cent., but any amount is legal if specified in writing.

In Michigan the rate is seven per cent. By stipulation any rate not exceeding ten per cent. may be agreed on.

The rate in Minnesota is likewise seven per cent. Parties may contract in writing to pay as high as twelve, but a contract for a higher rate is void as to the excess.

The rate of legal interest in Mississippi is six per cent. By contract in writing as high as ten per cent. may be agreed upon, but when more than ten is taken, the excess cannot be recovered.

Missouri also fixes her legal rate of interest at six per cent., but you may contract in writing for ten. The penalty for usury is forfeiture of the interest at ten per cent.

In Montana parties may stipulate for any rate of interest.

In Nebraska the rate is ten per cent., or any rate on express contract not greater than twelve. Usury prohibits the recovery of any interest on the principal.

Nevada, too, fixes her legal rate of interest at ten per cent., but at the same time, you may, with the aid of paper, pen and ink, agree to pay any rate you please.

New Hampshire is satisfied that her legal rate should be six per cent. A higher rate forfeits three times the excess to the party aggrieved, but he must sue for it.

In New Jersey the rate is six per cent., and usury forfeits all interest and costs.

In New York the rate is six per cent. Usury is a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not exceeding $1,000, or six months' imprisonment, or both, and forfeits the principal, even in the hands of third parties.

In North Carolina the legal rate is six per cent. Eight per cent. may be stipulated for. The penalty for usury is double the amount lent, and indictment for misdemeanor.

In Ohio the rate is six per cent., but there may be a contract in writing for as high as eight. If a contract is for a higher rate than eight, it is void as to interest, and recovery is limited to principal and six per cent.

In Georgia the rate is ten per cent., but parties, by agreement, may go as high as twelve.

Pennsylvania places the limit at six per cent. Usurious interest cannot be collected, and if paid, it can be recovered by suit within six months.

Rhode Island fixes the rate at six per cent., but any rate may be agreed upon.

In South Carolina the legal rate is seven per cent. Usury laws, however, are abolished, and parties may contract without limit; providing it is in writing.

In Tennessee the rate is six per cent. Parties may contract in writing for any rate not exceeding ten per cent.

In Texas the rate is eight per cent., but all usury laws have been abolished.

In Utah the rate is ten per cent.—There are, however, no usury laws, and any rate may be agreed upon.

In Vermont six per cent. is the correct thing as to interest, and usury forfeits only the excess.

In Virginia the rate is likewise six per cent., and in case of usury the loaner forfeits all interest.

Washington Territory places the rate at ten per cent., but any rate agreed on, in writing, is valid.

West Virginia fixes the legal rate at six per cent. If usury is pleaded, the excess of interest over the legal rate cannot be recovered.

In Wisconsin the rate is seven per cent., but parties may contract in writing for as high a rate as ten, and usury forfeits all the interest paid.

In Wyoming Territory though the rate is fixed at twelve per cent., any rate may be agreed on in writing.

In Upper and Lower Canada the rate is six per cent., but any rate may be stipulated.

TIME-SAVING IN HOUSEWORK.

An old housekeeper writes to the Chicago Tribune: "No matter who does the washing, I always hang out and take in the clothes myself. I hang everything of a kind together, and when I take them from the line I fold the sheets nicely and lay them one above another, the towels also, and pillow slips, so they do not get rumpled; I gather the handkerchiefs in one bundle, the starched clothes in another, so I do not have to sort them over at all when I fold them down. This saves one handling of clothes. Then I spread the sheets in one pile, the towels in another, and the pillow slips in another, and iron them one upon another till they all are ironed. This saves folding and unfolding each separate piece. Then when I am ironing one piece, I am ironing the one below it instead of smoothing the ironing blanket.

This way of planning out every separate department cannot fail to give large success in accomplishing with the fewest strokes and the least exertion the work to be done. The same housekeeper writes: "When I cut out a garment I am careful to cut every part of it, all the facings and linings, to get all trimmings, buttons, etc., together, and roll them all in one bundle. Then when I come to make it, I have no running about to do to get things together, no planning to do, but simply the garment to make without getting out of my chair till it is done."

A TENDER APPEAL.

There is something very tender and touching in the sorrow of a true mother, whatever the language in which it expresses itself. A good old "aunty," who had lost her youngest child, pours out her soul in a lament to which many a white mother's heart will respond in sympathy. She says:

You see he is so little, sor, he'll miss his mammy so—
An' Hebben's such a great big place, he won't know where to go.
I thought if I could die to-day it wouldn't be too late
To obertake his little soul, an' tote it to the gate.
An' oh, it breaks my heart to think dat maybe he will cry,
An' hang about outside de gate, without a bite or sup,
A waitin' and a longin' for his mammy to ketch up.

Mr. Ira Sharer, of Bedminister, came within an ace of shooting his wife on Friday after Christmas, at his residence, in Peapack. It appears that he had had a shooting-match Christmas day, and a young man who had been using his gun left it loaded and uncapped; consequently the next day Mr. Sharer concluded to clean his gun, and while preparing to do so he placed a cap on the tube and playfully pointed the gun at a young lady in the room told her he would shoot her, when fortunately before pulling the trigger the gun was turned to one side before it was fired, the charge just grazing his wife's head and lodging into a dress belonging to her which was hanging against the wall. It is said the parties are not yet over their fright. Any person that points a gun at another, loaded or unloaded, in fun or in earnest, should be arrested on the spot.—Somerset Messenger.

Benjamin Fish, of Trenton, has rounded up ninety-four years of a remarkable existence. He loaned Commodore Vanderbilt $1,000 when the Commodore first started out in his career; brought down the first anthracite coal that descended the Delaware in 1823; managed the old stage line and steamboat company between New York and Philadelphia fifty-five years ago; was one of the first Directors of the Camden and Amboy Railroad in 1830, and has been elected every year since. In 1833 he drove the first freight car that moved over the road between South Amboy and Bordentown. Horses were used that year. The next year a locomotive was imported from England, and it is still standing in the shops at Bordentown, and is known as "Johnny Bull" and "Number One."

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, N. J.

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH, N. J., January 12, 1880.

Pursuant to adjournment the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County met at the Court House, Elizabeth, Monday, January 12th, at 2 o'clock, p. m.

Present—Director Randolph and Freeholders Briant, Bauer, Crowell, Doty, Forsyth, Fisher, Hubbard, Isenmann, Jewell, Miller, Parse, Roll, S. C. Smith, Thos. H. Smith, Thompson.

Absent—Freeholder Wilcox.

The minutes of the last meeting were read (reading of bills on motion was omitted) and on motion approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following opinion of County Attorney in the matter of expenses of experts in case of State vs. Sullivan, was, on motion of Freeholder Fisher, received and ordered placed on file and spread upon the minutes.

ELIZABETH, JAN. 10, 1880.

MR. G. W. F. RANDOLPH, Director, etc.:

Dear Sir:—I have examined the law relating to the bills of Drs. James S. Green and Victor Mravlag for services as experts in the case of the State vs. Sullivan, which were referred to me at the last meeting.

The claims are made under the 100th section of the act concerning criminal procedure; Rev. page 286, which is as follows:

It shall be the duty of the prosecutor of the pleas for each county, to use all reasonable and lawful diligence for the detection, arrest, indictment and conviction of offenders against the laws; and all necessary expenses incurred thereby, verified to and approved under his hand, by the presiding judge of the oyer and terminer, or general quarter sessions of the place for any county shall be paid by the Board of Freeholders thereof.

My opinion is that the approval of the judge referred to in said section does not prevent the Board of Freeholders from questioning the bills and refusing to pay them, or either of them, if in the judgment of the Board they are illegal or excessive. Only necessary expenses are required to be paid. The approval of unnecessary expenses would not bind the Board.

All citizens are bound to attend court and testify to facts without further compensation than the usual witness fees. Persons subpoenaed to give opinions as experts are entitled to fair compensation for their services.

The prosecutor required medical expert testimony to properly try the Sullivan case. If the Board is satisfied that the amounts claimed are not excessive, the bills should be paid.

Very respectfully submitted,

FRANK BERGEN,
County Attorney.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

Report of Committee appointed to inquire into the advisability of granting a dock, wharf or pier to I. Howard Mansfield.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County:

GENTLEMEN:—Your committee would most respectfully report that they have inquired into and investigated the application of I. Howard Mansfield, and it appearing that due notice has been given of the making of the application, and that the granting of the application will not be injurious to navigation, therefore we would most respectfully report that the license to build a dock, wharf or pier be granted to I. Howard Mansfield.

JOHN K. ROLL,
J. F. HUBBARD,
THOMAS FORSYTH,
Committee.

On motion the report was received and placed on file.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Freeholder Roll:

Resolved, Whereas, I. Howard Mansfield has made application in writing to this Board for license to build a dock, wharf or pier in front of his lands in Linden township and fronting on Staten Island Sound, and it appearing that due notice has been given of the making of the application and that the improvement applied for will not be injurious to public navigation, that a license be granted to said I. Howard Mansfield to build a dock, wharf or pier in front of his lands described in his petition, and to extend the same beyond the limits of ordinary low water to the exterior line established by the Board of Riparian Commissioners of New Jersey.

On motion the resolution was adopted by the following vote:

Ayes—Freeholders Briant, Bauer, Crowell, Doty, Forsyth, Fisher, Hubbard, Isenmann, Jewell, Miller, Parse, Roll, S. C. Smith, Thomas H. Smith, Thompson—15.

Nays—Director Randolph—1.

By Freeholder Isenmann:

Resolved, That the Committee on Union avenue bridge, Cranford, be authorized to draw a warrant for the payment of the iron work for said bridge to the New York Bridge Company, if satisfactory to the committee on said bridge and accepted by them, and that the County Collector is hereby authorized to pay such warrant when the same is properly authenticated.

On motion the resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Miller:

Resolved, That the claim of James L. Brush for two hundred and sixty-four 15-100 dollars for building a bridge at Westfield, to be paid to him whenever a committee of three, to be appointed for that purpose, shall be satisfied that the claim of George Sauerbrun, presented to this Board, has been adjusted.

On motion adopted by a unanimous vote.

POETRY.

LAST WORDS.

OVER A LITTLE BED AT NIGHT.

Good-night, pretty sleepers of mine—
I never shall see you again;
Ah, never in shadow or shine;
Ah, never in dew or in rain!

In your small dreaming-dresses of white,
With the wild-bloom you gathered to-day
In your quite shut hands, from the light
And the dark you will wander away.

Though no graves in the bee-haunted grass,
And no love in the beautiful sky,
Shall take you as yet, you will pass,
With this kiss, through these tear-drops.
Good-bye!

With less gold and more gloom in the hair,
When the buds near have faded to flowers
Three faces may wake here as fair—
But older than yours are, by hours!

Good-night, then, lost darling of mine—
I never shall see you again;
Ah, never in shadow or shine;
Ah, never in dew or in rain!

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

"DOCTOR JOHN."

"A Doctor's life is a strange one!" muttered John Hessman, as he jumped into his carriage, taking the reins from the grinning Ethiopian who for the last twenty minutes had been cherishing the fond delusion that he was to accompany his master on his round of professional inquiry.

"Not this time, Ebony," said the doctor, with a good-natured shrug of his broad shoulders. "You shall come to-morrow," noting the look of disappointment in the boy's face. Dr. John was more tender of his servants than some men are of their wives.

"Oh, never-mind, Massa, never mind!" replied Ebony, like the average human, quite forgetful of annoyance when the subject of consideration. "I knows what 'tis. I just knows what 'tis," added Ebony, as he watched the carriage out of sight. "He's got one of his spells, and wants to talk to hisself. I know him of old. If 'twas anybody but Dr. John, I should just say, 'Ebony, that man has got softening of the skull;' but no such nonsense can be laid to him."

Dr. John did want to be alone or as much alone as a man can be in the streets of a crowded city, and he did want to talk to himself. Most men who are in the habit of communing with their own souls, do it in audible language; so in this respect, whatever he might be in others, Dr. John did not differ from his brethren. A man's own opinion is not unfrequently his best and safest companion. It will keep its owner's secrets, and when the companionship is frequent, will in all cases properly guide and admonish. Self communism in its highest form is the avenue which leads directly to the heart of God.

"Yes," continued the doctor—"yes, sir." (Sometimes Dr. John was very respectful to himself). "A doctor's life is no joke! Easy, my beauty, easy! Now, John, look at that horse. You are only just a little more of an animal than he is. It's fun for him to travel when there's another horse close by that he can outrun. Exactly the case with you, John. If it hadn't been for another horse in the shape of a doctor you were determined to get a little the start of, where would you have been to-day? That's the point. Worthy ambition, eh? to pass a poor devil on the road of life! Upon my word, I believe I should be a better man if I had a wife. I rather like women, but it is a little hard to understand how a fellow manages with a woman tied to him morning, noon and night. That's what akes me. Then, I am not sure that anybody'd have me that was anyways suitable. Of course, I should want intelligence—and intellectuality, too, by George! and I never could endure a plain woman, or a woman with a loud voice, or—Yes, sir, that question is in order," continued the doctor, stroking his long, silky black beard. "That is what I call driving the nail in. What have you got, John Hessman, in exchange for these royal treasures of mind and body? A good name—yes; an exceptional position, unimpeachable integrity—yes, sir. These are something;" and here our M. D. reined up before an excellent brown-stone mansion, where one of his best (pecuniary speaking) and most fashionable patients resided. Here Dr. John was employed by the year; and although the position was no sinecure, on account of the amount of patience required to battle with the nervous fancies of the principal invalid of the establishment, still, Dr. John, to use his own telling vernacular, considered it "exceedingly soft thing"—and soft it was in more senses than one.

Dr. John walked right up into the invalid's chamber.

"Oh, good morning, doctor. A little late, arn't you? Seems to me I have been waiting an unusual length of time," drawled the lady from her luxurious couch.

"About the usual hour," replied Dr. John, with no especial show of deference. "What seems to be the matter this morning?"

"Now, really, doctor, that is too cruel. Matter this morning! Do you remember what was the matter yesterday? Please don't be so blunt, you shock my nerves terribly."

"Let me see," said the doctor. "Yesterday, according to your own admission, you were fagged out with a fashionable party and at late supper. That of course cannot be the case to-day."

"I know I should not have attempted it in my weak state doctor. I know just what you will think of it," sighed the fashionable woman from her downy bed. "But, then, you men will never understand what society demands of us women. Dear Estelle (dear Estelle was the invalid's daughter) had quite set her heart on going to Mrs. Donk's reception. Of course I could not allow the dear child to go unattended, and, bless your heart, Dr. Hessman, that girl's father would not accompany her to a party if she fell at his feet in consequence. Oh, Lord, such a time as I did have about it, trying to induce Mr. Waters to escort her! I really believe that scene had more to do with my suffering to-day than the party had. Dear me, such a man as Mr. Waters is! I told him—says I, 'William this may result in my death. What do you think he said in reply, doctor? Says he—'When a woman gets to be forty years old, and don't know enough to take care of her own health, and the health of her children, it is time she died; and then, doctor, he lit his cigar, and puffed out of the house. I tell you this, because I want you to know what has so unnerved me, and that you may not lay it all to the party. Estelle is quite ill, too, doctor, and when you have written out my prescription, I wish you would walk into the next room and see her."

Dr. John knew that something must be administered, or his professional reputation would be irretrievably damaged, so with a quiet smile playing round his large mouth—(Dr. John's mouth was really very large, and truth compels us to state that he had an under jaw to match, though the rows of unexceptionably white and even teeth, and the silken chin-covering, glossy and soft as a woman's hair, entirely redeemed the lower part of his face from ugliness) the physician wrote the few necessary Latin words, among which aqua seemed really the most conspicuous, and then passed into the other room. The doctor knew what awaited him. This little game had been tried more than once before.

"Good morning, Miss Estelle," said Dr. John, approaching the sofa, where the languid beauty reclined. "Your mother tells me you are ill."

Miss Estelle, with an almost impatient gesture, brushed back the floating hair from her temple—carelessly, and really unintentionally, it would seem, baring by the motion one of the most beautiful arms that sculpture ever raved about—and replied:

"Your manner seems to say, Miss Estelle, you are always ill. Why don't you believe yourself?"

"Oh, how happy I should be, Dr. John, if you would, once in your life be kind to me. I do really think something is the matter with my heart. What if I should die?"

No picture of Watteau's could ever have been more witching, more charmingly colored, than the little form before him. Every accessory of toilet had been brought to bear upon the citadel of his heart; and to a handsome woman no dress is so becoming as the negligée of her boudoir, with its lace and fantastic embroidery, slippered feet and graceful postures. Then the vases filled with flowers, the mirrors and jewels, and perfumes, and enticing lolling chair. Heigho! many a strong man has bowed to such a shrine—made a fool of himself for life—when in the glare and glitter of the drawing room no such nonsense would have been thought of.

Dr. John acknowledged the beauty of this picture. It was dainty, piquant, dangerous. It has been dished up for him on several previous occasions, but never so much to his mind as now. The beauty's manner was earnest and almost supplicating. What man could fail to be appreciative under such circumstances? Remember, too, that Dr. John was longing to be loved—had that very morning almost prayed that heaven would send him a little bundle of comfort in shape of a good wife, and it will not be strange that, notwithstanding the efforts previously made to enthrall him, he should think only of the present loveliness.

"What are you reading, Miss Estelle?" said Dr. John, after a moment of appreciative scrutiny. "Wilson's Essays, eh?" and the doctor's face showed all the surprise and pleasure felt by its owner. "And upon my word, if here isn't Emerson! That is healthy food—rather heavy, though I should think, for a sick girl?"

Miss Estelle drew a long breath! For the first time in the twelve months of trial had she received one single word of compliment or commendation from the man whom her mother had determined she should marry.

"And, as true as I live, another book under the pillow. Really, I have some curiosity to know the title of that volume also," continued the doctor, almost caressingly.

"Oh, it is nothing," replied the would-be invalid, languidly, "but a stupid cookery-book that I got from the library. Mother depends on me, you see, for our desserts, and I can tell you that sometimes my ingenuity is sorely tested."

One little hand tucked the volume further under the pillow, while the other, unconsciously of course, dropped upon the doctor's. With the white-jeweled fingers lying on his, the fair dazzling face upturned, the words which would have doomed him to misery all the days of his life were almost spoken.

How wonderfully and providentially little things sometimes appear, to save from desolation and death! The hand with which she had striven to hide the partially concealed volume had, strangely enough lifted the frill of the pillow, and disclosed both title and author. One of the most mischievous and recklessly written books ever translated into the English language.

For a moment the doctor sat silent with horror and astonishment. Not so much that the young woman before him had developed a taste for such literature, but that she could so unblushingly lie to him.

"I do not think," said he at last, "that you need any medicine? So you have my permission to study the cook-book under your pillow as diligently as you may feel disposed. It is pleasant to know that fashionable young ladies are possessed of such domestic and literary tastes. Good morning, Miss Waters."

Dr. John passed out of that abode of luxury sick at heart.

"And yet," he murmured, "I came very near losing myself in that trap. What confounded fools men are!"

This thought was rather humiliating, and Dr. John was unable to shake it off during the day; and when he turned his horse's head homeward, it was with a feeling of disgust and loneliness, never before experienced.

"Pretty much all alike, I am afraid," he continued softly to himself.

Just then a little figure in the middle of the street attracted his attention. A child, to all appearance not a day over five years, with uplifted arms, stood, heedless of danger, looking straight into his face. Quicker than I can tell, Dr. John had jumped from his carriage, seized the little creature, and placed her on the seat behind him.

"You were in great danger, my dear," said the doctor, looking down into the singularly sweet and intelligent young face. "What made you stand in the middle of the crowded street?"

"Are you a doctor?" was the only reply vouchsafed.

"By profession, yes, little miss, and by name John Hessman. Have you any commands for his highness?"

"If you are a doctor, I want you to go home with me, and if you are not, please tell me where I can find one. My sister Kate is sick, awful sick, and she talks and sings all the time; and I haven't got any money—neither has she, but she will die if somebody don't come."

"I am a doctor, and will go home with you, little darling," said our friend, involuntarily drawing the sobbing child toward him. "Don't cry; I can help her if anybody can."

Before they arrived at the residence of the sick girl, Dr. John discovered, by skillful questioning, that the child's name was Florence Britton—the sister's, Kate Britton; that Kate wrote stories, and made reports, and sometimes had to be out late at night taking notes and preparing articles for the Press; that she had not been well during the winter, and for the last three weeks had been unable to attend to her literary duties, and was now suffering from brain fever. The room which the doctor entered was plainly and neatly furnished, and bore unmistakably marks of refinement and womanly taste.

"Kate," said the little girl, climbing into the bed where her sister lay moaning with pain—"sister Kate, I have brought a doctor to see you. I found him in the street, and he says he can make you well. Look at him, Katie—he is very kind."

"Cuddle right down beside me, Flory darling. There—that's a good little girl. Go to sleep; don't mind sister Kate—she only got a headache. Say your prayers, Flory—say your," murmured the girl, even in delirium, thoughtful of her precious charge.

Here was a case to rouse Dr. John's energies—a case which appealed to his sympathy and respect—a case, so far as he was able to judge, of utter loneliness and destitution. So, like the good man he was, he set himself to work in earnest. A good nurse was procured, necessary articles were brought into the house, and over all he watched as tenderly as if the sufferer had been his own sister. The fourth day the invalid awoke to consciousness, and looked Dr. John straight in the face.

"Where am I?" said she attempting to rise.

"At home," he replied. "Please be very quiet."

"Where is Flory?"

"Asleep by your side. Don't ask any more questions."

"Who are you?" she continued, apparently oblivious to the last command.

"John Hessman, at your service, and at present your self-constituted physician, who will be obeyed! Now, drink this beef-tea—take Flory's little hand in yours, and go straight to sleep."

With a sigh of relief, a smile, a momentary attempt to keep her eyes open a little longer, and the invalid was sleeping as quietly as an infant.

Four weeks from that day, Miss Kate Britton rode out in the doctor's carriage, almost as well as ever.

Dr. John looked unutterable things, as he jumped into that gig and took his seat beside her. Very like the day, a month ago, when he had something particular to say to himself—only now he evidently had a communication to make to another.

"It will be safe for me to resume my writing to-morrow; will it not, doctor?" inquired Kate, the first to break the silence. "I feel better and stronger to-day than I have for a year."

"No, little girl," replied the doctor. "It will not be safe for you to resume your writing in six months!"

"Oh, doctor, you are joking now; I know you are," said Kate, noting the look of amusement in his expressive eyes.

"No, Kate, indeed I am not joking. You shall never go back to that drudgery again, if I can help it."

The hot blood mounted clear to Kate's temples. "Dr. Hessman," she continued, assuming a business-like manner, "but for you I should have been in my grave!"

"In all probability," broke in her companion, with more truth than modesty.

"Well," she continued, "you have saved my life, kept my darling little sister from starvation—cared for us both as though we had been your own kindred! But how can I ever—?"

"There, child, stop right where you are. Never, if you have any regard for my feelings, allow that word to slip from your lips. I want to take you and Flory to my home, and make your happiness my care. In short, Kate, I want a wife and a sister; will you be the first? Perhaps you don't love me exactly—but I know I can make you!"

"But I do love you!" said Miss Kate, under her breath.

"All right, then! Will you go?"

She went.

Dr. John scarcely ever talks to himself now.

PEARLS.

True friends stand trial.

Great thoughts originate from a large heart.

The actions of men are like the index of a book; they point out what is most agreeable in them.

All men look to happiness in the future. To every eye Heaven and earth seem to embrace in the distance.

A light-house has two objects: To give light; to save life. Every Christian is, or ought to be, a light-house.

Good men have the fewest fears. He has but one who fears to do wrong. He has a thousand who has overcome that one.

When you are sick it comes easy to promise all sorts of reformations, and when you recover it is just as easy to forget them.

A man has no more right to say an uncivil thing than to act one; no more right to say a rude thing to another than to knock him down.

A man need only to correct himself with the same rigor that he reprehends others, and excuse others with the same indulgence that he shows to himself.

Our conscience is a fire within us and our sins are the fuel; instead of warming, it will scorch us unless the fuel be removed, or the heat of it allayed by penitential tears.

As every thread of gold is valuable, so is every minute of time; and as it would be great folly to shoe horses (as the Roman Emperor Nero did) with gold, so it is to spend time in trifles.

If we would have powerful minds we must think; if we would have faithful hearts we must love; if we would have strong muscles we must labor. These include nearly all that is valuable in this life.

The light of a reconciled God, shining from the cross of our Lord Jesus, gives the heaven of the redeemed its brightness. The shadow of that cross makes the outer darkness of the abode of the lost.

The man who professes to believe that evil is only the under side of good the dark side of the moon, and properly a component part of human life, will never have the satisfaction of doing from inflammation of the brain.

THE YOUNG MAN'S WEDDING RING.

The other day, when a young man had pulled off two big mittens from his hands and stuck one into each pocket and backed up to the coal stove in a Woodward avenue jewelry store, he had still sufficient strength to ask if they kept finger rings there. The jeweler might just as well have replied that he did not, but that finger rings could be found at any hour and place there; yet he wanted to make a sale, and he answered:

"We do. What sort of a ring do you want?"

"It is for a wedding."

"Ah! Will you have a single diamond or a cluster?"

"I s'pose you'd want two or three dollars for a real diamond ring?" remarked the lover as he advanced to the tray.

He was carefully and tenderly informed that diamonds had gone up considerably since they were used in his baby rattle-box, and then he concluded to explain:

"I'm kinder down on such nonsense as wedding rings. When a fellow has to get a whole suit of clothes, pay the preacher, come to town and ride on the street cars and all that, its expense 'nuff. I s'pose, though, I'll have to get one."

"About what price?"

"Oh, fifty cents or six shillings, or around there. If its kinder gilded up to last for two weeks, that'll do. It hadn't orter turn rusty under three or four days, anyhow, as she'll want to show it off on the street cars and all the girls will be handling it. I'll look at the fifty cent ones first."

The jeweler went into a decline. He declined to admit that he ever had such a thing in his store. He further said that he could hardly believe that there was a young man on earth who would buy a fifty-cent ring to put on the finger of his bride.

"Do you s'pose," replied the young man, as he reached for his mittens, "do you s'pose I'm a John Jacob Astor? Do you s'pose I'm goin' to sell a hull crop of taters to buy a ring for my wife to wear washing dishes and turning the coffee mill? She's layin' off now to have me buy her shoes, hat, muff and perfumery after we're married; and do you think I can rush in here and holler out 'diamonds!' and slam down wads of greenbacks to pay for 'em!"

The jeweller leaned his pensive head on his hand and looked out of the window, and as the young man opened the door he halted and continued:

"Fifty-cent ring! Just as if fifty cents wasn't nothing to'rds a bridal tower!"—D. Press.

NOT THAT KIND OF A GUN.

In a corner grocery in the western part of the city, the other day, a boy was buying shot and getting ready to go hunting. His old gun was lying around rather loose and the grocer nervously remarked:

"Boy, I wish you'd take care of that gun—I'm afraid of an accident."

The boy stood it up against a barrel and went on telling how many rabbits he meant to pepper, and pretty soon it came near falling to the floor.

"I tell you that infernal thing will hurt some of us yet!" exclaimed the grocer, as he jumped aside, and the boy leaned it against the counter, and said he'd never take a back seat for a bear—never. As he reached over to look at some buckshot down tumbled the gun and off went the charge, sending about forty buckshot into a ten gallon oil can in range.

"There she goes—there she goes!" yelled the grocer, as he danced around. "Didn't I tell you that infernal gun would go off?"

"And did I deny it?" promptly retorted the boy. Do you s'pose I'm fool 'nuff to go out to hunt rabbits with brass knuckles or a bean shooter?"

Before marriage a girl frequently calls her intended "her treasure," but when he becomes her husband, she looks upon him as her "treasurer."

Another American girl is to marry a nobleman. Why is it that our girls refuse to support their own countrymen? There is a lack of patriotism somewhere.

"How came these holes in your elbows?" said the Widow Smith to the irrepressible small boy. "Oh, mother, I hid behind the sofa when Jack Horner was sayin' to our Jule that he'd take her even if you had to be thrown in; and he didn't know I was there, and so I held in and laughed in my sleeves till I burst 'em!"

Little master Roddy has been in the habit of putting his pennies into the box at Sunday School till last Sunday, when he came running into the house in a breathless hurry, and shouted: "Mamma! I shan't save up my pennies any more. The money don't go up to God! I saw Mr. Kelly take it out of the box and put it into his pocket."

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

We read and hear much that is written and said about Capital and Labor, and their relationship to each other and to the public interest. Many and varied are the theories advanced regarding a question greatly agitated, but, evidently, superficially understood.

Labor is the creator of real wealth. There cannot be any truthful denial of that. Without labor capital would be idle and useless and civilization turned backward.

It is labor, justly remunerated, steadily employed, and equitably protected labor, that makes a country rich and the people prosperous. Gold and silver coin, or paper money promises, or stocks and bonds, cannot of themselves accomplish such a desirable result. Only so far as they serve to exchange the products of active industry and reward honest toil are they the elements of wealth.

Labor is the magic wand that converts matter into might, and accelerates the wheels of worldly progress.

It rears and perfects edifices for all conditions and avocations of life. From cultivated ground it garners human sustenance, and out of the very bowels of the earth brings forth utility and comfort. It digs canals, constructs highways, builds railroads and ships, and in a word, does everything required to enrich and befriend the country and community at large.

Such is labor, and as such it deserves primary consideration on the part of legislation. Labor needs not and asks not hot-house protection. Justice and freedom constitute the substance of its demands. A fair and honest equivalent and a free and certain opportunity are the simple and proper rights it seeks and should enjoy.

It is also undoubtedly true that capital has rights, and within its legitimate sphere capital is the natural ally of labor. There cannot exist any cause for antagonism between the employed and the employer so long as they mutually respect each other. It is when capital, through the selfish power of consolidation, assumes the tyrant's throne and dictates arbitrary terms, because it is strong and labor weak, that discord and ill-feelings enter and the work of crimination begins.

From that stand-point may be discerned a threatening danger in this country, which, if not arrested, will produce future trouble.

It is plainly apparent that the tendency of the money power is, at the present time, toward grasping monopoly. The disposition being to aggrandize, and thereby swallow up small capitalists and press down the laboring masses.

That may do in lordly England, but it will not answer for free America.

We protest against every species of established aristocracy, be it of blood, money or domain.

To widen the distribution of wealth, and to give unmolested opportunities for industry and enterprise of all kinds to earn and be protected in its enjoyment, is what the general good requires.

That is the political doctrine we preach.

Equal and exact justice to all the people and their pursuits, be they large or small.

It is Democratic.

SHAKESPEARE.

A hundred years ago coal for heating and gas for illuminating were unknown in this country.

Iron stoves were not used.

A wood fire kindled on the brick hearth did all the cooking and warming.

Tallow candles furnished artificial light.

Sanded floors supplied the place of carpets.

Friction matches had not been thought of.

Water for household purposes was drawn from deep wells by the creaking sweep.

The lumbering stage coach and wagon and the slow sailing shallop, were the only public means for the transportation of passengers and goods.

All other things were on a like primitive scale.

We did not live then. It was too early.

We do live now, and know something about the luxury, improvements and high pressure speed of the present day.

We have not the slightest expectation of living a hundred years hence. It will be too late.

We can, however, meditate and speculate.

We have been thinking what the aspect of affairs will be then, should the genius of invention keep on working and producing as it has done and is doing.

The thought makes us pity the poor fellows who will swelter through the Philadelphia Exposition of 1976.

Wonder who will be President of the United States on that interesting occasion, and what relics of the present race of uncouth barbarians will be there displayed?

How queer our handsome photographs will look!

O tempora! O mores!

'Tis said Shakespeare, in imagination, lived ahead of his time. We are, therefore, excusable in using his name.

It is remarkable that the first bill introduced in the present Legislature by a Republican was for the relief of Walter Bartlett, a released convict, who got himself in trouble by embezzling about $50,000 belonging to the taxpayers of Trenton, while he was acting as Tax Receiver. And another measure which is to be brought early before our "loyal" law-makers will be for the reimbursement of the bondholders of the late Treasurer Sooy for what they lost by that eminent Republican.

The price of printing paper has advanced fifty per cent. since the first of last September. With a large circulation the expense for white paper alone is very great, and subscribers who imagine that they pay for the printing of a newspaper have little idea of what it really costs.

Norton, Passaic, No. 67, Passaic; Sixth District, Jacob Guyer, Northern, No. 25, Newark; Seventh District, Thos. W. Tilden, Rising Star, No. 109, Jersey City.

THE COMING CENSUS.

The penalties for obstructing the census takers, who begin their labors on the first Monday in June, are severe. The law says:

"All persons above the age of 21 years who shall refuse to furnish the information required by the supervisor or enumerator shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding $100, to be recovered in an action of debt. Presidents, directors, or other officials of private corporations who refuse information required of them are made liable to a penalty not to exceed $10,000.

Only two weeks are allowed for the completion of the census. The compensation to the enumerators is as follow: Two cents for each living inhabitant; two cents for each death reported; ten cents for each farm; fifteen cents for each manufactory, which is to be in full for all services, and no mileage or travelling expenses. The sub-division assigned to each enumerator must not exceed 40,000 inhabitants."

As usual, the enemies of the newspapers and friends of the lawyers are introducing their annual bills to the Legislature to repeal the act authorizing the publication of the laws in newspapers, also bills increasing the fees of lawyer. Last week Senator Vail detected Senator Francis in endeavoring to sneak a bill through the Senate increasing the fees of lawyers in certain cases and exposed him to the Senate, but he has since come to the front with another bill of the same ilk. Efforts to pass it and other bills of the kind, will undoubtedly be made by the lawyer law-makers of both branches of the Legislature, and of course they don't want the people to know too much about their provisions, as they would were they published in the papers.

Hon. Miles Ross has introduced a bill into Congress, for the appointment of Gen. McClellan as a Manager of the National Soldiers' Home for Disabled Volunteers.

The re-nomination of Chancellor Runyon, by the Governor, was confirmed by the Senate on Tuesday last.

THE LEGISLATURE.

From our Trenton Correspondent.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 21st.

SENATE BILLS INTRODUCED.

No. 63, forbids the killing of any woodcock, ruffled grouse, grey squirrel or rabbit, between Dec. 20th and Oct. 20th of each year, penalty of $25; No. 64, penalty of $50 for killing deer, 12th of Oct, to Dec. 1st; No. 65, usual appropriation of $8,000, for 5 years, for the Geological Survey; No. 66, operate water companies outside of city limits; No. 67, authorizes corporations to increase their capital stock to the amount named in original certificate, by a vote of two-thirds of stockholders.

Senate passed: No. 4, relating to cities, vacancies to be filled by the Mayor, 19 to 0; No. 17, allowing constables proper fees in justices' court, 18 to 1.

The Comptroller reported expense and payment of Morris and Trenton Asylums.

No action on the nomination of Chancellor and Law Judges.

ASSEMBLY BILLS INTRODUCED.

No. 86, payment of wages of workmen in lawful money; No. 87, in relation to married women living in separation from their husband.

About 7 or 8 Bills were reported. No. 48, reports adversely in relation to $400 exemption on chattel mortgages; act No. 44, introduced by Mr. Vernon, to open polls at 6, A. M. and close at 5, P. M., reported adversely.

A number of bills were read second time and ordered engrossed, but none of importance to our section.

The Legislature adjourned to meet next Monday evening, the Callendar being clear.

TRENTON, JAN. 28th.

The following bills were introduced on Monday evening and Tuesday:

SENATE.

Sup. to act to provide means for protection against fire in townships, purchasing of fire apparatus, &c.; authorizing townships to issue bonds to fund all floating debt existing Jan. 1st, 1880; counties to renew maturing bonds, (by Vail); protect interests of counties and townships; building bridges in townships and counties (by Schenck); authorizing Board of Freeholders to create the office of county engineer and surveyor, to prepare plans and superintend the construction of bridges, (by Schenck); provides that no county debt shall exceed 2 per cent. of taxable property, no township or borough over 4 per cent; concerning landlords and tenants; prevent Paris Mutual Pools, auction pool, &c.; to issue bonds for street improvements; relative to the practice of dentistry.

ASSEMBLY.

No. 98, publishing laws in newspapers; 99, relative to sewerage and drainage; 100, provides that grand juries may examine into expenditures of public money and employ experts to examine official records; to prevent cattle from running at large; people to elect; expenses of judges of election in cities; provides that it shall be unlawful to kill woodcock between Jan. 1st and July 4th; to enable boroughs to pay for supply water for fires, to be paid by general tax; No. 102, similar bill, relates to townships; allowing incorporated cities to compromise assessments for improvements; No. 107 provides that minutes of Boards of Freeholders shall be published in papers; provides for election of overseers of roads; sup. to Chosen Freeholders; sup. to Middlesex and Union Agricultural Society, repealing part of former act, which allowed assessment on stock; sale of cattle, sheep and swine.

BILLS PASSED.

Distribution of law and equity reports; limiting time to commence action against assignees; sup. to orphans court, non-res. decedents; board of arbitration for labor disputes.

Assembly passed the following: No. 12, which provides for review by the supreme court of summary convictions by justices of the peace; No. 23, in relation to justices' courts, provides that if appeal papers in case are not filed three days prior to first day of term shall not go on calendar.

No. 32, in relation to attorneys-at-law making contracts with clients, was under debate at adjournment.

The speaker announced that in obedience to a resolution of the House, he had received the following report from the State Treasurer:

TRENTON, JAN. 26, 1880.

To the Honorable the House of Assembly:

In compliance with Mr. Burrough's resolution of Jan. 19, 1880, requesting me to furnish the House of Assembly with a statement of the amount of money paid out of the Treasury on account of the medical and veterinary practitioners and other persons appointed in the carrying out the provisions of the law, to prevent the spread of contagious diseases among cattle in this State, up to and including the date of this resolution, would respectfully report the total amount paid $23,431.87, as follows:

Am't paid		Wm. H. Sterling, expenses, &c.,	$ 3,096 73
do	do	for clerical services,	2,351 68
do	do	for professional services,	14,922 00
do	do	for special services, &c.,	1,468 25
do	do	eighty head of cattle killed	954 00
do	do	stationery, &c.,	639 88
			$23,431 87

Respectfully,
GEO. M. WRIGHT,
State Treas.

Mr. Herring stated that the people of the State were interested in the matter, and would like to know how the money was spent. The act was passed last Winter as an experiment, and he thought it was spending money very fast. He moved that 500 copies of the report be printed. Carried.

Nothing of any general importance has taken place this week. The Williams and Brown evidence was reported to the House yesterday; it will be probably acted upon to-day. There will be a warm debate on it.

The Senate, yesterday, confirmed the nomination of Chancellor Runyon, 18 to 2.

It is said that Joint Meeting for nomination of Comptroller will be held two weeks from yesterday.

No Bridge Bill has been introduced since the withdrawal of the one introduced last week.

SENATE BILLS.

No. 87, sup. to justices of the peace, allowing plaintiff option to bring action in circuit court instead of justices' court; No. 89, court of chancery; No. 90, (Bodine) provides that instead of publishing laws in newspapers there shall be 1,500 copies distributed in pamphlet form; 93, sup. to act incorporating agricultural societies (by Gardner), 94, state inspector and bureau of pauper statistics, salary $1,500; 96, city bonds; 97, (by Schenck) amends the act creating North Plainfield Town Committee, to consist of three instead of five; 99, act to publish in all townships an alphabetical list of all persons assessed for taxes, value of property, &c., sixty days before meeting of Commissioners of Appeal; 100, taxes shall be assessed on all property, real and personal, of residents or non-residents; 101, gives $1.00 out of road tax for each shade tree planted along public highways.

Only a few Bills were introduced in the House on Wednesday; none of importance to your readers.

The following Bills passed, which are important since last report, are: Sen. 25, to facilitate the collection of premiums for Fire Departments, extending to all towns, villages and townships; Sen. 33, provides that process in court of chancery, may be served by officers now having authority in common law.

In the Assembly, on Wednesday, the contested election case of Williams vs. Brown was made the special order for 3.30, P. M., at which time the matter came up. The Committee on Election, by its Chairman Mr. Bonsall, made a report signed by three of the Committee, Messrs. Bonsall, Voorhees and Wilkinson. Mr. Stephen Martin and Mr. Haines made a minority report.

Mr. Bonsall moved that, instead of accepting the report, the evidence, which was very voluminous, be read. A motion to have the same printed was lost. The reading of same was then commenced and continued until 6, P. M., when House adjourned until 8, P. M.

It is supposed that the majority report will be adopted by a strict party vote, thus ousting Mr. Brown, Democrat, and seating Mr. Williams, the Republican.

The Senate adjourned until Monday next.

Mr. Edward D. Fox, clerk in the Executive Chamber, received a letter from Gen. Wm. H. Sterling, yesterday, requesting him to have the reporters who published the statement of the expenses as to pleuro-pneumonia correct one statement in relation to himself. The reporters state that $3,000 was received by him. This, Mr. Sterling says, is an error, as he asked nothing and receives nothing for his services. He states that he did receive a contingent fund of $3,000, which was used in office rent, coal, gas, furniture, transportation and expenses incurred by employees, and for which he holds the bills and will render an account to the Comptroller.—True American, Jan. 29.

Rev. Mr. Hayden breathes pure air again, and is under $15,000 bail, although it is doubtful if he is ever called for trial. He declines to return to the pulpit.

The Grand Jury on Tuesday morning found a bill of indictment against the proprietors of the Acid Restoring Works of Elizabeth. The gentlemen appeared and gave bonds.

South Amboy is to have an iron works erected, on which from one hundred to one hundred and fifty hands, it is stated, are to be employed. The people of the town have raised $10,000 as a loan to the company, payable in five years, and bearing six per cent interest.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY EV'G., Jan. 22, '80.

Council met pursuant to adjournment.

Present—Coriell, Flanders, Dunlap, Lithgow, Potts, Finch, Darling, Ryder, Whiton. Absent—Redfield, Rushmore.

Pres. Potts in the chair.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

A com'n was presented by Mr. Whiton from E. C. Mulford and others, asking for the laying of a crosswalk on South Ave. On motion, referred to Com. on Sts.

A com'n was presented by Mr. Lithgow from one Wm. Stewart, asking for the return by the city of a balance of an indemnity fund of $100, (some $70 or $80) deposited June 26, 1876, with P. P. Good, Esq., relative to support of his (Stewart's) child, &c. On motion, ref'd to Law and Ord. Com.

Mr. Coriell presented a claim of $3 of ex-Councilman John H. French for burners and globes. On motion, ref'd to Fire, Water & Lamp Com.

Mr. Lithgow presented report of Corp. Counsel relative to the claims of City Physician in filing deaths, &c. with the Secretary of State, giving it as his opinion that the city should pay them. On motion, opinion ordered filed and claims ref'd to Finance Com.

Mr. Lithgow then presented the following from the Corp. Counsel:

Can the Common Council legally order the payment of four hundred dollars out of the city funds for repairs on Midway Avenue?

The charter provides that the Common Council may yearly expend a sum not exceeding Ten Thousand Dollars for the current expenses of the city.

The Road act provides that if any damage shall happen by means of the insufficiency or want of repairs of any public road, the city shall be liable to pay the same.

The charter gives the Common Council express power to make repairs on Streets.

Under the circumstances it is clear that in a case where the amount to be expended is not in excess of the appropriation and limit of expenditure provided by law, and in the opinion of the Common Council is necessary for the purpose of putting and keeping in repair the public streets of the city, the Common Council have a right to order the payment for that purpose.

Whether the amount to be paid is required and necessary for the purpose, is a question for the Common Council in the exercise of a sound discretion, to pass upon. If in their judgment four hundred dollars is the amount required for that purpose, and that amount, as in the present case, is not in excess of the appropriation and limit of expenditure provided by law, then they have the right to order the payment of that amount out of the city funds for the purpose of making such repairs.

For the expense of making such repairs, are properties to be regarded as one of the current expenses of the city?

It has been the practice of previous Councils to so regard them, and I know of no departure from the practice in any instance.

In so doing the Common Council do not in any way render themselves liable and do not violate any provision of law civil or criminal.

This conclusion is arrived at from a consideration of the matter as a purely abstract question of law, and I endeavored to confine myself strictly to the legal aspects of the case.

That some private persons have agreed at their own expense to grade the road bed of Midway Avenue and fill up the gravel pits in that neighborhood, thus removing a pestilence-breeding nuisance and advancing the health of the city, while a commendable act on the part of such persons, and tending to especially attract the attention of Council to the neighborhood in question, has no bearing whatever upon the legal proposition, and must be, and has been, entirely eliminated from the case.

The difficulty, however, in the present case, arises from the fact that there is no evidence to be found that Midway Avenue has ever been converted to the public use; that is to say, the Common Council do not seem to have fulfilled the requirements necessary, in order to take the land for this Avenue, and it is not such a public street as would warrant the Common Council in appropriating the cities money in making repairs thereon.

Respectfully submitted,
GEORGE P. SUYDAM,
Corporation Counsel.

On motion, received and ordered filed.

The Clerk read the following com'n from Mr. L. V. F. Randolph:

To the Hon. the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:—I understand, at a late hour this afternoon, that the report of the Corporation Counsel on the recommendation of the Board of Health and the resolution offered at your last meeting by Councilman Ryder is either doubtful or adverse as to the measures in question.

This information will probably surprise the community as it has surprised me, especially when it is considered

1st. That there is no occasion for any doubt as to the right of the Council to treat "Midway" Avenue as a street;

2d. That the Common Council in 1874 recognized the dedication (then made by the Railroad authorities) by an ordinance opening the said street, 66 feet wide, from the Terrill Road to Richmond street;

3d. I submit a letter from John Taylor Johnston, Esq., then President of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, confirming the above;

4th. This is not a new subject; neither is it new to the Corporation Counsel. It has been presented to his careful consideration from time to time for six months past. It would seem that his present conclusion is exactly opposite to what he has hitherto said or written;

5th. He has said verbally in substance, that it was the right and duty of the city authorities to take adequate means for the care of the public health, this seeming to be a case requiring the expenditure of public money for that purpose, and that this was a duty paramount even to the literal provisions of the charter or ordinances;

6th. He has said, in substance, that the plan proposed by the Board of Health on the 1st of November, 1879, "came legally within the authority of the Council," and, as a member of that Board, he joined in recommending the project (to which I rather reluctantly acceded) "to your early and favorable consideration";

7th. Before I sent my last communication to Council, in which I stated in substance that the legality of the Health Board plan for protecting the public health and the improvement of a public avenue, was vouched for by the Corporation Counsel; I showed him that letter, and he made no objections to it;

8th. The resolution offered by Councilman Ryder, was prepared by Mr. Suydam, and his partner, Mr. Jackson, consulting together as a suitable and legal resolution for you to pass.

The above statements will serve to explain the trouble I have given the Common Council in seeking to accomplish what is of so much importance to the reputation of our city and the well-being of its citizens. I regret this trouble, whilst I thank you for the cordial attention you have given my proposition. I regret even more that a groundless doubt has interfered in the accomplishment of an object so important. I beg to withdraw the offer I have made in respect to the filling of the noxious "gravel pits" and the improvement of Midway Avenue. I remain, gentlemen, with great respect,

Yours truly,
L. V. F. RANDOLPH.

Jan. 22, 1880.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22, 1880.

L. V. F. RANDOLPH, Esq.—My Dear Sir:—The street known as "Midway" occupies mainly the old road-bed of the railway. Prior to removing the rails to the tangent line, regular proceedings were taken, under my instructions, to lay out a public road, 66 feet wide, over the land as above indicated, and by the above name. All the proceedings were regularly gone through with, and it was declared a public highway. All the papers will be found on file in the proper office at Elizabeth. The road was laid without opposition, and there can be no doubt that it is to-day a legal road, or street.

Yours, very truly,
JOHN TAYLOR JOHNSTON.

On motion, received and ordered filed.

On motion, Council then adjourned.

A Corner on Muslins.

Whitney, the Front Street Dry Goods Merchant, is offering great inducements to buyers in the way of muslins. His advertisement in another column tells the story.

Sunday was the centennial Anniversary of the burning of the old First Church at Elizabeth. In the winter of 1780 a squadron of British dragoons rode into Elizabeth and set the church on fire. Washington and his army were encamped on the mountains in the background.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

That sidewalk on Broad St., near Prospect St., has been repaired, but not by the Road Overseer of that District.

There was married on Thursday afternoon Jan. 22d, by the Rev. Mr. Gill, at the bride's residence on Central Avenue, Mr. George W. Tice to Miss N. A. Loveridge.

Mrs. Hannah Crane died on Saturday last, Jan. 24th, aged 79 years.

Mrs. John Pfeifer has been very sick for the last two weeks.

The Public School intend to give an entertainment and fair sometime next month, the proceeds to go toward making improvements in the School rooms.

A party of young folks took possession of Mr. Joseph Perry's house on Mountain Avenue last Wednesday night, Jan. 21st, and a good time was had. Messrs. Applegate & Blake furnished the music.

That bridge controversy on Dist. No. 14, has again been re-opened. The Overseer, Mr. Beiler, has received notice from some of the residents to open the drain on Mr. E. G. Brown's land, which he refuses to do.

Mr. L. V. Clark has purchased Mr. Geo. Hennaman's right to the corner of Broad and Elm Streets. We may soon look for a fine building to be erected on this site.

Another new industry in our village—a Steam Feather Renovator establishment, opposite Wittke's News Depot on Broad Street.

Mr. N. H. Dennis has moved into one of Mr. Clark's new houses on Clark St.

The much-looked for Westfield Union, for January, has at last made its appearance, and is full of interest and news. Free to all.

The Town Committee met at the Town Rooms on Tuesday evening last, Jan. 27, to settle up accounts of past Collectors. They will meet again on Monday night, Feb. 2d. The Collector has been notified to levy and sell all goods found on premises where taxes have not been paid.

Mr. H. D. Stents has re-entered the service of the Central R. R. Co. We shall miss his smiling face.

Mr. Aug. Salve returned last week from his European trip. So, also, Mr. F. E. Conant, from his Eastern excursion.

The relatives and friends of Mr. F. Deming met at his residence on Elmer Street on Wednesday evening, Jan. 21st, for a social gathering, &c. A good time was had by those present.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Mr. Burroughs, of the House of Assembly of New Jersey, on Monday last introduced a resolution, "that whereas, many bills for the amendment of the laws respecting game and game fish have been referred to the Committee on Fisheries, Resolved, That that Committee draft a general law for the protection of game and game fish."

On Tuesday last, however, the resolution was reconsidered and laid on the table. This is unfortunate, as the game and fish laws sadly need revising, and the Committee on Fisheries were the proper Committee in whose hands the matter should be placed. Undoubtedly, however, a bill of the kind will be framed by joint action of the Game Protective Societies and presented before the close of the Legislature.

The recent mild weather has induced some of our local disciples of Isaak Walton, to bring forth their rod and reels and test the appetites of the fish with the worm food. Several have had good luck in the capture of fine strings of "suckers." One gentleman, Mr. S. Terry, on Friday caught four suckers which weighed when dressed, 4 pounds 10 ounces. The fish were taken in Green Brook.

Sexton beat Schaefer at billiards in Chicago, Tuesday night. They played 600 points up.

GLEANINGS.

Twenty-two locomotives, belonging to the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, were seized by order of the Government of the United States on Tuesday last, for claims against the road amounting to some $500,000. The value of the engines amount to about $185,000.

Sam A. Logan, a prominent citizen of Bradford, Pa., and member of the Health Board, has decamped leaving heavy debts behind. He also left two wives with large families. The wives are sisters and live in the same house. Logan was a former resident of Brooklyn.

Peoria, Ill., has pledged Parnell, the Irish Agitator, $5,000 for his cause.

Postmaster James, of the New York Post Office, has consented to the placing of contribution boxes in the Post Office to receive subscriptions for the "Irish Famine Relief Fund."

Still the colored exodus to Kansas goes on.

The New York Herald advises both Grant and Tilden to withdraw from the Presidential canvass and save their credit and honor.

Out in Nevada intolerable stump speakers are snowballed with tired eggs.

Grasshoppers, according to the Newport News, have been seen in its neighborhood.

Society belles in Washington now affect the banjo, which they are learning to play. There are many costly ones with ebony handles and silver mountings.

To give a State dinner in St. Petersburg a United States Minister must pay from $25 to $50 a plate and even more.

Josh Billings (Henry W. Shaw) is sixty-three years old, and in early life had varied fortunes, from those of a school teacher to those of an auctioneer. He has made from his writings something like $100,000.

Daniel Mylon was shot and perhaps fatally wounded, by Caspar Rhoder, in a bar room at Elizabeth, on Friday night of last week. Mylon may recover.—Rhoder was arrested.

A seven year old son of Geo. Ransome, was accidentally killed by his father on Tuesday last, at his home in Weyland, N. J. The father was cleaning a pistol, when the weapon was discharged, the ball piercing the brain of his son standing near by.

A runaway couple, the bridegroom from Somerville, and the groom from Princeton, were married in Elizabeth Tuesday morning.

Bogus census takers are already swindling farmers.

The Brooklyn Eagle states that a new hotel of colossal dimensions and palatial elegance is to be erected on Rockaway Beach. It says the structure and surroundings will cost five million dollars, and will surpass anything ever undertaken in this country or Europe. It is to be constructed, in connection with a railroad now being built, on what is claimed to be the most beautiful part of Rockaway Beach. The company engaged in the enterprise will have their own steamboats as well as railroad. The depot of the latter will be 1,500 feet in length and wide enough to enclose four trains. The hotel will be four stories high, 1,200 feet long and over 400 deep. On the roof, which will be 150 feet from the ground, a promenade will be arranged with seating accommodations for 200. There will be sleeping accommodations for 1,200, and a dining-room to seat 5,000. There will be, among other things, a cabin pavilion, stretching along the beach 2,000 feet, and a novel feature will be passageways underneath leading to the water, which may thus be reached by bathers without being seen.

A Mother's Grief.

The pride of a Mother, the life and joy of a home, are her children, hence her grief when sickness enters and takes them away. Take warning then, that you are running a terrible risk, if they have a Cough, Croup or Whooping Cough, which lead to Consumption, if you do not attend to it at once.—SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE is guaranteed to cure them. Price 10 cts., 50 cts. and $1.00. For lame Back, Side, or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster.—Price 25 cts. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

The Best I Ever Knew Of.

J. G. Starkey, a prominent and influential citizen of Iowa City, says: "I have had the Dyspepsia, and Liver Complaint for several years, and have used every Remedy I could hear of, without any relief whatever, until I saw your Shiloh's Vitalizer advertised in our paper, and was persuaded to try it. I am happy to state that it has entirely cured me. It is, certainly, the best Remedy I ever knew of. Price 75 cts. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY, a marvellous Cure for Catarrh, Diptheria, Canker Mouth, and Head Ache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal injector for the more successful treatment of the complaint, without extra charge. Price 50 cts. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

A FRAGRANT BREATH AND PEARLY TEETH

Are easily obtained by cleansing your teeth with that justly popular dentrifice SOZODONT. Composed of rare antiseptic herbs, it imparts whiteness to teeth, a delicious aroma to breath, and preserves intact, from youth to old age, the teeth. Acidity of the stomach will destroy the strongest teeth unless its effects are counteracted with SOZODONT, and this pure tooth-wash protects the dental surfaces by removing every impurity that adheres to them.—Ask your druggist for SOZODONT.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR

Simmons' LIVER DISEASE and Indigestion prevail to a greater extent than probably any other malady, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Indigestion or want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered for these ailments. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for forty years, and hundreds from all parts of the country will vouch for its virtues, viz: Hon. LIVER Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia; John Gill Shorter, of Alabama; Gen. John B. Gordon, B. L. Mott, of Columbus, Ga., Bishop Pierce, of Georgia, are among the hundreds to whom we can refer. Extract of a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1872: "I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active medicines." REGULATOR. It is not the quantity eaten that gives strength, life, blood and health. It is the thorough digestion of the food taken let it be much or little. Therefore, do not stimulate the stomach to crave food, but rather assist digestion after eating by taking

THE "honking" of wild geese was heard last Wednesday evening, as a large flock of them flew over our city toward the South. This is an indication of colder weather.

A FAST train, to be run daily between New York and Philadelphia, will commence running over the C. R. R. on Feb. 24, leaving New York at 4:15 a. m., arriving at Philadelphia at 6:15.

MRS. MARTHA FOOTE has sold the four acres of land advertised by her to be sold at public auction a week or so since, situated at Evona. The sale was a private one. The price realized, $800.

TWO exquisite crayon portraits, executed by Miss Eveline Hale, of this city, are on exhibition in the show windows of Shaw's Drug Store. Miss Hale is an artist of more than ordinary ability.

THE Elizabeth Monitor says that the Central Railroad Company have decided to construct a water tank at Fanwood, and hereafter locomotives will stop at that point instead of at Clifton street, in that city.

ALL first-class entertainments at Vandeventer Hall (and none other can secure rental) have tickets of admission for sale at Kilgore's Pharmacy, situated directly beneath the Hall. Fresh drugs always to be found at Kilgore's.

AMONG the warrants signed by Gov. McClellan, on Tuesday, for admission to charitable institutions, was that of John L. Runyon, of Union county, to The Whipple Home for Deaf Mutes, Mystic River, Conn., for the term of one year.

SOME thirty couples attended the Ball given at Guerrier's Hotel, back of Scotch Plains last Monday evening, and had a most enjoyable time. The proceeds went to the building fund of St. Mary's Church, Stony Hill. Prof. Frazee furnished the music.

WORKMEN from Vermeule's are putting on the tin on the roof of Vanderbeck's new building. When that is completed, the structure will be enclosed and rapidly completed. We trust to be in our new quarters in the building by the middle of March.

DRAINAGE from private residences into Cedar Brook should be stopped at once. There is a State law against polluting any of the streams of the State. Cedar Brook is the finest and purest running stream of water in this section at present. Keep it so.

DUNN & MARTIN, Grocers, on Park avenue, have dissolved partnership. Mr. James Dunn will continue the business at the old stand. He is a veteran in the Grocery business, and his many friends will still continue to patronize him undoubtedly.

WHEN fresh picked there is no orange grown equals that of Florida in sweetness and flavor. We can appreciate the fact after tasting the samples forwarded to us from Jacksonville, Fla., by friends who grow the fruit there. Send some more. We'll pay you, Mrs. ——

COUNCILMAN Finch need not care whether water works are erected in our city or not. A fine and powerful windmill, located in the rear of his handsome residence on Park avenue, furnishes motive power for pumping sufficient water to supply all of his buildings and grounds.

THE ferry houses of the C. R. R. Co. at the foot of Liberty street were taken down on Monday last and new and handsomer structures will be erected in their stead, which, when completed will be a credit to the company, and will better accommodate the rapidly increasing travel on our popular road.

SMITH W. LAING, so long connected with the establishment of Calkins & Strickland, dealers in notions, has associated himself with the firm of Wm. W. Hardy & Co., wholesale dealers in Notions, Perfumery, &c., 36 Vesey street, N. Y. City. Mr. Laing will call upon his former patrons and friends, with samples, as usual.

IN the court of Sessions at Elizabeth, Wednesday morning, only one prisoner was arraigned, Frank Jaimet, of Plainfield, charged with killing four ducks. He pleaded not guilty, with the privilege of withdrawing the plea to move to quash the indictment. Bail was fixed at $100, and the defendant deposited the money with the clerk. The trial was fixed for February 6th.

IT is our intention, when we are compelled to record a serious and fatal accident happening to some one of those foolhardy passengers who wait until a train starts from the depot and then attempt to spring on the car steps, to head the article in large type, so that the attention of others may be attracted to it. The accident will yet happen if the practice is not discontinued.

TWO young men, evidently farmers, seated in a farm wagon, on Monday last drove four horses, hitched double, at a spanking pace through Somerset street toward Front. As they turned the southwest corner into Front, the lead horses got the best of the driver, and swerving toward the sidewalk, the wagon in which their driver was seated came within a few inches of colliding with a light vehicle, standing opposite Mrs. Dunn's Millinery store. In the vehicle was seated a young lady. Had there been a collision, a probable serious accident would have resulted from the carelessness of the driver of the four-in-hand.

U. & M. Counties Fair Association.

Hon. John Dunn, on Tuesday last introduced a bill into the house, at Trenton, repealing the clause of the act incorporating the Union & Middlesex Agricultural Society, providing for the assessment of members and suspending the privileges of non-paying members.

A Bill Affecting North Plainfield.

On Wednesday last Senator Schenck introduced a bill into the Senate providing that hereafter the Town Committee of North Plainfield shall consist of three instead of five members.

The Terpsichorean Art.

On the fourth page of this issue will be found an interesting article on the art of dancing, from Prof. Dodsworth who has a large class of pupils under his tuition in this city. The Prof. is a popular teacher of dancing, and suggestions and facts like those contained in the article mentioned, coming from him should be appreciated and followed.

Tramps.

Mark Twain, the well-known writer and author of "Innocents Abroad" has issued a new work entitled "A Tramp Abroad." The work is full of rich humor and is bound to have a large sale. Those who have read Mark Twain's former works will want this one. Satire, humor, and stirring descriptions of the sublime and beautiful are mingled in a most fascinating manner, and render every page of the book of the deepest interest. It is sold only by subscription. An agent is now canvassing Plainfield for the work, and has met with considerable success.

Gen. Wm. H. Sterling, on Tuesday last presented to Gov. McClellan his report of work done in extirpating pleuro-pneumonia in the State, for the two months ending Jan. 23d, 1880, as follows:

Number of cattle inspected in Camden County—herds, 12; cattle, 80. Mercer—herds, 3; cattle, 57. Essex—herds, 1; cattle, 1. Hudson—herds, 12; cattle, 99. Morris—herds, 2; cattle, 43; sick, 7. Middlesex—herds, 1; cattle, 1. Reinspected—cattle, 814. Total cattle—1104.

There are in quarantine: Herds, 91; cattle, 844; sick, 212. Last report—herds, 97; herds, 841; sick, 247. Decrease 6 herds; 32 sick. Gain—7 new cases. Loss—1; died, 3; killed, 35; on reinspection, 39. Total loss 32.

He urges the necessity of continuing the work, and, if consistent, issue orders requiring the inspection of all cattle hereafter landed in this State from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, District of Columbia and certain counties of New York State.

Struck by an Oil Train.

Tuesday afternoon last two tramps, who had been hanging around the depot all day, attempted to jump upon a passing oil train bound West, when near the Park avenue crossing. One of them succeeded in his intention, the other missed the object grasped for and was struck in the side by some part of the car and hurled with great violence to the ground. A crowd soon gathered, and the man, although able to cuss roundly, said he could not tell where he was hurt, neither could he walk. He was conveyed to the baggage room of the depot and City Physician Dr. Lowrie summoned. He could find no bones broken, but thought there might be internal injuries. Mayor Harper instructed the removal of the injured stranger, who refused to give his name, to the Station House, where he at present remains. A third companion remained with him all night bathing his bruises. He will soon be able to resume his pedestrianism, thankful to escape so lucky.

Arrested on Suspicion.

Wednesday morning, last, when the startling rumor flew through our streets that young Joseph Wolf, of Evona, had been shot and robbed by a footpad, word was sent along the line of the Central R. R. for officials in other cities and towns to be on the look-out for a tall man wearing a high hat, such a personage having been first described by Wolf as being his assailant. The Chief of Police of Elizabeth thought he had the murderer (?) when he saw a tall man, wearing a dilapidated silk hat, alight from a train coming from the direction of this city. He arrested the man and brought him to Evona to be identified by the wounded lad, who however, by that time had confessed how he had received the wound—by his own carelessness. The prisoner, who proved to be the well-known showman, Col. McIntyre, renowned as a snake charmer; his hands so deformed as to make it almost impossible to hold a pistol in them, was at once discharged. The Colonel took "in the situation" philosophically, knowing full well he could be easily identified by parties in this city who have known him many years. The notoriety gained him by his arrest, will probably assist him financially while he is "showing" at Elizabeth, where he is now exhibiting his learned pig, snakes, etc. One can now easily see to what inconvenience and trouble a stranger may be put to by such a trumped-up story as young Wolf first told.

The Tea Party.

The Japanese Tea Party, given in Vandeventer Hall, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week, under the auspices of the ladies of Grace Church, proved a grand success, both socially and financially. The first night the weather being very inclement, but few outside of those directly interested, attended. The second evening, however, the ladies were well rewarded for their efforts. A large attendance contributed liberally toward disposing of the various articles on sale at the close of "tea," the net realization of both nights being $600. The stage of the Hall had been fitted up in true oriental style. Everything about the Hall was oriental, even the ladies being dressed in the quaint style adopted by their almond-eyed sisters of another clime and country. The queer costumes, however, could not conceal the beautiful countenances of the wearers, which differed so greatly from that of the race they impersonated, as to make the scene all the more enchanting. A novel feature of the evening was the serving of tea in the Oriental style, from cups and saucers of Japanese ware, to each and all who so desired. There were booths containing all manner of fancy goods and wares, which were disposed of to customers at "cash" rates. In one part of the Hall were books, in which each visitor could record their vote for the most popular lady and gentleman attending the Fair. The records at the close of the Fair showed that Miss Sallie Ames and Mr. W. B. Cook were considered the most popular lady and gentleman. Miss Ames received a beautiful Japanese bowl and Mr. C. a handsome plaque of same ware. The ladies who have labored so faithfully for the success attending the entertainment are to be congratulated. Each and every one performing their several parts so satisfactorily, it would be impolitic and unjust in us to individualize.

Go to Peck's.

St. Patrick's Day

Is quite a long way off, but our friends of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society, are making their preparations for a Grand Ball at Laing's Hall the evening of that day. Tickets are already issued and we doubt not but they will find a ready sale among the many friends of the Order in this city.

The Thespian Club.

This well-known Dramatic Club of our city, will give two pleasing entertainments in Laing's Hall, the evenings of Feb. 9th and 10th, the proceeds to be devoted to St. Mary's Sunday School library. They will be assisted by artists of ability from abroad. The object is a deserving one, the Thespians good actors, and the sale of tickets should be large.

Sale of Blooded Stock.

Mr. John I. Holly, residing near this city, last week sold three of his herd of blooded cattle, viz.: "American Girl," "Filbert" and "Josephine, 2d." The purchaser was Col. H. S. Russell, of Milton, Mass., and will be added to his large stock on the "Home Farm" at that place. The prices realized were large. Mr. Holly has left some of the finest and purest stock in the country.

Important to the Ladies.

Messrs. Edsall & Price, the well-known Dry Goods Merchants of Front Street, announce in another column that at their "Grand Opening" next week, they will place on exhibition the identical piece of Hamburg Edging, worth $100 a yard, which was on exhibition at the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia in 1876. Their advertisement should be read by all who desire to purchase good goods at fair prices. The firm is a reliable and enterprising one.

Trials for Illegal Selling.

A similar war upon liquor dealers selling illegally, as was made upon like parties in Plainfield a few years since, is now being waged in New Brunswick. In all, eighty-six complaints have been made by the Chief of Police, against parties selling without complying with the conditions of a new ordinance regulating the sale of malt and spirituous liquors, and either convictions or pleas of guilty have been obtained by City Attorney Bodine in about eighty of the cases; two or three were dismissed and two or three were found not guilty. The penalties under the ordinance in the above cases amount to about $1,500, the costs in the same being not much less than $500.

Unfounded Rumors.

A report is being circulated that the water in the well on the play ground adjoining the Public School, on Union street, is contaminated by its closeness to the out houses on the premises. We are assured by members of the Board of Education that the rumor is unfounded. About a year ago the same subject was agitated, and after a careful analysis of the waters of the well by competent chemists, there was found no signs of any injurious organic matter. The water is as good as any in the city, and the well is situated some fifty feet from the outhouses, the underground flow of water being from the well toward the alleged cause of contamination.

Democratic Organization.

An adjourned meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee was held at the parlors of Chamberlain's Hotel, on Tuesday evening, the 27th inst. The report of the Committee on Constitution and By-Laws was received and accepted. Amendments thereto were made, and when engrossed it was directed to be presented to the Democratic electors of Plainfield for their ratification. Other Committees reported, and we are satisfied that at an early day the Democracy of this city will have effected and completed a thorough organization. The Executive Committee adjourned to meet at the same place on Tuesday evening, the third of February next, at 8 o'clock p.m., when all details will be perfected, and a public meeting will be called soon thereafter to pass upon their labors.

Back Taxes.

In the city of Plainfield we have an appointed official, at a monthly salary of over $40, to collect back taxes due. In Westfield Township they do things differently. The Town Committee of that Township live up to the full letter of the law, which authorizes them to instruct the Collector to advertise for sale the lands of all delinquent tax payers, and if they don't pay in a prescribed time to sell the property. Collector Connolly of the above mentioned Township, has demonstrated his ability to collect taxes due, in his official capacity, by collecting, during the past year a large amount of the back taxes of the year 1878, and about ten or twelve thousand dollars of the taxes due for 1879. Were the law enforced regarding the advertisement of lands to pay taxes of delinquents, in Plainfield, we would have no need of a official holding a sinecure position, as Mr. Moore does.

The P. A. C. Gymnasium—Opening Reception.

The spacious rooms occupied by the Plainfield Athletic Club as a Gymnasium, Reception room and parlors, corner of Park and North avenues, were filled to overflowing with guests on Saturday afternoon last, per invitation extended by the Club to be present on the occasion of their opening Reception. Among the visitors were a large number of ladies, who took a delighted interest in the proceedings. The exercises consisted in callisthenics and gymnastic exercises, by a class of young lads under the tutorship of Prof. Avon C. Burnham, from his New York Academy, singing by Mrs. Belle Pagels-Collier, Piano music by Mrs. W. A Freeman, Cornet solos by Mr. Lewis H. Moore, addresses by Rev. Dr. Yerkes, Robert Lowry, K. P. Ketcham and E. M. Rodman. One of the Professor's lady pupils also participated in the exercises. After some two hours of real enjoyment, the entertainment came to an end, but many of the visitors lingered to listen to more instrumental music and to inspect the rooms of the Club, and paraphernalia in the gymnasium. Under the escort of Otis G. Webb and F. Gordon, Prof. Burnham and his class were escorted to the Mansion House, where a fine dinner awaited them. They returned to their homes in the city on an early train. The gymnasium, in the evening, was the scene of fine gymnastic performances, given by members of the Harlem Club of New York, among whom were several renowned athletes, winding up with a closely contested boxing match with gloves by Messrs. A. P. Morgan and L. A. Herte. There was a large attendance of friends of the Club to witness this entertainment. After partaking of a bountiful dinner at the Mansion House, the visiting athletes were "shown the sights" about our city, departing for their homes on the 11:[illegible] p. m. train. Their departure was made the occasion of a grand pyrotechnic display. Roman candles blazed, fire crackers and torpedoes burst in the air, good night parting songs were sung, and the visitors departed with the sound impression that the members of the P. A. C. are hospitable and generous souls. Too much cannot be said in praise of this new undertaking, and if parents desire their children to gain strength and health, they should place them in charge of Prof. Burnham, who has a reputation second to none as an instructor. The charges for tuition are moderate and the object a health giving one. Let us write a few weeks hence that the Gymnasium has proven a grand success and that more than one class has been formed.

Honors to our High School.

Miss Jenny Fenandle, the past two years a pupil in the High School, of this city, moved to New York last Summer and in September entered the New York Normal School for young ladies. The semi-annual examinations for promotions have just been finished, and Miss Fenandle has the great distinction of having the highest rank in her class. We often have occasion to congratulate ourselves upon the efficient work done in our Public Schools, and when brought in comparison with others they reflect great credit upon the city.

A Correction.

Some three weeks since there appeared a notice in these columns that the teachers of the Public School had asked the Board of Education to annul the resolution passed several months previous by the Board, disapproving of presents being made to the teachers by the pupils, and that the Board had refused to annul. The teachers of the School deny that they ever made such a request. We must have been in error in making the statement, since we are informed authoritatively that the request came from a number of the pupils. A resolution to annul the resolution in question, was, however presented at the meeting spoken of, by one of the members of the Board, but withdrawn by him without its being acted upon. We make this correction in justice to the teachers, who claim that the approve of the resolution passed by the Board.

Fatal Shooting Affair.

Wednesday morning last rumors were rife on our streets that a young lad had been shot and robbed by a highwayman, at Evona. The alleged facts were as follows: Joseph Wolf, a young man about 18 or 19 years of age, in the employ of Mr. Wm. McD. Coriell, at his hat manufactory, Evona, appeared at his boarding place, Mr. Wm. Sutten's, on Clinton ave., near the depot in that village, about 20 minutes to eight o'clock, on the Wednesday evening in question, with a pistol shot wound in his left breast, just below the heart. He was in a nearly exhausted condition, and stated that about half-past six o'clock, as he was near the Evona store, on the corner of Clinton avenue and the main street, a tall man suddenly jumped from behind the board fence at that point, and deliberately shot him. He said he fell insensible, and when he recovered found that he had been robbed of a sum of money, watch and other effects. The greatest excitement prevailed for a time. Dr. Tomlinson of this city was summoned, who found the lad in a dangerous condition. Probing the wound failed to find the ball. Officer Dodd of this city, was informed of the circumstance upon the Dr's. return to this city about ten o'clock, the spot where the alleged shooting took place being within the city limits. The officer took the first morning train and visited the wounded lad. From facts gleaned by Dodd from another lad, named Wm. Neal, he found that the afternoon of Wednesday Wolf and the lad had been practicing with a pistol in the rear of Mr. L. M. Rocap's residence, where Wolf had formerly worked. A close questioning of the wounded boy, necessarily concise on account of his weakness from the wound, brought forth a confession from him that he had accidentally shot himself. He said he came to Plainfield on Tuesday morning, with about $9 or $10 in his pocket, paid him by his employer, Mr. Coriell. He purchased a five chamber Remington pistol, 32 calibre, paying $5 for the same. He afterward purchased a bottle of whiskey for which he paid 55 cents. In company with young Neal he had been practicing at a mark with the pistol as stated above. As he was returning home, near the store building, he took out the pistol to examine it, when a load in it was in some way discharged, the ball entering his body as above described. Afraid of telling how it occurred, he conceived the idea of hiding his pistol and personal effects behind the fence, and managed to reach his boarding house and tell his story. He described the spot where the articles would be found, and the officer, repairing to the spot found the pistol, with one barrel discharged, $2.87 in money and other articles belonging to Wolf. About twenty paces from where he was shot, the half emptied bottle of liquor was found, and thus ended in a singular but tragic manner, a highway robbery and murder case. County Physician Terrill, who had been summoned to the scene, arrived after the true facts of the shooting came out. The unfortunate lad died at half past six Wednesday night. After death the ball was found lodged just under the skin of his back. A piece of the woolen undershirt worn by him adhered to the missile.

There was a larger gathering than usual at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church last Sabbath morning, many outside of the regular attendants of the church being attracted thither on account of the matter of the resignation of the pastor, Rev. John C. Bliss coming before the Church members for decision that day. Rev. K. P. Ketcham occupied the pulpit, his place in the 1st Presbyterian church being filled by Rev. Mr. Bliss. At the close of an eloquent discourse, in which no allusion whatever was made to the subject matter probably occupying the thoughts of many of his hearers, the tendered resignation, the preacher closed by stating that immediately after the benediction, the members of the church would assemble in congregational meeting for the purpose of taking action on the offered resignation. Upon the assembling of those who were entitled to vote, members and pew holders, a prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Ketcham, who afterward read the paper presented by Mr. Bliss to his congregation the Sabbath previous, as follows:

"It is known to some of you, if not to all, that there exists in this church a dissatisfaction with its pastor. I had written my resignation over a year ago, but was persuaded to withhold it. Lately I have been informed that the opposition still exists, and although the Elders, by a vote of five to two recommended me not to place this matter before you, yet I desire you to unite with me in asking the Presbytery, at their next meeting in April, to dissolve the existing pastoral relations."

The following resolution was then presented:

"Resolved, That this church and congregation unite with the pastor in asking the Presbytery to dissolve the pastoral relation now existing."

The following tellers were appointed: Elders Wm. McD. Coriell, J. Hervey Ackerman, Isaac Pierson, Wm. H. Sampson, Theodore Perry, Corydon Tyler and Henry C. Squiers. Deacons Philip Swain, H. Otis Newman, S. B. Struthers. Printed ballots had been prepared reading—"Do I wish the Pastor to resign?" with "Yes" and "No" beneath. The vote stood at the close, 312 "No" to 59 "Yes." After the decision was announced, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That in case the pastor still feels it his duty to ask the Presbytery to dissolve the existing relation, we appoint Messrs. Charles Place, Joseph B. Coward and Corydon Tyler a committee to lay before the Presbytery the result of this morning's expression of feeling."

It is not thought probable that the pastor will still insist upon the Presbytery accepting his resignation, after such a flattering expression of the feelings of his congregation in his favor. Rev. K. P. Ketcham preached from Mr. Bliss's pulpit in the evening. The latter pastor being present, thanked his congregation in feeling terms for their kind expression in his behalf shown by the morning's vote. Monday evening pastor Bliss's residence was besieged by a large number of his friends who came to congratulate him upon the result of the vote on his tendered resignation.

Re-Union and Banquet.

The Common Council of the city of Plainfield of 1879, known as the "Non-Partisan" Council, was composed of six Republican and five Democratic members and was a most harmonious body in all its deliberations and transactions. At the last city election the six Republican members were re-elected with five Republican colleagues to fill the places of the five Democrats. In attestation of the friendly relations existing between the members of the Council of 1879, and as a mark of the esteem in which the retiring members were held by their brother Councilmen, a Grand Re-Union and Banquet was given by the Republican to the Democratic members at the Park House, Monday night last. About half-past eight o'clock the assembled guests sat down to the banquet table, there being present, His Honor, Mayor Harper, President of Council Potts, Councilmen Lithgow, Redfield, Rushmore, Finch, Stover, Stewart, Depew and Mayer, Corporation Counsel Suydam and members of the Press. The familiar countenances of Councilmen Coriell and Simpson were missed. President Potts occupied the post of honor at one end of the table with the Mayor on his right and Mayer on his left hand (see the point.) Councilman Lithgow sat at the other end of the table with Councilman Depew on his right and Stover on his left hand. A bill of fare with elaborately designed covers was at each plate. The menu was printed in French and as all the gentlemen present were not very conversant with that language and spake it but fluently, they concluded to take "what was going" until the bottom of the menu was reached. His Honor, Mayor Harper was first called upon to make a few remarks. He said:

MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN:

At a public reception given in Ohio a few days ago to Mr. Garfield, the newly elected Republican U. S. Senator, that gentleman pronounced "the sweetest flowers in the world to be those found blooming on the garden wall of party politics." That was a most beautiful sentiment, full of the choicest perfume, and to me, it has a truthful association with the present occasion. Politically, we who are here assembled, stand on opposite sides of a partisan wall, but to-night, that division barrier is entirely hidden from sight and memory by the fragrant flowers of personal friendship, and my earnest wish is that they may grow more and more luxuriant as time speeds onward.

I am a life-long Democrat and expect always to remain one, but hope never to be guilty of withholding the right hand from or sealing the lip of salutation against any man because he is not of my partisan faith.

My official connection with the Council of 1879 affords a pleasant retrospect. True, at the outset, there was some skirmishing on the top of the wall, for you will remember, gentlemen, we were all ceremoniously hoisted up there as "non-partisans," and a slight row ensued. However, let the past suffice. Let by-gones be by-gones. All's well that ends well. We are here to bury discord and bid harmony live and flourish.

I assure you the holding of an Executive position, even though it be only the Mayoralty of a small city like Plainfield, is a hard and thankless task. Some one of you may have the honor of testing its qualities next year, and whoever he is, I promise him in advance heartfelt sympathy. I have endeavored to discharge duty the best of ability and with the single aim of advancing the public good, and I am proud to believe and declare that like integrity of purpose actuated you as Councilmen.

It is with gladness I embrace the opportunity thus afforded of expressing to each and every member of last year's Council sincere assurance of my personal esteem, and to blend therewith the hope that it is reciprocated.

President Potts in responding, said in substance that he was pleased to meet with his colleagues of the Council of 1879 on this occasion, and under such pleasant circumstances. His connection with that body in his official capacity of Councilman was a pleasant recollection. Elected as a non-partisan Council by the will of the people, the members of the Council of 1879, although differing in politics, had endeavored to faithfully perform their duties, and he trusted their efforts had not been in vain for the city's good and future welfare.

Mr. Lithgow next was called upon, and although strenuously denying that he was capable of making a speech, he was finally persuaded to do so through the joint efforts of his right and left hand neighbors and former colleagues, Messrs. Depew and Stover, who amid much laughter, assisted the gentleman to arise. Mr. Lithgow spoke in the most flattering and complimentary terms of the Council of 1879, the "Non-Partisan Council," which he claimed had, by their actions, elevated to a better standard, both politically and officially the status of Plainfield's Councilmanic body. He claimed that while he was a Republican, he was in favor of a "Non-Partisan" Common Council, on the ground that where the common interests of the citizens of Plainfield was concerned, the minority, as well as the majority should have a representation in controlling its affairs. He said he favored good and true men for office. Men and cliques had controlled the affairs of the city in times past who were not fit to do so. The Republican majority of the voters of Plainfield had seen fit to elect a Republican Council composed of gentlemen of worth and standing, well qualified to fill the positions and perform the duties assigned them. Still he advocated that both political parties should be represented in the Council of the city. His Democratic friend on his right, Mr. Depew, he said, had made one of the best officials in the Council in his capacity as Chairman of the Finance Committee. Through his watchful care, the financial affairs of the city had been carefully and zealously guarded. As to his Democratic friend on his left, Mr. Stover, although they had occasional skirmishes in the Council, he could truthfully say that the gentleman had made a most efficient legislator in the city's interest, and that they had always worked harmoniously together as members of the Council, with different political views. He referred in humorous terms to the "Gravel Pit" subject.

Upon the conclusion of Mr. Lithgow's remarks which were loudly applauded, the various other gentlemen present were called upon successively to either "make a speech, sing a song or tell a story."

Mr. Depew thanked the last speaker, Mr. Lithgow, for the kind remarks regarding himself. He had only tried to do his duty as a servant of the people while a member of the Council. He had many pleasant recollections regarding his connection with the Council of '79.

Mr. Redfield, in a peculiarly pleasing vein, made a few remarks, wherein he spoke of the pleasant recollections experienced in his connection with his Democratic colleagues of the Council of '79. Such gatherings as the present one, were pleasing events. It might be likened unto the oft alluded to quotation of the "Lion and the Lamb lying down together."

Mr. Depew remarked that if there was any Lion (?) it was on the Republican side of the house.

Mr. Finch said the hours spent in the performance of his official duties as a member of the Council of 1879, was something he could look back to with pleasure. Although he had served on Committees which made him no friends in his endeavor to perform the duties imposed thereon, he had always endeavored to do that which seemed most right to him. He had again been elected to serve as Councilman in the face of opposition on a straight Republican ticket, of which political faith he adhered to, still he believed that a Non-Partisan Council, such as that of 1879, was the right sort of Council for Plainfield. A small city like ours should not be run on a strictly partisan basis.

Mr. Stover, after repeated urgings, addressed the assemblage in a few appropriate remarks. He said that he also had experienced much pleasure in his official connection with the Council of 1879. Although the majority of his colleagues were against him, politically, yet he had always found them courteous and ready to co-operate with him for the best interests of the city. He did not know as he should again desire to be a member of Council, considering the arduous duties to perform and the thankless task in imposing them, but if he ever again sat in a Councilmanic body of Plainfield, he would desire no better pleasure than to have as his colleagues the members of Council of 1879.

Corporation Counsel Suydam having been persuaded to lay aside his fragrant Havana for a few moments, arose and said he had told citizens who came to him for his opinion as to whether there ought to be a "Partisan" or "Non-Partisan" Council, previous to the last election, that he thought it wise and just to nominate a Non-Partisan Ticket. He was a thorough Republican, but thought that the minority should be represented.

Messrs. Stewart, Mayer and Rushmore could not be induced to make any remarks. Mr. Stewart was bashful, Mr. Mayer claimed to be no talker, and Mr. Rushmore said "they had better let him 'rush' through to-night."

Upon a call being made for remarks from the Press, Mr. Wm. B. Leonard, of the Central Times, responded in befitting terms. In the course of his remarks he said he favored a "Non-Partisan" Council. The Republican party was largely in the majority in the city, but that was no reason why the minority should not have a representation. He was a Republican in every sense of the word, but he believed that good and true men, only, irrespective of party, should administer the affairs of the city.

After the speech-making, adjournment was in order, but before doing so, "Auld Lang Syne" was sang by all present, standing, and a vote of thanks extended to mine host, DeRevere, for the excellent "spread" just enjoyed.

Sentence Deferred.

Michael Sweeney, Jr., of this city, was brought before His Honor, Judge McCormic in the Union County Courts, at Elizabeth, on Saturday last. He desired to retract his plea of not guilty of assault and battery charged against him in striking one Emma McGhay, and to plead guilty. He stated he was not ready for sentence, and the same was deferred by His Honor to February 7th. Sweeney subsequently found bail and was released, Mr. Frank McIntyre of this city being his bondsman.

The Honey Lover.

Henry Albertson, of this city, one of the parties arrested recently on a charge of stealing honey from bee hives, and released on bail, to appear at the bar of the Union County Courts to answer to the charge on Friday last, failed to put in an appearance at that time. The name of his bondsman, Mr. B. Brittin, of Scotch Plains, was then called by the crier according to law. Mr. Brittin was not present, supposing that Albertson was. The bond was declared forfeited by His Honor, Judge McCormick. Albertson has not "turned up" as yet.

Personalia.

We are glad to see our old and esteemed Democratic friend, ex-Councilman John Simpson, again on our streets, after a protracted illness, which has confined him to his residence a portion of the time.

The many friends of David Roach, a former resident of Plainfield, and now in charge of Vanderbilt's large stables and stud of horses, at No. 4 east 40th street, N. Y. City, were pleased to take him by the hand on the occasion of a visit to his brother in this city on Saturday evening last.

They won't call him "Uncle Steve" Ryder as much now as they used to. It will be "Grand Pop." His son-Jake is the happy father, and the progeny is of the male persuasion.

The Feininger Recitals.

The number present on the occasion of the Third Musical Recital given by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Feininger in the Congregational Church, last Thursday evening, was not as large as certainly would have been, had the weather been favorable, the pelting rain preventing many from attending. The singing was up to the usual standard of entertainments given by Mr. F., although the use of a different piano from the one usually used, (a Chickering Grand) made a difference in the rendering of instrumental music. Miss Ketcham presided at the piano in place of Miss Wotherspoon, who was unable to participate in the exercises on account of illness.—Miss Ketcham's playing was very fine.—The Misses Minnie and Anna Marsh, elicited the applause of the audience for their rendition of pieces for four hands, from Beethoven. It is a gratifying fact that the Recitals are becoming more and more deservedly popular on each occasion of their occurrence. The next Recital takes place Feb. 3d. The programme and names of artists will be found in another column.

FIRE MATTERS.

Last Friday night, about 7 o'clock, a small dwelling house belonging to James McCarty, at Samptown, was discovered to be in flames on the roof. By the prompt application of water, the discoverers of the fire soon extinguished it. The following Sunday morning the same building was discovered to be on fire on the inside, next to a school house adjoining. A passing locomotive on the Packer R. R. gave the alarm by blowing its whistle, which aroused the citizens residing near by. Their efforts to extinguish the fire, however, were futile, both the dwelling and school house being totally destroyed. From the fact that the fire originated inside the building, and also that the windlass and bucket of a well situated near the school house, were found to have been thrown to the bottom of the well, indicate that the fire was of incendiary origin. The building was unoccupied at the time of its burning, a colored family who occupied it at the time of the first fire, having precipitately left it after that event. There was a small insurance on the residence, but none on the school building. Officer Eaton, on duty in the lower part of the city, saw the fire, and awakened Chief Doane, who, satisfied that the conflagration was beyond the fire limits, forbade ringing the alarm bell.

It would seem from recent accounts, that friend Saltzman, "Alert" Hose Co's foreman, is the recipient of most all the favors being extended members of our Fire Department by friends of other Departments. We were shown the other day another trophy presented him by admiring firemen friends of Morristown recently. It is highly prized by him.

The Annual Reception of "Alert Hose Co. No. 1" occurs the night of Feb. 25th next, at the Park House. It will be the finest affair of the season.

The fire well on Jackson avenue, North Plainfield, is progressing toward completion.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

There is to be a large hall erected here this Spring.

Candidates for the several Township offices are looming up.

Several of the citizens of this school district (No. 39) say that the school buildings are overcrowded.

On Tuesday evening last a pleasant surprise was given to Mr. Joseph N. Randolph, at his residence, on Somerset street. A party of about thirty couple took possession of the house and indulged in dancing, singing, etc. None enjoyed it better than Joe. Frazee furnished the music.

THE PROPER POSITION FOR HOLDING PARTNERS IN ROUND DANCING.

I have been asked so many times by parents and pupils the proper position for holding partners in round dancing, that I deem it my duty to make it more public and will be well paid for my trouble if some of our young people should profit by it; for some of the attitudes are decidedly vulgar and is the objection that some parents have against their children learning the pure and noble art of dancing. The position which I object to I will endeavor to explain: The gentleman (no, not a gentleman, as I do not belive a thorough-bred gentleman would hold a lady in this manner) holds the lady very close with both knees bent, which brings their right cheeks together and the right hand of the lady brought around back of her partner. In this position they dance, (which is objectionable to people of good taste. I think this mode of holding could be done away with, in a great measure, if the ladies would not allow themselves to be held in the above manner. There should be no more contact of the body than a lady taking a gentleman's arm for a walk. I am confident that this method has not originated in a first-class dancing school for a conscientious teacher would not allow it in his school. It is the duty of a teacher to see that his pupils learn the most manly and graceful way of dancing, and I am sure it is not manly or graceful for a person to stand, walk or dance with knees bent. But there is one way that is far superior to all others, and that way is the one I am about to explain: After a gentleman selects his partner and pays his compliments (by compliments I mean asking the lady for the pleasure and offering the left hand with a slight bow) he passes his right arm around the lady so that the hand rests lightly on the small of the back with the hand arched a little and the fingers closed; be very particular that the fingers are closed as it looks exceedingly awkward to see them sprawled on the lady's back. The elbow should be raised well up under the lady's left arm so as to support her in case of slipping, and is more comfortable than resting it against her side. The lady's left hand curved and resting lightly on the gentleman's right shoulder, where the arm joins the shoulder. The heads should be turned a little to the left to avoid each other's breath, which is not always pleasant. There is a variety of ways to hold the hand, some of which are as follows:—The "pump-handle" style (as I call it) is holding the arms straight out sideways, even with the shoulders, and moving them up and down while dancing, and often striking some other couple in the face. Another is, holding the lady's arm by the elbow and the lady's hand resting in the hollow of the gentleman's arm. The "dangling fashion" is holding the lady's hand by the wrist and letting it dangle while dancing. But the most obnoxious, and which shows very bad taste by both sexes, is, holding the lady's right hand on the gentleman's left hip, and no lady that respects herself should allow any one to hold her in that manner. The proper way—and one that becomes a lady and gentleman—is, for the lady to rest her fingers in the gentleman's hand with arms extended downward at the side and about 12 inches from the body. The gentleman's wrist should be curved a little, as it adds more grace to the attitude. The hips should always be thrown back a little, so as to throw the weight of the body more on the ball of the foot. If couples will dance in this position, they may rest assured that they do not appear ridiculous to others.

ADVERTISING THE SECRET OF SUCCESS.

In this day of close competition, one of the surest avenues to success is to become known and favorably known. It has become necessary "to blow your own horn," and he gains the greatest celebrity who blows the longest and the loudest. Business to-day is the game of "cut-throat." The principles on which our fathers gained fame and fortune are voted too slow for the rising generation. Merit, alone, is a thing of the past. Much in business, to-day, savors of the superficial and unscrupulous. "Possunt quia posse videntur," "They are able who seem to be able."—Not so much depends upon doing a thing well, as giving notoriety to that which is done. Judicious advertising is the highway to wealth. He who sticks to the old-fashion methods will find himself distanced in the race of life, if not stranded upon the sands of bankruptcy. The man who depends upon merit alone, may call you an ultraist and a charlatan, but you are no fool—you will ride and he will go afoot; you will reach the top of the hill of success while he is toiling at its base. Newspaper puffings sells the nostrums of Schenck and Pierce, as readily as Jaynes' Expectorant or Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and has made the name of Wanamaker as familiar as household words. Therefore, "blow your own horn!" Create a sensation! Startle the people! Proclaim your goods from the housetops! Issue circulars! advertise in the papers, and thereby "put money in thy purse."

A clipping from a Boston paper estimates the wealth of John Wanamaker at twenty millions.

THEY PARTED FRIENDS.

An agent with a wall-map of four States to sell entered a Jefferson avenue clothing house the other day in search of a customer, and not a word was spoken until he had unrolled his map. Then he said:

"A complete map of Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and the price is only twelve shillings."

"Wouldn't you like to buy an ofercoat?" asked the dealer, as his eyes left the map to scan the man.

"I guess not, but I want to sell you this map. It shows every county in the four States—every railroad—every river—every county seat. No business house should be without one."

"I can sell you a pair of pants mit two hind-pockets for shust vat you pay for a vesht in New York mit no strap on der pack," remarked the clothier, as he began to handle the goods.

"This map shows even the smallest villages. Here where my finger rests is Detroit. Down this way you to go Columbus, and from thence to Cincinnati, where Deacon Richard Smith can always be found after 7 o'clock in the morning. Do you want to go to Chicago? Then follow my finger and I'll leave you in front of the Grand Pacific."

"Here ish a second-hand coat mit a grease spot on one tail dot I can sell you for dree tollar, and I tell you nobody else puts prices down to der notch like I does. Youst try him on."

"Do you have business in Indianapolis?" continued the agent. "Here is the route to take. Do you want to go to Marquette next Summer? Behold the direction and distance. I wouldn't be without one of these maps for a hundred dollar bill."

"Und I wouldn't be midout dis coat mit dis grease sphot on der tail for a hoonered tollar pill!"

"Don't you want a map?"

"Dont you want a coat?"

"What do I want of that coat when I have no use for it?"

"Vhat do I want of dot map when I upstairs lifs here?"

"But don't you want an idea of the State you live in? Which way is Grand Rapids from here?"

"Vhich vhay is der front door from here?" demanded the clothier, as he drew himself up.

"Then I can't sell you this map?"

"Then I can't sell you dot coat?"

"Shake!" said the map man, as he started to go.

The clothier shook.

"Would you take this map for a dollar?"

"Vould you take dot Summer vesht for fifty cent?"

The agent wanted one more word.—Standing with his hand on the latch, he said:

"When you find out the way to Cleveland please let me know."

"Vhen you finds der vhay to Shackson let me know," was the answer, and they separated, never to meet again.—Detroit Free Press.

SIGNING PAPERS.

Men seem to sign papers in the front parlor in much the same way that they feed tramps at the back door; pleading that it is better that ten unworthy causes should be indorsed than that one good cause should fail of commendation.

Nevertheless there is but one rule for all these cases, and that is a plain one: "Never write any word of commendation which is not based upon your own knowledge." And when you are pointed to the great people who have already given their approval, it is sufficient to answer that great names, in such places, are of very little value. "We have seen reams of such testimonials," you may reply, "to things that are worthless." The fact that all the ministers and college presidents in the land have recommended a book or an enterprise or a commodity, is not sufficient evidence that it is good for anything. We should say beforehand that it would be good evidence, but abundant experience proves that it is not. We have followed these great people in commending worthless things more than once, and have been ashamed of ourselves for doing it, and we are not going to do it any more. What we know is good, that we will gladly approve; and we will not commend anything of which we are ignorant, though the name of Queen Victoria appear upon the paper just above the place where we are asked to sign our name."

THE FIRST BANKS.

A writer in the Nineteenth Century, says:

We are generally told in histories of banking, as, for instance, in that by Gilbart, that the first national bank was that of Venice, founded in the year 1157, but I agree with Mr. McLeod, that this institution was not the first, in any sense, a true bank. The State being deeply involved in debt, its creditors were formed into a corporation, and the debts made transferable like our consols. It was not until 1587 that the institution began to take money on deposit. The depositors received a credit on the bank's books equal to the actual weight of bullion placed there, which the bank undertook to keep intact in its vaults, and to repay to the depositor at any time, or to transfer to any one else. The earliest real bank was that of Barcelona, founded in 1401. In this case, the city funds were made responsible for any moneys intrusted to the bank, which not only received deposits, but exchanged money and discounted bills. The Bank of Amsterdam was founded in 1609. The so-called Bank of St. George, at Genoa, dates back to 1407, but does not appear to have done genuine banking business until 1675. The Bank of Stockholm, which commenced in 1668, was the first to issue bank notes, which, until that time, were totally unknown in the West, although, as we have seen, they had long been in use in China.

HOW TO FEED HORSES.

A good farmer will always manage to keep his horses in good condition, and fit for their work, while a poor manager, though using the same kind of food, will have them in bad condition. A man who understands horses and their needs will so feed them as to produce the best results at the least possible cost, and he will readily observe anything wrong with them. Indigestion, and non-assimilation of food, as soon as observed, are of course to be remedied, usually by administering a purgative dose or a tonic to impart strength to the mucous surface and gastric apparatus.

To fully understand the true principle of feeding horses it must be remembered that stomach of the horse is comparatively small, and that digestion is very rapid. In a state of freedom the horse spends nearly three-fourths of his time in mastication. The best veterinary authorities, therefore, agree that to feed a horse properly we must follow nature closely—letting the animal eat often, and in small quantities, and this view appears to be confirmed by the experience of men who work horses.

Horses which have been compelled to take long fasts are apt to become rapid feeders and are subject to colic and other disorders. The nose-bags, from which to feed horses at noon, when resting, are almost indispensable. The best diet for a working horse is hay and grain, with occasional bran mashes, and an idle horse ought to have less grain, or, perhaps, if they can be procured, carrots or other roots in the place of grain.

Keep the stable, the mangers and the feed boxes clean, for horses are very sensitive about such matters. The quality of food given is to be determined by the work to be done and the character of the horse. Never give an animal more than he will eat with a relish. When a horse, usually at work, is for a time idle, reduce the quantity of food given for he cannot assimilate as much as before.

At the best stables a horse is never fed for an hour or more after coming in from rapid travel. The reason for this is that, owing to the intense muscular exertion, the blood is sent in large quantities to the lungs and other organs, and the stomach is not in a functional condition to digest food until after some rest; until after the currents of circulation have time to turn towards the digestive organs.

Another very important point is with reference to watering. The stomach of a horse is so organized that fluids pass almost directly through it. The openings of the stomach have to dilate to allow fluids to pass to the intestines, and if the stomach is full, there is danger that some of its contents will be washed into the intestines before they have been sufficiently digested.—This causes colic, or possibly inflammation. Water should therefore be given before feeding, and not immediately after.

When a horse is pretty warm put him in the stable to cool off, or, if very hot, walk him around slowly for some time. When rested somewhat, and cool enough to be fed, water him, and then let him eat hay awhile before receiving his grain. If traveling, drive slowly for half an hour after harnessing, before watering the horse, and it will be found better than to let him drink all he can on a full stomach.

DOING A FAVOR.

Early yesterday morning a poorly dressed and seedy looking person about fifty years old entered the post-office and proceeded to warm his hands at one of the registers. He made no inquiries about the mail, and after he had been loafing around for two hours a policeman got his eye on him and asked:

"Say, old man, have you any business here?"

"Well, no," was the reply.

"Any work to do?"

"No. I kinder thought I'd lay off this winter."

"Any friends here?"

"No."

"I think you are a vagrant," continued the officer as he took another look at him.

"Mebbe I am," sighed the old man.

"And I think I'll take you down."

"Well, I'll go along."

The officer escorted him down to the station house, registered his name, and then proceeded to search his pockets. Each one panned out a "wad" of money, making a total of $1,600.

"Why didn't you tell me you had this money?" demanded the policeman.

"Why didn't you ask me."

"Didn't I say I took you as a vagrant and you didn't deny it, either!"

"Well, I didn't know anything about your city laws," quietly replied the old man. "I've got two married daughters, and I came to buy each of 'em a $600 piano for New Year's, but if it's agin' any of your laws I'll take the next train for home. I'm gitting purty old, and I don't want no fuss with anybody."

"Well, you might have saved yourself all this trouble," said the officer as he escorted him to the street.

"Don't mention it," was the answer. "If I took any trouble on your account it's all right, and you needn't thank me. I'm always willing to oblige anybody who can appreciate it. Purty cold day, isn't it."—Detroit Free Press.

A pale-faced clerk in a Detroit clothing store received a set-back the other day from an old woman which will retard his growth for a year to come.—She entered the store in company with her son, and said: "I want to see some ulcer overcoats for boys." "You mean ulst-r—u-l-s-t-e-r," he replied. "Did I ask for ulcer overcoats?" "Yes, ma'am." "Then I want to see ulcer overcoats, no matter how you spell it! I got up at five o'clock this morning, rode fourteen miles facing the wind, sold two hogs and a barrel of cider, and if I don't know what I want, I'm not going to take any advice from a walking goose quill like you! You can bet on that!"

Why is the letter "g" like matrimony?—Because it is the end of courting.

Love letters should always be written on the dearest paper.

Why is the vowel O the only one sounded?—Because all the others are inaudible.

When two young men meet they address each other as "old man," and when two old fellows meet they say "my boy."

WINE

SPEER'S PORT GRAPE WINE!
FOUR YEARS OLD.
This Celebrated Native Wine is made from the juice of the Oporto Grape, raised in this Country. Its Invaluable
Tonic and Strengthening Properties
are unsurpassed by any other Native Wine. Being the pure juice of the Grape, produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed. The youngest child may partake of its generous qualities, and the weakest invalid use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated, and suited to the various ailments that affect the weaker sex. It is in every respect A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.
SPEER'S
P. J. SHERRY,
The P. J. SHERRY is a Wine of Superior character, and partakes of the golden qualities of the grape from which it is made. For Purity, Richness, Flavor and Medicinal Properties, it will be found unexcelled.
SPEER'S
P. J. BRANDY.
This Brandy stands unrivaled in this Country, being far superior for medicinal purposes. It is a Pure distillation from the grape, and contains valuable medicinal properties. It has a delicate flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled, and is in great favor among first-class families. See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.
Sold by R. P. Reynolds, R. J. Shaw and W. H. Voorhees, Druggists.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—In Chancery of New Jersey, Between Mary Brown, complainant, and Augustus Pettibone, et. ux., et al., defendants. Fi. fa., etc.

By virtue of the above stated writ of fieri facias to me directed, I shall expose for sale by public vendue, at the Court House, in the city of Elizabeth, N. J., on WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTY-FIFTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, A. D., 1880,

At two o'clock, p. m., IN THE FIRST PLACE, all that tract or parcel of land and premises, situate, lying and being in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey.

Beginning at a stone in the middle of Centre street, it being the westerly corner of John Suttons' lot; thence along the side of said lot north, forty five degrees east, two chains and ninety links, to a stone in the rear of Isaac Moore's lot; thence along the rear of Isaac Moore's and John Thorn's land, north forty-five degrees west, ninety and a half links to a stone; thence with lands of Daniel T. Hill, south, forty-five degrees west two chains and ninety links, to a stone in the middle of Centre street; thence along the middle of Centre street, south forty-five degrees east, 90 and a half links to the place of beginning; containing forty-one square rods of land. And if the proceeds of sale of the above described tract shall be insufficient to pay and satisfy the decrees as per execution, then I shall sell—

IN THE SECOND PLACE—all that tract of land and premises, situate, lying and being in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and State of New Jersey, and—

Beginning at a stone, corner to land of Daniel T. Hill, in the middle of Centre street; thence along the middle of that street south-east ninety-two links to the middle of Fifth street; thence north-east two chains and seventy-one links to a stone in the middle of said street; thence along lands of Daniel T. Hill, north-west, ninety-two links to a stone for a corner; thence along the line of Daniel T. Hill, two chains and seventy-one links, to the place of beginning; containing one-quarter of an acre, more or less.

POETRY.

WHO'S AFRAID?

Courage, brother! there is nothing
In the world brave men should fear;
If the heart be firm and steady,
If the arm be strong and ready,
Half our dangers disappear.
Only cowards faint and falter,
Only cravens shrink and palter,
Only dastards are dismayed.
Meet each trial—never fly it,
Face misfortune and defy it;
Courage, brothers!—who's afraid?

Courage, brother! there is nothing
In the world true men appals;
Still be true to man and woman,
To the God of truth a true man,
True to self when duty calls.
He that's false in word or doing
Soul and body brings to ruin;
Lying's still a losing trade;
Do the truth and fear no evil;
Speak the truth and shame the devil;
Courage, brothers!—who's afraid?

Courage, brothers! there is nothing
Brave and true men should affright;
Life's a warfare high and holy
For the lofty and the lowly;
God and angels watch the fight;
In the roar, and rush, rattle,
In the sweat and blood of battle,
Fight as men for fight arrayed.
Whether vanquished or victorious,
Good men's lives and deaths are glorious;
Courage, brothers!—who's afraid?

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

TOM ALLEN'S COURTSHIP.

Winnifred was a dainty kind of a womankind—a sunbeam—who laughed much as a linnet sings; moreover, there were dimples lurking in her rose-tinted cheeks.

She was well worth loving, although not quite an angel, for if she had been, she would not have been a woman, yet she certainly was a thief.

A thief! Stealing hearts by wholesale.

But she who loved to coquet with hearts was at last taken captive; for Love conquered the merriest and most mischievous maiden whoever laughed at his wiles; and Love came to Winnifred, now, simple and delicious.

No two love makings happened in just the same way, as no two leaves are alike on the same tree.

One day it happened that two gray eyes looked into hers—the merest accident, of course.

"Winnifred!" said the owner of them, suddenly.

It was the first time he had called her by her first name; and there was something in the look of the grey eyes which sent the warm blood to her cheeks and caused a tumult of emotion—it seemed to her like the finding of a bunch of violets in mid-winter.

"He loves me," she thought, with a thrill of delight quite unlike former experiences.

"Winnifred," he said tenderly, "you are very dear to me. I have loved you devoutly all these years," and he waited for her to reply.

"And—I—love you, Tom—but—"

"Oh, let there be no buts. You will love me, Winnifred, darling, let who will oppose, will you not?"

"Yes, Tom—till I die," she said, with her face all aglow.

Then she paused abruptly.

No, Tom was only a clerk—rich in nothing but honesty and good humor, while her father was wealthy.

"I fear my father will not favor our love," she continued, with some embarrassment; "but I ought to choose for myself—it is my right."

The gray eyes softened.

For the first time in his life Tom had told a woman that he loved her, and had found the telling pleasant.

He told her, too, that he had not much to offer. Would she be contented with a humble home, share with a loyal heart, instead of luxury?

Yes, she would be "quite content."

For a time these two sat with clasped hands in a dreamy silence, which was yet not silence.

Winnie's heart was full to the brim—the tell-tale color of her cheeks—the sweet confusion in her eyes, were utterances more potent than words.

Then there ensued a quiet, rational talk about their prospects, and the best way to "manage father."

Thomas Lane was a successful merchant—blessed with full and plenty—yet he had a vexation.

It was one trouble of his life how to snub and circumvent a brother merchant, not meanly nor maliciously, but good humoredly.

Josiah Wright, with a "dog-in-the manger" disposition, had always been jealous of his old friend and neighbor's prosperity, and he had kept up a series of petty annoyances against Thomas Lane.

That day Mr. Lane had heard some disparaging remark made by "Old Josiah," as he was wont to call him, and he was brooding over it as he sat tilted back in his private office, when Tom, his confidential clerk, unexpectedly entered.

"Glad you come, Tom," he exclaimed, "for I'm just a bit lonely. Been up to the house but couldn't stay; daughter's gone for the season to Aunt Mercy's mean to take a run down myself next week; and, Tom, now that I think of it, you must take a run up to Saratoga—at my expense. I've noticed that you're been mopish of late, and it will drive away the blues to get among gay people. I don't like to see you out of sorts."

"You are very kind, sir," Tom replied.

"Pooh, pooh! Nothing of the sort. It's simple justice. Come, come, don't look so dismal. Is anything going wrong? Just as likely as not some pretty damsel has captured your heart."

And the kindly-natured merchant rubbed his hands together gleefully, and glanced inquiringly at his favorite clerk, who stood looking conscious and sheepish twisting his fingers nervously:

"Well, sir," he replied, "I believe that is just the trouble."

A prolonged whistle and merry twinkle in his eyes expressed the merchant's astonishment, for after all it was but a random guess.

"And so you want to marry and settle down in life, and have your salary raised—hey?"

"Yes, sir; that's about it."

"A little bird has told me, you sly dog, that you are looking after Marjorie Wright. She's a pretty girl, and worth a plum or two. You couldn't do better, Tom."

"But, sir, my dear girl's father is opposed to me. Why, I'm only a poor clerk, and she is an heiress."

"Opposed, is he? I should like to know what objection he can have to you? You love the girl?"

"With all my heart, sir."

"And she loves you?"

"Devotedly."

"Then, with love in the home and old Josiah's money to rile it, it might do. Yes, yes; it would admirably."

And the old gentleman laughed heartily at the idea, and then inquired what he meant to do about it.

"I must wait until her father consents, I suppose," replied Tom, ruefully. "But what would you advise me to do, sir?"

"Do? Why, I know what I'd do if I were young like you and loved a pretty girl. I'd try and win her in spite of all the fathers in the world. If she was willing to take me, I'd brave the old man's displeasure and run off and get married."

"But my dear Mr. Lane, I fear that he would never forgive his daughter, and that would break her heart."

"Pooh, pooh! Girl's hearts are not as easily broken as you may imagine. What fun it will be to have old Josiah fret and fume and then come around right—as he will my boy; never fear. No, no, Tom, you go ahead, and I'll furnish all the money you need; and if the old man is cross with pretty Marjorie, I'll take care that neither of you starve, if it's only to spite the old curmudgeon."

"Oh, thank you, sir. With your permission then I will try to win her."

"All right, my boy. I don't forget that I was once young; and mind, when the knot is tied fast, you can come to my house and have it all to yourselves until old Josiah sends for you."

"Well, Mr. Lane, I'll think the matter over. Meanwhile I'll accept your kind offer and go to Saratoga for a few days," said Tom, as he smilingly left the office.

"Too tame by half—but young men now-a-days have very little," muttered the merchant as he started for his solitary home.

Three days later Mr. Lane had occasion to change his opinion of Tom's tameness, for he received an unexpected letter.

Fortunately he was alone—there was no one to witness the mingled feelings of astonishment and chagrin he experienced while reading it:

SARATOGA.

"DEAR SIR:—You were misinformed in regard to Miss Marjorie Wright, for I have never thought of her for a wife. It is your daughter Winnifred, whom I have loved ever since I came to you—a mere boy. Winnie and myself were married this morning, and we shall be the happiest couple in the United States when we receive your forgiving welcome.

"Aunt Mercy accompanied us here, and now we are anxiously waiting to hear from you. Your grateful son, TOM ALLEN."

"Sold and no mistake," exclaimed Mr. Lane half angrily. "But what's the use? Tom is a good fellow—sharp, too—sharp as a needle—good business talent—ha! ha!—and better, yes incomparatively better than the rest of the danglers; and Winnie—little puss—she loves him"—and then there came to his old heart far off memories of the girl's dead mother; and brushing away a tear, worth more than any diamond he possessed, he snatched a pen and hastily wrote the following:

"My grateful son is a young scamp! But I forgive you, Tom, notwithstanding—for if Winnie finds something in you to love, you can't be so very wicked. But, my boy, the tables are turned, you know, and it won't do to let old Josiah crow over us. I'll run up to Saratoga, and we'll all come home together, and he will be none the wiser. As I am opposed to my daughter's husband being a poor clerk, I shall take measures at once to make you my partner. Henceforth the firm will be known as Lane & Allen.

Your affectionate father,
THOMAS LANE."

A FAMILY JAR.

Philemon Hayes and Fanny Ray had been just three months married.

They sat at breakfast in their cozy dining room one fine morning in summer, totally infatuated with each other. Never such happiness as theirs before! The felicity of Adam and his lady before they made the acquaintance of the serpent was not to be mentioned in the same breath.

They kissed each other between every cup of coffee, and embraced twice—sometimes thrice—during every meal. Just now they were speaking of disagreements. Some friends of theirs had fallen out and refused to fall in again.

"We never will disagree, will we, Phil; dear?" asked Mrs. Fanny.

"Disagree! Will the heavens fall?" returned Phil.

"I sincerely hope not. It would be decidedly disagreeable," laughed Fanny; "but, if I thought we should ever quarrel and have harsh thoughts toward each other, I should be tempted to terminate my existence."

"My precious Fanny!" cried Phil, springing up and upsetting the toast plate on the carpet, of which he was perfectly oblivious in his eagerness to get his arms around Fanny—"my foolish little darling! as if we should ever be so absurd (a kiss)! May I be drawn and quartered (another kiss) if I ever speak one word that shall cause a tear to fill the divine eyes of my dearest (a third explosion) Fanny!"

"O, how happy you make me, Phil. I shall try so hard to be just the faithful, loving wife you deserve. Now finish your breakfast, deary. The toast will be growing cold. And O Phil, did you notice Mrs. Smith's horrid new bonnet last night? I declare it destroyed all my pleasure in the music. I do wish people who wear such distasteful bonnets would stay at home from these delightful concerts!"

"So do I, Fanny. I noticed the ugly thing the moment we entered the hall. Blue flowers and pink ribbons, and she as dark as a Creole!"

"No, my love; the flowers were green. Green and blue look so much alike by gaslight."

"I know they do, but I noticed it so particularly that I could not be deceived. Blue—especially light blue—looks fearfully on a dark-complexioned woman."

"So it does, Phil; I quite agree with you dear. But the flowers were not blue, they were green. I saw them at Mrs. Gray's shop before they were purchased."

"My dearest—Fanny, of course you think yourself right, love, but I have a very good eye for color, and noticed these flowers with great attention. Blue anemones with yellow centers."

"Green hibiscus with white centers, my dear Phil. Very pretty for a light skinned woman, but horrid for a brunette."

"Why, Fanny, how absurd! As if I could not determine a color when I studied it half the evening."

"But it was by gas light, my love. It would look altogether different by daylight. It was such a pale green."

"It was such a pale green. I remember I thought of the sky before a storm."

"And I thought of the sea. "It was nearly sea-green."

"Why, Fanny—ridiculous! It was sky blue."

"How you do contradict me, my Philemon. It was a very light green."

"And I insist it was blue."

"Do you mean to tell me I lie?"

"I mean to tell you you are mistaken."

"Which amounts to the same thing."

"You make the application, Mrs. Fanny Hayes."

"Mr. Philemon Hayes!"

"Fanny!"

"I say it was green, sir!"

"I say it was blue—so there!"

"You are a wretch, Phil—a real mean, heartless wretch, Phil—a real mean, heartless wretch!" and Fanny pushed back her plate angrily.

"And you are an opinionated, self-willed woman!" and Phil, in his agitation, upset the coffee, scalding the cat's back and himself at the same time.

"The deuce!" cried he, rubbing his red fingers with his handkerchief. "I wish I had never seen a woman!"

"What's that, sir?"

"Confound the women! They're a curse to the world!"

"You brute!" cried Mrs. Hayes, now thoroughly incensed, "take that!" and, seizing the plate of muffins, she took aim at Phil's head; but, being a woman, her aim was not so accurate as it might have been, and the plate went through the window, smashing in the tile of Fitz James Jones, who was passing, and the muffins were scattered in wild confusion about the room.

Phil was indignant. He laid his hand on the poker.

"Oh, strike!" exclaimed Fanny. "It will only be in place with your other conduct. Don't let any notions of honor restrain you, because you never had any."

"Fanny, beware; you try me too far."

"I'll go home to pa, that I will. You inhuman monster you—I'll be divorced from you this very day. So there!" and the platter of ham made a journey after the muffins.

Just at that moment Phil's Uncle John, a shrewd old fellow, appeared on the scene. He surveyed the group with an anxious twinkle of the eye.

"What's the matter, Fanny? Anything gone wrong?" he inquired.

"Gone wrong! Matter enough! Oh, Uncle John, he's a wretch, and set out to strike me with a poker."

"And she threw a plate of muffins and ham at me," cried Phil.

"He's a monster, Uncle John. I'll be divorced from him this very day. He is worse than a savage."

"So he is," cried Uncle John, entering warmly into the spirit of the thing.

"So he is"—stripping off his coat—"and I'll settle the matter at once. You stand back, Fanny; I'll give him such a thrashing as he'll be likely to remember. Striking his wife with a poker, indeed! I'll rectify matters;" and Uncle John grasped the long-handled feather duster, and flourished it threateningly around the head of his nephew. "There, sir, take that, and that, and that!" exclaimed he, bringing down the feathers on the shoulders of the amazed Phil. "Fanny, my dear, I'll not leave a bone of him whole."

Fanny's round blue eyes had been growing larger and larger—and now her indignation broke."

"John Hayes!" she cried, "you're a heathen, and an old meddling vagabond! Let Phil alone! He's my dear, dear husband, and you've no right to touch him. He's an angel. He never intended to strike me. Stop striking him, or you'll be sorry!" and Fanny seized the broom from behind the door, and prepared to do battle.

"Stand back!" cried Uncle John; "he's a monster, and deserves death. The man who has threatened to strike a woman ought to be hung."

Fanny's eyes blazed. She flew at Uncle John with the spite of a tigress, and the way the trio went round the room was worth witnessing. Uncle John after Phil with the duster, and Fanny after Uncle John with the broom.

Phil made a spring for the window, but there was a what-not in the way, and getting his leg entered in that he brought the whole concern to the floor. Ambrotypes, books, vases, rare china and a hundred cherished curiosities, all were involved in a direct ruin.

Phil went down with the other things, Uncle John stumbled over him, and Fanny only saved herself by seizing the bell-rope, which brought her two servants to the spot.

Of course they took Phil and Uncle John for housebreakers, and if Fanny's explanations had not been enforced by sundry touches of her broomstick the consequences might have been serious.

The first moment of calm was seized upon by the young couple to embrace each other.

"My angel Fanny!"

"My precious Phil!"

And then followed an explosion like the bursting of soda water bottles.

Uncle John left the house during this interesting performance, still firmly of the opinion that the surest way of reconciling a wife to her husband is to get a third person help abuse him.

THAT 'ERE CHAP NAMED TENNYSON.

"I'm kinder lookin' around for a book of poetry to give my daughter as a present," explained an oldish looking man the other day as a clerk in a Woodward avenue book store came forward to wait on him.

"Yes, sir. Have you any choice of poets?"

"W-a-al, I s'pose they are all off the same piece," replied the old man as he scanned the shelves. "I don't know much about 'em, but the gal she seems to think a heap of that 'ere chap named Tennymoon."

"Tennyson, you mean."

"Wa-al, I guess so. I haint no hand to remember names. Do you know anything about this 'ere Tennyson?"

"Why, he's one of the leading poets?"

"Married man?"

"Yes."

"Move around in purty good society, doe he? Ever hear he wasn't exactly straight?"

"Why, Mr. Tennyson is supposed to be a gentleman," said the astonished clerk, "though, of course, I don't know anything about his private life."

"Does he use any slang words in his verses?"

"Of course not."

"Anything about girls elopin' away from home with pirates or robbers?"

"Not a word."

"The reason I'm a little perticklar," said the old man, "is because my gal is rather on the romance. She's just dying to slope off with some Injun-killer, and if that 'ere Tennyson is on the slope I don't want his verses."

"Oh, you can be sure that his poems are all right. They contain nothing but the purest sentiment."

"Nother thing is, one of the girls in our neighborhood sent off after some one's poems, and they came near workin' a heap of evil. There was a song in it about a boy with a glass eye, and another about flirtin' with a feller on the corner, and I can't tell you what. 'Twasn't a week afore our Sarah began to say she'd like to 'collar a beau,' and askin' her mother 'not to give her away,' and all such slang as that. I kept her churnin' butter from 6 in the morning till 10 at night, and I guess it reformed her, but I don't want to set her agoin' agin."

"I assure you that Tennyson's poems are all right," said the clerk.

"If there's a single crooked word I won't have it, for I hain't goin' to have Sarah slidin' down from her chamber winder at midnight to meet no brigand, and if she ever tells me agin that I'm a kicker I'll box her ears even if she is goin' on twenty-three!"—Detroit Free Press.

THE MAKE UP OF THE BODY.

Suppose your age to be 15 or thereabouts, I can figure you to a dot. You have 160 bones and 500 muscles; your blood weighs 32 pounds; your heart is 5 inches in length and 3 inches in diameter; it beats 70 times a minute, 4,200 times per hour, 100,800 per day, and 36,792,000 per year. At each beat a little over two ounces of blood is thrown out of it, and each day it receives and discharges about seven tons of that wonderful fluid. Your lungs will contain a gallon of air, and you inhale 24,000 gallons per day. The aggregate surface of the air cells of your lungs, supposing them to spread out, exceeds 20,000 square inches. The weight of your brain is three pounds; when you are a man it will weigh eight ounces more. Your nerves exceed 10,000,000 in number. Your skin is composed of three layers, and varies in thickness. The area of your skin is about 1,700 square inches, and you are subject to an atmospheric pressure of 15 pounds to the square inch. Each square inch of your skin contains 3,500 sweating or perspiratory pores, each of which may be likened to a little drain tile, one-fourth of an inch long, making an aggregate length of the entire surface of your body of a drain or tile ditch for draining the body 23½ miles long.—Dio Lewis.

DEMOCRATIC LIBERTY.

The strength and renown of the Democratic party abides in the fact that, as a political organization, its foremost endeavors have ever been to promote and protect the rights and welfare of all the people.

In doing that, it has braved many a fierce battle and gained the laurels of victory. The present time demands a continuance of the contest, for now, as in former years, vigilance and resolute action are the only guarantees for popular freedom.

At the very commencement of the Republic arose the old English aristocratic idea that the people should be ruled by the rich and the well born.—That was monarchy without much disguise, and found urgent supporters among the Hamiltonian Federalists.—Had it secured ascendancy, the Constitution would have become a nullity and Liberty a sham.

It was combatted with fervor and gloriously defeated by the Democratic party.

Years afterwards, when political hostility had assumed the name of Whig and the fires of opposition burned intensely, the Democracy again saved the people their liberties and pecuniary interests, by crushing out the arrogant claim of the money power to govern the country through the corrupt instrumentality of a United States Bank.

In a variety of ways and at divers times has the Democratic party warred against similar efforts to fasten yokes of bondage around the necks of the people, and to pervert representative institutions for the attainment of unwarrantable ends, and to-day, the cause for such warfare exists as strongly as ever, because the same enemies of Democratic truth and equity are busily at work seeking to aggrandize the few at the expense of the many.

Against that the blade of Democracy will never be sheathed.

At no former period in the history of this country was the spirit of monopoly more graspingly alive than now, and nothing can be named more perilous to the well being of the masses than that. Monopoly aims to make money the sovereign master, and through its combined power and influence to establish a system of servitude.

Democracy abhors such a project. It desires to keep money within its appropriate sphere, the recompensed promoter of industry and enterprise, not the stern arbiter, and would afford to every citizen and association, of large means or small, the freest possible opportunity to traffic, labor and accumulate, and with perfect immunity to enjoy the results thereof.

Democracy is right, because it fearlessly advocates the greatest good of the greatest number.

And that is Liberty.

IRELAND.

There are thirty-five absentee landlords who own in Ireland 1,709,000 acres, and draw from rent and tillage of that immense domain the yearly sum of $3,385,000.

Therein exists one great cause of Ireland's distress, bled to death by landlords in England, and refused the right, accorded even to Canada, of controlling home affairs. Was the soil of Ireland divided into small or moderate sized farms, and owned or managed by people having a direct interest in the country, there would be a far better condition of affairs. A land-holding aristocracy is Erin's curse.

May its blighting presence never be seen in the United States.

ENGLAND.

John Bright, the English statesman, in a recent speech said:

"This England of ours, uninvaded, unmenaced and at peace, is sending out her armies to visit foreign lands with fire and sword. Providence will pronounce its condemnation, and England will fall as Rome fell."

That is just what England has been doing for years. The bulk of her colonial possessions were won by the sword. Every foot of her vast Indian Empire was wrested by force from legal native owners. It is a late day to condemn the crime, however, better do it late than never.

In Philadelphia a corrupt Republican Ring rules every branch of the City Government. Political influence of the worst kind manages all things, including the Fire Department, which, according to the local journals, is in a depraved condition, both as regards men and material. If a building takes fire, the chances are it will burn down before the engines get to work, and should they arrive in season, the rotten hose is likely to throw more water on the assembled crowd than on the burning structure. There is an appropriate sphere for politics, but it is away from an efficient Fire Department.

The Philadelphia effort to nominate Grant for a third term don't take well. A recent canvass of Republicans in the Iowa Legislature showed that 94 of them were for Blaine, 14 for Grant, and a few each for Sherman, Garfield and Washburne. The opposition to any third term President is far deeper and wider than many of the Republican politicians imagine.

Cardinal Manning is credited with saying—"Drunkenness is effecting England's factory hands to such an extent, that Americans who had visited England to study the labor question declared that the factory labor of America was more efficient than that of England in consequence of intemperance among the English operatives."

The Democrats of the South have recently elected two very able and high toned United States Senators in the persons of Judge George, of Mississippi, and Randall L. Gibson, of Louisiana. They will confer honor upon the party.

The storm of Monday last was terrible in its effects along the sea shore.—The list of wrecks and losses of life by vessels stranding along the coast, is large. New Jersey's life-saving corps have proven of incalculable value in saving property and life.

The Lord Mayor of London is required to give $150,000 bonds for the safety of the official diamonds and plate. That is a responsibility the Mayor of Plainfield will never be called upon to assume.

THE LOCAL OPTION BILL.

Senate Bill 105, an act to regulate the sale of malt, vinous, spirituous or other intoxicating liquors in the State of New Jersey, introduced by Mr. Sewell, on Monday night, provides: That persons lawfully entitled to vote in the several townships, towns, boroughs and cities of this State, at their respective town meetings and municipal elections, held next after the passage of this act, may determine by ballot whether any person shall thereafter be licensed to sell within the limits of such town, township, borough or city, any intoxicating liquors.

At every second municipal election the same question shall be voted upon.

If the majority of votes shall be cast for "no license," no license shall be granted until it shall be so determined by a majority of votes cast at a subsequent election.

After the passage of this act it shall not be lawful for any person to sell liquor without a license had from the legally constituted State authorities, except that registered druggists may sell such liquors for medical, sacramental and mechanical purposes.

All persons violating this act shall be punished by a fine of between $50 and $100, or imprisonment in the County Jail for three months, for the first offence, and for the second offence not less than $100 fine or six months imprisonment, on complaints made within one year.—Trenton True American.

STOPPING OFFICIAL FRAUD.

Senator Schenck has nearly prepared for speedy introduction in the Legislature, a bill which promises to be of great service to Somerset County, and all the Counties where fraud is known to be practiced. It provides for the election of Freeholders-at-Large by the County, instead of the present system, by which each township sends its own member to the Board. The bill will not take away local power from the respective townships, but it will obviate the difficulty heretofore existing, by which the same name, by corrupt practices and acquired influence, can keep himself in the Board for years. Prominent citizens of both parties have urged the drawing of the bill, and is being so framed that is believed it will be acceptable to legislators and the people.—New Brunswick Fredonian.

ETHIOPIA.

Those people who think Congress, State Legislatures and City Councils can and should do everything they are asked to accomplish, irrespective of authority or propriety, may possibly derive profit from the rough edged remarks of a venerable member of a colored Western Club that had been requested by an anxious mother to decide upon a classical name for her infant daughter. Rising with a dignity that became the august assemblage and the important question at issue, the old colored gentleman thus spoke:

"Mr. Presidum, in de fust place, sah, dis club don't sot here at an expense ob nineteen shillins a week fur de purpose of namin chilrens. In de next place, sah, I, fur one, hev bin pained to obsarve a growin desire on de part ob cull'd folks to knock der chilren down wid silver-plated front names."

The Club adjourned, leaving the child nameless.

The question comes up—What do some other bodies "sot here fur?"

Wisdom did not expire with the author of Jack Bunsby.

Some of our exchanges are advocating a law compelling the publication in the newspapers of the amounts each taxpayer is assessed for, in order that all may see whether they have been assessed equitably with their neighbors, the publication to be made thirty days before the meeting of the commissioners of appeals. No honest man can find a word of fault with the enactment of such a law. There is undoubtedly a great deal of "shirking" in the matter of taxes, and too great a burden falls on the shoulders of those who do not know the game of hood-winking the assessor and reporting less property than they own. There ought to be a reform right here and right away. Let us all pay in just proportion to our means, and we will hear less complaining about high taxes. Taxes are higher than they ought to be, because a few have the bulk of them to pay.—Rahway Democrat.

February, which has come to us in such a cold humor, will be an odd month in several respects. It will have in the first place an odd number of days, owing to its leap year distinction. It will have an odd number of Sundays—five—which is very odd for the shortest month of the year—and one of the Sundays will be Washington's birthday. It began on Sunday and will end on Sunday, which is also odd. The five Sundays correspond in date with the five Sundays in the following August, which is odd again. It is said that no one now living will ever see another February so odd; nor will their children, nor their children's children—sufficient in itself to make the month interesting.

The New York Herald, with its usual enterprise, on Wednesday last published a detailed list of the counties and places in Ireland where destitution and famine exists, and heads a subscription list for the relief of the sufferers, with $100,000. All over this country relief is being furnished for the afflicted districts of Ireland, in the shape of donations in money and supplies. America always comes to the front on such occasions.

The "biggest joke of the season" is that now published in Republican journals that the Democrats will take up Grant for a Presidential candidate, if the Republicans do not. How, like the eel, we Reps. do squirm about the next Presidential candidate. When the people of this country, through the Democracy, nominate the next President, it will be some one else besides Grant or such ilk.

Hon. H. J. Jewitt, of Ohio, is suggested as a suitable candidate for the Presidency by the Zanesville (Ohio) Courier, a Republican journal. While we acknowledge the worth and ability of Mr. Jewitt to be the standard-bearer of the Democracy in the coming fight, we object to Republicans picking out candidates for the Democracy.

The Kennebec Journal has discovered that Samuel J. Tilden was the adviser of Gov. Garcelon and Council. It has also been ascertained that Mr. Tilden was the ringleader of the gang of roughs who pelted St. Stephen with stones, and it is claimed that he was mixed up in the Abel murder.—Bangor Commercial.

The New Jersey Republican State Committee have called a State Convention to elect delegates to the Chicago Presidential Convention. It will be held at Trenton, May 5th.

THE LEGISLATURE.

From our Trenton Correspondent.

TRENTON, FEB 4th, 1880.

In my last letter I stated that the matter of Williams and Brown was under discussion. At the Wednesday evening session the deed was accomplished; the Republican majority was increased by one vote. The report of the Election Committee was accepted and Mr. Brown, Democrat, was unseated under strict party votes. The rule of King Caucus was enforced, and on Thursday morning Mr. Williams was sworn in and took his seat. The facts were these: Upon the closing of the polls, after the count, Mr. Brown was declared elected and received his certificate. Some weeks afterwards a recount was made, when the count, as then made, elected Williams by 6 majority. It was shown that the ballot box was in the hands of a clerk of very doubtful character, he holding all three of the keys for 24 hours. It was claimed that he changed the ballots.—It was stated by one of the Essex members, on the floor of the House, that the ballot box was in the hands of thieves and rascals, in fact men "who would steal a basket of wet shavings." It was stated that the relative standing of the two men as to certain railroad corporations had much to do with it; but that ground seems untenable when Republican members entirely in sympathy with Mr. Brown, in this regard, voted to unseat him. The House is getting along finely this week and seems disposed to expedite business and make a short session. The Report of the Tax Commission is being prepared, and I am informed will report this week or early next week. I am disposed to think that their report will not have a very warm reception. It is said that they will recommend a Bill somewhat as follows: Tax all real estate without any deductions whatever from its value; all visible personal property, such as farming utensils, household furniture, stock of store goods, &c.; exempting mortgages, bonds, notes, book accounts, and property of that character. Is it not a clear violation of the principle upon which our tax laws are based, viz: for every person to be taxed for what he is worth, not what he happens to have in possession? The Commission is made up of men mostly from the five Counties, and the law prevailing there will undoubtedly be extended over the State in their report. Almost all Tax Bills, in the House, are held awaiting this report.

The Bill giving 5 cents per mile in addition to $2 per day to Freeholders is an important Bill, and is being amended and debated very thoroughly.

The following Bills have been introduced, which seem important: Senate—An act allowing notice of publication to be made in papers 4 weeks before introduction of Bill, instead of before meeting of Legislature (by Francis); by Mr. Hobart, for President, providing for local option, as to sale of liquor in cities counties; a cattle law for all townships in State.

ASSEMBLY BILLS.

No. 125, (by Vernon) fine of not less than $5 nor more than $50 for selling drinks on Sunday, the kind need not be specified in the indictment; also by the same, No. 136, only includes saloons, fine from $5 to $20, imprisonment until fine and costs are paid; No. 139, (by Patterson) sup. to Insurance Companies, allowing stockholders, instead of policy holders, to elect Directors; No. 142, provides that suits against Boards of Freeholders shall be filed with Clerk of Board or Director not less than 5 days and not more than 15 days before the term of Court at which said suit is to be tried; No. 144, provides that Township Treasurers shall keep an itemized debit account of disbursements; No. 150, provides for the settlement of estates by trustees in Orphans Court when cited to do so; No. 152, makes notice of publication in papers 5 consecutive times instead of four weeks; No. 165, gives justices of the peace jurisdiction in replevin cases, not exceeding $200.

The following Bills were passed since last week:

SENATE.

Sen. 38, provides that release of mortgage premises shall be recorded in County Clerks office, in books properly registered; Sen. 46, repeals act giving Council in cities right to license peddlers, hackmen, &c., being chapter 102, of laws of 1879; Sen. 85, giving Board of Freeholders power to pay to any person, acting as Clerk of Board of County Canvassers, any sum not exceeding $25; Ass. 23, sup. to justices of peace, appeal papers must be filed 3 days before court.

ASSEMBLY.

Sen. 40, salary of Judges of Supreme Court and Chancellor; No. 118, repealing part of act, Union and Middlesex Agricultural Society, passed, 35 to 0; No. 43, (by Vernon) punishment of bribery at election.

A Committee from Newark, the Mayor and others, by Cortlandt Parker, Esq., presented a petition for the removal of the Kearney Statue to Newark. A Bill was introduced to meet the case.

The Senate in executive session, on Monday evening, confirmed all the Law Judges, appointed by the Governor last Winter, McCarter, Cogswell, Walling, of Monmouth and Stewart, of Mercer, all Democrats. Also 4 Prosecutors of Pleas were confirmed on Tuesday, Forsyth for Morris; the others were in Southern Counties.

No nominations have been made for any of the Supreme Court Judges. It is supposed they will be Republicans.

EXTRA.

Senator Schenck, No. 73, Bill for building bridges, provides that all bridges costing less than $20 shall be built by the Overseers of the Highways, and all bridges costing less than $200 to be built at the expense of the township where located and paid for out of monies raised for roads at annual town meeting. It has been suggested to reduce the last named amount to $100.

LAW JUDGES.

Indications seem to be that Justice Woodhull and Depue will be re-appointed, and that ex-Senator Magie will be nominated in place of Dalrymple.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 4TH, 1880.

INTRODUCED.

No. 119, by Mr. Babe, providing for payment of fixed salaries for Prosecutors of Pleas of several counties, includes Morris and Hunterdon; No. 120, by Mr. Bodine, provides for payment of product fibres of this State, ramie, hemp, flax, &c.; No. 122, by Mr. Babe, repeals the law for re-printing the law and equity reports; by Mr. Rosenbury, an act for a law judge for Hunterdon County, salary of $1,500.

PASSED.

Sen. 36, provides that overseers of roads shall be elected by the district in which they are to serve; Sen. 17, sup. to justices peace act, allowing constables reasonable fees; H. 102, provides that township committees may enact necessary provisions for extinguishing fires.

Mr. Dunn introduced a Bill relative to publishing the laws, giving one each to Assembly District; the paper must be in the Assembly District; if none is published in the District, the Comptroller and Governor to name paper. It will make such a change in the previous law that it will not pass, in my opinion. Sen. No. 97, by Sen. Schenck, in reference to North Plainfield Committee, was reported. It reduces to three and provides for pay.

The Shearan and McDonald case was heard before the Committee on Elections last night. They reported in favor of Shearan, the occupant, and report accepted.

There has been a great many persons in Trenton this week, attending Court and looking after Bills.

The tramp question seems to agitate the people. Mr. Miller, of Middlesex, introduced a Bill, which provided that $1 be paid for the arrest. It was amended, making it fifty cents, and passed a second reading to-day.

The Senate adjourned until next Monday. No nominations have yet been sent in for the Justices of the Supreme Court. It is reported that ex-Gov. Bedle's name will be sent in, in place of Woodhull.

The Rise in Paper.

Within the past month the price of printing paper has advanced nearly 40 per cent. This is unfortunate to the printers, although it is generally stated by "knowing" patriarchs to their grandchildren that all editors are millionaires and have the easiest mode of eking out an existence of any other class of people. Nevertheless, the printer "knows how it is" when he comes to pay a paper bill. The manufacturers say the advance of price is in consequence of the scarcity of rags and old paper. Therefore, save your rags, etc., for which you can receive a good price and help along the wealthy (?) bondholder and aristocrat—the printer.

Gun-Maker of Moscow.

Large three-sheet posters announce the approaching entertainment to be given by the Thespian Club, of this city, in Laing's Hall, the evenings of Feb. 9th and 10th, when the celebrated piece "The Gun-Maker of Moscow" will be rendered. The proceeds arising from the sale of tickets will be devoted to the Library Fund of St. Mary's Church. There is fine dramatic talent among the members of the Thespian Club, and the above piece will be rendered with all the scenery necessary to it. Able artists will assist the home talent. We bespeak for the Thespians full houses and a good reception and encore.

STATE ITEMS.

Judge Dalrymple's term expires next Saturday.

There will be four candidates in the field for the mayoralty of Vineland this Spring.

The Delaware rolling mill at Phillipsburg is now in full operation. The machinery has been put in good order and the firm have a large number of orders for iron on hand.

It has been discovered that whisky is sold at Asbury Park in tin cans labelled "Choice tomatoes," and the dealers in this brand of tomatoes have been doing a lively business.

Misses Maggie and Lizzie Goltra, of Baskingridge, were nearly suffocated by coal gas one night recently. When retiring for the night they turned the damper in the stove so that the gas escaped into the room.

Daniel Maylon, who was shot the previous Saturday at Elizabethport by Casper Rhodes, died on Friday last.

Mr. George F. Giles, near Millstone, has traded his farm, widely known as the William Fulton homestead, for the house and blacksmith shop of Mr. Samuel Van Arsdale, of Dunellen.

The dwelling house of Samuel Luckey, at Dunellen, was burglariously broken open and entered on the night of Jan. 7 by one Joseph Hertrieter a German, and a number of articles, including six silver spoons, two coats, three table cloths, clock, gold chain, shawl, two umbrellas and various other articles, of the aggregate value of $75. The accused was arrested by Constable Pierce, and committed to jail on Sundy, Feb. 1st, by Justice Nathan Vare, to await the action of Court.

On Tuesday night, during the rain storm that prevailed, burglars broke into the post office building at Morristown through the wall from the rear stairway, and forcing open the iron safe took therefrom about $10 in cash and $210 worth of postage stamps.

The Boonton post office war is settled by the re-appointment of Postmaster E. B. Dawson.

The President has sent in the nomination of John L. Stratton, of Mount Holly, for Supervisor of the Census for the Third district of New Jersey.

A $25,000 telescope has been secured by the college of New Jersey for the Halstead Observatory at Princeton. Last year $15,000 worth of books were added to the college library.

Bishop Corrigan, of this State, has authorised the priests of his diocese to receive contributions in behalf of the suffering poor of that unfortunate country which will be forwarded to the Bishop of Ireland, who will dispose of it in a proper manner for the relievance of the needy under their charge.

Last week the price of nails advanced from $4.25 to $5 per 100 pounds. Less than a year ago the same classes of nails were quoted at $2 per 100 pounds sold for $1.90.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Three shad were caught in Delaware bay on Saturday, showing that fish, as well as men and birds, have been deceived by the unseasonable weather.

The estimated cost of the proposed race course at Atlantic City is $8,000. It is to be built on the meadows. The grounds there are high, and it is thought by keeping the grass closely mown for several acres around the course there will be little trouble from flies.

On the road between New Milford and Vernon, in Sussex county, there are two adjoining farms, the owners of which are not on very friendly terms. One has an immense sign posted by the way, which says: "No hunting or fishing allowed on this property." His neighbor, somewhat of a wag, also sports his large sign-board, which proclaims: "Hunting and fishing allowed on this property. Woodchucks and suckers a specialty." And yet they are not happy.

A company has been organized to secure a plot of 250 acres in the township of East Brunswick for a hare preserve. It is proposed to fence in this tract and import a number of hares from England to stock it. The stock of the company is divided into one hundred shares of $100 per share, payable in monthly installments of $10.

Owing to the warm weather the ice became too soft for sale fishing on Lake Hopatcong, Morris County, by Saturday last, but for two weeks previous to that time the sport was magnificent. Morris Decker, an old veteran, had met with such success that on Saturday he had 1,700 pounds—or over half a ton—of pickerel on hand for sale. In one day alone he caught more than two hundred, and one of his capital boys captured ninety-five.

From the tenor of an item in this week's Central Times, it would seem that our contemporary is afraid of Mr. Tilden's election should he be nominated for the Presidency. He will not be nominated.

Five Hundred Thousand Strong.

In the past few months there has been more than 500,000 bottles of SHILOH'S CURE SOLD. Out of the vast number of people who have used it, more than 2,000 cases of CONSUMPTION have been cured. All Coughs, Croup, Asthma, and Bronchitis, yield at once, hence it is that every body speaks in its praise. To those who have not used it, let us say, if you have a Cough, or your child the Croup, and you value life don't fail to try it. For Lame Back, Side or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by your Druggists, W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

A Strange People.

Do you know that there are strange people in our community, we say strange because they seem to prefer to suffer and pass their days miserably, made so by Dyspepsia, and Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Constipation, and General Debility, when SHILOH'S VITALIZER is guaranteed to cure them. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

We have a speedy and positive Cure, for Catarrh, Diptheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache, in SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A nasal Injector free with each bottle. Use it if you desire health, and sweet breath. Price 50 cts. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds. ja8eow6m

We Can't Talk

Without showing the condition of our teeth. Every laugh exposes them. In order not to be ashamed of them let us use that standard dentifrice, SOZODONT, which is sure to keep them white and spotless. No tartar can encrust them, no canker affect the enamel, no species of decay infest the dental bone, if SOZODONT is regularly used. It is a botanical preparation, and its beneficial effects on the teeth and gums are marvelous, as it removes all discolorations, and renders the gums hard and rosy.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Simmons' LIVER DISEASE and Indigestion prevail to a greater extent than probably any other malady, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Indigestion or want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered for these ailments. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for forty years, and hundreds from all parts of the country will vouch for its virtues, viz: Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia; John Gill Shorter, of Alabama; Gen. John B. Gordon, R. L. Mott, of Columbus, LIVER Ga.; Bishop Pierce, of Georgia, are among the hundreds to whom we can refer. Extract of a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1872: "I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active medicines."

REGULATOR It is not the quantity eaten that gives strength, life, blood and health. It is the thorough digestion of the food taken let it be much or little. Therefore, do not stimulate the stomach to crave food, but rather assist digestion after eating by taking

NATHAN HARPER,
Feb. 4th, 1880. Mayor.

OFFICER Happenny is now his title.

WHERE is that astute weather prophet who said there would be no cold weather, snows, etc.

THE month of February promises to be Wintry enough if the first three days is any indication of what is to come.

THE cold snap permits many young men who bought ulsters early in the season to come out in full pod.

THE Grand Jury of Union County has been in session over four weeks. The present week is the fifth.

A SEALSKIN sacque is very good in a house where the girls are all of nearly one size.

IT is now predicted that the most severe weather of the present winter may be expected about February the 9th.

THE suit of Andrew Onderdonk against the city of Plainfield for services, was argued in the Union County Courts on Friday last, and decision reserved.

OFFICER Eaton has "retired" from his arduous duties, and now devotes his time to the fish business. Himself and partner "Ebb," may be found on Madison avenue.

CANDIDATES for the various offices to be filled at the spring election are beginning to shake hands with everybody without regard to race, color, religion, or previous condition of servitude.

THE next occasion of interest to love-sick swains, is St. Valentine's Day, which comes on the 14th of this month. Of course we shall be disappointed if we fail to receive our annual billet doux.

THIS is the way the item is now travelling about the State through the press:

"Mrs. Magson, of Plainfield, who sued that city for $1,000 for services rendered, has declined to compromise for $500."

THE Lecture by Rev. Robert Collyer, announced for Thursday evening of this week, in connection with the Y. M. C. A. Course, was postponed much to the disappointment of many in consequence of the severe illness of Mrs. Collyer, a telegram to that effect being received by the Committee late Wednesday.

WE don't know whether the ice man is happy or not. If the present cold snap holds out he will get ice. Perhaps he don't want to gather the commodity, preferring to buy it up North. The consumer, however, would much prefer him to gather it at home, on account of the price to be paid for the same next summer.

THE Rev. Mr. Lewis, who is supplying the pulpit of the Seventh Day Baptist church, is Vice President of the New York State Temperance Association, and goes to fill an engagement made some time since, to address a temperance mass meeting at Corning, N. Y., on Monday next. In consequence of the above engagement, there will be no service in the Seventh Day Baptist church on Sunday evening next.

IN consequence of increasing business, Messrs. Schepflin, Baldwin, Tweedy & Co., manufacturers of Clothing, have found it necessary to take possession of rooms in their block of stores now occupied by Green & Co., furniture dealers. The latter named firm will shortly remove to the building formerly occupied by O. Runyon, on Front street, now owned by D. Boehm, using the three floors of the building.

"ON Samuel Brower's farm near Plainfield, N. J., an iron pot was unearthed by a young man ploughing, and found to be full of coin. The disappointment was great when it was discovered, after cleaning the pieces, that they were three hundred large pennies of the issue of 1796."

The above startling item, originating from a sensational pen, is now travelling the rounds of newspapers in this and other States. The whole subject matter is a canard. Mr. Brower disclaims all knowledge of any such occurrence happening on his place.

"We have just learned of the marriage of Miss Kittie E. Campbell, daughter of Mr. Ellis A. Campbell of Plainfield, and grand-daughter of Mr. Wm. E. Fisk, of this place, to Mr. S. P. T. Wilbur, of Scotch Plains; which took place in New York on Saturday, Rev. J. P. Newman, D. D., of the Central M. E. Church, performing the ceremony. The bride has many warm friends in our town who will doubtless join us in hearty good wishes for her wedded happiness."

We clip the above from the Woodbridge Hour. If it is not too late, we also extend our congratulations to the happy couple.

REV. DR. VINCENT, on Friday last, in the name of the "Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle," leased the entire second floor of Vanderbeek's new building corner of Park and North avenues, for a term of years. The headquarters of the "Circle" will hereafter be in that locality. The entire room in the handsome building is now leased. H. P. Reynolds takes the corner store as a Pharmacy, A. Vanderbeek, adjoining, on Park avenue, as a music store, and THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office will be located on North avenue, next to Flagg's building, with the composing room on the third floor.

YESTERDAY (Thursday) the large Dry Goods Store of Edsall & Price, on Front Street, was thronged with lady customers, who not only came to view the beautiful and rare piece of Hamburg Edging, worth $100 a yard, which the firm had on exhibition for a few days, but also to purchase goods. The unanimous verdict was that it was the prettiest, handsomest, most exquisite, darlingest piece of edging ever before seen by the visitors. Numbers desired to leave their orders for several yards of it but concluded to consult their husband and his pocket-book first. Other rare pieces of goods may be seen for a few days longer at the store of the above firm.

THE entertainment for the benefit of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, which took place at the residence of Mr. R. C. Disgee, Evona, Thursday evening, Jan. 22d, was, despite the inclement state of the weather, a success, so much so that a request was made to the managers to repeat the same on Tuesday evening, 3rd inst., at which time it took place in the stone building, near depot, and was an immense success. In reporting the affair we did not expect to individualize, and we will not, further than to say that Mr. Disgee's representation of "Old Black Joe," brought tears into the eyes of many of the audience, and at the close of the entertainment he was particularly requested to give the same at a church entertainment in this city. The nett proceeds foot up about $75. Mrs. Belle Pagels-Collier and Mr. L. H. Moore, of this city, were prominent among the artists present. The Society desires us, through our columns, to return thanks to Mr. Peter Hoagland for the free use of his truck and horses in the removal of the Piano used on the above occasion.

THE sleighing is not good out of town. Too much drifting.

THE wise ones who predicted we were to have no winter, have crawled into their holes since Monday last.

A HANDSOME new dwelling house is to be erected on Seventh street, near Plainfield avenue, by Wm. Sanford and Brother and Jeremiah Manning.

TICKETS for the ball of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society, which occurs at Laing's Hall, the night of March 17th, St. Patrick's Day, are selling rapidly.

THE pastor of the M. E. Church will preach next Sunday morning and evening on "The Future Life." These series of sermons to be continued for several Sundays.

NOW prepare for accounts of how the peach crop for next Summer has been damaged by the prevailing cold snap coming on just when the trees were budding.

IN the Elizabeth Courts, on Tuesday last, Thomas Roan, Jr., of this city, accused of "lifting" a watch from his aunty, plead guilty, and was remanded for sentence.

THE tramp struck by an oil train near the depot, one day last week, recovered sufficiently from his injuries as to leave the Station House, where he was conveyed, for New York city, on Monday last.

THE first three-sheet poster ever printed in Plainfield was executed at THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office this week for the "Thespian Club" entertainment at Laing's Hall, next Monday and Tuesday evenings.

WILLIAM JORDAN, Jr., alias "Booty" again languishes in the Union County Jail, City Judge Runyon having tendered him a free passage thither on Thursday of last week for unseemly and unlawful conduct, viz: assault and battery.

PROF. Barnham has met with the success due him and the efforts of the P. A. C. in establishing a first-class Gymnasium in this city. Last Saturday he organized his first class of pupils. We are glad to record that the institution is a success.

FOR the benefit of those who may live to see Feb. 2, 1881, we would remind them that the winter of 1880 commenced Feb. 2d of that year, with a regular old-fashioned, drifting snow storm, which has made good sleighing in some parts of the State.

NONE of our citizens should fail to visit the Glass Blowers, who give two exhibitions at Laings Hall, next Saturday, Feb. 7th, as it is an entertainment calculated to please all. In addition to their glass blowing and the beautiful glass steam engine, Cinderella, which will be in operation, they intend giving a present of their work to every visitor, both at matinee and evening performances. Also an extra, special present to the handsomest child at the matinee. Admission, matinee, 15 cents; evening, 25 cents.

Singin' Skewl.

This delightful, humorous entertainment of the Old Folks order, will be given with all its fun and quaintness on Monday next, at Vandeventer's Hall, for the first time in Plainfield, when an evening of rare enjoyment and innocent fun may be expected.

He is Coming!

Peter S. Bergen, the "Silver-Tongued Orator of Somerset County," writes us a postal saying he proposes to visit Plainfield shortly, when he desires to have a "Re-union" with his many friends in a public gathering, at which he will deliver one of his humorous lectures, if our citizens will assure him remuneration in the way of purchasing tickets.

Democratic.

The Executive Committee of the Democratic Association of Plainfield, held another meeting at Laing's Hall, last Tuesday evening, and adjourned for one week to meet at the same place, at 8 o'clock, to perfect further arrangements toward re-organization. The entire Executive Committee are requested to attend the meeting without fail. The business is important.

The Y. M. C. A. Monthly Reception.

The first of the regular monthly receptions of the Y. M. C. A. took place in Vandeventer Hall last Thursday evening and was largely attended. Mr. A. G. Waring, of Brooklyn, assisted by Mr. O. S. Teale, of North Plainfield, gave a fine exhibition of sleight-of-hand performance, calling forth applause from the audience. Both gentlemen are clever at their deceptive magical tricks. The wonderful (to some) "box trick," was admirably performed. Altogether, the entertainment was highly pleasing and edifying.

The Delilier Society

Of the Plainfield High School, announces a series of lectures to be given under the auspices of the Association, the present month and that following, which, no doubt will prove instructive and interesting. Dr. J. H. Vincent will deliver the first lecture of the course Feb. 19. His subject will be, "Chapters of Travel." The Dr's many friends will undoubtedly listen with pleasure to him on the occasion. Dr. Fowler, of New York, will lecture on "The Bible as a Prophet of Science," March 9th. Dr. Buckley of Brooklyn, will draw "A Comparison between the National Scenery of Europe and America," the evening of some date to be yet fixed, in March, and March 30th Dr. Warren, of Philadelphia, will lecture upon "Man's Poetical Flights to the Highest." Tickets for the course may be obtained at Reynolds' Pharmacy, for $1.50, or 50 cents will purchase a single admission ticket. This course of lectures will, undoubtedly, as they should, be liberally supported by our citizens.

State Underwriters' Association.

The newly organized State Underwriters' Association has elected the following officers and Executive Committee: President, J. M. Randall, of the Peoples', Newark; Vice President, C. M. Sloan, of Mount Holly; Secretary, A. L. Worthington, of Trenton; Treasurer, A. M. Way, of New Brunswick; Executive Committee, C. V. C. Murphy, of Trenton; S. A. McGregor, A. G. Ogilby, R. R. Miller, A. G. Fisine and J. I. Reid; also the President, Vice President and Secretary. The object of the organization is to protect regularly licensed companies and their agents within the State from the "runners" or "curbstone" agents who, without any office and without the requisite authorization from the State authorities, "cut in" and take risks for "foreign" companies, thereby defrauding the State revenue, the Firemen's Fund, the regularly authorized companies and their agents.

Last Tuesday's Concert.

The fourth of the series of Music Recitals, given by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Feininger, at the Congregational church last Tuesday evening, was well attended, and of course, was a grand success. The assistants, on the occasion, Miss Sadie Sanford, soprano, Miss Carrie Dewey and Esther L. Gavett, pianists, and Miss Fanny Ketcham, accompanist, all performed their several parts to the satisfaction of their hearers and with credit to themselves. Of Mr. and Mrs. Feininger, it is but necessary to state that their performances were up to their usual high standard. Miss Sanford and Mrs. Feininger sang a duett that called forth applause, and Miss S. was the recipient of a beautiful basket of flowers from an admiring listener. The efforts of the other participants were also encored. The next recital occurs Tuesday, Feb. 17th.

Personals.

Col. E. P. Hill, of N. Y. City, was a guest of his friend, John H. Cathbert, Esq., at the latter's residence in this city, on Sunday last. The Col. is a veteran of the late "unpleasantness," and passed through many a battle unscathed. The only objection we have to him is his politics. He will adhere to the Republican party, like his friend Cuthbert. We trust, however, they may both see the error of their ways ere long and "get over on the right side."

Mr. Fred. Dunn, for several years past a valued and trusted clerk in Mr. P. M. Demarest's grocery store, on Front street, has accepted a position in Keiser & Brown's notion store, Philadelphia, taking the place of Mr. Aream Vail, also of this city, who becomes a member of the firm. Mr. Dunn has the best wishes of a host of friends for his future welfare and success in his new situation.

It was our pleasure to receive a call from Senator Canfield, of Morris County, on Monday last. "Gus" is one of the most popular representatives sitting in the Senate Chamber of our State.

Fees of County Officials.

In response to a resolution of the Senate, of the 18th of January, requesting the State Comptroller, to procure from the County Clerks and Collectors the statements filed with them by the County Clerks, Registers, Sheriffs and Surrogates, and to transmit them, to the Senate, General Stockton, last Monday evening, reported the result of his inquiry, accompanied by the reports of the officials as far as received by him.

An examination of the several statements gives the following information:

Atlantic—(The report being for three-quarters of the year), Clerk, $2,005.84; Sheriff, $862.45; Surrogate, $969.

Bergen—(Three quarters), Clerk, $3,024.59; Sheriff, $4,692.08; Surrogate, $2,119.27.

Burlington—(Three quarters), Clerk, $2,252.00; Sheriff, $4,559.80; Surrogate, $5,389.22.

Camden—The Clerk receives an annual salary of $4,000; the Surrogate reports for three quarters, $1,439.85. The Register and Sheriff declined to make any returns, because the law requiring them to do so was passed during their term of office, and would diminish their fees.

Cape May—(Three quarters), Clerk, $1,229.30; Sheriff, $940.71; Surrogate, $456.34.

Cumberland—(Three quarters), Clerk, $1,776.63; Sheriff, $2,908.39; Surrogate, $1,990.

Essex—The return from this county is a statement by the County Clerk of what he claims has been reported to him, but does not state whether the originals were sworn to or not. They are as follows: Clerk (three quarters), $10,550.08; Register (three quarters), $5,426.84; Surrogate (three quarters), $5,015.39. The Sheriff reports only for two quarters (and they appear to have been made at the same time subsequent to October 1), $15,965.99.

Gloucester—The Clerk and Sheriff make no returns. The Surrogate reports for three quarters, $946.92.

Hudson—(Three quarters), Clerk, $5,770.34; Register, $7,639.80; Sheriff, $24,844.04; Surrogate, $8,328.87.

Hunterdon—Clerk (three quarters), $2,978.25; Surrogate (one quarter), $1,351.32. The Sheriff makes no return.

Mercer—The Clerk makes a report for but one quarter, $1,076.11, and protests against making any returns; the Sheriff, on the 30th of January reports two quarters, at $2,190.60; the Surrogate reports one quarter, $241.19.

Middlesex—(Three quarters), Clerk, $6,470.81; Sheriff, $11,261.64; Surrogate, $2,624.12.

Monmouth—(Three quarters), Clerk, $5,236.69; Sheriff, $7,089.62; Surrogate, $2,286.76.

Morris—(Three quarters), $2,345.61; Sheriff, $2,544.87; Surrogate, $2,503.33.

Ocean—(Three quarters), Clerk, $1,896.08; Sheriff, $1,855.60; Surrogate, $434.60.

Passaic—(Three quarters), Clerk, $5,934.10; Sheriff, $7,287.01; Surrogate, $2,854.64.

Salem—(Three quarters), Clerk, $1,642.15; Sheriff, $1,492.78; Surrogate, $1,462.49.

Somerset—(Three quarters), Clerk, $2,325.16; Sheriff, $3,809.06; Surrogate, $2,589.79.

Sussex—(Three quarters), Clerk, $1,331.39; Sheriff, $1,877.45; Surrogate, $1,439.13.

Union—(Three quarters), Clerk, $3,977.85; Sheriff, $7,667.00; Surrogate, $2,275.14.

Warren—(Three quarters), Clerk, $1,881.13; Sheriff, $3,582.21; Surrogate, $1,050.63.

FIRE MATTERS.

A new fire company, to be known as "Independence Hook & Ladder Co., No. 2," has been organized at Asbury Park.

Saturday evening last, about nine o'clock, a bright light in the direction of Terrill road, caused an alarm of fire. All the fire companies turned out. The alarm was caused by the burning of grass and underbrush back of Netherwood Hotel.

A movement is on foot among the firemen of this city to change the mode of electing a Chief and Assistant Engineers. It is suggested that a petition be presented the Board of Commissioners, asking them to change the places of holding said election from the engine houses to a public hall, where only one ballot box will be used. Committees from the various fire companies have been appointed to consult together on the matter. It is not likely, however, that a majority will be in favor of the movement.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

The sociable given by the "Young Ladies' Society" on Wednesday evening last, at the residence of Mr. John Flannery, was largely attended. The admission was small, being only 15 cents, for which the audience was repaid by a short but finely arranged programme. The programme, consisting of music, readings, recitations, and a farce, was exceedingly well executed, and, when all performed their part so well, it would be difficult to personate. But this was not all; for after the fair young damsels had finished this part of the evening's entertainment, they presented to the audience something more suited to the wants of the inner man, viz: an inexhaustible amount of the very finest of cake and lemonade, to which the friends of the Society did ample justice. After the members of the Society had thus catered to the wants of mind and body, some of the members of the "Fanwood Minstrel Troupe" present, at the request of the young ladies, rendered a number of their pleasing melodies, which were received with loud applause. When the evening was thus far spent, the company dispersed, feeling greatly pleased with this, the second successful sociable of the season. The young ladies are giving a series of these sociables, the proceeds to benefit equally the three Sunday Schools of the village. This is a worthy object, and as it is of interest to every one, they should have the support and patronage of all. The next sociable will be given at the residence of Mr. Roland C. Treadwell, in about a month. It is also rumored that the "Fanwood Minstrel Troupe" will join the young ladies and give a grand entertainment at the close of the season. We wish them success.

Report of the Public School for the month ending Jan. 28th: Grammar Department—Number whose standings are above 90, 35; average attendance, 28; percentage of attendance, 81; number not absent during month, 22. Intermediate Department—Number whose standings are above 90, 19; average attendance, 49; percentage of attendance, 89; number not absent during month, 18. Primary Department—Average attendance, 47; percentage of attendance, 90; number not absent during month, 13.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY EV'G, Feb. 2, '80.

Council met in regular meeting.

Present—Coriell, Dunlap, Finch, Flanders, Lithgow, Potts, Rushmore, Redfield, Ryder, Whiton. Absent—Darling.

Pres. Potts in the chair.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Mr. Rushmore presented petition of Werner Heidloffe for a license to keep an inn and tavern, and to sell spirituous and fermented liquors therein, in the building owned and occupied by him, situate on Somerset St. Also, petition of August Smith for a saloon license, in the building occupied by him; situate on Front St. On motion, ref'd to License Com.

Mr. Coriell presented petition of John H. Tier asking Council to grant him permission to extend wooden awning in front of store lately occupied by George Lewis on Park Ave., to the curbstone. Ref'd to Fire, Water & Lamp Com.

By the same—Petition from W. H. Egbert and others for the laying of cross-walks at 3d and 4th Sts., on Central Ave. Ref'd to Com. on Sts.

Mr. Lithgow presented petition of Chas. Zimmer for a saloon license in the building occupied by him, situate on Front St. Ref'd to License Com.

By the same—Petition of Evan Jones for the locating of two lamps on Putnam Ave., between Kensington and La Grande Aves. Ref'd to Fire, Water & Lamp Com.

Mr. Dunlap presented petition of Geo. W. Foster for a Hack License. Ref'd to License Com.

Mr. Whiton presented claim of A. H. Betchaff, damages, &c., in the widening of 4th St. Ref'd to Law & Ord. Com.

Mr. Rushmore presented the following police claims for regular and special duty for month of January: Geo. W. Grant, $5; Chas. W. Dodd, $41.67; Edward Verity, $3; Geo. Eaton, $41.67; Richard Happenny, $22.10; Michael Conway, $2.75; Geo. W. Moore, $42.67. Ref'd to Police Com.

Mr. Coriell presented claims as follows: Henry Garr, $4; Westfield Township, support of one Jas. Vermeule, a Plainfield pauper, $15.85. Ref'd to Alms Com.

Mr. Lithgow presented claims of Plainfield Gaslight Co., gas, &c., $232.80; N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gaslight Co., $117.19. Ref'd to Fire, Water & Lamp Com.

By the same—Claim of H. H. Lowrie, salary as City Physician, $62.50. Ref'd to Alms Com.

By the same—Claims of J. Oakley Nodyne, salary as City Clerk, &c., $43.66. Ref'd to Salary Com.

Mr. Coriell presented claim of Geo. M. Angleman, salary as St. Com'r, $50. Ref'd to Salary Com.

By the same—Claim of St. Com'r Geo. M. Angleman, work done on Streets, $94. Ref'd to St. Com.

The Pres. presented the following com'ns from His Honor Mayor Harper:

To the Hon. the Common Council:

GENTLEMEN:—I hereby nominate for Regular Policeman, to be assigned the particular duty of collecting delinquent taxes, if it be your pleasure to confirm such service, George W. Moore.

NATHAN HARPER, Mayor.
Plainfield, Feb. 2d, 1880.

To the Hon. the Common Council:

GENTLEMEN—I respectfully submit the following nominations:

Corporation Counsel—George P. Suydam.
Street Commissioner—George M. Angleman.
City Physician—H. H. Lowrie, M. D.
Overseer of the Poor—Theodore J. Gillies.
Regular Policemen—Charles W. Dodd, Isaac L. Tingley, Richard Happenny.
Special Policemen—Michael Conway, Stevenson R. Hope, William B. Randolph, Edmund Verity, George Smith, Albert F. Randolph, George Henry, Robert Randolph, Thomas Burns, Thomas Callahan, John Powers, Hugh McDonnell, James Daly, Henry Garos, William Sutton.

NATHAN HARPER, Mayor.
Plainfield, Feb. 2d, 1880.

Mr. Lithgow moved that we now proceed to ballot for the police nominations of the Mayor. So agreed to.

The Pres. appointed as tellers, Messrs. Finch and Rushmore.

Mr. Redfield moved that all the names be voted for on one ballot.

Mr. Whiton moved as an amendment that the roll be called on each name. Agreed to.

The name of Geo. W. Moore being the first to be acted upon, and Mr. Coriell's name being called, he arose and stated that it was putting the city to a considerable expense in the way of special police duty in place of one of the regular policemen, now sick, and thought that Moore should act whenever a vacancy occurred, etc.

Mr. Whiton wished to enquire if it was within the province of the Police Com. to put Moore on such duty if they so wished?

The Pres. was of the opinion that it was.

Mr. Finch thought that Mr. Moore's duty was the collection of back taxes, and moved that this nomination lie over until next meeting of Council for consideration. So agreed to.

The remainder of the regular and special police were confirmed by the following vote: Coriell, Dunlap, Finch, Flanders, Lithgow, Potts, Redfield, Rushmore, Ryder, Whiton—10.

Mr. Lithgow moved that the nominations for Corporation Counsel, Street Com'r, City Physician and Overseer of Poor, lie over until next meeting of Council. Carried.

Mr. Rushmore presented the following from City Judge Runyon:

To the Common Council of the City of Plainfield.

GENTLEMEN:—I have the honor to submit to you a report of the proceedings had before me during the month of January, 1880.

There have been 31 applicants for relief whose examinations I have taken, as prescribed by the Ordinance to provide for the relief of the Poor, and to whom I have ordered relief to be granted, subject to the approval of the Alms Committee.

Several other applicants were made to me for relief, but after examinations, I was led to believe that these applicants were not proper subjects for relief, and so withheld the order in their cases.

Jan. 13. James Field was arrested for a violation of § 1 and 2 of an ordinance relating to the morals, peace and good order of the City, on complaint of Chas. Zimmer. He demanded a trial by jury, but before the case came to trial, the complaint was withdrawn, and in payment of costs by defendant, he was discharged.

Jan. 14. Chas. W. Munroe and Bridget, his wife, were arrested by officer Verity on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. It being their first offence before me, on their promise to leave the city, they were discharged.

On same day, on complaint of the Overseer of the Poor, Maggie Fillmore was arrested on charge of being a common vagrant. On an examination into the facts of the case, I adjudged her to be a vagrant and disorderly person, within the meaning of the statute, and sentenced her to the County Jail for 30 days.

Jan. 19. Franklin Gaskill was arrested by officer Conway, on charge of being drunk. He has a wife and family depending upon him for support. He seemed to realize the disgrace he had brought upon himself, and promised to quit drinking. He was severely reprimanded and discharged.

Jan. 30. William Jordan, Jr., was arrested by officer Conway on complaint of Patrick Day, for assault and battery. In default of bail I committed him to the County Jail to await the action of the grand jury.

Respectfully submitted,
NELSON RUNYON,
City Judge.

Plainfield, Feb. 2d, 1880.

Received and ordered filed.

Mr. Redfield, from Alms Com., reported as correct the following claims: David Hand, $77.01; City of Elizabeth, $7; J. V. Searing, $57.30; Chas. Hyde, $12; Henry Garr, $4; Township of Westfield, $44.75; Mrs. Bertha Green, $28; Wm. R. Ayers, $8; Alex. M. Runyon, $16; T. J. Gillies, $51; L. A. Rhoads, $37.65; J. [illegible], $34.50.

Mr. Rushmore moved the reference of the above claims to the Aud. Com.

Mr. Lithgow was in doubt as to the Westfield Township claim. He did not see why Plainfield could not take care of her own poor, etc.

Mr. Redfield replied that he was informed that they could be kept at less expense at Westfield, etc. On motion, the Westfield claim, and that of the city of Elizabeth, were ref'd to the Law & Ord. Com., Mr. Ryder voting in the negative.

The balance of the claims from the Alms Com. were then referred to the Aud. Com.

The following statement of Mr. Whiton, as to the city's finances, was presented:

JOHN M. WHITON,
Com'n Finance Com. Common Council.

Rec'd and ordered filed.

By the same—the following:

Resolved, That the City Collector be and he hereby is required to return forthwith to the City Judge, a list of all delinquent taxpayers in this city;

Resolved, That the City Judge be and he hereby is required to issue forthwith to George W. Moore, one of the policemen of this city, who is hereby designated as the officer to receive and execute the same, his warrant for the collection of all such taxes in arrears.

Mr. Coriell thought that nobody but a Constable could perform this duty.

The matter being explained by Mr. Whiton reading a portion of the charter upon this question, the res. was adopted.

Mr. Whiton, from Finance Com., reported the two claims of H. H. Lowrie, amounting to $36.10, making out vital statistics, as correct. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Rushmore, from License Com., presented the following:

To the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

The petition signed by 379 ladies of Plainfield, requesting that no licenses be granted to sell intoxicating drinks, and asking you to devise and execute wise and vigorous measures to check the growth of intemperance in our community, was referred to your Committee on Licenses. They beg leave to report the following:

We fully appreciate and honor the motives which prompted the appeal, well knowing the crime, misery and death, the habit of drinking intoxicating liquors has caused in the world.

Appetite, whether inherited or acquired, is the most difficult thing every individual has to control; and to regulate a man's personal habits by law is more difficult still. Prohibitory laws have been passed in many parts of the country; where they have been strongly sustained by public sentiment, such laws have generally been obeyed; where these conditions do not exist, experiment has proved a failure.

A majority of the Council of 1879 were temperance men; they appealed to the citizens for sufficient money to pay necessary expenses, and they would grant no licenses. You know the result; the temperance voters of Plainfield are in the minority. The Council of 1874 granted no licenses, but the laws were not enforced. The following year, men were elected, not because of their fitness for the place, but because they favored granting licenses.

We deem it best to take a practical view of the question. Up to September 15th, 1874, there was no record kept by the City Judges, or any other City official of the number of arrests for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. From September 15th to December 31st, 1874, there were arrested for Drunk.	Disorderly Conduct.

During	1874	39	26
"	1875	62	52
"	1876	63	37
"	1877	58	102
"	1878	39	71
"	1879	53	36

In 1874 no licenses were granted. In three and a half months there were as many arrests for drunkenness and disorderly conduct as in six months during the years licenses were granted; which shows it can be regulated by law, but not suppressed. In regard to checking the growth of intemperance in our city, we know of no better way than for every one to use their personal influence in creating a strong public sentiment for temperance. Take the children, the young and rising generation, if they can be secured for evil habits are formed, it will only be a question of time, when the ladies of our city will have no occasion to send in petitions on the license question.

Persistent, patient, conscientious work, not in alone trying to coerce men to reform, but in the love of our Saviour, who came not to condemn the world, but that the world through him might be saved. In like manner, through the temperance people of our community, were they willing to work and exert their influence in this matter, would soon be able to create and keep alive a strong public sentiment in favor of temperance; not a spasmodic one, as in the past.

When the voters are prepared for the issue, and are willing to be taxed for the amount we raised by licenses, then, and not until then, will we (in our opinion) be in a position to right this great moral wrong.

We would recommend that a limited number of licenses be granted this year.

[Signed]
ISAAC W. RUSHMORE,
W. LITHGOW,
Com. on Licenses.

Rec'd and ordered filed.

Mr. Finch, from Police Com., reported correct the Police claims presented this evening. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Coriell, from Com. on Sts., reported correct claim of Geo. M. Angleman, $94, work done on streets. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

The Aud. Com. not being ready to report, Council proceeded to other business.

Mr. Whiton suggested that the rules be changed so that the Committees could report alphabetically.

The Pres. stated that this could not be done, as a Com. had already been appointed to revise Rules of Order.

Mr. Whiton introduced an Ord. relative to the raising of $16,000 for general purposes, and $3,500 for support of poor. Read 2d time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to a 3d reading.

Mr. Flanders presented an Ord. to amend the liquor ord., making all licenses expire on the 1st of Feb.

Mr. Coriell moved that the Ord. have its 2d reading.

Mr. Whiton wished to be "informed" if the amendment conflicted in any way with the laws of the State, etc. Counsel Suydam being present, said that it did not, and conformed with the city ords.

Mr. Coriell withdrew his motion for a 2d reading, and on motion of Mr. Lithgow, (who wished to be sure in the matter) it was referred to Law & Ord. Com.

Mr. Lithgow moved that all communications, etc., (including opinion of Corp. Counsel) relative to the gravel pits, be referred to the Law & Ord. Com. for a report thereon, as to the proper course to be taken in the premises. Carried.

Mr. Lithgow presented the following:

Resolved, That, until otherwise ordered, whenever any city notices, ordinances or advertising of any sort, are required to be printed in two papers of the city, one of said papers shall be the daily Bulletin.

Upon this res. being seconded, Mr. Whiton arose and stated that he had no objections in having notices, etc., advertised in above paper, but thought that it had to run a certain length of time (2 years) to be legal. He would move, as an amendment, its reference to the Law & Ord. Com. So referred.

Mr. Rushmore called from the table the application of Jas. Conneely for a saloon license, and moved that it be granted. Lost, the vote being as follows: Ayes—Finch, Lithgow, Potts, Rushmore, Whiton—5. Nays—Coriell, Dunlap, Flanders, Redfield, Ryder—5.

Mr. Lithgow, at this juncture, arose and said that in the matter of licenses, we should understand just what we are doing. At the end of the year we will find ourselves short about $4,000. It is necessary that licenses should be granted; the majority of the people of this city are in favor of license; there can be no prohibitory measures; we have asked the city again and again for an extra $5,000, and they each time have said—"No money!" If the right was had to tax the citizens of Plainfield, then we could use and exercise our private opinions. There are none more opposed to the selling of liquor than myself; I am acting in the capacity of a Councilman, not as a private citizen. Unless limited licenses are granted, the lights of the city will have to be done away with, and our streets will go uncared for.

Mr. Flanders, in reply to Mr. Lithgow, said that he was no speech-maker, but if he was, it would be one altogether in a different strain than that just listened to. He had given the matter his prayerful attention for a number of years, and he would rather the city would have no lights, &c., than to grant licenses to have the same done.

In reply to Mr. Flanders, Mr. Lithgow said that a majority of the people of Plainfield were in favor of having the lamps lighted and the streets kept in good condition. He thought his friend should not dictate to the majority. He said that when the members of Council were all present, a majority of them were in favor of limited license.

Mr. Flanders replied that his opinion was just the same in public as in private, and that was—"no license."

Mr. Coriell arose and said that the Council and the people of Plainfield knew how he stood in the matter of license. He could not conscientiously vote for licenses; he thought that a saloon license was worse than that of a hotel; that the young were drawn in and more easily led astray, etc.

Mr. Ryder thought that Mr. Lithgow assumed too much. He asked if the discussion was not on Conneely's license?

The Pres., for Mr. Ryder's information, stated that the discussion was on the license question in general.

Mr. Lithgow stated that he would rather vote for a poor man's license, like Mr. Conneely, than to vote for a Netherwood Hotel license. (Applause.) In these large and fashionable resorts young men are more easily tempted. If prohibition should prevail in this Council, we will have the worst set of men in office next year than you ever heard of.

At this juncture, Mr. Redfield arose and stated that he had voted against saloon licenses last year; but taking everything into consideration, I think I will have to change my "gown." I would therefore move that the vote on Mr. Conneely's license be reconsidered.

This motion was seconded by Mr. Finch.

Mr. Whiton said he regretted to cast his vote for the sale of intoxicating liquors; he said if he had his way he would sell rum as he would sell arsenic or strychnine; he would vote for a restricted license because he believed that the good order and morals of our city would be carried out more thoroughly by this course than to resort to prohibitory measures. He was satisfied on that score as to the manner in which the license system worked last year.

Messrs. Finch and Rushmore were also in favor of licensing to a limited extent.

Mr. Whiton stated that among the temperance people of Plainfield he once undertook to raise $100, but he signally failed; he thought it was then time to change his opinion.

Mr. Coriell remarked that he would draw his check right away for $100, if they would run the stuff out of Plainfield.

The motion to reconsider being put, Mr. Coriell asked to be excused, which was not complied with. The vote was as follows:—Ayes—Finch, Lithgow, Potts, Redfield, Rushmore, Whiton—6. Nays—Coriell, Dunlap, Flanders, Ryder—4.

On motion of Mr. Rushmore, that the license of Mr. Conneely be granted, was agreed to, the vote being as follows: Ayes—Finch, Lithgow, Potts, Redfield, Rushmore, Whiton—6. Nays—Coriell, Dunlap, Flanders, Ryder—4.

Mr. Finch moved that when Council adjourn it adjourn to meet two weeks from to-night, Feb. 16. Carried.

Quite a discussion was had in reference to laying of crosswalks over Park Ave. at 7th and 8th Sts. Some wanted them 4 feet wide, others 2 and 3 feet wide. Mr. Whiton offered the following:

Resolved, That the Committee on Streets be and hereby are directed to cause a crosswalk two feet six inches wide to be laid across Park Ave. at the corner of 7th St., and also to cause the crosswalk across Park Ave. at the corner of 8th St., to be continued to the curb on each side of the street.

On motion, adopted.

Mr. Dunlap, from Aud. Com., stated that one of the Com. (Mr. Whiton) had refused to sign the bills.

Mr. Whiton stated, by way of explanation, that he wished further time; he did not believe in auditing bills as correct the same evening they were presented.

Mr. Coriell stated that the bills had been passed upon by the several Committees and found correct and duly certified to. He would move their reference to Mr. Whiton for examination.

Mr. Whiton was of the opinion that it was not for him so to do.

It was moved by Mr. Rushmore that the Police bills be reported on, as they were in need of the money. Agreed to.

Mr. Finch moved that St. Com'r Angleman's bill be also reported on. Lost.

The Police bills presented this evening were then reported as correct, and warrants were ordered drawn for the several amounts. All aye.

Council then adjourned.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

John Hughes, proprietor of the "Somerset House," has purchased a strip of land adjoining the above mentioned property, 25 feet front, on Somerset street, on which he proposes erecting, in the Spring, a large Hall for public entertainments.

The New Brunswick Times suggests that Plainfield be annexed to Somerset County. Not much. North Plainfield should "annex" to Plainfield. Such an event is not so far away off in the future, either.

The Township Committee meet on Monday, 16th, to receive outstanding bills. They also give bald warning to delinquents. See their notice in our advertising columns.

GENTS:—I take this opportunity of complimenting you upon your very valuable and much needed preparation "Ely's Cream Balm," for the cure of Hay Fever and Catarrh. The form of this medicine and the method of its reaching the diseased mucus membrane (viz: by absorption) renders it far superior to any other remedy of the kind in the market. I have sold several dozen and have yet to hear the first complaint of its failure to do what you claim for it. I unhesitatingly recommend it to the trade as a very valuable article and to those who are suffering with the above mentioned complaints as the great desideratum that—"Balm of Ely's."

In the Whole History of Medicine

No preparation has ever performed such marvellous cures, or maintained so wide a reputation as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long-continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by its timely use in the throat and lung disorders of children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. From their knowledge of its composition and effects, Physicians use the CHERRY PECTORAL extensively in their practice, and Clergymen recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure where cures are possible.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

NEWSPAPER STYLE.

The editor of a political journal is not in the position of a writer of a serial novel. It is not so much his business to prepare highly finished and entertaining reading as it is to grapple courageously with such public questions as events shall force upon him. He has voluntarily assumed such relations to the public which make it incumbent on him to enlarge the information of his subscribers, and to put forth forcibly such views of public questions as shall influence the judgment of those who, in official life, have the power of applying remedies. It becomes necessary for an editor to understand all questions relating to the interests of the country, and to so present these questions by lucid arrangement and clear forcible language, as to make them attractive and fully understood by his readers. He may not have the honor of first saying the thing, but he must earn the still greater honor of so often repeating the thing so loudly, so vividly, so clearly, until it becomes the prevailing, governing thought of the community. Perspecuity and precision in style he must have, careful in avoiding phraseology that is dry, feeble or involved. He has to write on the excitement of the moment, when he cannot take time to criticise the structure of his sentences, to ornament his thought with figurative language, harmony, metaphor and antithesis, as Macaulay would word a finished essay. He must be concise, and never diffuse; vehement but seldom flowery; neat, nervous and elegant he may be if this comes naturally to him, but never discursive or pointless. Our ablest journalists take an enlarged, strong grasp of their subject, present their thoughts with directness and force, but seldom reach the perfection in writing of the accomplished essayist. To seize and embody the thought of the passing moment, to write a telling paragraph that shall give shape and direction to the rising but partially expressed thoughts of the multitude, is the province of the editor. He has not time to study a style that is either ornamental or too critical.—New Brunswick Fredonian.

MAXIMS FOR BUSINESS MEN.

Drive your business or it will drive you.

Judicious advertising is the key-stone of success.

Small advertisements often lead to great results.

Advertising is the ladder by which men climb to fortunes.

Investments in advertising will pay ten times more than if in stock in your business.

As a rule every business man should invest in advertising as much as in rent for his store.

Keep your business before the public and it will continue to increase if it is properly watched.

The best insurance for business men—Advertising. It insures against dull times or failures.

The best medium is a newspaper that has a list of intelligent and prompt-paying subscribers.

Advertisements should be changed frequently, as new goods are received, and prices or fashions vary.

Advertisements will arrest the attention of the reader in proportion as they are fresh and seasonable.

Advertising is to a business man, what food is to existence. It should be regular, adequate and varied however.

If a business man has a fine stock of goods, and his prices are attractive, he should not be ashamed to let the public know it.

A man to be known must keep his name before the public, he must let them know where he is, what he is and what he is doing.

Persevere to the end in advertising.—The best is always the cheapest. For quick results in advertising, try the home newspaper.

The best display window for a business man is a good space in a widely circulated newspaper. But it should be kept well filled.

Beware of jealousy. A dealer who does not patronize the columns of a newspaper, is very apt to be jealous of his neighbors who do.

If you have a neat store, complete stock and can offer inducements to buyers, announce the fact to others than those who pass your store.

OUR VERB.

An educational journal thus describes the trouble a Frenchman had with the verb "break:"

"I begin to understand your language better," said my French friend, M. Du Bois, to me, "but your verbs trouble me still; you mix them up so with prepositions."

"I am sorry you find them so troublesome," was all I could say.

"I saw your friend Mrs. Markeson just now," he continued. "She says she intends to break down housekeeping.—Am I right there?"

"Break up housekeeping, she must have said."

"Oh, yes, I remember; break up housekeeping."

"Why does she do that?" I asked.

"Because her health is broken into."

"Broken down."

"Broken down? Oh, yes. And, indeed, since the small pox has broken up in our city—"

"Broken out."

"She thinks she will leave it for a few weeks."

"No, she is afraid it will be broken—broken—how do I say that?"

"Broken into."

"Certainly, it is what I meant to say."

"Is her son to be married soon?"

"No that engagement is broken—broken—"

"Broken off?"

"Yes, broken off."

"Ah, I had not heard of that."

"She is very sorry about it. Her son only broke the news down to her last week. Am I right? I am anxious to speak English well."

"He merely broke the news; no preposition this time."

"It is hard to understand. That young man, her son, is a fine young fellow; a breaker, I think."

"A broker, and a very fine young fellow, good-day."

So much for the verb "to break."

AN AVALANCHE OF PEAT.

When the brief statement first appeared, a few months ago, that a town in the Falkland Islands had narrowly escaped destruction by a flood of peat, the story seemed incredible. Authentic details, however, have lately reached England which leave no doubt of the fact. The phenomenon is believed to be unprecedented, and has served to attract the attention of men of science once more to the archipelago of treeless islands which Darwin explored nearly half a century ago, and which constitute Great Britain's southernmost colonial possessions.

The Falkland Group is situated some three hundred miles from the eastern coast of South America, opposite the entrance to the strait of Magellan.—Two of the islands, known as East and West Falkland, are much larger than the rest, and upon the east side of the former is Stanley the chief town. There seems to be some influence in the climate peculiarly favorable to the production of peat, for, says Mr. Darwin, "almost every kind of plant, even the coarse grass which covers the whole surface of the land, becomes converted into this substance; scarcely any situation checks its growth; some of the beds are as much as twelve feet thick, and the lower part becomes so solid when dry that it will hardly burn." Thus, it will be understood, a peaty soil is characteristic of the whole country.

Just back of the town of Stanley, and about 3,000 feet inland, rises a range of heights which are surmounted by a plateau, upon which rests a deep bog of peat. Curiously enough, the thickest deposits of peat in the Falklands occur on the hillsides and hilltops. In other places the peat seldom exceeds a few feet in depth. The sub-soil is a dense yellow clay impenetrable by water, and in the Stanley bog already mentioned this is between twenty-four and thirty feet below the surface.

On Nov. 26, 1878, a southeasterly storm of wind and rain set in at Stanley, and the rainfall from that time until midnight of the 30th is estimated to have been two inches. Then the peat bog on the heights above the settlement gave way. "The black oozy mud," writes a naval officer to the royal geographical society, "rolled down the hill with a momentum which neither the iron stanchions around the reservoir nor the barriers by the sea could withstand. It broke through the backs of wooden houses, inundated the rooms, and obliged the inhabitants, rudely awaked from sleep, to flee for safety; a few pigs and calves were swallowed up in the irresistible stream, but fortunately no human lives were lost." The velocity of the stream was not noted at first, but in the morning, after the force was almost expended, it was still moving into the sea at the rate of about half a mile an hour.

Dr. John Mulvany, staff surgeon in the British navy, was an eye-witness of the phenomenon, and attributes it to the action of the heavy fall of rain upon the peat. He estimates that over 500,000 gallons of water fell into the bog on the four days preceding the avalanche. The impermeable yellow clay underneath would not permit it to sink through, and finally this enormous quantity of water, mingling with the peat, burst the weakest side of the bog and rolled down the seaward slope of the heights above the town in the remarkable torrent we have described.

HOW TO SWEEP A ROOM.

To sweep and dust a room properly is an art, and like all fine arts has a right method. Well done it renovates the entire room, and the occupant takes possession feeling that "all things have become new." It is not merely a performance to be done by the hands, but a work into which taste and judgment, in other words, brains, must enter. How are these closets opening into the room to be swept? Arrange the shelves, drawers and clothing preparatory to sweeping-day, then let this be the first to be swept. Cover the bed with soiled sheets, as also all heavy articles that cannot be removed; first, however, having carefully dusted and brushed them. Remove all the furniture that can easily be set in hall or adjoining room, having first dusted it; then, taking a step-ladder, begin to sweep or brush or wipe the cornice and picture cords and pictures. Draw the shades to the top of the window or, if there are inside blinds, dust them carefully. Open the windows. All the dust left in the room now is in the carpet or air, and the current of the windows will soon settle it.

Now begin to sweep, not toward a door or corner, but from the outer edges of the room toward the centre, where the dust will be taken up with a small brush and dust-pan. Go over the room once more—this time with a dampened broom; that removes the last bit of dust and gives the carpet a new, bright appearance. Re-place the articles of furniture as soon as the air is entirely free from dust, uncover the rest and the room is new and clean.—All this seems an easy thing to do, but there is not one in a hundred who will follow out the details. Some will sweep the dust into the hall, or from one room to another, and wonder why their house is so soon dusty again. Others forget cornice and pictures, and thus leave a seed of future annoyance; while a third class will do all but using the damp broom, which is as the finishing touches to a picture.—Chicago Alliance.

TAKING THE CHILDREN HOME.

At the Union Depot, Detroit, recently, an old, gray headed man was in charge of three children—two boys and a girl. The oldest was about ten and the little girl about five. The whole party were dressed very plainly, and as to who they were the old man explained to the people around him:

"Waal, you see, I live down in Norwalk, in Ohio. About a dozen years ago my darter married a poor worthless coot of a feller up here, and they have never got along worth shucks. A few days ago he threw her down stairs and pounded her black and blue, and she come down thar to me for refuge.—These are the young 'uns. She left 'em behind when she flew, and I come on after 'em.—Purty likely set o' children ain't they?"

"Yes, a real smart lot. Have any trouble getting them?"

"Waal, not much. When I got into the house and told John what I'd come for he kinder balked a little, but I took him right by the windpipe and told him what was what. Tell you, I don't allow any of the boys to climb me, if I be upwards of sixty. I'm going to take 'em down home and bring 'em up, and if their father ever comes within a mile of us, I'm going to pick him right up and break his back across a stone wall!"

About ten minutes before the train left, the old man called the oldest boy to his knee and said:

"Now, young man, see here! I'm your grandfather, and I'm taking you young 'uns home to Norwalk. We'll get there with about seventy cents to spare, if no accident happens. Now, then, when the boy on the train comes around with chestnuts, or apples, or candy, I want you to look straight out of the window!"

"Why can't you buy some for me?" asked the boy.

"Come over my knee!" exclaimed the grandfather, as he hauled the boy nearer. "Now, sir, do you smell chestnuts?"

"I—I—want some, but I'll wait till next year!" gasped the boy, as he felt the spanking-machine making ready for business.

"Very well. You look out of the window at corn and pumpkins every time you hear the train boy yell 'chestnuts!' Here Alonzo—you come up here."

Alonzo was the second boy. When he was within reaching distance the grandfather grabbed him and said:

"When the train-boy comes along with apples and candy and hickory-nut meats what are you going to do?"

"I'm going to ask you to buy me a whole lot!"

"You are, eh? come over my knee, sir!"

"Oh! no I won't—I won't—I won't!" shouted the boy as he danced up and down and hung back.

"Very well—you see that you don't! Now, my little girl, I wan't to say a—"

"Oh! grandpa, you needn't say a single word to me!" she interrupted. "I just hate the sight of chestnuts and candy, but just as soon as we get into the cars I'm going right to sleep, and never wake up once."

If the train boy tackled that family he didn't make a cent.

A QUESTION OF DENOMINATION.

One of the assistants at the post-office happened to be standing at one of the delivery-windows the other day, when a buxom damsel of about eighteen Summers stepped up and asked if stamps were sold here. Upon being told that they were she said she wanted to buy one dollar's worth.

"One dollar's worth," repeated the smiling assistant; "of what denomination?"

The damsel showed symptoms of embarrassment and hesitated to reply.—She twirled her shawl-fringe nervously, cast her eyes about to see if any one was near, moved a little closer to the window and finally asked in a thorough voice:

"Do you hev to write it down?"

"By no means," answered the courteous assistant; "that is not necessary, but I presume you have some preference as to the denomination?"

"Ah—well—yes," replied the stranger, her face turning scarlet, "I hev some. I generally go to the 'Piscopal Methodist myself, but the feller I'm buyin' the stamps for he's a Universal Orthodox."

THE CURBSTONE COMMITTEE.

What church is there whose ladies have not experienced the nuisance to which the Presbyterian Banner alludes in the following forcible language? "It is about time that a stop should be put to the gathering of boys and young men around the doors of churches previous to and after the services, staring at girls and young ladies, making offensive and often vulgar remarks and smoking cigars. This is not confined to village churches, but is also found at city and country churches. The authorities of churches thus annoyed ought to take effective measures to rid them of such ignorant and ill-mannered pests, though they may wear good clothes and boast of their connection with the 'first families.' It is bad enough to have a spruce young man puff a volume of filthy cigar smoke into one's face as he rushes along the street; but is far worse to have an entire congregation made uncomfortable with the odor of tobacco smoke by those outside the doors, during the entire services.—Those who are so indecent as to indulge in this kind of annoyance to congregations should be compelled to leave the grounds. If they take pleasure in puffing the vile smoke or squirting tobacco juice through their teeth, let them retire to some unoccupied lot or friendly hog-pen, but keep away from human habitations."

HIS SENTIMENTS.

On a Grand River car the other day a lady suddenly discovered that she had lost her purse. The other passengers consisted of an old man and six women. Three of the women chuckled at the loss, two whispered to each other that they didn't believe it and the sixth looked around on the floor with eager eyes. The old man's sympathies were aroused from the first, and he asked:

"Did your wallet contain any money?"

"Of course it did!" she sharply replied.

"Did it also contain a photograph of your deceased husband and other relics of no value to any one but the owner?"

"No, sir! My husband is not dead! I had over $8 in the purse."

"Over $8 and Winter right at our doors!" he mused. "Were you carrying this wallet in your—in your pocket?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you stop in any tobacco store down town?"

She gave him a blast with her eyes and refused to answer.

"Because," he went on, "I allus lose my wallet in a tobacco store, if anywhere. I don't think you will ever see your lost wealth again. Have I your permission to take up a collection on this car for your benefit?"

"No, sir; you will please attend to your own business!"

"Very well—I will! My sentiments, however, force me to say: I sympathize with the bereaved in her loss. That's all."

Then he sat down.—Detroit Press.

Some men pay attention who never pay anything else.

To avoid the first wrong step, let your first step be a right one.

"Bear and forbear," said Bruin, as he ate up his brother.

One touch of nature—When you get your nose frost-bitten.

A dessert waste—Scooping out the inside of a pie and throwing away the crust.

The correspondent who asks if there was ever a $4 greenback is answered in the negative. Yet we once heard a man sing "The IV Greens."

Venture not to the utmost bounds of even lawful pleasures; the limits of good and evil join. If you wish to have a good house to live in when you are old, you must lay a brick every day.

POETRY.

KNOWLEDGE.

BY MARY CLEMMER.

In what rare region of the mind
Shall I yet know thee as thou art—
The nobler self I fain would find,
Above the market and the mart.

My yearning life goes forth to meet,
Thy loftier spirit all unseen;
Afar, sincere, mocking, sweet,
With all the body's veil between.

Then, in all lowliness, I'd show
The gentler life I live apart;
But dare thee only while it glow
Through some infirmity of heart.

Yet in how many a gift and grace
The inner sight doth catch the gleam,
Cast from the hidden angel's face;
The [illegible] self of whom we dream.

The nearest stand and knock without—
The dearest walk as far apart—
Comes with ring fear and cruel doubt,
'Twixt life and life, 'twixt heart and heart.

All mortal shadows sweep away—
The clouded sight, the questioning eye,
I deem in some supernal day,
The best in each, will each descry.

Lo! lifted from the earth's turmoil,
From every curse of care or late,
In your rare region of the soul
Our hearts redeemed must meet and mate.

◆

PERSEVERANCE.

One step and then another,
And the longest walk is ended;
One stitch and then another,
And the largest rent is mended;
One brick upon another,
And the highest wall is made;
One flake upon another,
And the deepest snow is laid.

So the little coral workers,
By their slow and constant motion,
Have built those pretty islands
In the distant dark-blue ocean;
And the noblest undertakings
Man's wisdom hath conceived,
By oft-repeated effort
Have been patiently achieved.

Then do not look disheartened
On the work you have to do,
And say that such a mighty task
You never can get through;
But just endeavor, day by day,
Another point to gain,
And soon the mountain which you feared
Will prove to be a plain!

"Rome was not builded in a day,"
The ancient proverb teaches,
And nature, by her trees and flowers,
The same sweet sermon preaches.
Think not of far-off duties,
But of duties which are near,
And having once begun to work,
Resolve to persevere.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

FLOWER OF THE DAISY.

It was just a week before Christmas, and, perched on his three legged stool, in the counting-room of the great house of Worthington Brothers, old Joe Darling, the ancient bookkeeper of the firm, was finishing his Saturday night's entries.

When thus engaged, a hand was laid on his shoulder, and turning his head, he saw his old, gray-haired employer, the sole proprietor of the firm, beside him.

"It's the last time, my old friend," said the merchant, pointing to the ledger; "the news this evening decides everything. Unless something happens before the first of January, Worthington Brothers must close doors and wind up business Joe."

Old Joe started as he listened to these melancholy words, and a tremor ran through him.

"Don't say that! don't say that, Mr. Worthington!" he exclaimed. And he dabbed his bald forehead with his old bandanna handkerchief as he spoke.—"Don't say that Worthington Brothers will suspend payment, sir."

"Worse than that, Joe," returned the old merchant, with a heavy sigh. "I see no hope of resuming. The great failures in Europe have hopelessly involved us—so that"—he stopped with gloomy expression in his eyes—"so that on or before the first of January," he added, "the house will close its doors. I could bear that; but when I think that the name of Worthington Brothers would be dishonored—"

There the old merchant broke down.—Joe seized his hand, and cried in a trembling voice:

"Don't, don't!—don't say that, sir! Don't use that word 'dishonored!' It is not so bad!"

"Ruin! ruin! utter ruin!" groaned the merchant.

"No, no; not ruin! See here, sir. I—I—you see, I have saved a little—"

And old Joe drew from his pocketbook, with unsteady hands, certificates of deposit in various banks.

"Take it, sir! It was made in your service! honestly made—there's not a dirty shilling in it, sir. It is yours—and"

He thrust the papers into the merchant's hand. But Mr. Worthington pushed them back.

"No, old friend," said the merchant, sighing deeply, but speaking in a voice of resignation—"no, that is not the way Worthington Brothers do business. If we fail, it shall be honestly—alone—after honorable exertion. We will not drag down our friends, and you Joe are oldest and best. No, the house has kept faith and honor for fifty years. If ruin comes we will go down alone. It is not our fault. I will do my duty and trust in God, Joe, to the end."

As he spoke the old merchant went to his safe and took out a roll of bank notes. Then he directed the various employees to be sent for, and paid them all up to the end of the then present week. He had a kind word for each, and an inquiry about every man's family or concerns; and then he turned to his desk. But the men did not go.

"What are you waiting for my friends? Can I assist you in any manner?" asked the old merchant.

"If you please, sir," said the foremost of the party; "we would like to leave our money in your hands. Eh?"

And the speaker turned toward his companions, who uttered a hoarse murmur of assent.

"Leave your money in my hands?" said the merchant.

"Just so, sir," was the reply. "We hear tell how times are hard with the Worthington Brothers, and the house in difficulties. Now we don't want our money as yet, Mr. Wothington, eh? Do you?"

And he looked toward those in the rear. Another growl of assent replied.

"All which," the spokesman added, "goes to show, sir, that we are not in want. Keep the money, Mr. Worthington."

The merchant gazed, with deep emotion at the rough, honest faces.

"Thanks, thanks, my kind friends!" he said. "This proof of your friendship touches me deeply, but I cannot accept your offer. Such a small sum, besides, would be of little service. No, no—keep it and may God bless you and yours."

The employees retired on this, not daring, it seemed, to intrude further on the head of the house.

"Father in heaven, I thank Thee!" murmured the merchant, and, turning away, he picked up the evening paper to hide his emotions. As his eyes fell upon it a paragraph attracted his attention. It announced the failure of the bank in which the savings of his old bookkeeper had been deposited.

With a sigh he handed it to Joe Darling and said:

"I deeply regret this, my old friend. My ruin was enough."

Old Joe read the announcement with a sinking heart, and echoed the sigh of his old friend.

"The Lord's will be done, sir!" he said; "you ought to have all, but I am now penniless. Your trouble is greater than mine. Any letters, sir, by to-night's mail? Any resources or important intelligence?"

"No resources Joe, and bad news—almost worse than all."

"Worse, sir?"

"Yes, yes. You remember my son Charley—of course, you remember him. You know he went about two years since to live with VanZandt & Co., at Antwerp?"

"Yes, sir; what of him? Don't tell me—he is not dead, sir?"

"No—that pang is spared me, but I have had very bad news of Charley, my old friend. I wrote recently, announcing our situation, and recommending his return, and Messrs. Van Zandt & Co. replied that he had left them nearly a year ago."

"Left them?"

"Yes, yes. He had fallen into evil course and they reprimanded him—when he went off, no one knew whither. Letters were written to me by the house, but they must have miscarried. Nothing has since been heard of Charley. I fear he has taken to more evil ways still. He may be dead, indeed! Unhappy that I am! All connected with me seem to turn out badly!"

The merchant uttered a groan. Old Joe looked at him with deep commiseration.

"I am more unfortunate than you are, Mr. Worthington, he said, in a low tone, "I had a son, a noble boy—he is dead, sir! You knew my Edmund! He was so handsome, so spirited, so bold; and he was lost at sea! He was a whaler—the ship foundered, and the crew were lost. My poor Edmund! We are truly unfortunate fathers, sir!"

There the conversation ended and the merchant and book-keeper separated.

Through the following week untiring efforts were made to collect the resources of Worthington Brothers. But slight success crowned the merchant's efforts to rescue the house. Friends of past years seemed to have grown cold, and regretted their inability to render assistance; and it was only by great sacrifices that the house succeeded in making all payments up to Christmas Day. In this, however, the firm succeeded, and as Mr. Worthington locked his safe and put on his hat, he drew a long breath of relief; then, taking his old book-keeper's arm, he went home with a thankful heart, and as they separated at the corner, he murmured:

"Let us keep a good heart yet, old friend."

Christmas morning, and the snow was falling and the wind whirling it around like mad. A thousand goblins seemed laughing and turning somersaults and hailing each other as they sported round the gables and whistled through the key-holes and chimneys, with mirth at the coming of Christmas, and old Joe Darling's small house, in a remote street of the great city, seemed especially honored by the hobgoblins, who shook the windows until they rattled again.

A great fire was burning and the breakfast table was set, and old Joe was rubbing his hands in front of the blaze and looking out of the window, when a voice behind him, with a rush of laughter in it, and sounding like a silver bell, exclaimed:

"Christmas gift, father, dear. I have caught you."

Old Joe turned around. As he did so a pair of rosy lips pressed his cheek and two arms clung about his neck, belonging to a little fairy of seventeen.

"Why, you look like a sunbeam, Daisy," he said.

And indeed the face resembled one so brilliant was the light of her eyes. Daisy was small, with a neat, cosy figure, in a plain but pretty dress; and you saw at a glance that this was one of those little-fingered fairies, who are the blessings of the homes in which they rule.

The father smiled and fondly passed his hand over her hair. As he looked at her he thought of his well-nigh penniless condition and heaved a sigh.

"Poor little lady bird! I have nothing for you!" he said, sighing again.

But daisy did not seem to regard the circumstances as at all depressing. On the contrary her face glowed, and, turned her bright face toward one side, she whispered;

"I've got a Christmas gift for you, father dear."

"Have you? Now, you've gone and worked your little fingers to the bone. It's a cravat, or—"

"No, indeed, I've done nothing of the sort—that is not your present."

The rush of joyous laughter in the girl's voice nearly drowned her words. She seemed overflowing with some secret. There talk was interrupted, however, by the appearance of Mother Darling and her flock with Uncle John, looking wise and secretive.

Daisy had procured, somewhere the handsomest Christmas tree imaginable—a bushy cedar, full of light blue berries, and having returned from church, whither she went dutifully with the rest, she proceeded with the aid of Uncle John, her prime friend and favorite, to deck the wondorous tree with its brilliant ornaments. As evening drew on it was finished, and erected on the sideboard—its paper baskets, and presents, and tapers making it a magical spectacle to the young Darlings, who gazed at it with opened-eyed wonder.

Then the Christmas dinner appeared and rivited all eyes. The great roast turkey and round of beef, and flanking side-dishes roused wild enthusiasm in the young ones. Old Joe devoutly said grace, and the youthful members of the Darling family, chirping like a flock of birds, called the other's attention to the splendid banquet.

All sat down. Old Joe looked around.

"There's one seat too many," he said.

"I set it there, brother," said Uncle John tranquilly.

"For whom, brother? Have you invited some friend?"

"No, brother, I thought of your Edmund."

The old bookkeeper looked wistfully at his brother, and then went and held out his hand to him.

"Thank you, brother," he said, in a low voice, returning to his seat.

When the first pang had passed, it seemed a satisfaction to old Joe to gaze at the vacant chair, and to think of his son being present and enjoying their happiness. And when, at last, their dessert came, and the wine was poured out, the old man looked toward the vacant chair as he raised the glass to his lips.

Suddenly the voice of Daisy rang out, half choked with laughter:

"Why, we are forgetting our tree!" she cried; "We are really losing sight of our tree, uncle dear. Did anybody ever—?"

And, not waiting for "anybody," to reply, Daisy started up, and assisted by Uncle John bore the magical cedar in its neat box covered with evergreens to the centre of the table.

Night had come, and the tapers on the tree were lit. As the fairy spectacle of many colored baskets, candy, cornucopias, and the presents of needlework and books and garlands flashed forth in the mellow light of the tapers, the young Darlings uttered a suppressed cheer, and "Pet," in curl and pinafore, made a desperate attempt to climb upon the board and carry the prize at the point of his baby spoon.

"No, Pet," cried Daisy, "wait till sister gives you yours! But first, Uncle John is going to tell a beautiful story! Will you listen father dear, and mother? It is lovely."

"The tale I am going to relate, my dear young friends," said Uncle John, "I must inform you is strictly true in every particular. It was written down by the King of Genii, and then caught up the beak of a great bird called a roc, and the Prince Camaralzaman, having been shipwrecked on a desert island where the bird came to feed, killed the roc, and the story had been in the palace of Bagdad, where the Prince lived, ever since."

In his commencement the young Darlings exhibited an astounding interest. As to Pet, his excitement was beyond the power of words. His eyes resembled two saucers; his mouth opened to its utmost width; and, in the excess of his attention, he very nearly swallowed his baby-spoon. No one looked at Daisy. With one hand shading her eyes from the light, and the other placed upon her breast, she looked at Uncle John or furtively toward her father.

"Having told you, my dear children, how the story came to be, known, I will next proceed to relate it for your entertainment.

"There once lived in the city of Bagdad an old merchant whose name was Barilzac which being interpreted, is Worthy Man. Abou-ben-darling—not unlike the name of our own family—served the good merchant Barilzac, whose caravans brought to Bagdad all the treasures of the East. But misfortune came. The caravans were overwhelmed in the sands of the desert. The moment was near when Barilzac would probably be compelled to strew dust upon his head and wander through the streets of Bagdad, crying 'Barilzac, the merchant is ruined.'"

"This happened," continued Uncle John "just before the great festivity which comes on the twenty-fifth day of the month of snows. Abou-ben-darling came home that day, thinking of the misfortunes of his patron, and also of the great suffering of his own—for all of us must suffer, my children. His only son had been lost at sea, and the heart of Abou-ben-darling was sad. He returneth to hold the festivity of the cedar tree, but his heart felt heavy. 'Abou-ben-darling is miserable!' he said; 'there is no man more miserable!'

"As he thus spoke, his daughter Paribanou, approached him. The name of Paribanou, my children, signifies the Flower of the Daisy. She came now to Abou-ben-darling, and kissing him in the Eastern fashion, said: 'Oh! father dear! Oh! Abou-ben-darling, do not despair! Behold the feast is set, and the holy cedar tree blazes; the tapers therein shine like stars, and many gifts hang down from the branches of the wonderous tree!'"

Here Pet suddenly burst forth, "Why, it's like our tree;" only she left out the 'r' in 'tree.'

"Silence, Pet! do not interrupt!" said Uncle John. "I continued: Abou-ben-darling sighed when his darling thus spoke.

"'Truly, Flower of the Daisy,' he said, thy cedar tree shines; but my heart is dark and there is no gift there for me.

"'There is a gift for my father,' said Paribanou, or Flower of the daisy; and as she spoke there was a curious hidden laughter in her voice. 'There is a gift that our father will value more than all else—a package with his name on from a distant land!'

They did not look at Daisy, who was trembling, and whose hand scarce possessed strength to draw a letter from her bosom.

Uncle John continued:

"And Abou-ben-darling said: 'Where is the package, my child?' to which the Flower of the Daisy replied:

"'Father dear, it is here! See, I take it from the boughs of the holy cedar tree, and give it to you!"

As Uncle John uttered the words, Daisy sprang forward with the letter in her hand.

"Here it is, father, dear!" she cried, bursting into tears and laughter. "It nearly killed me not to tell you! Oh, take it, take it! take it! Our Edmund is not dead!"

And throwing her arms around old Joe's neck, she sobbed upon his bosom, while with eyes full of wonder, he read the letter from his son. As he read on, he seemed to doubt whether he was reading a real letter. His eyes closed; he uttered a sigh and would have fainted had not Uncle John caught him in his arms.

The letter was written to Daisy by her brother Edmund. He had been picked up in the Pacific and carried to the South Seas by a trading vessel; thence he had worked his way to California, encountered Charles Worthington roaming about in the gold regions—they had speculated there and made great fortunes, and were coming home on the next steamer.

As Joe grew faint, Pet suddenly ran behind his mother's apron, uttering an appalling scream.

At the door stood a tall young man with a ferocious beard.

"How are you, father and mother, and Daisy?"

They ran into his arms, uttering cries and sobs. The sailor was home again, never to leave them more; and as Daisy rested in her dear brother's arms with her rosy cheek upon his breast, she said laughing and crying:

"Father dear, how do you like your Christmas gift?"

The windows shook as she spoke. It was, doubtless, the merry goblins, highly pleased with themselves and everybody else; and the holy night—the happy, blessed night went on its way full of joy and gratitude.

A year afterward, strange to say, Christmas came again, and saw the house of Worthington Brothers prosperous, and old Joe happy, and Charles the husband of the Flower of the Daisy. And again the cedar tree was lit and spread around its cheerful light, and the loud wind laughed, and the merry goblins seemed to shout "A merry, merry Christmas."

◆

Never use fast words. It may not always be agreeable. "How do you like my boots, love?" exclaimed a youthful bride. "Oh, they're immense," he said.

The Oxford Iron Company are now manufacturing nails at the rate of 20,000 kegs per month, for which they have lately been receiving $5.25. The highest price they had at the close of last week was $5.25 per keg and the lowest price for which they sold nails during the panic was $2. Thus it will be seen that at the rate they are now manufacturing, and with the difference of price at which they sell, the Oxford Iron Company must be making more money than they did during the dull times between 1875 and the early part of 1879.—Iron Era, (Boonton.)

The kissing boom is making the most energetic headway, but it is getting a great many ministers into trouble. The New York preacher who kisses the young and good looking ladies of his parish in a moral way was sustained by his church, but the New Jersey preacher whose kisses, as he said, were largely of a fatherly character, is looking around for another church. The public is anxiously awaiting the next case to see what new variety of kiss may come in vogue.

POLITICS.

Politics means the science of government, the legislation and administration of a country for the promotion of its peace and prosperity.

That is the true meaning of politics, and within such defined limits, every American citizen ought to be a politician.

A thorough knowledge of free representative institutions, the blessings they confer and the perils to which they are exposed, is a study of the highest importance, because it teaches how to preserve the priceless boon of civil and religious liberty.

To be versed in politics for the legitimate and patriotic purpose of seeking to advance the public good is honorable and useful. Such a man, however earnestly he may advocate party measures, will never sacrifice the rights of the people, nor compromise the integrity of free government in order to aggrandize himself.

A patriot may be a partisan, but he cannot be a plunderer.

COST OF MONARCHY.

The military establishments of the four principal monarchies in Europe are stated to be as follows:

	Peace		War
Russia	750,000	men;	2,192,000	men.
Germany	420,000	"	1,300,000	"
Austria	267,000	"	771,000	"
Italy	200,000	"	333,000	"

By which it will be seen that in time of peace, 1,636,000 able-bodied men are withdrawn from the pursuits of industry to be soldiers, and that in time of war, the enormous aggregate of 4,596,000 such men are compelled to engage in the work of death and devastation.

When the cost of keeping up gigantic armies like those is taken into consideration, and the fact remembered, that money for the purpose is mainly wrenched from populations crushed to the very earth by burdens of taxation, it certainly appears atrocious.

What is it all for?

To enslave the people, that their task-masters may wield Kingly authority and securely enjoy its selfish prerogatives.

That is the wherefore and it is a crimson crime.

Well did Longfellow write—

"Were half the power that fills the world with terror,
Were half the wealth bestowed on camps and courts,
Given to redeem the human mind from error,
There were no need of arsenals nor forts."

THE IRISH RELIEF FUND.

The New York Herald publishes each day a list of names of those contributing toward the Herald Relief Fund in aid of suffering Ireland. Blanks are furnished gratuitously upon application to any and all parties all over the whole Union, who desire to aid in this humane and deserving work. Already the funds have reached a large amount and money and other contributions are being forwarded to the afflicted districts as fast as possible. Great care has been taken to see that the funds are delivered into right hands. The Herald says: "In every little hamlet and village in the country we should be glad to see some of the best and most respectable citizens interest themselves in the work. The blanks will, upon application, be furnished by the HERALD. The ladies also we should gladly welcome to our side. We are rejoiced to see so many of them are among the subscribers, and if they will only interest themselves in the work we have no doubt whatever that we shall achieve a success that, in the way of charity, will be one of the marvels of the century." What is Plainfield doing in the way of sending contributions—Our ladies are noted for their many charitable acts, and have never appealed in vain. Cannot they interest themselves in this one, and add their mite toward so deserving an object as that of affording relief to starving and suffering people of a sister country? Printed blanks have been received and placed in the hands of reliable persons in our city, since writing the above, who will receive subscriptions in the above mentioned cause. They may be found at the Mansion House, Park House, Post Office, Dunn's News Stand at the depot, Reynold's Pharmacy and with Father Morris. Give your mite.

COMPTROLLER ANDERSON.

The long and closely contested fight for the Comptrollership of the State was ended on Wednesday last by the selection of Major E. J. Anderson to fill the position. There were four candidates for the position, Messrs. ex-Senator Jarrard, of Middlesex, Maj. Anderson, of Mercer, Mr. Hays, of Essex, and Mr. Cunningham. In the joint caucus, the first vote stood 13 each for Jarrard, Anderson and Hays, and 8 for Cunningham. After seven ballots had been taken Major Anderson was declared the choice of the caucus by a vote of 27 for him, 19 for Hays and 2 for Jarrard. Mr. Anderson has been Assistant-Comptroller for nine years, and has proven a valued and efficient official during his term of office. Courteous and obliging to every caller he has made many warm friends throughout the State, irrespective of politics.—That he will ably fill the position elected to, is beyond a doubt. Of his predecessor, Gen. R. F. Stockton, it is our pleasure to record that he has made one of the best Comptrollers the State ever saw. The duties of his office require a great deal of labor; that he has faithfully, honestly and creditably performed. We regret that circumstances of a political nature, causes his retirement from the office.

WASHINGTON, D. C., FEB. 7.

The Treasury now holds $363,912,100 in United States bonds to secure national bank circulation; bonds deposited for circulation for the week $554,700; amount withdrawn $808,500; national bank circulation and outstanding currency notes, $342,357,486; gold notes, $1,424,420; revenue to-day, $416,665.72; customs, $692,494.72; national bank notes received for redemption for the week ending to-day, as compared with the corresponding period last year, for 1879, $3,307,000; 1880, $1,491,000; receipts to-day, $150,000.

Mr. Hayes has added one more infamous act to his already long list. He has appointed A. C. Wells, son of the notorious J. Madison Wells, of Returning Board fame, to the Surveyorship of the Port of New Orleans. Afraid to appoint the father for his dirty work in his behalf in 1876, he rewards the son.

A MICHIGANDER.

The coming up in the House of Representatives at Washington, on Friday last, of a bill to remove the political disabilities of a Virginian by the name of Owens, afforded an opportunity for Mr. Conger, a rampant member from Michigan, to cover himself all over with a bloody shirt of the most approved Blaine style, and to suffer the discomfort of having it ripped into pieces.

The particulars are these—Mr. Owens, of Virginia, was a warrant officer in the United States Navy and resigned April 9th, 1861, to enter the Confederate service. He simply stated that fact to Congress, and respectfully asked to be restored to his original loyal standing in the eyes of the law.

That was nothing more nor less than had been accepted from former applicants seeking precisely the same kind of relief.

To any reasonable man it was ample, but not to Mr. Conger. He demanded that even pardon should inflict personal humiliation, and so opposed the passage of the bill.

In reply arose Mr. Goode, of Virginia, who completely squelched the Michigander after the following manner: Said Mr. Goode, "I submit to the House that while it has been the practice of Congress to require each person desiring the removal of his political disabilities to make an application in respectful terms, heretofore no form of petition has even been prescribed, and I undertake to say that the gentleman cannot re-call an instance in which a respectful application like this has ever been rejected. It seems to me to be late in the day, fifteen years after the termination of the war, to take a new departure, and to require a man to come here and humble himself as is required by the gentleman from Michigan, to write 'traitor' and 'rebel' with his own hands upon his own brow, and to get down in the dust, and with his hands on his mouth and his mouth in the dust cry 'unclean,' before a great Government like this will consider his application at all."

The House by over a two-thirds vote, including of course many Republicans, sustained the just rebuke administered by Mr. Goode.

The bill passed—Ayes 166, nays 46.

Conger snarled at the Democrats and snapped at the Republicans.

The ragman picked up the remains of the bloody shirt.

Blaine sent for his family physician to attend another case of sun-stroke.

The spirit of Union smiled sweetly.

The House adjourned.

THE NEW CENSUS LAW.

The provisions of the census act, as it has passed the U. S. Senate, are thus given:

The first section provides for free transportation of mail matter relating to the census. The second amends the act above named by striking out the provision for inquiry as to the naturalization of foreign-born persons and as to the ownership of the public debt of the United States. Section three allows the reports required from railroad, express, telegraph and insurance companies to be made for the fiscal year of the company terminating nearest to June 1, 1880. Section four amends the act aforesaid so as to require the enumeration to begin June 1, 1880, and to require the enumeration in cities having over 10,000 inhabitants to be taken within two weeks from that date. Section five allows the enumerator to be appointed from the county when no suitable person living within the enumeration district will undertake the work. Section six requires the enumerator of each district to file in the County Clerk's office a copy of his enumeration and to correct it on reliable information as to errors in it, and to this end he may swear witnesses; it also contains other details as to the duty of enumerators. Section seven requires supervisors to forward two sets of enumerators' returns, one to the Census office at Washington and the other to the office of the Secretary of the State to which his district belongs. Section eight appropriates $350,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay enumerators for the additional services required by this act.

EXCELLENT NOMINATIONS.

Governor McClellan, on Monday last, sent to the Senate for confirmation the names of two Supreme Court Judges. One of them was the name of Judge Depue—a re-nomination, the other that of ex-Governor Joel Parker, to take the place of Judge Woodhull. There is still another name to be sent in as the successor of Judge Dalrymple. It is understood that Senator Magie, of Elizabeth, will be the man. The nomination of Mr. Parker took the Senate, as well as the public, by surprise, and there is much comment on it. Of course the Republicans think that the name of some one professing their own political faith should have been presented, and are loud in their denunciations against the Governor. That official, however, knows full well what he is about, and the people may rely on the wisdom of his selection. The Supreme Court Bench will be ably represented by such distinguished men as Parker, Depue and Magie, should the nominations be confirmed. It is rumored, however, that the Senate will not confirm Mr. Parker. We shall shortly know.

HEROES.

In the storm and darkness of Monday night of last week there was a fearful scene along the coast near Long Branch. Four ships were driven ashore in the darkness, the howling tempest, the thundering of the angry ocean, the broken vessels dashing fearfully among drowning men and women, but on the shore stood six life-saving heroic soldiers, with their ropes and their mortar. Brave as they were, how puny did they appear to master the mighty forces of death before them.—Yet not a life was lost. All were brought safely to shore by the bravery and the skill of these six noble fellows. Such self-devotion and courage should not go unnoticed. Give them our respect and honor. So says the New Brunswick Fredonian, and so say we.

A BILL AFFECTING PLAINFIELD.

The following Bill, which affects Plainfield, was presented to the Legislature by Assemblyman Herring, of Camden County. It was drafted for the benefit of Gloucester City. It has passed both branches of the Legislature:

An act concerning cities having less than eight thousand inhabitants and more than five thousand inhabitants.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That if any city shall have more than five thousand inhabitants and less than eight thousand inhabitants, according to the last preceding census, and shall not have been divided into wards, it may be the duty of the common council, as soon as practicable after the passage of this act, to divide such cities into two wards.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

The National Democratic Committee meets at Willard's, in Washington, on Monday, 23rd inst., to select a place and time for the meeting of the Democratic National Convention. The latter part of June or first of July will probably be the time chosen for holding the convention. Cincinnati, St. Louis and Louisville are spoken of as cities where the convention may be held. A strong influence will be brought to bear to select Washington instead of a Western town.

THE LEGISLATURE.

From our Trenton Correspondent.

TRENTON, FEB. 11th, 1880.

In my last letter the doings of the Legislature of last Thursday could not reach you in time for publication.

BILLS INTRODUCED SINCE.

H. No. 186, provides that for telegraph messages no extra fee shall be charged for the delivering of any message within the corporate limits of the municipality where the office is located, except after 9 P. M., when 10 cents can be charged; H. No. 188, to repeal an act to suppress tramps and define tramps; No. 191, by Mr. Hinglemen, an act to repeal an act to define the rights of railroad corporations as to the use of lands lying opposite and across streets and highways; No. 197, sup. to lunatic asylum act, provides that no person shall be admitted as an inmate of the asylum before passing an examination before a commission appointed by a Court of Record; No. 200, Rep. Dist. Courts; No. 204, by Mr. Parsons, relating to license for sale of intoxicating liquor, striking out the one quart provision and inserts, for sacramental, medicinal or scientific purposes; No. 205, by Mr. Blodgett, provides for sale of lands devised to religious associations, giving Chancellor power to reinvestment of the proceeds; No. 207, modifies the act concerning crimes for racing, &c., when it is authorized by Agricultural Associations; No. 208, by Mr. Bruen, provides that ballot shall be retained by the Township Clerk instead of being deposited in County Clerk's office; No. 210, exempts from execution tools of any mechanic to the value of $100, and libraries of professional men to the amount of $200; 211, authorizes the Freeholders to sell all weights and measures that may belong to the counties; Sen. No. 125, by Mr. Rosenbury, that in townships where there is no provisions for keeping the poor by counties to purchase land on which to keep and maintain the poor; Sen. No. 126, by Mr. Martin, sup. to publication of laws, sheriff and other notices of sale of land, to be published in two papers having the largest circulation.

PASSED.

H. No. 126, in reference to payment of wages; Sen. 85, allowing pay to the Clerk of Board of Canvassers, not to exceed $25; No. 169, removing the Kearney Statue to Newark; H. No. 157, provides that the election of overseers of roads shall be elected Saturday next preceding town meeting; Sen. No. 21, act providing for reducing the capital stocks of a corporation for relief of Somerset County Bank; Sen. No. 97, act relating to North Plainfield Town Committee, providing for pay as in other townships.

On Monday evening the Governor sent in the names of Joel Parker and Judge Depue for Justices of Supreme Court. No name sent for Judge Woodhull's Circuit. At this time, Tuesday evening, they have not been acted on. It is currently reported that ex-Gov. Parker will not be confirmed by the Senate. The town is full of people advocating the claims of candidates for Comptroller. Jarrard and E. J. Anderson are the only candidates much talked of.—Joint Caucus will be held to-morrow, the matter will then be decided.

Mr. Blodgett offered a resolution today, which is too important to pass by, it is as follows:

WHEREAS, The combined duties of the Treasurer and Comptroller were formerly performed by the Treasurer and Secretary of State, at a yearly expense of about four thousand dollars; and

WHEREAS, The same service now costs the State upwards of twenty-five thousand dollars annually, and instead of the Treasurer and Comptroller operating as a check upon each other, they have, notwithstanding an expensive clerical force is employed in each, been so conducted that a defalcation of upwards of forty thousand dollars and a probable loss of fifteen thousand dollars by reason of the failure of an insolvent bank has occurred in the Treasurer's Department, and a loss of probably twenty thousand dollars by loans made out of State funds to and through the State Comptroller; therefore,

Resolved, That a special committee of three be appointed to inquire into and report by bill or otherwise such measures as will prevent a repetition of these losses; and also report where the large sums of money now held by the State is deposited and whether upon interest or not, and any other measures that will give safety and promote the interests of the State.

FEB. 11, 6 P. M.

BILLS INTRODUCED TO-DAY.

Regulates practice of medicine, shall deposit a copy of diploma in County Clerk's office, under penalty of $25, and that non-graduates cannot collect, &c.; by Mr. Barroughs, as to disorderly persons, fixes fees of justice of peace magistrates, 50 cents for taking a complaint, 25 cents for hearing, 25 cents for committing; No. 222, by Mr. Hance, protects fish, prohibits the use of a purse-net in the capture of fish.

In the Senate, Mr. Hobart introduced a concurrent resolution in regard to increasing the pay of the men connected with the life saving service, who were in the last storm so remarkably successful in saving the lives from the wrecks.

Resolution to be passed and sent by the Governor to Congress.

The fight on Comptroller was a close one. Senator Hays, of Essex, out-winding Jarrard on the 5th ballot. Hays and Jarrard combined would have beaten Anderson, but Jarrard could deliver to Hays. On the 6th ballot, Jarrard had 6 votes and Anderson, 23. The next ballot, Anderson, 27, Jarrard, 4.

The Senate adjourned to-day at noon.

The House holds a session to-night and one to-morrow forenoon.

Nothing new as to the nomination of Judges. Senate has taken no action.

No Bills of importance passed to-day.

The nomination of David J. Meeker for Comptroller of Elizabeth, sent to Council by Mayor Bonnell, was not confirmed.

State Reports.

REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

The report of Hon. John P. Stockton, Attorney-General, for the year 1879, gives the condition of all the suits in which the State of New Jersey is a party, or is interested.

Bills of foreclosure in behalf of the Trustees for the support of Public Schools have been filed, during the year, in fifteen cases; six properties have been bought in under foreclosure; interest has been collected on seventeen mortgages and the mortgages returned to the State Treasurer; on a large number of mortgages partial payments of interest have been made; and in such cases, where the security is good, bills of foreclosure have not been filed. In cases where it was evident a sale would not benefit either party, it has not been pressed.

The mortgages of the West Line R. R. Co. for $82,000, with accumulated interest were foreclosed and sold, bringing the full amount of principal and interest, but a re-sale was ordered by the Chancellor, upon the petition of Francis S. Lathrop. Subsequently an injunction was obtained by the Central R. R. Co., to prevent the sale. As the question involved cover a period of fifteen years and might bring before the courts all the previous decisions and legislation connected with the riparian rights of the State, the assistance of Robert Gilchrist, formerly Attorney-General, has been obtained for this suit.

In the Federal Courts are two cases, State of New Jersey vs. State of Delaware, and John Taylor Johnston vs. the Trustees of the Public Schools.

Ten cases have been argued in the Court of Errors and Appeals, among them the cases of Benj. Noyes, Jennie R. Smith and Covert D. Bennett, and the bondsmen of Joseph Sooy. Five cases have been argued in the Court of Chancery.

Twelve cases have been argued in the Supreme Court.

The Camden & Atlantic R. R. Co., and the Erie, are the only railroad companies that have appealed this year from the assessment of the State Tax made by the Railroad Commissioner. The Erie R. R. case has been argued and decided in favor of the assessment, except a small deduction.

The Camden & Atlantic appeal has not been argued yet. The Railroad tax law has been held to be constitutional and applicable to corporations in the hands of receivers. The Court also held that the taxes of a municipal corporation could not take precedence of mortgages held by the State.

He concludes by saying that he does not think the law requiring a written report should be so constructed as to compel the Attorney-General to give in detail his views of a case, or policy, in reference to its management as being, for obvious reasons, likely to be detrimental to the interests of the State.

REPORT OF RAILROAD TAXATION.

The Annual Report of Major James S. Yard, Commissioner of Railroad Taxation, shows that returns have been filed by 188 townships and cities.

Of these 48 returned "no additional property;" 10 returned "no property liable;" 73 returned "no property;" and in 34 valuations were fixed upon property belonging to 23 railroad corporations, amounting to $3,899,274.33.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, N. J.

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 5, 1880.

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, held at the Court House, in the City of Elizabeth, N. J., on Thursday, February 5th, 1880, at 1 o'clock p. m.

Present—Director Randolph, and Freeholders Briant, Bauer, Crowell, Doty, Forsyth, Fisher, Hubbard, Isemann, Jewell, Miller, Parse, Roll, S. C. Smith, Thos. H. Smith, Thompson, Wilcox.

Absent—None.

The minutes of last meeting were read (payment of bills being on motion omitted) and on motion approved.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Quarterly Statement of the Jail Warden for quarter ending Feb. 1st, 1880, was read, and on motion was received, and placed on file.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The Committee on Jail Inspection presented a statement of the Warden, showing the amount paid out during last quarter, $1,223.24; amount received, $1,187.12; balance due warden, $36.12.

On motion received and placed on file.

The Committee to whom was referred the bill of James L. Brush, reported as follows:

ELIZABETH, Feb. 5th, 1880.

Your Committee on the claim of James L. Brush for two hundred and sixty-four 15-100 dollars, for building a bridge at Westfield, would respectfully report that the same has been paid, a satisfactory settlement of the claim of Geo. Bauerbrun having been made without expense to county.

JAMES L. MILLER,
J. F. HUBBARD, } Com.
S. M. PARSE,

On motion the report was received and placed on file.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Freeholder Isemann:

Resolved, That the Committee on Jail Inspection be instructed to purchase or contract for all provisions and supplies for the use of the Jail, and to make such contracts with the lowest responsible bidder, regulating the length of time such contracts shall run, as they deem for the interest of the county.

On motion adopted by a unanimous vote.

At this point Director Randolph called Freeholder Hubbard to the chair and retired, being a member of the Grand Jury now in session.

By Freeholder Briant:

Whereas, by resolution of the Board, at a meeting held April 11th, 1877, the use of a room in the Court House was granted for holding the District Court, and

Whereas, it is imperatively necessary that the room be now set apart for the use of the County Collector and Prosecutor of the Pleas, therefore

Resolved, That the room be now set apart to their use, and that those occupying the same, be requested to vacate the same.

Freeholder Roll moved as an amendment that the time for vacating the room be fixed at April 1st, next. Carried.

On motion the resolution as amended was adopted.

Prosecutor Fay being present, explained to the Board the necessity of having the room vacated before that time.

Freeholder Roll moved to reconsider the amendment fixing the time for vacating the room.

Carried.

Freeholder Fisher moved to insert March 1st, instead of April 1st.

Amended by Freeholder Miller to February 15th.

Amendment carried.

The resolution as amended was then adopted.

By Freeholder Fisher:

Whereas, Samuel B. Higenbotam was, on the 13th of December, 1879, decided and certified by the Hon. David Mulford, to be an insane person, without estate or means to support himself or family. Without notice to said Higenbotam and without a jury, while said Higenbotam was walking the streets of Elizabeth as an orderly and well behaved citizen, and without the Judge seeing or seeking interview with said Higenbotam.

Whereas, Satisfactory proof has come to this Board that Samuel B. Higenbotam never was an indigent person, and has, and always had sufficient estate and means to support himself and family; and

Whereas, Said Higenbotam having taken up his residence in the State of New York; released from the Morristown Asylum on habeas corpus, pending investigation as to his mental calibre,

Resolved, That this Board request Freeholders Thomas H. Smith and Thomas Forsyth to withdraw their approval of the commitment of said Higenbotam to the said asylum, at the expense of the county, and that Dr. Buttolph be notified of the same by the Clerk of the Board, and directed not to receive said Higenbotam back to the asylum at the cost of expense of this county.

On motion of Freeholder Fisher, Mr. Higenbotam, who was present, was heard in reference to the matter.

Freeholder Forsyth moved the adoption of the resolution, which was carried by a unanimous vote.

Freeholder Fisher moved that the alterations in the District Court room asked for by the Prosecutor be referred to the Committee on Public Buildings.

Which was carried.

The County Collector made a verbal statement in reference to the payment of arrears of taxes.

A Mother's Grief.

The pride of a Mother, the life and joy of a home, are her children, hence her grief when sickness enters and takes them away. Take warning then, that you are running a terrible risk, if they have a Cough, Croup or Whooping Cough, which lead to Consumption, if you do not attend to it at once.—SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE is guaranteed to cure them. Price 10 cts., 50 cts. and $1.00. For lame Back, Side, or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster.—Price 25 cts. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

The Best I Ever Knew Of.

J. G. Starey, a prominent and influential citizen of Iowa City, says: "I have had the Dyspepsia, and Liver Complaint for several years, and have used every Remedy I could hear of, without any relief whatever, until I saw your Shiloh's Vitalizer advertised in our paper, and was persuaded to try it. I am happy to state that it has entirely Cured me. It is certainly the best Remedy I ever knew of. Price 75 cts. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY, a marvellous Cure for Catarrh, Diptheria, Canker Mouth, and Head Ache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal injector for the more successful treatment of the complaint, without extra charge. Price 50 cts. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

We Can't Talk

Without showing the condition of our teeth. Every laugh exposes them. In order not to be ashamed of them let us use that standard dentifrice, SOZODONT, which is sure to keep them white and spotless. No tartar can encrust them, no canker affect the enamel, no species of decay infest the dental bone, if SOZODONT is regularly used. It is a botanical preparation, and its beneficial effects on the teeth and gums are marvelous, as it removes all discolorations, and renders the gums hard and rosy.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Simmons' LIVER DISEASE and Indigestion prevail to a greater extent than probably any other malady and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. [illegible] Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms. Simmons' Liver Regulator is the best remedy that has ever been discovered for these ailments. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for forty years, and hundreds from all parts of the country will vouch for its virtues, viz: Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia; John Gill Shorter, of Alabama; Gen. John B. Gordon, R. L. Mott, of Columbus, [illegible] Bishop Pierce, of Georgia, are among the hundreds to whom we can refer. Extract of a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1872: "I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active medicines."

LIVER

REGULATOR It is not the quantity taken that gives strength, life, blood and health. It is the thorough digestion of the food taken, be it much or little. Therefore, do not stimulate up the stomach to crave food, but rather assist digestion after eating by taking SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR ORIGINAL AND GENUINE, Manufactured only by J. H. ZEILIN & CO., Philadelphia, Pa. [illegible]

The Housekeeper's Friend.
HATLINGER'S CHAMPION CARPET SWEEPER!
Pat. June 24th, 1879, and July 29th, 1880.
No cogs to get out of order! No wear to carpets!
A clean Sweeper! And no dust!

This new and improved carpet sweeper has been contrived to meet a want which the old sweepers only partially supplied. Instead of cog wheels it is operated by belts running on pulleys, which, while revolving so rapidly and evenly as to take up everything in the shape of lint, hair, thread or dust, is never liable to get out of order, and can at any time be set and operated by any housewife. While being superior to any of the old styles as a carpet cleaner, it has this advantage that the metal bearings in which the brush revolves can be lowered as the brush wears. The brush is in front of the box instead of the middle, it acts by hand power, not by the motion of the machine. The box is so placed on the handle as to reach any angle of a room, under a sofa, around piano legs or chairs and tables. It only needs a trial to be appreciated. Price $5.

WE are requested by Postmaster Vail to suggest to parents the propriety of having the address on envelopes of Valentines sent by their children directed in care of the parents of the child receiving the same. The suggestion is a good one and should be adopted. It would not only insure a safe delivery of the missive but save trouble to the Post office officials.

THE reason why the portly form of "Jerry," the mail carrier, is not seen on our streets any more, is because he is confined to his home in consequence of sickness. His aged father, however, faithfully performs the necessary duties previously devolving upon Jeremiah, of transporting the mail matter to and from the depot and post office.

SLAVIN'S Uncle Tom's Cabin Troupe, direct from the New York Aquarium, where they have just finished 72 consecutive performances, will appear at Van Deventer Hall, on Monday evening next. This Troupe is the largest and most complete of any that has ever visited our city and will present the above play as near perfect as it can be done in this city. Reserved seats at Kilgore's Pharmacy.

LAST Friday, while employees of Green & Co., furniture dealers, were hoisting goods from the lower to the upper floors of their new quarters, in Boehm's building on Front Street, the elevator became "unmanageable" and went with a "rush" to the top of the building and then dropped with a "thud" to the cellar below. No one hurt, the principal injury being to the pocket book of the repairer of damages occasioned by the accident.

MESSRS. R. HAFENNY and Thos. McDonald propose letting the citizens of Plainfield know that the birthday of the Father of our Country, Washington, has arrived—and gone past, by firing a salute from the brass piece belonging to the Plainfield Artillery Company, on Monday, Feb. 23d. They solicit subscriptions from all for the purchase of powder to fire such salute. Our patriotic citizens, and those who revere the name of WASHINGTON will certainly respond to their appeal.

THE Plainfield Relief Association acknowledge the following receipts of donations from Jan. 10th to Feb. 11th, 1880:

[illegible]

MRS. JOSEPH M. MYERS, Treasurer.

BISHOP Corrigan has issued a "Pastoral Letter to the Clergy, Secular and Regular, of the Diocese of Newark." In it he speaks of Church Fairs, Picnics, and other entertainments gotten up for the benefit of churches as follows: "In this effort to increase the church revenues, as in all things else, the golden mean is to be observed. In this connection, therefore it becomes necessary to prohibit the holding of fairs or anything of that character on Sundays—not only that the laws of the church may thereby be observed, but the laws of the State also, and that scandal may not be given to our fellow-citizens. It is still more essential to prohibit, as we do by this letter, the holding of picnics, extending into the night, promenade concerts, or whatever other name they have—which experience proves to be fraught with the greatest ruin to souls."

GREEN & Co., furniture dealers, are now located in their new quarters on Front street, formerly occupied by O. Runyon in the same business, where, with their large stock of elegant furniture, they invite a call from the public.

THE Singin' Skewl at Van Deventer Hall last Monday evening, under the supervision of Aunt Polly Bassett, Jerusha and Jedediah, was attended by a large and appreciative audience. It was, as expected, a good entertainment, and afforded much pleasure to those present. Van Deventer Hall is becoming very popular for such entertainments.

Eureka!

A change of advertisement for Messrs. Edsall & Price, Dry Goods Merchants, came too late for insertion in this issue. Among the specialties advertised is Gents' English half hose, only 21 cents per pair. For the ladies, remnants in table linen, crashes, etc. Give the firm a call also before purchasing your Hamburg Edgings.

Lost.

A child's neck handkerchief, three-cornered shape, light blue colored, trimmed with white lace. The article was lost on Front street or Park avenue last Monday evening. As it is a gift to the child, the finder will be rewarded and receive the thanks of the owner by returning the same to the office of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

The Next Entertainment

Given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. of Plainfield, will be that of the Grand Concert by the Mendelssohn Quintette Club, in the Congregational church, Monday evening, Feb. 23d. It is needless for us to extoll the excellence of this Club. They are too well known by our music-loving citizens. We guarantee them a large audience. Reserved seats may be obtained at Reynolds' Pharmacy, if application is made soon enough.

The Ice Crop.

Our ice merchants are actively engaged in harvesting ice in this vicinity. Messrs. Coddington and Wilson & Simpson are cutting the commodity from their ponds in North Plainfield, and Tier & Son from "Tier's Lake" ~~"Bonny's Pond,"~~ or whatever name it may be called by. The ice is about six inches in thickness and is of good and pure quality. If the ice men are not financially happy over the threatened "ice famine," the consumer is.

Flattering.

We clip from The Fargo Daily Argus, Dakota Territory, the following flattering notice for one of Plainfield's former residents, the daughter of A. Vanderbeek, Esq., she having sang at a Charity Concert given in Fargo: "The soprano solo last evening by Pinsuti, 'I love my love,' rendered by Mrs. J. J. Shotwell, was cordially applauded. Mrs. Shotwell is an artist of much more than average cultivation, and her voice gives evidence not only of great natural power and sweetness, but of careful study as well."

Grand Concert at Westfield.

We go to press too early this week to publish a deserved and complimentary report of the Grand Concert at Westfield, Thursday evening, Feb. 12th, given under the supervision of Messrs. H. & O. G. Webb. The artists were all of well-known ability and executed their several *parts to the entire satisfaction and pleas*ure of the large audience present, which consisted of the best citizens of the town. The gentlemen directly interested in the venture of making a first-class Concert in Westfield a paying investment, are to be congratulated upon their success. We desire to refer more minutely to this Concert in our next issue.

State Board of Education.

The annual meeting of this body was held at the Executive Chamber at the State House, Friday last. The following were elected officers for the ensuing year: President—Governor George B. McClellan; Vice President—William A. Whitehead, of Essex. Secretary—E. A. Apgar, State Superintendent, (ex-officio.) Executive Committee—John McLean, D. D., L. L. D., of Mercer; W. A. Whitehead, Essex; Chas. E. Elmer, Cumberland; Henry C. Kelsey, of Sussex; Com. on Grounds and Buildings, C. D. Rossell, Mercer; Henry C. Kelsey and J. B. Woodward, Burlington. The Committee on Industrial Education made a report, but no definite action was taken. The matter will probably be decided in a short time. The Board adjourned subject to the call of the Governor.

Heavy Mail Matter.

The mail matter sent out each week by the "Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle," whose headquarters will for the next five years be in Vanderbeek's new building on the corner of Park and North avenues, this city (the future quarters also of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST) is immense. Within a week over 1,500 pounds of mail matter has been sent through the Post Office of Plainfield to different parts of the Union by this Association. In four days there was 936 pounds sent. Rev. Dr. Vincent, the well-known Sunday School organizer, is "Bishop of Chautauqua" and "head centre" of the "Circle." As the multiplicity of duties incidental to his office requires his presence in various parts of the Union from time to time, his associate workers, Revs. Hurlbut and Megie will have charge of the affairs of the "Circle" at headquarters in the locality above mentioned, during his absence.

Ellis Family.

The above well-known troupe of Vocalists will appear at Van Deventer Hall, Friday evening, Feb. 13th, under the auspices of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., of this city. The Ellis Family have a first-class reputation as artists of ability in their line of profession, and as the object of their coming here, under the auspices as above stated, is a most worthy one, they should certainly have a crowded audience to witness and encore their efforts. The tickets for the entertainment have been placed at the low figures of 35 and 50 cents. Every teacher, student, day or Sunday School scholar in this place should not miss the opportunity to hear and see the graceful little Fannie May, the wonderful child elocutionist. She will cause you to weep and laugh in spite of yourself. Miss Romie will charm you with her powerful, sweet Contralto voice. Fred and Frank, her twin brothers, are great favorites, with their pleasing songs.

Sentence Day.

Saturday last was sentence day in the Union County Courts, and Plainfield city had three representative cases for Judge McCormick, as follows:

Adam Fritz, charged with assault and battery upon Nicholas Geisser. Sentence, $25 and costs, amounting in all to $65. Mr. F. gave his check for the amount and returned home with his counsel, Hon. Wm. B. Maxson.

Thomas Ryan, stealing a watch from his aunt, Bridget Boyle. Fined $25 and costs.

Michael Sweeney, Jr., convicted of assault and battery on Emma McGhay, not being present at the close of Court, sentence was deferred to Monday, Feb. 9th, at which time he was fined $10 and costs.

In the case of Francis Guind, charged with shooting four ducks belonging to Peter Hoagland of this city, the jury, after deliberating over night, brought Francis in guilty of misdemeanor. The four ducks has cost the county more dollars than many times four ducks were worth. Francis will know better next time than to shoot ducks "out of season."

Personalia.

Our esteemed Democratic friend, Hon. John T. Dunn, the "lone star" representing the Democracy of Union County in the House of Assembly, from the First District, in company with Alderman Hawkins, from Newark, was in our city on Friday last. Mr. Dunn is daily making friends among his colleagues by his honest and straightforward action on all bills coming before him.

Why it should be Paid.

There are several reasons why the bill for services rendered the city of Plainfield, by Wm. B. Maxson, Esq., should be paid, principally the following:

1st—The services were performed at the request of the city.

2d—The bill is reasonable, and a private citizen would not cavil about it.

3d—The city ought not remain longer under the imputation of refusing to acknowledge an honest claim for services faithfully performed.

4th—The taxpayers and property owners do not want it to go out to the world that the city of Plainfield have to be sued for just claims, and repudiate honest debts.

5th—Is it possible that because Mr. Maxson is not of the same political party as the Common Council, he is to be denied simple justice.

Our Common Council should practice Common Honesty in the matter, and save expense to the taxpayers in the way of paying fees to compel the payment of an honest and just claim against the city. Mr. M. has but done his duty as a lawyer for his client and should be paid for his services therefor.

Regulations for Lent.

Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent, will fall, in this year, on the 11th day of February.

1. All the week days of Lent, from Ash Wednesday till Easter Sunday, are fast days of precept, on one meal, with the allowance of a moderate collation in the evening.

2. The precept of fasting implies also that of abstinence from the use of flesh meat. But by the express authority of the Holy See, the use of flesh meat is allowed in this Diocese at every meal on Sunday, and at the principal meal on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, with the exception of Holy Thursday, and the second and last Saturdays of Lent.

3. It is not allowed to use fish with flesh meat at the same meal in Lent.

4. There is no prohibition to use eggs, butter or cheese, provided the rules of quantity prescribed by the fast be complied with, except on Good Friday, when all white meats are specially forbidden.

5. Lard, butter, dripping of any kind may be used in preparing fish, vegetables, etc.

The Church excuses from the obligation of fasting (but not of abstinence from flesh meat, except in special cases of sickness or the like,) the following classes of persons: 1st, the infirm. 2d, those whose duties are of an exhausting or laborious character. 3d, persons who are attaining their growth. 4th, women in pregnancy, or nursing infants. 5th, those who are enfeebled by old age.

All alike, however, should enter into the spirit of this holy season, which is, in a special manner, a time of prayer, and sorrow for sin, of almsgiving and mortification. Those particularly who cannot fast are exhorted to make suitable compensation by more liberal alms to the poor, and other good works according to their ability.

By order of the Right Rev. Bishop,

W. P. SALT,
Secretary.

P. S.—As Holy Thursday falls this year on the 25th of March—the Feast of the Annunciation—the Reverend Rectors are hereby authorized to say low Masses on that day, in order to enable the faithful to comply with the precept of hearing Mass.

The Consecration of the Holy Oils at the cathedral will take place at ten o'clock.

BISHOP'S HOUSE, NEWARK, Feb. 1, A. D. 1880.

Our Home Talent.

We doubt if there is a city of the size of ours in this state that contains as much true amateur dramatic talent as Plainfield. We are led to believe this after witnessing the performances given by the "Thespian Club" at Laing's Hall the evenings of Monday and Tuesday of this week, the piece rendered being that of "The Gun-Maker of Moscow." The play is not an easy one for amateurs, but we must say that the members of the Thespian Club who took parts in the above mentioned piece the nights in question, did themselves and association credit. Both evenings the Hall was comfortably filled by an appreciative audience. Gentlemanly ushers conducted each attendant to their respective seats according to the number of their checks. There was less noise and confusion during the performance than usually occurs on like occasions, the same being due to controlling influences which was brought to bear upon a certain class of youths who are wont to attend performances of the kind. To individualize separate characters in a cast composed of home talent is a delicate task for a writer, and we are not unmindful of the ire we may bring down on our heads for attempting such a task, but we desire to speak in commendable terms of the gentlemen who took the characters of the principal personages in the play, because they did so well. We mean that of Valdimer, the monk, Ruric Nevel, the Gun-Maker, Olga, Duke of Tula, Count Demanoff and Paul Bizewacks. These several parts were ably and creditably performed, and only for the fact that the gentlemen taking the parts were so well-known to the audience as friends and acquaintances, their efforts would be pronounced by them as equalling that of professionals. Especially was the character of the monk finely rendered. We have witnessed like performances where so-called "professionals" failed to so ably represent the character. Probably the most difficult part to act was that of the Duke. It was most ably sustained, however, and the gentleman performing the part is to be congratulated upon the success attending his efforts. The personification, also, of Count Demanoff, by the member taking the part, was good. Every action and word of speech was in strict accord with the part being performed. The principal character of the play is that of Ruric Nevel, the Gun-Maker. It was well sustained, although the gentleman rendering it betrays his native tongue to the detriment of the character he represents. Still, he ably sustains the part by gesture and action, and in personating other characters, has no peer in the Club. There is always a funny personage in every plays. So there was in this one. He who took the part of Paul Bizewacks is to be congratulated upon the success of his efforts. The applause he received should reward him.

The lady characters were ably sustained by talent introduced from outside our city. Miss Effie Henderson as "Rosalind Valdai," Miss E. Alexander as "Claudia Nevel," (mother of Ruric) and Miss Lizzie Karwan as "Zenoble," separately performed their various roles with satisfaction to the audience and were duly applauded. The scenery used on the occasion was very well adapted for the play, and was designed by Mr. Jules Boutes, who also furnished the really elegant stage costumes worn by the performers. The Orchestra, under the supervision of Prof. Frasse, rendered fine music for the occasion. Of course he gave satisfaction. Who ever knew him not to so do. The Entertainment was a grand success throughout, and we learn that the proceeds will net a handsome sum for the benefit of the Sunday School Library of St. Mary's Church.

Feininger Recital.

The next Music Recital given by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Feininger, will be held in the Congregational Church, next Tuesday evening. Miss Fannie T. Ketcham, Piano Soloist, Miss Lili Eiche, Violinist and Miss Anna O. March, Accompanist, all of Plainfield, will assist as Executants.

Lenten Services.

Grace church, Mondays and Saturdays at 4:30 p. m.; Wednesdays and Fridays, 12 m.; Tuesdays and Thursdays, 8 p. m.

Church of the Holy Cross, Mondays, Tuesdays and Saturdays at 4 p. m.; Wednesdays and Fridays 10:30 a. m.; Thursdays 8 p. m.

St. Mary's R. C. church, Wednesday and Friday evenings at 8 o'clock.

P. A. C. Gymnasium.

We are pleased to record the announcement that the efforts of the gentlemen composing the Plainfield Athletic Club to establish a Gymnasium in our city, has proven successful. Already a class of ladies numbering 28, a boys' class of 45 and an evening class of adults of 30, has been formed, and under the thorough training of Prof. Burnham are likely to receive great benefits physically and otherwise from the lesson given them by him. The following programme was adopted by the Club last Monday evening:

HOUSE RULES.

1. The Gymnasium will be open for the use of the members of the Club from 9 to 12 a. m., and from 2 to 6 p. m., on such days as are not set apart for the Ladies; and every evening, (except Sundays), from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m.

2. No persons except members in good standing will be allowed to exercise upon the apparatus or use the implements, unless by special permission of the managers in charge.

3. No member will be allowed to exercise in any but suitable dress (as decided upon by the managers) and shoes or boots with heels of any kind must not be worn.

4. Skylarking and all boisterous games in any of the rooms and rough and unnecessary use of the apparatus, implements or any of the properties of the club, are strictly prohibited. Any person injuring any of the furniture or fixtures of the Gymnasium through recklessness or carelessness, will be held responsible to either replace or repair it.

5. Lady visitors are invited to be present at all exercising hours, and gentlemen at any time when the Ladies' classes are not in session.

6. Smoking will not be allowed in the Gymnasium or Dressing Room.

7. It is expected that all members will join in the exercises of the evening class.

CLASS RULES.

1. Members will please deposit their valuables with the person in charge of the building, as the managers will not hold themselves responsible unless this rule is complied with.

2. Members of the different classes will not be allowed to exercise in any other class unless by special permission; and boys under sixteen years of age will not be permitted to exercise in the evenings.

3. Classes meet as follows:

Masters' Class Saturday afternoons from 2:30 to 4 o'clock.

Ladies' Class Saturday afternoons from 4 to 5:30 o'clock.

Gentlemen's Class Saturday evenings at 7:30 o'clock.

The afternoons set apart for Masters are Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. For Ladies, Tuesdays and Saturdays. It is not desired by the managers that members of the afternoon classes should exercise at other times.

FIRE MATTERS.

"No. 2" steamer was out for a "wash" on Monday evening last. Everything worked satisfactory.

The residents of Red Bank propose purchasing a Smith hand fire engine, piano deck style. They have given it a trial and will pay $500 for it.

New Brunswick firemen are agitated over the proposed change in the affairs of the Fire Department, said change taking certain rights away from them which are dear to firemen.

Several of the covers of the fire wells in this city need raising up to a level with the road beds of the thoroughfares whereon they are located. Will the Committee on Wells please attend to this matter?

Again has our esteemed friend, and popular Foreman of "Alert Hose Co. No. 1," Auguste Saltzman, been the recipient of an elegant present, mention of which should have been made in a previous issue of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST. Oversight is the excuse in this instance. The present consists of a handsomely framed large size portrait of Chief A. C. Hendrick, of the New Haven, Conn. Fire Department. Judging from the picture, Mr. H. is a good looking man. He certainly presents the ideal of a good looking fireman, portrayed as he is in his picture as a fireman in full uniform, with firemen's paraphernalia surrounding him. Mr. Hendrick has been Chief of the New Haven Fire Department for fourteen years, which fact evidences that he is a favorite "laddie" among the "laddies" of that city. Foreman Saltzman has caused the picture to be suspended from the wall in the parlor of his residence, and justly feels proud of this acquisition to his array of pictures.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe has been resting after a lecturing tour, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. David Prescott Hall, of this village. On Friday evening last, the charming poetess welcomed a number of visitors, all of whom were delighted to be presented to one of America's distinguished daughters of literature. The company enjoyed the sparkling conversation and instructive reminiscences of the talented lady until a late hour. Among the guests were the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Sykes, Dr. Abraham Coles, Miss Emilie S. Coles, Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, Dr. H. C. Fithian, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shephard, Miss Mary Mead, Miss A. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Middleditch, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Brower, Miss Kyte, Mr. J. Loder Raymond and Mr. T. H. Gere.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

On Saturday last a turtle dove was observed sitting in the middle of the road on South avenue, this city. An unusual circumstance to find one of these birds in this section at this time of the year.

Some miscreant entered the boat house of the Columbia College Boat Club on the Harlem river, one night last week, and cut six of the best racing shells in the house, utterly ruining them for racing purposes.

There will be a shooting match near Brittin's Hotel, Scotch Plains, on Monday, Feb. 23d. A large number of pigeons will be furnished. Several sweepstake matches will be shot between well-known professional and amateur sportsmen.

The Rochester Union says:

"Our Dominion neighbors are becoming excited over the fishing business and it is announced that the fish and game protection society of Montreal urge that protection of game as well as fish should be under the control of the Dominion government. It was stated at the dinner of the club recently, that the fisheries of the Dominion are worth $13,000,000 a year, against $300,000 or $400,000 in 1863."

The deer park scheme on the Lorillard estate at Jobstown, Monmouth County, has been given up and the land now being fenced off will be stocked with English hares, partridges, pheasants, &c. The preserve will be enclosed by a high and tight fence. It is situated on the Gaunt farm on the Monmouth road and the Annanicken branch runs through it. Mr. Percy C. Ohl, of this city, last week visited certain localities in Tennessee, and secured some 10,000 quail for the above preserve.

THAT was a funny customer that Capt. Dodd met last night who would rather be arrested and sent to the County Jail for three months than to have $5 given him.

COMMUNICATED.

For "The Constitutionalist."

EVONA, FEB. 9, 1880.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—In your last issue, in noticing the entertainment in aid of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, you kindly mentioned the fact that the Society were indebted to Mr. Hoagland for services in his line of business. Your informant neglected to tell you that thanks were equally due to Mr. Wallace for similar favors. If you could spare a line or two, to convey our acknowledgments to him, you would confer a great favor.

Yours truly, P.

For "The Constitutionalist."

MESSRS. EDITORS:—A wise movement is on foot in this township, and is meeting with unqualified approval from all those most deeply interested who have thus far been spoken to in regard to it. It involves a moderate outlay to begin with; but is so far reaching in its results, will insure so permanent a relief from one form of taxation (thus largely easing the future burdens of our citizens) and will, beyond any reasonable doubt, cause such an influx of settlers, of the most desirable class, that the favor with which the enterprise is regarded is easily accounted for. The proposition is to go before the legislature, at its next session, and ask for authority for the township to purchase a set of macadamizing machinery, and to macadamize its own roads and streets.—This machinery costs, we understand, about $1,900; and, once owned by the township, there is nothing but unfavorable weather that need interrupt the work from its inception till its termination; which will leave this the model town of the State. Many of our men and even boys, now often unemployed, would then have steady and useful employment, which, by anticipating our road taxes for a few years, we can purchase immunity from them for the best part of a generation to come.

The prosperity of the town would be immensely enhanced by the number of settlers whom our perfect roads would surely attract; families of the class that appreciate and use the public roads for pleasure as well as for necessity. The direct result, it is needless to say, would be an immediate and important advance in the value of every lot and acre within our borders.

Briefly, we have no class of citizens to whom this project does not appeal with more or less favor and directness. The unquestioned success of the macadamizing of South avenue is only one instance in point. In all the years that have elapsed since it was finished it has not, so far as we know, cost one single dollar for repairs.

Think of it. Roads calling for no yearly taxes—for no monthly repairs; roads perfect in all seasons; clear as a flagged sidewalk, while our neighboring townships are wallowing in mud to their axles.

On the initiation of the movement one citizen suggested that a difficulty might arise from the impatience of each particular property owner to have his own immediate front first finished. But a collection of thoughtful opinions soon showed this to be a needless anxiety. The proper system being, as finally suggested (and which must meet the views of all thinking people) to proceed on exact business principles, thus:

The township map shows two main arteries; the first, leading from Green Brook through Scotch Plains to the junction of the Willow Grove road, being the most important, from the greater volume of its traffic.

The second, both in extent and traffic, being the Plainfield road, (Front Street) from the town line to Scotch Plains; with its natural outlet or continuation the Springfield road, to the town line east.

These completed, to continue doing the streets and roads in the order of their importance until all are finished.

One element of saving in the expense of the work will be made in the large item of foundation stone; realized by the desire of property owners to get rid of their accumulation of surface stone. These in many instances occupy so much space that might be otherwise profitably used, that owners, especially farmers, would gladly cart them to their road front free. But even if the township has to cart them, the finding of this supply so close to where it is to be used would, of itself, be a large saving, and would leave little beside the filling and finishing coats to be brought from a distance.

With our great needs in the way of good roads; our prosperous condition as a township; the ultimate economy of the undertaking, and our fine natural advantage in the limitless supply of mountain trap-rock, it seems as though every consideration is favorable to this work.

We hope there will be no going backward, for nothing ever brought forward was of such vital importance to the property owners of Fanwood.

Since writing the above, a leading engineer and architect remarked while discussing this class of roads, "They are the most perfect, I might say the only perfect roads. Why, sir, I remember that my business once required me to walk some 15 miles out from Baltimore city along the Frederick Pike, a well-known Maryland road, after a period of exceedingly bad weather, such as would leave common country roads knee deep; yet at the end of my walk my boots were no more soiled than they would have been on a New York sidewalk."

This, then, is what macadamizing does for country roads.

Yours truly,
FANWOOD.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

"Something new again. A shooting gallery has been started in the "Old Hanneman Fort."

At a meeting of the Republican voters held on Thursday evening, Feb. 5th, Messrs. J. L. Miller and W. W. Connoly were elected to represent Westfield at the County Executive Committee.

The Union Prayer Meetings closed last week.

The meeting of H. & L. Co. No. 1 was rather hurried last Monday night, owing to the meeting of the Town Committee, which met at 8 o'clock. A great many of the members, therefore, came too late.

The Ellis Family gave an entertainment at the Presbyterian Lecture room on Monday night for the benefit of the Sunday School Library Fund.

The Town Committee met on Monday night, Feb. 9th, to settle up the affairs of the Township, and to make out the list of those back taxes which in the judgment of the Collector are uncollectable and useless to retain on the list from year to year, and also those properties that the Township bought for taxes. A resolution was brought before the Committee by the Chairman, to abolish all the old Road Dists., and to have only two Districts in the whole Township, the dividing line to commence at the intersection of the Springfield road with Fanwood Township, and shall include Springfield road to Mountain Ave. at Carberry's corner; then to Klepy's corners, the road leading past J. H. Mooney to Broad St.; then to road leading past E. M. Pierson, to Cranford line. All north of this line is District No. 2; south, No. 1. The resolution was adopted. Worth and Fairbairn voting in the affirmative and E. M. Pierson in the negative.

Henry Manning commenced cutting ice on Tuesday last. It is his first cutting this Winter, and is about 9 inches in thickness.

The little folks had an enjoyable time at the residence of Miss L. Palmer, on Mountain Ave., Tuesday evening last.

The firm of Lilienstern & Stone, dealers in clothing, has been dissolved.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

Judge Dalrymple has confirmed the report of the Commissioners appointed to re-assess benefits and damages in the matter of Johnston Drive, Somerset St. and Grove Street extension, which will relieve the Township to the extent of about $30,000, which they would otherwise be compelled to pay. As soon as the official papers in the case are served, Mr. F. H. Gardener, Township Treasurer, will prepare a statement of the finances of the Township, giving facts and figures for the citizens and taxpayers. Messrs. Suydam & Jackson, Attorneys, represented the Township in the above case.

The Bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Schenck, and which is intended to give pay to the three Town Committeemen chosen each year, has passed the Senate and been sent to the House.

DUNELLEN ITEMS.

On Monday next, the 16th inst., the "Ellis Family" will give a concert in the Presbyterian Church.

On Thursday evening, the 5th inst., the friends of the faithful and efficient pastor of the M. E. Church, Rev. S. D. Jones assembled in force at the parsonage for the laudable purpose of making their accustomed donation visit. The company was a pleasant one, and having spent the evening socially and agreeably, and partaken of the usual repast, they departed for their respective homes, leaving behind them many substantial tokens of their esteem for the pastor and his amiable wife. The cash proceeds were about $46.

On Tuesday evening, the 10th inst., a highly artistic, vocal and instrumental concert was given in the Presbyterian Church, under the direction of the chorister, Mr. T. B. Brown. The artists were five in number, four of whom were from N. Y. City: Their names were: Mrs. Imogene Brown, Soprano; Miss Emma Wilkinson, Contralto; Mr. W. S. Leggett, Tenor; Mr. T. B. Brown, Baritone; Mr. Carl Walter, Pianist. The programme was classic, the audience select and appreciative, and the execution almost faultless. Perhaps the only criticism that would be warranted, would be that the performance was above the comprehension of a popular audience. More of the popular element would have been acceptable.

On Monday afternoon last, the usually quiet stream of popular excitement in our village received quite an impetus by the occurrence of the trial of a rather novel civil suit, before his honor, Justice Vars, and a jury of good men and true, selected with scrupulous care by Constable Pierce. This suit was an action brought by Mr. Geo. C. Messler, against Mr. Thomas C. Bodine, to recover the value,—claimed to be $75—for a lot of shelving removed from the store-house of the plaintiff, by the defendant; said defendant claiming that they were his by right of purchase; said plaintiff's wife testifying that they were hers. Lawyer Trimmer of this place appeared for the plaintiff, and Prosecutor Strong of New Brunswick for the defendant. The testimony was heard, the lawyers "summed up" with "matchless eloquence," and the jury went out to deliberate upon the weighty issues which hung suspended in the balance. After three hour's meditation they reached the decision that Mr. Thomas C. Bodine was indebted to Mr. Geo. C. Messler in the sum of $20. Mr. Bodine, failing to see it in the same light, immediately appealed to a higher tribunal. Thus closed chapter one, but the end is not yet.

Wine for Sickly Persons. Speer's Port Grape Wine is unexcelled by any other in its mellow juiciness, richness of flavor and brilliancy of color. Physicians say it is superior to imported Port for invalids, and in summer it is more agreeable and refreshing than others. Clergymen use it for its purity, as a communion wine. This wine is well known and highly appreciated for weakly females and aged persons, and for communion. For sale by all Druggists. 12t 2w

Invaluable for Railroad Men. "I suffered for more than a year with indigestion and during the last six months I was very bilious, occasionally having a dumb chill, followed by fevers, which prostrated me. I took Simmons' Liver Regulator, and for several months I have been as stout and hearty as any man could desire to be. I am thoroughly satisfied that it is all it is recommended to be for indigestion and bilious complaints, for mine was certainly a stubborn case. I have heard many of my friends speak of it, and all agree that it possesses all the virtues you claim for it. A. H. HIGHTOWER, Conductor M. and W. R. R."

Nothing Short of Unmistakable Benefits conferred upon tens of thousands of sufferers could originate and maintain the reputation which AYER'S SARSAPARILLA enjoys. It is a compound of the best vegetable alteratives, with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and is the most effectual of all remedies for scrofulous, mercurial, or blood disorders. Uniformly successful and certain in its remedial effects, it produces rapid and complete cures of Scrofula, Sores, Boils, Humors, Pimples, Eruptions, Skin Diseases and all disorders arising from impurity of the blood. By its invigorating effects it always relieves and often cures Liver Complaints; a potent renewer of vitality. For purifying the blood it has no equal. It tones up the system, restores and preserves the health, and imparts vigor and energy. For forty years it has been in extensive use, and is to-day the most available medicine for the suffering sick, anywhere. For Sale by all Dealers.

U. S. Pension Agency
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Under a recent act of Congress pensions will commence from the date of the discharge or death of a soldier; but only a few short months are allowed claimants in which to file their claims. Under this law a pensioner will now receive as a first payment the snug sum of $1,500 or more, and $8 per month thereafter. A pensioner on account of the death or disability of an officer will receive much larger amounts. Pensions allowed all officers and soldiers who were in the Army or Navy of the late war, for wounds, disease, rupture, blindness, deafness or other injury; also to their widows and children; also to mothers and fathers, also to all 1812 soldiers and their widows. There are hundreds in this section who are justly entitled and don't know it. If you are in doubt call on me at my office and I will cheerfully give you the necessary information without charge and in any event I make no charge until the pension is allowed and you receive the money thereon, then only ten dollars as fixed by law.
Remember the law soon expires by limitation. Apply at once!

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

1879.

The number of orators who in 1878 began their speeches with, "Fellow citizens of this glorious country," was eighty-five; the number in 1879 was only eighty-four. Let us be thankful for small favors and have hopes of the future.

The kerosene can showed a decided falling off in activity. Only seventeen females hurried up the fire.

Of the one hundred and fifty-two householders who borrowed shot-guns and took dead aim at "that infernal cat," three hit the cat and the remainder knocked over small boys and other live stock, and are now wondering how on earth they could have possibly done it.

Eighteen hundred and seventy-nine was a good year for deaf persons to go visiting. Thirty-four of them took the railroad track to save distance. The day express was on time.

The last year was also noticeable for the number of persons who took a quiet smoke after going to bed, fell asleep and passed into a better land at the expense of insurance companies. A clay pipe and a cent's worth of tobacco are all the outfit needed.

A number of kind-hearted people who went out hunting, mistook a friend for a wild turkey, fox or grizzly and peppered him dead was fourteen, with Rhode Island to hear from. Every one of them felt bad enough to cry, but mistakes will happen in all families.

The sea serpent was seen only nine times during 1879. This may influence some persons to believe that he is gradually dying out and will soon become extinct, but there is no danger of it—not with the present breed of sea captains.

The number of mothers who left rat poison and other fatal doses where the children could get at them was twenty-one. This is a decrease over the previous year, and in the dim future womankind may possibly realize the fact that children, cats, rats, cockroaches and ants are susceptible to the same influence.

During 1879 only two householders mistook the hired girl for a burglar and popped her dead. There is consequently no demand for a national convention of hired girls to discuss the question: "Shall we wear bullet-proof corsets and demand more wages?"

Eighteen hundred and seventy-nine produced no improvement in drawing teeth; no consolation for the man who has to have his hair cut; no better method for breaking in new boots; no new route for embezzlers to get into Canada; no way of getting along on the street cars except to stand up, and no new way of getting back small loans.—Considered as a whole, she wasn't anything extra of a year, even for bad weather.

"FISHERMAN, MISTER."

He was tall, lean and a stranger. He didn't seem to care a cent whether his relations saw him or not, but when he faced Justice Duffy at the bar of the Jefferson Market Police Court he sought to dislodge the mud that had gathered in inseparable masses at the ends of his flowing locks and made ineffectual efforts to straighten out the tails of his coat, which the boys had cut off while he lay in the ashbox couch at night, a sigh escaped his lips, his jaw dropped and he murmured:

"I ain't bin yar long, Mister."

"Don't mister the Court, sir," ordered His Honor.

"Is this yar a Court?"

"Yes, sir, and I want you to respect it."

"Let's look 'roun' a minit', mister, will ye. Durned ef this don't beat all I've ever seed. Say, mister, how much does a court like this yar cost?"

The Court was growing angry and spoke in stern tones:

"What is your business, sir?"

"Fisherman, mister, an' I come—"

"Don't mister the Court, sir," ordered His Honor.

"Yes, sir, but I war about to say I come from Dover, Me., ef you hain't no objections. Now, whar you from?"

"What are you doing here then?" asked the Court heedless of his question.

"Come yar to fish in the Hudson for shad, halibut, haddock and—"

"They don't abound in the Hudson, sir."

"Then I'll ketch pike, pickerel, pollywogs, perch or suthin'. Please let me go, mister, I'm all alone in the world, an'—"

"Ah, a 'lone fisherman.'"

"That's war yer right, mister."

"You can go," said His Honor.

The stranger left to try his luck in the waters of the Hudson.

COMING FOR ITEMS.

A few days ago, a lady of Salt Lake City commenced thinking on family economies, and the more she thought the more evident it became that her girl, who had hitherto done the marketing, was extravagant, grossly extravagant. There was no reason in the world why a few cents should not be saved each day, and in a few years, when dark clouds of disaster hovered above the horizon, or words to that effect, a nice little sum would be saved for her and her Johnny to live upon.—There was a firm determination in her eye when she announced her purpose to hereafter look after the purchasing of provisions. She stalked down the street like a woman with a fixidity of purpose, and shot into a popular meat shop with the inquiry: "Mr. Nannal, what do you sell your pigs' heads at?"

"Ten cents, Mrs. Blank."

"Well, send me one."

"Do you wish a large or small one."

"A big one, of course—the biggest you have," she replied, determined not to be cheated.

That night when her husband went home he was dumbfounded. Head cheese everywhere. No chair could be used for its purpose—head cheese on it; refrigerator, tables, piano, barrels, all had head cheese on them. The wife had a triumphant airing spell, and then explained: "Bargain of mine, Johnny. Bought a splendid head for ten cents from Mr. Nannal. Didn't pay, either, told him to send the bill at once."

On the following day the bill came.—The husband's eyes were like saucers as he showed his consort the paper.

"Bless me," she exclaimed. "What an old fraud he is, and I just won't stand it, now! I made a special bargain of ten cents, and he has the impudence to send in his bill for $9.50. I'll go and see him right away and give him my opinion, now you see if I don't."

A few minutes later she was face to face with the butcher.

"Didn't I make a special bargain with you yesterday for that pig's head?"

"I don't know, I'm sure, but if you say so, I admit it."

"Well, I do; I bought it for ten cents."

"Yes, that's right, that's what we sell them at. You wanted the biggest one, and I sent you from a 1,500 pound porker, which weighed ninety-five pounds, and at ten cents a pound—"

"Oh, bother the pounds. I said nothing about pounds!"

"Did you expect to get ninety-five pounds of pork for ten cents?"

"Don't say anything of this to my husband. Let him pay the ten cents, and I'll pay the rest."

"I won't," replied the butcher, "but there's a fellow coming here often for items, and I'll tell him."

"If you do, I'll kill you and him, too, the wretch!"

WASHINGTON FIFTY YEARS AGO.

In those days it was no easy task to reach Washington from distant parts of the country, and the members of Congress from those localities used often to leave their homes three or four weeks before the opening of a session. A few performed the journey in their own carriages, and others rode saddle-horses, which they retained for their use during the session and then sold. But a large majority of the senators, representatives, correspondents and claimants who came to Washington traveled in the stage-coaches, and there was always a great demand for seats just before the commencement of a session, on all the lines which centered at the metropolis.

The stage lines which ended at Washington always had fine teams of horses to run in and out of the city, and passengers arriving used to be taken at full speed up to the door of the hotel which they had previously indicated to their driver. There were half-a-dozen from which to choose, but the favorite establishment was the Indian Queen Hotel, which occupied the site of the present Metropolitan Hotel, and was designated by a large swinging sign, upon which figured Pocahontas, painted in glaring colors. The landlord, Jesse Brown, who used to come to the curbstone to "welcome the coming guest," was a native of Havre de Grace, who had served his apprenticeship to tavern-keeping at Hagerstown and in Alexandria. A glance at the travelers, as they alighted and were ushered by him into the house, would enable him mentally to assign each one to a room, the advantages of which he would describe ere sending its destined occupant there under the pilotage of a colored servant. When the next meal was ready, the newly-arrived guest was met at the door of the dining-room by Mr. Brown, wearing a large white apron, who escorted him to a seat, and then went to the head of the table, where he carved and helped the principal dish. The excellencies of this—fish, flesh or fowl—he would announce, as he would invite those seated at the table to send up their plates for what he knew to be their favorite portion; and he would also invite attention to the dishes on other parts of the table which were carved and helped by the guests who sat nearest to them. Those at the table thus knew what was before them without reading elaborately printed bills of fare; often containing the names of a dozen dishes that have no existence except in the imagination of the caterer.

Washington had then been called by an observing foreigner "the city of magnificent distances," an appellation which was well merited. There was a group of small, shabby houses around the navy yard and the marine barracks; another cluster on the river bank, just above the arsenal, which was to have been the business centre of the metropolis; and Pennsylvania avenue, from the Capitol to Georgetown, with the streets immediately adjacent, was lined with houses, many of them with shops on the ground floor. The executive departments were located in four brick edifices on the corners of the square in the centre of which was the White House.

Pennsylvania avenue—the Appian Way of our Republic—was graded while Jefferson was President, at a cost of $14,000; he personally superintended the planting of four rows of Lombardy poplars along that portion of it between the Capitol and the White House—a row along each curbstone, and two equidistant rows in the roadway, which was thus divided into three parts, like Unter der Linden at Berlin. In the Winter and Spring the driveway would often be full of mud-holes, some of them axle-deep, and some of the cross streets would be almost impassible beds of red clay, worked by passing horses and wheels into a thick mortar. On one occasion, when Mr. Webster and a friend undertook to go to Georgetown in a hackney coach to attend a dinner party, the vehicle got stuck in a mud hole, and the driver had to carry his passengers, one at a time, to the sidewalk, where they stood until the empty carriage could be pulled out. Mr. Webster, in narrating this incident years afterwards, used to laugh over his fears that his bearer would fall beneath his weight and ruin his dress suit. John Randolph used to call Pennsylvania avenue "the great Serbonian bog," and descant on the dangers of a trip over it, to or from the Union Hotel at Georgetown, in the large stage with seats on the top called the "Royal George."—January Atlantic.

SENTIMENT AND SENSE.

Love sees as God sees, and with infinite pardon.

Whoever learns to stand alone must learn to fall alone.

The heart ought to give charity when the hand can not.

Youth should be patient, because the future lies before it.

A man of numerous desires is of all beings the most independent.

He that speaks the truth will find himself in sufficiently dramatic situations.

Despair and postponement are cowardice and defeat. Men were born to succeed, not to fail.

Impoliteness is derived from two sources—Indifference for the divine and contempt for the human.

Where no wood is, there the fire goeth out; so when there is no talebearer the strife ceaseth.

When a man dies men inquire what he has left behind him; angels inquire what he has sent before him.

A good deed is never lost: he who sows courtesy reaps friendship, and he who plants kindness gathers love.

They that will not be counseled, cannot be helped. If you do not hear reason, she will rap your knuckles.

If you boast of a contempt for the world, avoid getting into debt. It is giving to gnats the fangs of vipers.

In this great theatre of life it is permitted to God and the angels to be spectators, but all men must be actors.

It is better to wear a poor vest with a royal heart behind it, than to wear a royal vest with a beggar's heart inside.

The temperate are the most truly luxurious. By abstaining from most things it is surprising how many things we enjoy.

Ambition often puts men upon doing the meanest offices; so climbing is performed in the same posture while creeping.

Nothing is more saddening than an ineffectual and proud intercourse with those of whom we expect sympathy and encouragement.

There is nowhere an apology for despondency. Always there is life while life lasts, which, rightly lived, implies a divine satisfaction.

The two great pleasures in living are in having something to love and to hope for, and the last of these is ever before us in the promise of to-morrow.

Good looks are to the young mind what the warming sun and the refreshing rain of Spring are to the seeds which have lain dormant in the frosts of Winter.

Opportunity is the flower of time, and as the stalk may remain when the flower is cut off, so time may remain with us when opportunity is gone forever.

The business of life is to go forward; he who sees evil in prospect meets it on the way; but he who catches it by retrospection turns back to find it.

Abstemiousness and frugality are the best bankers. They sow a handsome interest and never dishonor a draft drawn upon them by their humblest customers.

All useless misery is certainly folly, and he that feels evils before they come may be deservedly censured, yet surely to dread the future is more reasonable than to lament the past.

Knowledge can not be acquired without pain and application. It is troublesome, and like digging for pure waters; but when once you come to the spring, it rises up to meet you.

The beginning of hardship is like the first taste of bitter food—it seems for a moment unbearable; yet, if there is nothing else to satisfy our hunger, we take another bite and find it possible to go on.

Genius looks to the cause and life; it proceeds from within outward, whilst talent goes from without inward. Talent finds its models and methods and ends in society, exists for exhibition, and goes to the soul only for power to work. Genius is its own end, and draws its means and the style of its architecture from within, going abroad only for audience and spectators, and as we adapt our voice and phrase to the distance and character of the ear we speak to. All your learning of all literature would never enable you to anticipate one of its thoughts or expressions, yet each is as natural and familiar as household words.—E. W. Emerson.

WHY SHE CHANGED HER PEW.

A Stamford lady is congratulating herself on securing a new pew in church. The objection to one of the occupants of a pew directly back of her former sitting contains a valuable suggestion, as follows: "You see that she has an enormous fan, and as I sat immediately in front of her she kept a gale blowing on the back of my neck, Winter and Summer, hot or cold, and then the creaking and growling machinery of that monstrous fan was forever in my ears, until I was worked up into that nervous condition that I dreaded Sunday to come, and got but little good of the sermon. I wouldn't take that pew another year if they gave it to me for nothing."

"Tis sweet to hear the watch-dog's honest bark" and know that he will go for the tramp who tries the garden gate.

The female who fills the whole space at the ferry office and inquires "How much is it?" before she begins to fumble for her purse, is a nuisance.

"The nice young man," observeth the Elmira Gazette, "saveth his money for next Fourth of July, but the foolish one taketh his girl out sleigh-riding and pays $4 for the privilege of freezing to death a couple of hours."

"Oh yes, wait till New Year's; a pair of skates, wait till New Year's. I've waited this year and I didn't get sled or skates either. Nothing but a book with a red cover and a little baby card with verses onto it. Boys never get nothing they want."

Years and years ago it was said that a girl might be willing to be kissed when she voluntarily put a boy's hat on her head. This cannot be true, for hundreds of pretty girls are now wearing the little round Derby hats and looking well under them.

"Why do guns burst?" asks a contemporary, and then devotes nearly a column to answering the question. Guns burst because powder is put into them. You might keep a gun seven hundred years and it wouldn't burst if you keep powder out of it.

Miss Roxanna Brigham, the maiden lady in Marlboro, Mass, who refused positively to eat any food for nine days, died a few days ago from starvation at the age of 77 years. She labored under the impression that it was wicked for her to eat, and during her last hours would not even allow her attendants to moisten her parched lips. She said that the food offered smelled good and that she was sorry she stopped eating, but she could not partake, as she had promised not to do.

If a man buys a horse at ninety days' payment, and the horse dies at thirty days, he may meet his note honestly, but not cheerfully. He is paying funeral expenses. Some of the statistics of State debt suggest this "old saw and modern instance." Ohio has a debt of $52,257,000. New York, with all its vast public works and splendid system, has a State debt of only $7,500,000, which could be paid off at once if the creditors would take the money. New Jersey has practically no debt at all.

His mother's old and respected uncle from the country had been visiting the family for a few days. He was very fond of reading, and one day he fell asleep in his chair, which leaned back against the wall. Very peaceful and innocent the old gentleman looked as he slept, his face ceilingward, as if he had dropped off while looking at the fly-specks on the wall. The mother of the boy was looking over some beans, as they were going to have some of those elegant berries for dinner. "Ma, is uncle asleep now?" "Yes, dear, and you must be quiet so's not to wake him up." "Is he sound asleep, ma?" "Yes, yes; do hush." Then the little imp took a bean and hied it at his mother's uncle. It struck him plump on the end of the nose. While he was waking up—and it didn't take long—the assassin slid out the back door. The pained and wronged look on the good old man's face, as he silently resumed his reading without saying a word, convinced the slaver of beans that her uncle will go down to the grave to sleep with his fathers, irreconcilably firm in the belief that she threw the bean at him.

POETRY.

IN A TIME OF TROUBLE.

An eagle from the height,
Looking down upon the lands,
On forest black as night
Fair fields and deserted sands.

Sees the traveler below—
Aching heart, as league on league
Long wilderness show
No end to his fatigue.

So God, amid her stars,
Beholding far beneath
The blight of gloomy bars
In the web of life and death.

Sees weary hearts that deem
The dark breath in the whole,
Sees happy hearts that dream
The bright rays all their goal.

Ah, let this faith be ours—
That even 'mid the pain,
Above the present towers,
And sees the nearing gain.

Where breadth by breadth, appears,
As from the weaver's hand,
The pattern of the years,
Which himself has planned.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

WAS IT UNWOMANLY?

After Dr. Reid died, Mrs. Reid very sensibly sold out the big house with the lawns around it, conservatory on the terrace, and stables behind the clump of cedars, and moved into a smaller, though not less pleasant home on Academy avenue. People were not surprised at this, but when they heard that Kate Reid was going to teach mathematics at the Female Seminary, then the public was amazed. It began to pity Mrs. Reid a little. The Doctor must have been terribly in debt, or the place mortgaged, for otherwise it would not have been necessary for Kate to teach school. Too bad for her, poor thing, just twenty, and so bright and good looking, to be obliged to toil from nine to twelve with a parcel of stupid girls at the Seminary. In reality, however, Kate was not obliged to do it at all, but being a young woman of independent ideas, she fancied that to have six hundred dollars a year all her own would not be a disagreeable sensation to experience. She was not needed particularly in the domestic department at home; in fact, like a good many other bright and agreeable unmarried women, she was not needed anywhere to any extent. So it came about that she taught the Seminary girls arithmetic, algebra and geometry, and though it was rather trying to the patience once in a while, on the whole, she very much liked training the young.

One day in December she walked home as usual at twelve o'clock, proceeding directly into the parlor. Sitting by the window she saw Howard Winslow, a middle-aged gentleman of pleasant appearance, who rose and shook hands with Kate cordially, and stood and talked to her as she warmed her feet and hands. You never would have guessed from the greeting that these two people were laboring under the sentimental bonds of an engagement, but such was the fact. They had been engaged over a month. To be sure it had been a very prosaic affair, for they had known and liked each other always. Winslow finally came to the conclusion that he might as well get married. He had money enough and he was old enough surely, being nearly forty, and as he and Kate had always been very good friends, he sat down in his New York office one day and wrote her a proposal.

When she received it she was a little amused and a great deal surprised, but as she liked Howard, she sat down straightway, also, and wrote an acceptance. Nothing romantic about this, you see; but I have a heretical idea that very happy marriages are often the result of such engagements.

"No, I didn't come up from New York on purpose to see you," said Mr. Winslow, in answer to Kate's question; "but on business about the new railroad. And, by the way, one of the civil engineers, Ed. Kasson, at work here, is an old friend of mine. He's very clever as to his profession, and is a gentleman through and through. He isn't much of a ladies' man, but I should like to give a note of introduction to you if you wouldn't mind."

"I should be glad to meet him, of course," replied Kate, "and mother and I will try to cure him if he is boorish and bashful. Now I must go up to my room, Howard, and renovate myself a little for luncheon." With this she left the parlor.

About a week later, Edward Kasson called one evening. He impressed Kate with a sense of squareness. He was tall, and had square shoulders. His forehead was square; his eyebrows arched very little; his chin and jaws were squared off rather heavily, and his moustache stood out quite straight at the ends, instead of dropping over the straight, firmly closed lips. Moreover he had a little straight cleft in his chin. He was neither boorish nor bashful, however, though he was a trifle clumsy, and had very little idea of dancing-school grace. Kate took a fancy to him straightway, and after he and she had talked together about a little of everything, and he had gone home, she wrote a letter to Howard, containing the following paragraph:

"Your friend, Mr. Kasson, called this evening; and both mother and I liked him very much. He seems so pleasant tempered, and is certainly a very agreeable talker."

And not only was Kate pleased, but so was Kasson, and though he did not write many letters to his married sister, when he did honor her with an epistle he devoted a few lines thereof to Miss Reid.

"She is very good looking and sensible, and has introduced me to several pleasant people. It is she to whom Winslow is engaged, and he has chosen with excellent taste. Hope I shall have the entree of their New York house."

So you see it was all a sort of mutual admiration society in the beginning. It did not last, however, for a very long time.

Kasson became disgusted with Winslow first. He was such an ass to be engaged to so charming a girl, and instead of living in her smiles, went off to Florida to get rid of the cold weather.

What was cold weather compared to the tender passion? Then Kate, she was so happy without her lover that she surely could not care very much for the absent one, although they did appear on such excellent terms with each other. Kasson levelled a great deal of unnecessary vituperation at the heads of the engaged people, but nevertheless, he went to the Widow Reid's on every excuse he could devise, and a good many times when he had no excuse at all. Along in February, however, he put himself through a severe course of self-examination. What was he going to Reid's for? To see Kate. What business had he to devote himself to a girl who was engaged? And thereupon he shook his wicked inclinations fiercely, and did not go near Kate for ten days.

Finally she met him on the street.

"Have you been away?" she asked, smiling up at him in a most friendly fashion.

"Been sick, then?" persisted Kate.

"Oh, no," said Kasson.

"I should think not," was the reply, given with a healthy man's contempt of sickness.

"Are you mad at me?" added Kate, cleverly mimicking a child's pout.

"Good heavens! No!" exclaimed Kasson. "The fact is, I am a fool, and I have been busy, Miss Reid, and I will be down to see you this evening, if I shall not bore you."

"You were never a bore to mother and me," said Kate; "and don't overwork yourself, Mr. Kasson, but take time for social relaxation."

In truth Kate's philanthropy was only skin deep. She liked Kasson's company, and hardly deceived herself when she urged him to take time for social relaxation.

Kasson obeyed her, and the result was that they were left together more than ever. She stored up all the funny stories about her pupils to tell him. She made him read the articles in the magazine of which she approved. She scolded him for shunning his political duties, and in short treated him as an old and favored friend. As for Kasson, he sat at the feet of his charming Gamaliel, and learned not only to discriminate as to magazine articles, and to know his whole duty as a free citizen of the United States, but also received a variety of other decidedly interesting information. He threw out a vague remark once about being fond of music, and Kate resumed her neglected practicing again. When she woke up to the fact that she was practicing for Kasson's express benefit, she was ashamed of herself; and took her turn at mental discipline, and wrote Howard such an affectionate letter that the recipient was nearly struck dumb with surprise.

He was to return the latter part of March, but long before that time Kate realized very keenly that she was in love with Edward Kasson. She felt much distressed thereat on Howard Winslow's account, for though she had told him frankly she did not love him, nevertheless, to love some other man was certainly dishonorable.

Kasson was miserable, also. He was a gentleman, and therefore would have chopped his right hand off sooner than show a spark of his love for Kate. He kept his secret well, but it came out one evening, accidentally. Kate had been puzzling him with a mathematical problem to solve, on which he had used some old letter backs that he had in his pocket. After he had gone the scraps of paper were thrown over the table. Kate tossed them in the fire, one by one, absently, but as she lifted the last scrap she was caught by seeing her name written thereon. She read what was written, as any one might have done, for Kasson had said that the papers were nothing. This was what she read:

"I am heartily sorry for you, Ed. It seems hard that the only woman you ever cared for should be engaged to another man. As you say, the only thing you can do is to run away from Miss Reid before anybody can guess that you love her."

Kate held the scrap in her hand for a second; then tossed it in the fire.

"So he loves me," she thought, exultantly.

Like a dash of water on a hot coal came the memory of Howard Winslow. Kate dropped into the nearest chair and cried a little. It seemed very hard, indeed, that she and Winslow must marry each other when neither cared a great deal for the other.

After considerable reflection, Kate came to the conclusion that she would not marry Howard; it was an impossibility now. But could she tell him the reason why she had changed her mind? And again, Kasson was going to leave in a week or ten days, and he would not say a word to her, except friendly ones, while thinking her engaged to Winslow. Then the result would be, Kate would have no lover at all. A vision of old maidenhood rose before her—a vision of lonely years at school-teaching, over which she would grow old and crabbed. She could not solve the problem at all, but she finally did send Howard a most friendly note telling him she could not marry him because she loved some one else.

That evening after she sent that note, there came in for a call the minister's wife, Mrs. Van Vleck, and a little later Edward Kasson. Kate had just written a letter to her bosom friend, Millicent Sheppard, and the clump of note paper, the pen and ink, still lay on the table. She fingered the latter impatiently as Mrs. Van Vleck maundered away about some fair that the church people were getting up. Finally she turned to Kate and said:

"And we want you to act as Secretary, my friend. We want you to write to Mrs. Morse, asking for flowers—but just take that piece of paper, and put down the list of your duties."

There was no escape. Kate drew the sheet of paper towards her, and made a list of the things she must do for the fair.

"And now," added Mrs. Van Vleck, finally, with a patronizing look towards Kasson, "you must write notes to Mr. Weeks and Mr. Kasson, asking their aid in some heavy work, such as putting up tables."

Kate laughed.

"I'll write Mr. Kasson's note right away," beginning to do so in fact.

"While you are doing that," said Mrs. Reid, "I'll take Mrs. Vleck in the dining-room to look at my home-made lambrequins."

They went out of the parlor, leaving Kate writing an absurd note to Kasson. She had barely finished it when her mother called her:

"Come here, just a minute, Kate."

Like a flash there entered a thought into Kate's brain. On the table lay two notes, one to Millicent Sheppard, one to Kasson. Then she handed it to him with a smile, saying as she did so:

"Here are your commands."

As she went out of the room, Kasson opened his note, and read thus:

"I have time but for a few lines, but they are enough to tell you a secret which I have just discovered myself, and which is making me very unhappy."

Kasson read this in amazement; then brushed a lock of hair off his forehead and continued:

"You know very well that I didn't love Howard Winslow when I engaged myself to him, and I told him that frankly. We were simply excellent friends. But now I love somebody else, and I wrote a letter to Howard to-day, breaking off my engagement. I could not marry him while I loved Edward Kasson, the gentleman of whom I have written you before!"

Kasson read no more. He understood now that Kate had handed him the wrong note. He glanced on the table and saw the other note. In a second he had put the letter to Millicent in the right envelope, and was reading his absurd "commands" when the ladies re-entered.

It was a hard minute for Kate, but she was a good actress. Not a dash of color reddened her cheeks as she turned to Kasson and said:

"Can you perform your multifarious duties?"

She saw he had his own note in his hand, and she understood and loved him for what he had done. This square-faced clumsy man had something of a woman's delicacy and quick-witted tact.

"I rarely have received orders so pleasant to perform," he said, with a double meaning to his words—a double meaning which he had no idea Miss Reid understood.

The rest of the evening passed quietly, and not until two days later did Kasson perform his "pleasant duty." In spite of the knowledge he had that Kate Reid loved him, he hardly knew how to ask her to be his wife. He was not going to tell her that she handed him the wrong note, and he had thus discovered she loved him. No, indeed. He would never lisp a syllable of her fortunate mistake. These thoughts ran through his brain as he sat near Kate, and talked with her absently. The first lull that came in the conversation, he took advantage of, saying—

"Miss Reid, is it rude to ask when you last heard from Winslow?"

"I have not heard from him for over a week," she answered, the color coming into her cheeks now.

A short silence followed. Then Kasson said bravely:

"You are going to marry him next Spring, are you not?"

"I shall never marry him," answered Kate.

They were not a sentimental boy and girl, but the rest of the talk I do not propose to chronicle, on account of incoherency. However, it resulted in satisfaction for them, and bewilderment of Mrs. Reid, and subsequently for the gossips of Chatemuc City. As for Winslow, he took it philosophically and married another young lady last fall. It is something of a problem in my mind whether or no Kate Kasson will ever confess her stratagem to her husband, or whether he will confess to her that by mistake (?) he saw the letter that she wrote to her friend, Miss Sheppard. So far, neither has hinted a word of their respective secrets. It is my belief that they never will.

Many persons miss their vocations in life, because their bodies do not happen to fit their souls.

There is a touch of the eternal fitness of things in a shabby exterior for a shabby character.

The man who can successfully hoodwink himself is not to be trusted. He requires watching.

He who cannot pity himself is unlikely to feel his heart bleed for those who need compassion.

He is happy whose circumstances suit his temper; but he is more exalted who can suit his temper to any circumstances.

We are sure to hate the man we have meanly wronged, and we gloat over the undoing of him who mirrors our own rottenness.

There is nowhere any apology for despondency. Always there is hope while life lasts, which, rightly lived, implies a divine satisfaction.

No man is wiser for his learning; it may administer matter to work in or objects to work upon; but wit and wisdom are born with a man.

We classify our wrongs, and tie up our miseries with red tape; we pity people by decimals, and put our statistics away with satisfied conscience.

A man need only correct himself with the same rigor that he reprehends others, and excuse others with the same indulgence that he shows to himself.

Some characters are like an overshoe with a leaky heel; they don't let in much dirt at a time, but they utilize it for every atom of its contaminating value.

Deprive a woman of the companionship of the good and virtuous of her sex, and there is no power in the love of a man to draw her soul away from its sad designs.

Anything that contributes to the happiness and sweet peace of woman is far reaching for good, noble in design, beneficent in results and worthy of most respectful recognition.

Of all the pleasures of memory none are more reliable than those which come laughing out of the boyish past, attended by the fond conceits and the romantic darings of school day loves.

Life is put together considerably like a set of harness. There are traces of care, lines of trouble, bits of good fortune, breeches of good manners, bridled tongues, and everybody has a tug to pull through.

SEVEN UP FOR A WIFE, OR, GOOD AS WHEAT.

In the State of Illinois there is a certain village boasting of a tavern, three stores and four groceries, where from morn till night and from night to dawn, a person entering the town may find in the tavern, stores and groceries aforesaid, one or more groups of persons playing cards. Gambling there is reduced to a science. The History of the Four Kings is thoroughly studied, and from the school-boy to the veteran, from the miss in her teens to the mother of a large family, they are all initiated into the mysteries of high, low, jack, game, right and left bowers, the honors, and odd tricks. One of the best players in the village was Major Smith, the tavern keeper, or, as he expressed it, the proprietor of the hotel—a widower, who, like

Jeptha, Judge of Israel,
Had a daughter passing fair.

Fannie, the daughter, was one of the prettiest girls in the village. The sweetheart of Fannie was a young farmer residing in the neighborhood, whom we shall designate by the name of Bob.

It happened that one day before the harvest, the young man was detained in the village, and night found him as usual at the hotel, seated between the Major and his daughter. After a desultory conversation between the two gentlemen on the state of the weather, the prospects of the approaching harvest, and important staples of conversation, the Major asked Bob how his wheat crop promised to yield. In reply he was told that the young farmer expected to have at least five hundred bushels.

The Major appeared to study for a moment, then abruptly proposed a game of "old sledge," or "seven up," the stake to be his daughter Fannie against the crop of wheat.

This, of course, the young man indignantly refused, because he could not bear the idea that the hand of her he loved should win a wife by gambling for her and perhaps, because he knew how hard the old man was to beat, and there was a strong probability of losing both wheat and wife.

It was not until the Major, with his usual obstinacy, had sworn that unless he won her he should never have her, that the young man was forced reluctantly to consent to play.

The table was placed, candles lit, the cards produced, and the players took their places with Fannie between them watching the game. The cards were regularly cut, and it fell to the Major's lot to deal. The first hand was played, and Bob made jack to his opponent's high, low, game. Bob dealt, the Major again made three to his opponent's one.

"Six to two," said Miss Fannie, with a sigh.

The Major, as he dealt the cards, winked knowingly, and said:

"I am good for the wheat, Master Bob."

The old man turned up a trump. It was a spade. Fannie glanced at her father's hand—her heart sank; he held the trey, eight spot and king. She then looked at Robert's hand, and lo, he had the ace, queen, deuce, and jack or knave. She whispered to Bob to beg—he did so.

"Take it," said the Major.

Robert led the deuce, which the old man took with his three-spot; he then followed by playing the king, Bob putting his queen upon it; the Major, supposing it to be the young man's last trump, leaned over the table and, tapping the last trick with his finger, said:

"That's as good as wheat."

"Is it?" asked Bob, as he displayed to the astonished Major the ace and Jack in his hands.

"High, low, jack, gift and game," shouted Bob.

"Out," ejaculated Fannie.

"Good as wheat!" added Bob, as he flung his arms around her neck and kissed her.

In due time they were married, and ever after when anything occurred of a pleasant nature to the happy couple, they would express their emphatic approbation of it by the phrase, "Good as wheat."

"Certainly, my darling, without an exception," he declared.

THE ROLL OF HONOR.

Comptroller Stockton reports to the Legislature that only three cities in the State of New Jersey are clear of bonded indebtedness. The glorious trio being Plainfield, Bordentown and Woodbury.

It is indeed a roll of honor.

North and East of Trenton, Plainfield alone can boast of freedom from debt.

It is a fortune for Plainfield.

At all hazards keep her in possession of it!

So speaks Vox Populi!

NO THIRD TERM.

No American will for a moment call in question the virtue and wisdom of George Washington.

If the world ever possessed a patriot whose sole ambition was the genuine good of country his name was Washington.

Unanimously chosen the first and second Chief Magistrate of the United States, he held the office for two terms, and then voluntarily retired to private life, leaving on record as his matured judgment that eight years was the longest period any man ought to be President.

There was sterling wisdom in that decision, and down to the present time it has, with a single exception, been faithfully obeyed. Every President, prior to Grant, that lived out his official term, with dignity withdrew into the ranks of honored citizenship; and not one of them harbored the desire, nor could he be induced to offend the memory and example of the great Washington by seeking to lay personal hands upon the Presidency for a third term.

That disreputable and dangerous intent, dangerous for the liberties of the country, has been reserved for General Grant.

His henchmen say the people demand that Grant shall be President again.

A vast majority of the people repudiate such an assertion, and what is more, will confirm it by action at the polls.

The American people venerate Washington and the Republic he founded.—Cæsar and an Empire have no charms for them.

It is Grant that wants the Presidency.

Political traders of the Robeson, Belknap and Kellogg stripe want more Grantism and for well known reasons.

Honest men want something else.

KILKENNY CATS.

The Grantites are throwing mud at Secretary Sherman, as the following extract from one of their organs, the New York Commercial, plainly manifests:

"Secretary Sherman's abuse of his official position has become so flagrant that it is reported the President now requires some better recommendation for an appointment than Mr. Sherman's approval."

Sherman wants the Republican nomination for President, and so does Blaine, and so does Grant. Fight on gentlemen! There will be a good Democratic candidate in the field when the proper time arrives, who will make Sherman resume his Treasury figuring, give Blaine another attack of sun-stroke or chilblains, and induce third term Grant to visit the King of the Cannibal Islands and partake of his Royal hospitality.

FOR PRESIDENT,
The nominee of the Democratic Convention.

THE GROSS PUBLIC DEBT OF NEW JERSEY.

In his annual message to the Legislature last year, Governor McClellan, called attention to the burdens of local indebtedness which oppressed all sections of the State, and in order that the amount and extent of this local indebtedness might be ascertained, Gen. Robert F. Stockton, the State Comptroller, was directed to procure from each county and city and town a statement of its funded and floating debt, of its property valuations and its current expenses, and all other details of its financial condition. In reply to his circulars the Comptroller has secured from the County officers of twenty of the twenty-one Counties into which the State is divided such statements as he sought. The Monmouth County, officials failed to state the assessed valuation of property in that County. On the basis of the assessments made by the County officers the total value of the property in all parts of the State, exclusive of Monmouth County, is $498,111,742. This is the taxable value of the taxable property. The total amount of debt of various kinds for which the property is liable is represented by the following figures:

	Funded.	Floating.
County debts,	$6,993,544	$767,702
City debts,	41,221,859	4,238,937
Incorporated towns,	563,732	86,606
Other towns,	715,223	386,614
Totals,	$50,493,460	$5,484,547

So that it appears that on the $498,000,000 of real and personal property in the State a total public debt of about $56,000,000, or 11 per cent. is due. The City Assessors return the value of the property in the cities at $228,002,569.—Among the cities the largest debtor is Jersey City; next to her stands Newark. The debt of Jersey City represents 25 per cent. of the assessed value of her property. The debt of Newark represents less than 15 per cent. of her assessed worth. The cities which owe most proportioned to their means are Elizabeth, whose debt is 50 per cent. of her wealth, and Rahway, which owes on $2,700,000 of property about $1,500,000. The city which owes the smallest debt is Woodbury. She confesses to owing $100 on a note which is due "never."—Plainfield, Bordentown and Woodbury are the only cities in the State without funded indebtedness. Plainfield owes $5,000 on a note and Bordentown owes about $4,000. Elizabeth's sinking fund of $150,000 is invested wholly in the bankrupt city's bonds. Newark's sinking fund is $2,200,000. Jersey City has a sinking fund of about $900,000; Trenton one of about $200,000. Of the incorporated towns, Harrison, in Hudson County, owes a debt of $300,000. The Comptroller has received no returns from 1 township in Atlantic County, 1 in Bergen, 5 in Burlington, 3 in Camden, 2 in Cape May, 2 in Cumberland, 2 in Hudson, 2 in Hunterdon, 2 in Mercer, 6 in Middlesex, 4 in Monmouth, 1 each in Morris, Ocean, Salem, Somerset, Sussex and Warren Counties and 4 in Passaic County.

Another attempt has been made upon the life of the Emperor of Russia. This time a mine of dynamite was sprung under the dining room of the Winter Palace, just at the time when it was supposed the Czar would be eating. Fortunately for him, he was detained a few moments later than usual, conversing with members of his family in another part of the palace. Eight soldiers were killed and forty-nine wounded.

PLEURO-PNEUMONIA.

The Republican Legislature, to thwart good intentions of the Governor, are determined to repeal the pleuro-pneumonia bill, the House having already so voted. Great stress is made in certain journals of the State, on the cost of inspecting cattle and extirpating the disease during the past year by Gen. Sterling and his aides. But when it is considered that in order to do the work it was necessary to go through nineteen counties and inspect 4,500 head of cattle, the sum expended does not seem so exorbitant. On an average, also, it has not cost the State over 50 cents a head for every cattle killed and paid for by it. This is due to the judicious sale of cattle to the butchers by the agents employed. The bill should remain a law until the disease is entirely eradicated.

STATE PRISON REPORT.

The Annual Report of the New Jersey State Prison for the year 1879 is contained in a pamphlet of 39 pages, and embraces the reports of the Inspectors, Supervisor, Keeper, Moral Instructor, Commissioners, Physician and Joint Committee.

The cost of maintenance, salaries, repairs of buildings and walls and amount paid to convicts on their discharge, was $113,860.29, a decrease of $10,672.08 from the previous year. The net loss to the State was greater during this year by $6,191.41.

For the past ten years the earnings of the prisoners have steadily decreased; with increasing numbers, earnings diminish, 347 convicts in 1871 earned $100,723.27; while in 1879, 802 convicts earned only $4,639.50.

The death toll of the year is unusually large, numbering 23. Almost all have occurred from constitutional difficulties.

The Keeper, Gen. Mott, reports that 417 convicts have been received during the year, 459 discharged; leaving still in the prison, Oct. 31st, 786.

The average decrease during the year was 23. The cost of subsisting them, per capita, was 83-10 cents per day; the total cost being 38 9-10 cents per day.

Those wiseacres who demand that the laws shall not be published in the newspapers are prompted by two motives—false notions of economy or jealousy. The former object to the publication because of the cost. These should remember that the money paid out for this purpose does not come from the people directly, although disbursed from the Treasury. The State levies a tax on the different corporations especially the railroads, whence is derived more than enough revenue to defray all the expense of keeping up the government without asking one cent of tax from the people. There will hereafter be no more tax raised for State purpose, except in extraordinary cases. The dog-in-the-manger chaps who complain of the publication of the laws in only some of the newspapers are scarcely worthy of notice. The motives that prompt them to denounce the matter are sufficient to condemn them. By the publication of the laws in the leading newspapers the public are better and earlier informed of the laws they are asked to obey than by the proposed method of having them printed in large numbers in pamphlet form. Not till late Summer are the present pamphlet laws ready for distribution and then it is almost Winter before they reach the persons entitled to them. We are sure the public are well satisfied with the present system of informing them in regard to the new statutes.

The above from the Mt. Holly Herald hits the nail on the head.

THE LEGISLATURE.

From our Trenton Correspondent.

TRENTON, FEB. 18, 1880.

Since my last letter the following Bills have been introduced up to this time: An important Bill, by Mr. Kreuger, in reference to State Prison—that not more than 50 convicts shall at any time be employed in any special branch of industry and that no silk or felt hats shall be manufactured. This virtually prevents the manufacturing of shoes, as no contract could be made with only that number to be employed. The larger cities and where large manufacturing is done demand of their members the passage of these Bills; also H. 233, by Mr. Board, of Middlesex, provides that township officers, such as Assessor, Collector and Chosen Freeholder, shall not be eligible to office after being or having been elected six consecutive years. It has been up, discussed, amended to 3 years and this stricken out, and finally re-committed. It is proposed to strike out Assessors and Chosen Freeholders, as they are not disbursers of monies. What will be the result of the Bill I cannot say. H. 235, changing time of meetings of school trustees and changes the method of paying claims; H. 249, concerning taxes, making same first lien on real estate and that all other liens shall be subservient; H. 250, by Mr. Ringleman, repeals Sec. 2 of the act concerning fisheries in the Raritan river, relative to catching fish with seine or spear; H. 260, by Mr. Kreuger, provides that manufacturing corporations on the first Monday in April shall make a full statement of their financial condition, and upon failure to do this the Chancellor shall appoint a Receiver, the assessment for taxes to be made upon this statement; Sen. 140, appropriates $6,500 for State Industrial School for girls and for building a new dwelling house; S. 142, giving township committee right to fix boundaries of election districts any time prior to Aug. 1st, each district not to contain over 600 voters.

BILLS PASSED IN ASSEMBLY.

H. 132, to prevent any tenant or other person from destroying or carrying away any building on mortgaged lands or cutting timber after foreclosure proceedings have commenced, under penalty of $1,000 or 5 years imprisonment; Sen. 58, no proxy, over 3 years old, can be used at an election of any insurance company, the present law limits it to one year; H. 173, a general act relating to cruelty to animals, over-loaded horses, cock and bull fighting. It is a long Bill and has many provisions; H. 4, repeals the act to prevent the spread of infectious pleuro-pneumonia among cattle; approved March 13, 1879. It was thoroughly discussed in the House, and finally passed by a significant vote of 48 to 0, showing that the people are tired of the costly experiment; H. 74, provides that the Jailor may put all persons, who are detained in custody for either fine or costs of conviction, at work, except for good cause shown.

IN SENATE, BILLS PASSED.

Sen. 110, provides that manufacturing corporations shall be taxed for all their real and personal property, the same as individuals are, and not on their capital stock and accumulated surplus; Sen. 123, provides that Joint Resolutions shall not become laws unless signed by the Governor within ten days after adjournment; H. 126, provides for better securing wages of laborers and mechanics, in relation to store orders, does not prevent a private individual from giving orders upon a store in which he is not interested.

The Governor, to-day, returned three Bills with his objections. One allowing directors in corporations to be reduced from 13 to 9; one in regard to division of wards in Camden, a political Bill; one to reduce pay of Judges in Passaic; upon the ground that they are unconstitutional.

It is reported that a resolution will be introduced this week to adjourn March 12th, which seems to meet with favor among the members. I think that they intend to make a short session.

The matter of the confirmation of the two Supreme Court Judges, seems to be the all-absorbing topic. The Senators are very reticent on the subject. It has been talked that Senators Sewell, Hobart and Vail would vote to confirm ex-Gov. Parker. No other nominations have been sent in. There was quite a surprise, yesterday, given to the Passaic people, ex-Member Thomas Henry, Democrat, was nominated for Judge of District Court, No. 2, of Newark. Judge Finley Johnston, a son-in-law of Lawyer Pitney, of Morristown, now presiding; he is also a Democrat, and is said to have made an excellent Judge; very few of his decisions having been appealed. I understand that he expected to have been his own successor.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 18.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

H. 261, provides that the act concerning legal advertising shall be changed, adding the words, "per folio of ten lines nonpareil," instead of "per folio, per 100 words;" H. 262, provides for raising of money for building school houses; H. 263, that the surplus of school money in hands of township collectors, such excess to be used to repair school houses and improve grounds; Sen. 150, by Mr. Gardner, directs that a copy of revised statutes shall be sent to each township and city clerk; Sen. 154, by Mr. Marsh, provides that the money raised by 2 mill tax shall be more directly transferred to the disbursing authorities; Sen. resolution, by Mr. Francis, requesting the Comptroller forthwith to send copies of statements made by him to the Secretary of State, relative to monies received from Insurance Companies.

ACTION ON BILLS.

H. 164, respecting Coroners, was before the House. It provides for only one coroner in a county, and he must be a graduate of a Medical College.—The merits of the Bill was discussed, after which it was lost by a vote of 11 to 43; H. 74, allowing Sheriffs to put prisoners to work, passed, 41 to 4; H. 173, prevention of cruelty to animals, passed, 48 to 0; H. 208, ballot boxes to be retained by the township clerk, instead of being carried to the county clerk's office, passed, 34 to 2; Sen. Bill No. 36, passed, which provides that overseers of road shall be voted for at the annual town meetings, only one in each road district; there has been one introduced in the House, providing that they shall be elected in the road districts, but has not been reported yet; Sen. 97, in relation to North Plainfield Township Committee was reported in the House to-day; Sen. 24, quite an important Bill, introduced by Sen. Rabe, authorizing the Chancellor to call upon Receivers of Savings Banks to report every three months, passed the House, 50 to 0, and only awaits the Governor's signature to become a law.

The Senate, in Executive Session, confirmed the nomination of David Depue for Judge of Supreme Court, and also that of Caleb S. Green, as Judge of Court of Errors, but took no action upon Gov. Parker's nomination. It is thought now that he will not be confirmed, but that his name will be withdrawn by the Governor. There is a divided opinion in the Republican ranks, some express themselves freely, saying that they do not approve of the non-confirmation as it will undoubtedly make him a candidate for Governor; of that they seem to have a mortal dread.

Plainfield.

Under the above heading in Comptroller Stockton's annual report, we find the following statement of the financial condition of Plainfield as forwarded to the Comptroller in accordance with law by Mayor Harper:

Amount of floating debt, $5,000. How composed; note in bank. Rate of interest, 6 per cent. Purpose for which contracted, to anticipate tax collections. Falls due, October 27th, 1879.

Amount of real property, $4,173,725.

Amount of personal property, $754,590.

Deductions therefrom, $242,315.

Total amount of real and personal property taxed, $3,686,000.

Rate of tax—State and State school purposes, 26 cents. County purposes, 16 cents. Local purposes, under city charter, 25 cents; city poor, 9 cents; free school and bonds, (special incorporation) 43 cents; fire department and bonds, (special incorporation,) 25 cents.

Amount of tax ordered to be raised, $66,052.28, viz.: State and State schools, $10,729.98; county, $17,761.40; city, $19,000; city poor, $3,500; school and bonds, $17,670; fire and bonds, $7,000.

Annual expenses—

For the preceding twelve months—

Streets,	$2,793 35
Police,	1,937 31
Lamps,	3,713 28
Printing,	397 93
Salaries,	1,679 33
Elections,	218 50
Council,	581 60
Miscellaneous,	774 34
	$12,125 64
Poor,	2,392 23

NOTE—The free schools are under the immediate control of a board of education, which derives authority to levy taxes and issue bonds from a special act of incorporation obtained prior to the city charter.

There were school bonds issued by the board of education, outstanding in May last, to the amount of $24,000.

The fire department is likewise controlled by a specially incorporated fire board, made previous to the city charter, and extending jurisdiction beyond the city limits into the county of Somerset.

There were fire department bonds issued by the fire board, outstanding in May last, to the amount of $16,500.

A portion of both the school and fire bonds are paid off and canceled annually from taxation receipts, and the value of real property possessed by these two independent branches of the public service is far in excess of their unmatured indebtedness.

NATHAN HARPER, Mayor,
Plainfield.

Here it will be seen just how we stand. We owe a $5,000 note, and have nearly double that amount in taxes due. We owe $24,000 for school purposes, and have school property worth $50,000. We owe $16,500 on account of fire department, and have property belonging to that branch, worth full $25,000. Look upon us, ye tax-ridden cities, and do as we have done, hereafter; don't run in debt for fancy "improvements."

The Townships of Union County.

From Comptroller Stockton's annual report we glean that the funded debt of Clark township is about $175, composed of a note. The floating debt is $120.

Cranford has a floating debt of $1,000, composed of a note to pay current expenses.

Fanwood has no funded or floating debt.

Linden has a funded debt of $13,000, composed of bonds. It was contracted for school purposes and improvements. There is also a floating debt of about $8,200, composed of bills due the township.

New Providence has no debt.

Springfield has a funded debt of $4,000, composed of township bonds. The floating debt is $450, caused for road purposes.

Summit owes the county $7,812.20, for taxes 1874-5 and on account of schools, and has a cash balance on hand of $768.77.

Union has no funded or floating debt.

Westfield has a funded debt of $5,000, composed of $1,000 bonds, which was contracted for building school house. The amount of floating debt is $1,470, composed of school teachers' salaries, bills unpaid and balance on note due town committee. The amount of real property is $740,765. Personal, $116,520. The amount of tax ordered raised is $11,358.

Citizens' Building & Loan Association.

The Annual Meeting of the Plainfield Citizens' Building, Loan and Savings Institution, was held in their rooms last Monday evening. The Secretary presented the Twelfth Annual Report of the Association, which he hoped would show a satisfactory condition of affairs. The settlements with members have averaged over $1,000 a month in each series the past year. The following named gentlemen were elected officers for the ensuing year:

President—John Harris.
Vice President—Lewis E. Barkalew.
Secretary—Geo. W. Appleton.
Treasurer—Jeremiah Van Winkle.
Directors—John H. Van Winkle, W. N. Brown, Chas. E. Austin, John Hickey, Thos. Worth, G. Bachman, Andrew Zabel, Godfrey Haberle.

The resolution offered by Mr. Wm. Pangborn at a previous meeting, recommending the regulation of salaries of officers to correspond with the number of shares now standing, was unanimously adopted.

A Coming Treat.

Members of the "Nameless Club" of Brooklyn, N. Y., a social organization of that city, have kindly volunteered to visit Plainfield at an early date and give an "Amateur Minstrel Entertainment" for the benefit of the "Plainfield Athletic Club," the proceeds to be devoted to purchasing new apparatus for the Gymnasium.

Y. M. C. A. Concert.

Monday evening, Feb. 23rd, the famous Mendelssohn Quintette Club will give a Grand Concert in the Congregational Church, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., of this city. This Quintette has such a popular reputation among the musical fraternity that it is unnecessary for us to enter into lengthy details regarding their merits. The main question arising is that of whether the Church will hold all who desire to attend. Miss Abbie Carrington, the well-known Boston Soprano, will assist at this Concert. Reserved camp chairs and other seats may be obtained at Reynolds' Pharmacy. The two concluding entertainments of the Course will be that of Robert Collyer, the eminent lecturer, March 4th, and Parsons, March 18th.

Feininger Recital.

The Congregational Church, last Tuesday evening, was filled with a large and appreciative audience to listen to the Fifth Recital of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Feininger, assisted by Miss Fannie T. Ketcham, Piano Soloist, Miss Anna O. Marsh, Accompanist, both of this city, and Miss Lili Eiche, Violinist. To say that the performance of each artist was superb, is but expressing the idea of all those present. Miss Eiche proved herself an adept on the violin, evidencing that her teacher, Mr. Feininger, must himself look to his well earned laurels. Miss Ketcham and Miss Marsh both rendered their respective parts to the delight of the audience. As for Mr. and Mrs. Feininger, their hearers are always ready to applaud them for their fine and successful efforts, and this occasion was no exception to the rule. The Recitals thus far have proven a grand success in every instance, and the public are only sorry that they will soon come to a close. The next and last Feininger Recital will be given Tuesday evening, March 2d.

Gov. McClellan has vetoed the bill passed by the Legislature, providing for the division into two wards of cities between 5,000 and 8,000 inhabitants. We published the bill in full last week.

Assemblyman Williams has introduced a bill before the Legislature, which, excludes druggists from the penalties of selling liquor without license in quantities not exceeding one pint. Councilman Ryder and the women of Plainfield, where are you?

Rev. Edward Cowley, who has been on trial in New York city the past week charged with starving the children, inmates of the so-called Shepherd's Fold, was on Wednesday last found guilty by the jury. He will be sentenced Friday. He will likely get one year in the penitentiary, and $250 fine.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

Mr. Isaac Brokaw has recently made several successful sales and exchange of North Plainfield property. Mr. B. is a capable person to intrust with renting or selling property.

The political pot in the Township begins to boil as the season approaches for holding primary meetings. Township election occurs Tuesday, March 9th.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

Charlestown is getting ready for the census taker, judging from the unusual influx of young strangers in that locality lately. The Mayor, however, retains his usual solemnity of visage.

A Lecture will be given in the Baptist church, Scotch Plains, the evening of Feb. 23d, by Rev. W. E. Wright, of Middletown, N. Y., whose subject will be "Washington, the man and his memory." The Lecture will be given under the auspices of the Fanwood Lyceum Association, whose object is to give a series of Lectures and Debates, the pecuniary results of which is to be devoted to the erection of a suitable Town Hall which is much needed in the village. The tickets for the Lecture is 25 cents.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The culverts on Broad street are being re-laid.

Services will be held every Friday night at the Holy Trinity Church during Lent.

On Saturday last Mr. J. D. Mill's roan horse either strayed away or was stolen from his home.

The friends of Mrs. H. Dougherty gave her a pleasant surprise on Thursday evening, Feb. 12th, in honor of her birthday. They brought Wilcox and Applegate along with them so that the young folks could dance, if so inclined. All, with the exception of one, were as merry as larks.

A grand concert will be given at Lyceum Hall on Friday evening, Feb. 27th, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the public school. Fifty singers from St. Paul's M. E. Church choir of Newark will take part in the exercises. Admission 25 cents. Reserved seats, 35 cents.

The Township officers are to be congratulated upon the excellent financial report of the affairs of the Township made by them. Collector Connoly has proven by his work that he is the right man in the right place to collect taxes due and past due. Through his efforts a large amount of uncollected taxes has been collected the past year. In fact, all the Township officers, Republicans as well as Democrats, have proven by their report, to be efficient and capable men for the positions assigned them by their constituents.

The children of our public school think of nothing else but their Fair, which is to come off on Saturday evening of this week and Monday, Feb. 22d. All have been working hard for it and if the weather is favorable, they will no doubt meet with success. George Washington will be there in honor of his birthday and a great many other persons of note.

Our village was startled on Feb. 12th, by the report that Mrs. Wm. McNair, living on the so-called Westfield Flats, had committed suicide. Her husband, who is a sailor, did not seem to get along very well on land, and had repeatedly threatened to again follow his occupation. She did not wish him to leave her and when on the evening in question, he returned out of sorts and using harsh words, she took up a small vial filled with laudanum and began drinking it. Her husband knocked it out of her hands; she went into the next room where a bottle of sulphuric acid stood and before her husband could take that away she drank some of it. Dr. Cooper has brought the unfortunate lady about again.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Remember the pigeon shooting match near Brittin's Hotel next Monday, Feb. 23d. Shooting commences at 1 o'clock.

Heavy odds, 10 to 1, are bet on P. Lorillard's brown gelding Parole winning the race for the Lincolnshire Handicap, which takes place near London, March 17th.

It is stated that there is fine duck shooting along the Delaware river.

COMMUNICATED.

For The Constitutionalist.

VINDICATED AT LAST.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—It is very gratifying to the gentlemen who were members of the Common Council during the year 1878, (who were elected without regard to their political proclivities) to see that their arguments have been utilized—their judgment approved—and their theories adopted by the present Council. It is with pride that the Common Council of 1878 can point to the record they made; $4,000 received from the granting of licenses and less money expended for the support of poor than in any former year; less crime recorded on the journal of justice—especially that of drunkenness than before or since; more delinquent taxes collected than ever in any one year before or since, and more old debts and judgments paid and cancelled than any previous or the subsequent Council can boast of. These are facts that I challenge any one to successfully controvert. Yet the Council of 1878 were and have been branded, slandered, abused, condemned and branded in the most unchristian like, malicious, base and contemptible spirit imaginable, by a certain "element" of our city, by those who considered none but themselves their parallel—and none but themselves their peers. How much better it would have been for the class spoken of had they with noble patriotism, subdued passion and prejudice in their love of justice; they would thereby have saved their credit, for the principles that the Council of 1878 enunciated have at last cropped out in a "christian" Council, like the Crocus on the edge of a glacier; and the tirades of abuse that were hurled at the Council of 1878 finally fall as harmless as the sweet summer dew upon a fresh mown lawn and have proved at last to be like a rotten orange—far fetched and worthless. The very same figures that were recently given by the Committee on Licenses of the present Council, were given by your correspondent in an issue of your paper in December, 1878, whereby the public were made aware of the exact workings of the theories that had been advanced by the contending factions. And now a perfect vindication, of our course in public matters, as exemplified by our works and votes in 1878, has been accorded us by the former champions of "no license," and by our former public enemies. It now remains to be seen whether the present Common Council is to be condemned (as we were) or whether they and ourselves are to be considered as faithful servants of our constituents. The question I leave with the people to decide after thoroughly reviewing the premises, and carefully considering the stand points.

"1878."

Five Hundred Thousand Strong.

In the past few months there has been more than 500,000 bottles of SHILOH'S CURE SOLD. Out of the vast number of people who have used it, more than 2,000 cases of CONSUMPTION have been cured. All Coughs, Croup, Asthma, and Bronchitis, yield at once, hence it is that every body speaks in its praise. To those who have not used it, let us say, if you have a Cough, or your child the Croup, and you value life don't fail to try it. For Lame Back, Side or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by your Druggists, W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

A Strange People.

Do you know that there are strange people in our community, we say strange because they seem to prefer to suffer and pass their days miserably, made so by Dyspepsia, and Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Constipation, and General Debility, when SHILOH'S VITALIZER is guaranteed to cure them. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

We have a speedy and positive Cure, for Catarrh, Diptheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache, in SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A nasal Injector free with each bottle. Use it if you desire health, and sweet breath. Price 50 cts. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds. ja8eow6m.

We Can't Talk

Without showing the condition of our teeth. Every laugh exposes them. In order not to be ashamed of them let us use that standard dentifrice, SOZODONT, which is sure to keep them white and spotless. No tartar can encrust them, no canker affect the enamel, no species of decay infest the dental bone, if SOZODONT is regularly used. It is a botanical preparation, and its beneficial effects on the teeth and gums are marvelous, as it removes all discolorations, and renders the gums hard and rosy.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR

Simmons'

LIVER DISEASE and Indigestion prevail to a greater extent than probably any other malady, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Indigestion or want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the shoulders, Cough, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered for these ailments. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for forty years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its virtues, viz: Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia; John Gill Shorter, of Alabama; Gen. John B. Gordon, N. L. Mott, of Columbus, [illegible], Bishop Pierce, of Georgia, are among the hundreds to whom we can refer. Extract of a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1872: "I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active medicines."

LIVER

REGULATOR

It is not the quantity taken that gives strength, life, blood and health. It is the thorough digestion of the food taken let it be much or little. Therefore, do not stimulate up the stomach to crave food, but rather assist digestion after eating by taking

SINCE Judge Good "retired" from office, there don't seem to be as many cases come before Judge Runyon for disorderly conduct, &c. What is the matter? Has "Charley" gobbled up the whole gang. Try some of the corner loafers, Capt. and give Judge Runyon a show.

OVER 3,000 valentines passed through the Plainfield Post Office on Valentine's day. No accurate account of the number was kept this year by the clerks. The number of costly and elegant missives sent this year shows there was an increase over those sent last year.

WE learn that the proceeds from the Grand Ball to be given under the auspices of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society, at Laing's Hall, St. Patrick's night, will be devoted to the Irish Relief Fund. Our citizens should lend their aid in such a charitable object by purchasing tickets of the members.

THE action of Common Council on Monday evening last, shows that that body is a "License" Council—from necessity. They want the money accruing from granting licenses, and the people have said at the polls that they want licenses. So that matter is settled. Next question.

"WHY, there is a new house I never saw before!" is the remark of many a resident of our city, as they pass through some thoroughfare they have not before been through for weeks. This gives some idea of how many new buildings are being erected in our midst. Plainfield is growing rapidly.

WE were in error in our statement that Mr. Boutet designed and executed the scenery used at the recent play of "The Gunmaker of Moscow" by the Thespian Club. Mr. Charles Schlitz was the designer, and painted all of them with the exception of the wood scene. That was executed by Mr. W. P. Adams.

OUR local fishermen still continue to capture suckers by the combined use of hook, line and worm, in the waters of Green Brook, below Evona. LOOK out for the grand salute that Commodore Happeny and Capt. Tom McDonald, of the Plainfield Artillery Company, propose giving our citizens on the morning of Feb. 23d, in honor of Washington's birth-day. To them are due the only patriotism the city of Plainfield will afford on that memorable occasion.

POOR sister city, Elizabeth. Her trials will never cease. The Courts have gone to work and served another mandamus upon that city, to show cause why an order should not be entered commanding her to forthwith levy a tax to cover a judgment against her for $9,219.54, with interest. Come to Plainfield, you poor over-burdened tax-payers of Bettytown. We don't owe nothin'.

WHY should not New York merchants and others seek Plainfield as a place of residence? We have pure water, fine scenery, macadamized roads, good schools, and churches of every denomination, stores wherein goods may be procured at New York prices, are easy of access to the large cities East and West of us, thanks to a well-managed railroad, and our location is a healthful one. Besides, we have no bonded debt, which makes our taxes light in comparison to sister cities near us. Come to Plainfield.

COUNCILMAN Ryder seems to be unfortunate in the presentation of his long-winded communications before the Common Council. THE CONSTITUTIONALIST has again been designated as one of the official papers of the State in which are to be published the laws passed by the Legislature. As one of the principal causes of such choice is the fact that the law on the subject requires the selection to be from among those papers having the largest circulation, it will be a fact well-worth remembering by those desiring a proper medium to circulate their wants.

The Ellis Family

Gave a very pleasing entertainment in Vandeventer Hall last Thursday evening, under the auspices of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F. As the advertisements announced, "Little Fanny May" Ellis is a wonder. She possesses a clear, strong voice for one so young and sang very prettily, as did also her sister Miss "Rosie," who has a contralto voice. Masters Frank and Fred also creditably performed their parts. The audience present expressed themselves as delighted with the entertainment. On the 28th of February, the Ellis Family will give another entertainment in this city under auspices of Warren Mission of North Plainfield. We predict for them a full house.

Distressing Accident.

As Mrs. S. Osborn Doane, residing on the corner of Fourth and Church streets, this city, was about descending the steps of her basement last Tuesday evening, she stumbled over a sleeping cat at the head of the stairs and fell to the bottom of the steps. The fall was heard by members of the family and Mrs. D. was found insensible, having struck her head and shoulders against a post at the bottom of the stairs in her fall. Dr. South was summoned, and an investigation proved that one of the wrists of the unfortunate lady was broken in two places. Mrs. D. was fortunate in not receiving more serious or fatal injury from her fall.

Thanks to Honorable E. T. Stockton, Comptroller of the State, for documentary favors.

It being the opening lecture of the course given by the Deither Society, P. H. S. The next lecture of the course will be given at the same Hall, March 9th, by Dr. C. H. Fowler. Subject, "The Bible, the Prophet of Science."

Receiver's Sale.

The sale at auction of the notes, checks, stock and accounts of the late firm of A. Coddington, McNabb & Co., billed for Monday last, at the Mansion House, this city, took place at 10:30 o'clock, a. m. John W. Emery, Receiver, acted as auctioneer. Bidders were scarce, and accounts more so, as only two were offered, they being notes against the Rittinhouse Bros., amounting together to $607.97. Judgment having been obtained in the lower Courts, and appealed to the Supreme Court, by defendants, the accounts were sold, subject to decision of the latter Court. Sold to A. V. Lindabury for $100. $401 might have been obtained, but the Receiver positively refused to entertain a bid for less than five dollars. Sale adjourned to—no date.

Singular Accident.

Last Thursday evening, a workman in the employ of Newt. Drake, Clothier, of this city, named P. McVey, who has shop room with M. McVey, cleaner and repairer of clothing, Somerset street, went out to the back yard of his quarters to empty a pan of ashes. In the darkness he stumbled and fell, injuring himself so severely that he was compelled to crawl back to the shop, where he remained all night, his cries for help to passers-by being so feeble as to preclude their hearing him. When Mr. McVoy opened his shop in the morning he found McVey scarcely able to speak. A physician was summoned, who pronounced his injuries to consist of a broken rib. The injured man is very poor and has four children dependent upon the money received from his labors. Another case in favor of the establishment of the Muhlenberg Hospital.

The Expert's Report.

Below we give the report of Judge Alward, the expert appointed by Judge Vansyckle to investigate the books of the late Township of Plainfield and the city of Plainfield, and which is now on file in the County Clerk's office. It will be remembered by our readers that in his preliminary report, made at the time of his appointment, and which was published in full in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, the expert gravely hinted at irregularities. His final report, however, exonerates all officials concerned from "crookedness." The following is the report:

To His Honor, Judge Van Syckle:

Pursuant to your order directing me to make further investigation into the municipal receipts and expenditures of the late Township of Plainfield, and also the said city of Plainfield, so far as the said receipts or expenditures are connected with or in any wise related to the said township of Plainfield, I beg leave to report that I have completed the investigation as directed by said order. I find the uncollected taxes as follows, October 4th, 1879:

I further report that I have examined the receipts, disbursements and vouchers of the township officers, and with the exception of the criticisms made in my former report, I find that the monies received have been properly appropriated.

JOSEPH ALWARD.

Feb. 12th, 1880.

Concert at Westfield.

On Thursday evening last, our music loving neighbors were treated to a delectable entertainment, similar in character to that given at Cranford a month ago, the artists engaged being Mrs. E. J. Grant, Soprano, Presbyterian Memorial church, N. Y.; Mrs. J. R. Draper, Contralto, church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn; Mr. Fred. W. Ritter, Tenor, Trinity Chapel, N. Y.; Mr. Henry S. Brown, Basso-Cantante, church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn; Mr. E. J. Grant, Pianist and Accompanist. The quartette is a remarkably efficient one, all the voices being full, rich and powerful, and of extensive range, amply competent to sing in the largest concert rooms in New York City. There is, therefore, an impression of a wholesome reserve power, in no wise marred by loud or boisterous effects, left after each performance. Mr. Grant, an able accompanist of good taste and facile execution, opened the evening by a courageous essayal of one of Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsodies, a crucial work, requiring, beyond mere execution, an expression of peculiar character and strength. The audience were hardly prepared for its full appreciation. Later in the evening a Chopin Nocturne was rendered with good effect. In both numbers the gentleman revealed the conscientious student.

Mr. Brown sang Pinsuti's "Bedouin Love Song," with well contrasted tenderness and impetuous enthusiasm; his sonorous voice and hearty, earnest method winning favor at the outset. Mr. Ritter displayed an exceptionally robust tenor voice of delicious quality in Mr. Dudley Buck's "Thou art mine," which was sung with warmth and understanding. "The day is done," (Longfellow-Balfe) by Mrs. Draper, a contralto of unusual culture and purity of voice, was rendered with such distinct enunciation and refinement of expression as to evoke a spontaneous encore, when the lady introduced a new song by Mr. Buck, the words being Geo. Macdonald's "Where did you come from, baby dear?" a delicious little morsel, charmingly presented. Mrs. Grant's selection disclosed good taste and an artistic instinct, which was amply exemplified in a notably free and intelligent delivery of Mr. Buck's "The silent world is sleeping," one of the finest songs which this gifted composer has given us. An enthusiastic expression of appreciation drew from the lady an old favorite, "Annie Laurie," and its latest bearing added much to its reputation for beauty and simplicity. The ladies sang an exquisite duett of Pacini's with rare excellence, adding on call, Kucken's "The Swallows," and the gentlemen were forced to repeat Benedict's "The moon has raised her lamp above"—a penalty cheerfully endured. Mrs. Grant and Mr. Brown sang Donizetti's "L'Addio," and Mrs. Draper and Mr. Ritter the prison duo from Trovatore, adding Campana's "See the pale moon," for an encore.

The celebrated Attila trio and Barnby's "Sweet and Low" completed a most satisfactory programme, and one that it would be difficult to improve upon. Entire satisfaction, however, will hardly be entertained by us until Plainfield shall be even with her more fortunate neighbor and a similar concert shall have been heard here.

MR. Geo. Lewis has at length obtained a verdict in his favor in the matter of damages claimed by him in consequence of his buggy being brought into collision with that of Mr. Bloodgood, of Rahway. The trial again came off on Friday last before Justice Clark, Mr. Lindabury appearing for Mr. Lewis and Mr. Maxson for Mr. Bloodgood. The Justice gave a decision in favor of Mr. Lewis for $133 and costs.

Personals.

Mr. Edward Mervin, so long connected with the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company, as their agent in this city, left on Tuesday to take a position in the Company's works at Bridgeport, Conn.

Open Letter to the Common Council.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Feb. 18, 1880.

To the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN: I see by the report of your proceedings of Monday evening that I am referred to by name as an "authority" impugning the veracity of Mr. Isaac W. Rushmore. In regard to which I have the following to say:

1. When I am ready to officiate as an "authority" in your proceedings, I will so apprise you in my own behalf.

2. No man in Plainfield commands my confidence for veracity, and integrity more fully and unqualifiedly than Isaac W. Rushmore.

3. I have had no conversation with any member of the Council as to Mr. Rushmore's report—have matured and expressed no deliberate opinions concerning it, and am not aware of having expressed any at all—even the most casual.

4. I have no doubt that his statement as to the record of arrests in 1874, is correct and that technically, and in a purely business point of view, this is a proper record for him to refer to in this case.

5. As to the conclusiveness of this record as showing actually more drinking in Plainfield in 1874, than before and after, that is a matter to be discussed when it is in order.

Very respectfully yours,
K. P. KETCHAM.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY EV'G., Feb. 16, '80.

Council met pursuant to adjournment. Present, Coriell, Dunlap, Finch, Potts, Rushmore, Flanders, Ryder, Redfield, Lithgow, Whiton. Absent, Darling.

Pres. Potts in the chair.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Mr. Whiton presented petition of D. J. Marshall for a Hack license. Ref'd to License Com.

Mr. Lithgow presented petition of Jas. H. Force for a license to keep an inn and tavern and to sell spirituous and fermented liquors therein, in the building known as "Force's Hotel," situate on Front St. Ref'd to License Committee, Flanders and Ryder voting in the negative.

By the same—Petition of E. P. Thorn for a license to keep an inn and tavern and to sell spirituous and fermented liquors therein, in the building known as the "Mansion House," situate cor. Park Ave. and 2d St. Ref'd to License Com.

Mr. Finch presented com'n from Chas. S. Guion, asking permission to remove barn from 4th St. to West's lumber yard. Ref'd to St. Com.

Mr. Ryder presented claim of Plainfield Gaslight Co., $229.24. Ref'd to Lamp Co.

Mr. Dunlap presented claim of Street Com'r Geo. M. Angleman, laying of cross-walks over Park Ave., at 7th and 8th Sts., $50. Ref'd to St. Com.

Mr. Lithgow presented claim of E. A. Vermeule, repairs to lamps, $11. Ref'd to Lamp Com. Also, claim of J. R. Ogderdonk, surveys, etc., $75. Ref'd to Finance Com. Also, claim of E. O. Chamberlain, adv'g, $6.50. Ref'd to Printing Com.

Mr. Redfield, from Alms Com., reported correct claim of Henry Gars, $1. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Whiton, from Lamp Com., as correct the following claims: Plainfield Gas Light Co., $232.90; N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gaslight Co., 2 claims, $234.38. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Lithgow, from Law & Ord. Com., reported favorably on claim of one Wm. Stewart, $75, deposited with City Treas., for support of an illegitimate child, and recommended that the bill be paid. On motion, warrant was ordered drawn.

By the same—As correct, claim of Westfield Township for support of one Jas. Vermeule, a Plainfield pauper, the Overseer of Poor being instructed to have said Vermeule brought to this city and cared for, if thought advisable.

Mr. Whiton wished to know if the bill had to be paid? Mr Lithgow thought it would. Mr. Redfield was of the same opinion, stating that most of the claim was for medicine, and thought the man was evidently sick. After further discussion the bill was ordered paid, Mr. Whiton voting in the negative.

By the same—As correct, the claim of the city of Elizabeth for the burial of one Randolph, a Plainfield pauper. On motion, report rec'd and claim ordered paid.

By the same—As not correct, (not being properly attested to and unintelligible) the claim of one Betsol. On motion, laid on the table.

By the same, the matter of the Gravel Pits, as follows:

In their opinion "Midway" is not such a public street as would warrant the Common Council in appropriating $400 for repairs thereon, the real object of the Council being the abatement of the nuisance aforesaid. That in their opinion the direct and only legal course for the Council to pursue in the case is this: To proceed at once through the Board of Health to abate such nuisance and collect the expense thereof out of the owners or occupants of the land on which the said nuisance exists, if such owners or occupants have property out of which that expense can be made, as provided by ordinance entitled "an ordinance for the correction of nuisances and for the preservation of health in the city of Plainfield." Approved September 2, 1879. And to accomplish this end, and remove a nuisance which is detrimental to the health of our city, and therefore a great injury to its prosperity, your committee would recommend the following resolution:

Be it Resolved, That the Board of Health be and hereby are authorized to expend such an amount, not exceeding four hundred dollars ($400) to abate the nuisance known as the "Gravel Pits" in this city, the expense of so abating such nuisance to be assessed upon the owners or occupants of the premises whereon such nuisance exists.

Plainfield, Feb. 16, 1880.

On motion, report rec'd and resolution adopted. All aye.

Mr. Rushmore, from License Com., reported favorably upon petition of G. W. Foster for a Hack license. On motion, license granted.

By the same—that the petition of Chas. Zimmer for a saloon license conforms to the ord., and would recommend that the license be granted.

Mr. Whiton moved that the report of the Com. be received and license granted.

At this juncture, Mr. Ryder arose and read the following:

I find myself to-night in a situation which I never expected, and which I should have shrunk from, had I foreseen it. I am here in the minority in a License Council. My experience since I have entered into public life, altho' so recently, has been a succession of surprises, and I cannot help feeling at each ensuing meeting a sad curiosity as to what new developments may arise. At our first meeting, which was an informal one, each member was called upon to state his views on the License question, and from the tone of those remarks, I was satisfied that it would be a very difficult matter for any saloon keeper to procure a license, and that the Council would probably agree to the proposition of the respected Chairman of the License Committee, granting licenses only to hotels, and granting to saloons the liberty of selling ale and beer only. I thought perhaps we temperance men might so compromise the matter, although I for one should feel reluctant, but I did not dream that our majority should dwindle away one by one before any decided attack by the rum sellers had been made. That they should allow themselves to be captured by a contemptible advance guard of the enemy, a mere line of skirmishers.

But I am in the minority and am called upon to defend myself from the attacks of the champion of the other side, who tells us that we have no right to come here and advocate our private or personal views; that we are the servants of the people to do the will of the people, and that the people demand license.

Undoubtedly some of them do—undoubtedly some of them do not. My friend represents his self-chosen constituency. I represent another, and a very large class who think that drinking saloons are a curse to the land and who want them closed. I represent 570 women of Plainfield, our wives and mothers, whose petition two temperance men on the other side moved to place on file; in other words to take no notice of it whatever. The great argument of our opponents seems to be that we must have the money derived from license fees to pay the expenses of the city, and the champion actually threatens, in case we refuse to grant licenses, that he will oppose all appropriations for street improvements, and that we cannot have street lights, etc. Such a position is simply infamous. To grant licenses because it seems to be necessary (a necessary evil) is one thing; to grant them in order to secure a revenue is quite another. It is a proposition, which, as benevolent men and christians, we cannot entertain for a moment. There are other disorderly houses in Plainfield besides drinking saloons; we might hand them over to the License Committee and increase our revenue still further.

I have read of a city in Europe where all the expense was paid by the revenue from gambling houses, and there were no other taxes. And the city of New Orleans, which repudiates its debts, proposes also to put a tax on gambling houses. Are we prepared to follow out this programme? Mr. President, it is never expedient to do wrong, and the only true policy is to do right, and I am persuaded that the money which our License Committee takes in, we, of the Poor Committee, will have to pay out with interest. Mr. President, if I had come into this Council undecided and weak-kneed on this question, I think the proceedings of our last meeting would have confirmed me. I certainly thought that the old Council had been carrying out the idea of restricted license, and that they had been building up public sentiment, slowly, it is true, but I hoped surely, and there was a question whether, perhaps they had not adopted a wise policy; but what is this new revelation?

Last year's Council granted every license applied for, with only one exception. Gentlemen, do not try any longer to deceive us! Do not deceive yourselves! This is not restricted license—this is free license. The worst Rum Council we ever had could hardly do more.

It has been said by the champion of the other side, that a majority of the people have decided by their votes that they are in favor of granting licenses to saloons. This I deny. The question has never been fairly before the people, and we cannot well get it there under the present State law. We have had men in our Council elected year after year who always voted against licenses, and several members of this Council, no doubt, receive many votes because they had previously made a good record on this question by always voting No. Why any of these men should have gone over to the enemy they probably can tell, but if they persist in this course, they will find if they ever run for another term, that a large class of our best citizens will scratch their names. The chairman of the License Com. in his kindly report on the petition of 572 women of Plainfield, states that there was more drunkenness in this city in 1874 when there were no licenses granted, than in the succeeding years under the license system. The gentleman comes from good Quaker stock—a people long noted for their truthfulness—a people who have always denounced every evil, especially rum selling. It seems to me that he should have stronger reasons than these statistics which he has presented to justify him in forsaking the traditions of his fathers; for I believe the figures to be entirely unreliable, and I give as my authority the Rev. Mr. Ketcham and Rev. John H. Vincent, and Dr. John Allen, who was for three years chairman of the License Committee, declares them to be utterly false. Mr. President, if I have said anything unkind, I ask pardon of the Council. I respect and esteem every member, and would be sorry to say any word calculated to wound the feelings of any, but I must conclude from the confessions of the members here made that in granting licenses they are impelled by a strong sense of duty to vote quite contrary to their inclinations. Gentlemen, allow me to say finally that I think your position in granting licenses to saloons is contrary to law. For the State law on licenses, section 13, says: "It shall be the duty and it is hereby expressly enjoined upon the Courts to prevent, as much as possible, Inns, and Taverns kept for the encouragement of tippling, drunkenness and other vices, and that no more shall be licensed than are necessary for the accommodation of travellers and strangers." So gentlemen, you have no foundation under you, and there can be no foundation that is not builded on truth. You have granted one saloon license, do not, I beg of you, grant another, but let us, as a Council, unite and do what we can to crush out this gigantic evil of public tippling. Let us make one honest effort, and if we fail we will have the satisfaction of knowing that we have tried to do our duty. If we succeed we shall have the thanks of the community and the blessing of Almighty God.

Mr. Redfield, after listening to such a speech, would call for the question.

Upon a vote being taken, Mr. Zimmer's license was granted as follows: Ayes—Finch, Lithgow, Potts, Redfield, Rushmore, Whiton—6. Nays—Coriell, Dunlap; Flanders, Ryder—4.

By the License Com., as conforming to the Ord., the petition of Werner Heldtoff for a Hotel license, and recommend that the same be granted. Agreed to, the vote being the same as above—6 ayes and 4 nays.

Also, as conforming to the Ord., petition of Fred Caspar for a saloon license, and that the same be granted.

Mr. Ryder wished to know why they were acting on this petition? He said that it had been refused once, etc. The gentleman was informed that this license had not been acted upon. Mr. Ryder sat down, and Mr. Caspar's license was granted—6 to 4.

Also, conforming to the Ord., petition of August Smith for a saloon license.

Mr. Whiton wished to be informed where this saloon was. The Clerk said that it was situated on the cor. of Front and Somerset Sts. Mr. Whiton did not like the idea of having saloons so close to each other.

At this point Mr. Lithgow arose and stated that now an opportunity offered itself for him to say something relative to this license question. These applications have been advertised in the city papers, and no remonstrances have been presented. Why do not these great temperance men remonstrate? They are afraid to! They dare not! I consider myself as good a temperance man as there is in this city, but I am no fool! We have been grossly insulted this evening by a representative of women; our worthy chairman of the License Com., Mr. Rushmore, has been called a liar! No gentleman would use such language. It is evident to my mind that he (Ryder) does not know the meaning of the word; it would be better for him to go to a training school and learn how to act the part of a gentleman. I do not believe that Mr. Ketcham ever made such remarks relative to Mr. Rushmore's statements. Mr. Lithgow stated further that he fought the rum element openly and squarely.

Mr. Ryder stated that he did not mean to call Mr. Rushmore a liar, and he thought that Mr. Rushmore would not take it in that light. He was glad, he said, that he was a representative of women.

Mr. Rushmore stated that the figures had been given him by the City Clerk from the official record, and he presumed they were correct.

Mr. Flanders stated that he supposed a limited number of licenses were to be granted. I cannot understand why Mr. Lithgow should act in the manner that he does on this license question. It is utterly incomprehensible to me. Mr. Flanders wished that 3,600 women instead of 500 had presented a petition to this Council relative to the liquor traffic.

Mr. Whiton reiterated what he said in the Council chamber a short time since, favoring a restricted license.

Mr. Lithgow remarked that from 1863 to 1867, he was associated with many prominent prohibitionists of Massachusetts relative to a prohibitory law. It was a failure throughout. Some of the worst [illegible] were [illegible] that were ever heard of. As to granting Hotel licenses only, he thought it ridiculous. The Hotels are for the rich; a poor man could not go in there and call for his "Tom and Jerry," "Brandy Cocktail," etc. More young men were ruined he was of the opinion by Hotels than by saloons.

Mr. Flanders begged to differ with Mr. Lithgow. He wanted it distinctly understood that under no circumstances would he vote for the granting of a license to sell intoxicating liquors; it is contrary to my Christian principles.

Mr. Ryder would rather not have any licenses at all. As to a restricted license he did not see where it came in; you are granting every license that comes along. In reading the report of the City Judge I saw where one Zimmer had sold liquor to a minor, and he became drunk and quarrelsome. (Mr. Zimmer's license was granted, however. Heldtoff, when his gang is let loose Saturday nights, there is fighting, pistol-firing, &c., but still his license is granted.

Mr. Whiton thought that in advertising for remonstrances to the petitions, the Council had performed their duty.

Mr. Rushmore thought that Mr. Ryder had been derelict in duty in not mentioning this matter sooner, and not wait until after the licenses are granted. Mr. Redfield was of the same opinion.

Mr. Coriell stated that the Council and the citizens of Plainfield knew just where he stood on the license question. He could not conscientiously vote for licenses.

After further discussion pro and con, Mr. Smith's license, on motion of Mr. Lithgow, was granted—six to four.

Mr. Finch presented report of the Police Board for the past month, and that the force was in good condition. The Mayor requested permission to withdraw the nomination of George W. Moore as a regular police officer. Report received and permission granted.

By the same—The following:

Be it Resolved, That Charles W. Dodd be and he hereby is designated as the officer and member of the police force through whom all orders of the Board of Police and Common Council shall be given.

Be it Resolved, That Charles W. Dodd, one of the regular city policemen, be and he hereby is nominated and appointed as the person to whom shall be directed the warrant for the collection of all taxes in arrears, and he is hereby authorized and required to execute said warrant.

Be it Resolved, That the salary to be paid to Charles W. Dodd for all services required of him as regular city policeman, member of the police force specially designated as the officer through whom all orders of the Board of Police and Common Council shall be given of him, and all other services by resolution or otherwise now required of him, be and the same is hereby fixed at the sum of Seven Hundred Dollars per annum, payable monthly.

On motion of Mr. Finch, the above resolutions were acted upon separately and adopted. All aye.

Mr. Ryder, from Salary Com., reported as correct two claims of J. G. Nodyne, $43.66; City Physician Lowrie, $62.50. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

By the same—the following:

WHEREAS, The city charter provides "that the Common Council shall have power to grant or allow such fees to the several officers of the city as the Common Council shall deem necessary and proper," therefore

Resolved, That the compensation of the city officers for the year 1880, shall be as follows:

Counsel to the Corporation, per annum,		$300 00
City Clerk,	per annum,	300 00
City Treasurer,	do	300 00
City Physician,	do	250 00
Overseer of the Poor,	do	200 00
Street Commissioner,	do	200 00
Regular Police Tingley,	do	500 00
do do Hapenny,	do	500 00
Special Police, 25 cents per hour when on duty.
Janitor of Council Chamber, per annum,		50 00
And for each special meeting,		2 00

CHAS. E. RYDER.

On motion, adopted. All aye.

Mr. Ryder stated that he held two claims of parties against the city, who are in arrears for taxes, and asked what he should do with them. The Pres. ref'd Mr. R. to the Corp. Counsel.

Mr. Coriell, from St. Com., reported favorably upon petition of Mr. Guion to remove barn. Report received and permission granted.

By the same—As correct, claim of St. Com'r Angleman, $50. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Flanders stated Mr. Angleman wished the above amount credited to his taxes.

Mr. Dunlap, from Aud. Com., reported as correct the following claims from the Poor account: Drs. Stillman and Lowrie, vital statistics, $25 70; Dr. Lowrie, do., 10 40; Chas. Hyde, 12 00; Wm. B. Ayres, 8 00; J. S. Cutter, 134 50; L. A. Rheaume, 56 55; Henry Gars, 4 00; Alex. M. Runyon, 16 00; David Hand, 77 91; T. J. Gillies, 31 00; Mrs. Bertha Green, 26 00; A. V. Searing, 57 50.

Mr. Whiton objected to claims of Chas. Hyde and Wm. B. Ayres, and hesitated to audit them. Mr. Redfield was of the opinion that they were correct. These two claims on motion, were laid upon the table for further investigation.

Mr. Whiton inquired how the funds stood to the credit of the Poor Fund. Being informed of the amount, he moved that the bills standing the longest against the Poor fund be paid first, and the balance as far as the funds will go, as per statement from the Finance Com. So agreed to.

The claims of St. Com'r Angleman, $144, from the General Fund, were found correct and on motion warrants were ordered drawn.

Mr. Whiton presented a very lengthy Ord. relative to the "Relief of the Poor of the City of Plainfield," which was read. On motion, read 2d time, and ordered engrossed and to a 3d reading. All aye.

By the same—A res. that the Clerk be authorized to get necessary stationery, and a new Warrant book. Adopted.

Upon inquiry of Mr. Rushmore, Mr. Ryder admitted that he did not examine the report himself as to the number of arrests in 1874, and that the information was second-handed, &c.

On motion of Mr. Flanders, the two lamps petitioned for by Evan Jones were granted.

By the same—That the petition of J. H. Tier, extension of wooden awning to curbstone in front of his building on Park Ave., be granted.

Mr. Whiton did not think that any more wooden awnings should be erected within the fire limits, and moved as an amendment, that the report be received and application be not granted. Agreed to.

On motion of Mr. Finch, the remainder of the Mayor's nominations were laid over until next meeting night.

Council then adjourned.

ROBERT PERRY, a former resident of this city, while engaged in painting on an elevated railroad structure in N. Y., on Saturday, was precipitated to the ground below, a distance of about twenty-five feet, in consequence of a "sling" giving away on which he was sitting, and sustained severe injuries. It is rumored that he died in consequence of the same on Sunday. "Bob" was a young man of exemplary habits, and his many friends in this section will learn with regret of his mishap and sorrow for him, if the rumor of his death proves true.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

"THE DISADVANTAGES OF CITY BOYS."

Some months ago, Rev. Washington Gladden, of Springfield, Mass., believing that if he could find out how the active and prominent men of his own city spent their boyhood; it would help to solve the problem of what is the best training for boys, prepared the following circular, which was sent to the one hundred men who could fairly be said to stand at the head of the financial, commercial, professional and educational interests of the city.

"MY DEAR SIR:—I desire to find out, for the benefit of the boys, how the leading men of this city spent their boyhood. Will you be kind enough to tell me

"1. Whether your home during the first fifteen years of your life was on a farm, in a village, or in a city, and,

"2. Whether you were accustomed, during any part of that period, to engage in any kind of work when you were not in school!

"I should be glad, of course, to have you go into particulars as fully as you are disposed to do; but I do not wish to tax your patience, and I shall be greatly obliged for a simple answer to these questions."

No less than eighty-eight of the busy gentlemen who received this circular were kind enough to answer the questions,—some of them briefly, most of them quite fully, and it turned out that few had been brought up like most of the boys who crowd the ball-grounds and fill the streets of our cities in these later days. Here is a brief summary of the returns:

Of these eighty-eight men, twelve spent the first fifteen years of their life in the city, twelve in villages, and sixty-four were farmers' boys.

But of the twenty-four who lived in villages and cities, six were practically farmers' boys, for they lived in small villages, or on the outskirts of cities, and had the same kind of work to do that farmers' boys have. One of these village boys said:

"I learned to hoe, dig and mow; in fact, I was obliged to work, whether I liked it or no. In Winter I went to school, and worked nights and mornings for my board."

Another said: "I used to work away from home some on a farm in the Summer and Fall. In the Winter, when going to school, we three boys used to work up the wood for Winter use."

Four other boys told substantially the same story. As these were about the same as farmers' boys, we may add them to that list, so that seventy-eight,—almost four-fifths of all these men,—had the training of farm-life.

Now how was it with the eighteen city and village boys on the list? Did they have an easy time of it? Five of them did, as they testify; five of them had no work in particular to do, but one of the five says that he studied law when out of school, and that was not exactly play. The rest of the eighteen were poor boys,—not paupers, by any means, but children of the humbler classes, many of them in narrow and needy circumstances,—and though they lived in cities or villages, they were accustomed from their earliest years to hard work.

"Was generally employed," says one, "during the Summer months, and in vacations, in doing any kind of work that offered."

Four of the city boys were newsboys. One of them says: "The last year I was connected with the press, I earned one hundred dollars before breakfast."

Another: "I have paid my own way since eight years of age, without any assistance except my board from my eighth to my eleventh year."

Of all these eighty-eight boys, five only had nothing to do.

While these boys were growing and working, a great many others,—sons of merchants and lawyers,—were growing up in Springfield, going to school and amusing themselves, as boys of their class are apt to do. Where are they? Only five of this class are heard from among the eighty-eight solid men of that city. Some of them, perhaps, are prosperous men in other cities, but the number cannot be large, for in Springfield only five men out of eighty-eight came from this class. Ninety-four and a half per cent. were either farmers' boys or poor and hard-working town-boys.

Mr. Gladden made his report to the public of Sprinfield, in the form of a lecture. The mere announcement of the subject alone crowded the church, which is a large one, and the interest in the lecture was so great that the Mayor and several of the representative citizens requested a repetition in the Music Hall. When this came off, the hall was packed and hundreds went away from the doors unable to gain entrance.

Mr. Gladden has re-written the lecture, and his interesting facts and logical deductions will appear in one of the leading magazines for March. He is now engagd on a "Talk with Girls," for the same magazine. It will be printed before long, and will be of vital interest to girls, and suited to their requirements, as this paper is suited to the boys.—St. Nicholas.

REMARKABLE CLOCKS.

Longfellow, in his Hyperion, tells us that on the belfry on the Kanthans in Coblentz, is a huge head, with a brazen helmet and a beard, and whenever the clock strikes, at each stroke of the hammer the giant's head opens its grat jaws and smites its teeth together as if it would say, "Time was—Time is—Time is past!" This figure is known in all the country round as "The man in the Custom House," and when a friend from the country meets a friend from Coblentz instead of saying, "How are all the good people in Coblentz?" he says, "How is the man in the Custom House?"

Another very remarkable clock is found at Prague, built probably by some of the old Nuremburg artists. It stands near the old Hussite Church. The clock itself forms part of the original tower, while the face or dial is exposed to the street. The dial is six or eight feet in diameter, and has a great number of hands recording hours, minutes, days, months, years, and even centuries. The dial is set in an elaborate frame-work, about eight feet high and fifteen long, and this metal frame-work is ornamented with many curious and quaint devices. One of them is connected with the striking of the hours.

In Venice may be found another wonderful clock. On the dial plate of this, in St. Mark's Cathedral, the twenty-four hours are marked with the signs of zodiac and the phases of the moon.—Above this is the Madonna, sitting in state upon a platform beneath two doors. On grand religious festivals the door on the right of the Virgin opens, and out walks an angel with a big trumpet, which he blows and then bowing to the Madonna, passes on. He is followed by three men, representing the three wise men of the East, one of whom is as black as night. These all pause and bow before the Virgin, and then pass through the door on her left, which closes after them. On the platform is a huge bell, beside which stand two giant figures, who strike the hours with sledge hammers, while above all is the Lion of St. Mark, with outstretched wings.

In an old record is found the following account of a remarkable Japanese time-keeper:

"The clock, in a frame three feet high and five long, represented a noon landscape of great loveliness. In the foreground were plum and cherry trees and rich plants in full bloom; in the rear a hill, gradual in ascent, from which flowed a cascade admirably imitated in crystal. From this point a thread-like stream glided along, encircling in its winding rocks and tiny islands, but presently losing itself in a far-off stretch of woodland. In the sky turned a golden sun, indicating as it passed the striking hours, which were all marked upon the frame below, where a slowly creeping tortoise served a hand. A bird of exquisite plumage, resting on a plum-tree branch, by its wings proclaimed the expiration of each hour. When the song ceased a mouse sprang from a grotto near by, and running over the hill hastily disappeared."

But it is said that Droz, a mechanic of Geneva, produced a clock which excelled all others in its marvellousness. On it were seated a negro, a shepherd and a dog. When the clock struck the shepherd played six tunes on his flute, and the dog approached and fawned upon him. The King of Spain came to see this wonderful invention, and was delighted beyond measure. "The gentleness of my dog," said Droz, "is his least merit; if your Majesty touch one of the apples which you see in the shepherd's basket you will admire the animal's fidelity." The King took an apple, upon which the dog flew at his hand, barking so loudly and so naturally that another dog which had come into the room began to bark also. The courtiers became terrified, thinking this must be an affair of witchcraft, and crossing themselves hastily departed.—Only one ventured to remain, and Droz requested him to ask the negro what time it was. He did so in Spanish, but received no reply. Droz remarked that the negro had not learned Spanish, and the question was repeated in French, when the negro immediately replied.—This frightened the questioner also quite out of his wits, and he too, beat a hasty retreat, sure that the whole thing must be of the devil.

BENEFITS OF ADVERTISING.

Bread is the staff of life, so is advertising the staff of business.

Blessed are they who do not advertise, for they shall rarely be troubled with a customer.

You can't eat enough in a week to last you a year, and you can't advertise on that plan either.

Business can go without advertising, so can a wagon go without greasing, but in both cases it is hard work.

No bells ring so loud as a good advertisement. People are more apt to heed what they read than what they hear.

Those who take the lead in pushing their business through the newspapers, always take the lead in everything else.

If you don't mean to attend to your business, and prefer a slender income while your neighbors grow rich, it won't pay to advertise.

Judicious advertising is sure to bring large returns, to increase your business reputation, to add to your acquaintances.

If you haven't business, advertise. If you have business, advertise. It is a "poor rule that won't work both ways." A place well advertised is known to many while one not advertised is known only to a few passers-by.

Quitting advertising in dull times is like pulling down a dam when the water is low. When trade revives, it will rush by him who does not stay it with ready customers. The way to have such always on hand is through advertising.

FEMININE FANCIES.

White is the favorite color for evening dresses.

Small Japanese fans with long handles are very fashionable.

Silk stockings have open work and much embroidery on the instep.

AL the new designs for evening dresses have chemisettes either silk or lace.

Young ladies wear their corsage bouquets on one side of the neck, near the shoulder.

Knitted Jersey Jackets, fitting like a glove, are among the latest novelties in ladies' wear.

White jet and white Spanish lace appear to be favorite decorations of white dress bonnets.

Waists trimmed with feathers, or with feathers mixed with lace, are a new idea for evening dresses.

The new striped tea rose, American Banner, is worth its weight in gold, on account of its rarity.

One of the new satins is strewn with circulars of gold and silver, in which are cashmere palm leaves.

New sashes have plain ends. The embroidered, fringed or lace ornamented ends are out of fashion.

Standing Medicis collars of gold or silver lace finish many of the reception dresses of the Queen of Spain.

Ivory colored satin and the new cashmere colors are the most popular trimmings for dressy morning caps.

The Spanish marriage has given red and yellow, which are the royal Spanish colors, a new access of favor in Paris.

Long round trains show rows of fine pleating and square trains employ side garniture and full trimming at the back.

Persian ribbons having fringe an inch in depth are new. Little tassels of mixed colors are set here and there in the fringe.

Tulle dresses looped with sprays of apple blossoms, rosebuds, or daisies, make the most effective ball dresses for young girls.

The latest boots for ladies have broad projecting soles, and button on the outside of the foot instead of over the instep as formerly.

New silk handkerchiefs for the neck are in pale shades of blue and rose, and edged with pleatings of Breton, Languedoc or Valenciennes lace.

Rich imported toilets abound in lace garniture, including Pointe de Paris, d'Alencon, d'Angleterre, de Venice and Valenciennes, and in satin bows.

A revival has taken place in the fashion of wearing a bodice that differs from the skirt both in material and in color—the spencer, in fact, of forty years ago.

Black lace frames are worn by ladies of fair complexion, and the same lace is pleated around the wrists of the sleeve, and worn without any white frills inside.

A quaint and pretty fashion is that of having four slender puffs of satin inserted in slashes on the bosom of velvet dresses; there are narrow puffs in the sleeves also.

It is becoming a fashion for ladies each to adopt a separate flower for her own, and to wear it on all occasions; natural blooms especially whenever they are obtainable.

Parisian corsages are cut more decollette than was the fashion early in the season. There is, however, comparatively little acceptance of this feature by American women.

Skirts are decidedly shorter this season, whether for the matron who wears striped velvet, brocade and satin, or for youthful dancers in gauze, silk muslin and India muslin.

Full fraises of lace are worn high and close around the throat. The lace is put in treble box pleats and there is a long pointed bow of muslin and lace added to this to fall low on the corsage.

The newest corsage for evening dress has the short basque shape at the hips, is laced at the back, and terminates there as well as at the front in long and acute points. The neck is heart shaped or round, and very short puffed sleeves replace shoulder straps.

Long black kid gloves with a bracelet of small yellow rose-buds at the top is a one of the caprices of semi-dress toilettes. For a debutante to wear with a white and blue toilette, white undressed kid gloves have a band of tiny forget-me-note forming a bracelet at the top of each, just below the elbow.

Rhine pebbles mounted in silver, and as brilliant as diamonds, are used for the ornamental darts, arrows and daggers that are now thrust through the loops and braids of elaborate coiffures. The same showy white stones are also used for belt clasps, small buckles for satin slippers, and for lizard brooches that serve to pin a scarf of lace, or to hold a bouquet on the corsage.

Flannel, serge and cashmere in light tones are made up with dark velvet for bridesmaids at English weddings. Old English, almost fancy, dresses are adopted sometimes. At a recent wedding white satin, with Watteau pleats, tight sleeves with puffs, and Olivia caps of white lace and green satin were chosen and looked most quaint on the children who acted as bridesmaids.

FOR THE CHILDREN.

There is no sport among Winter games more exciting and amusing than snowball warfare. All the boys must join in building the fort, selecting the highest point of the play grounds, or, if the grounds are level, the corner of a wall or fence. Supposing the top of a mound has been selected as the place where the works are to be built, the first thing to do is to make out the plan of the foundations. The dimensions depend upon the number of boys. A circle, twelve feet in diameter, or a square with sides of ten feet, will make a fort that will accommodate a company of ten boys. It is better to have the fort too small than too large. The chief engineer must set his men at work rolling large snowballs; the smaller boys can commence, and the larger ones take them in hand when the balls have gained in size and become too heavy for the younger boys.

Make these balls of snow as large and dense as possible, then roll them in place upon the lines traced out for the foundation. We will suppose it to be a square. In this case, care must be taken to have the corners of the square opposite the most probable approach of the enemy. This will leave the smallest point possible exposed to the attack, and the inmates of the fort can, without crowding each other, take good aim at the foe. After the four sides of the square are covered by large snowballs, all hands must pack the snow about the bottom, and fill up each crack and crevice until a solid wall is formed.—Then with spades and shovels the walls should be trimmed down to a perpendicular on the inside, but slanting upon the outside. The top of the wall may be two feet broad and the base four feet. When the wall is finished prepare a mound of snow in the centre of the square for the flagstaff. This mound will be very useful, as a reserve supply in case the ammunition gives out. A quantity of snowballs should next be piled, inside the walls, at the four corners. This done, the fort is ready for its defenders.—St. Nicholas for January.

A gentleman of Kentucky, distinguished as a hunter and known to observe closely the habits of all wild animals, states that the muskrats have failed this winter, for the first time in many years, to build their large mounds for protection against cold weather. This, he says, is a sure sign of a mild winter. Last year he observed their mounds were unusually large. The weather then was intensely cold. The Indians believe that the mounds built by the muskrats are a sure indication of the character of the winter. When the mounds are large the winter will be cold; when the mounds are small the winter will be mild. The experience of the present and past winter certainly indicates that there is some truth in the theory that the muskrat is a safe guide in predicting the character of winter weather.

Just dropped it—five cents.

Happy thought—Live forever.

Parts unknown—On a bald head.

Sheet music—Children crying in bed.

Don't buy thermometers now. They'll be lower after a while.

It is predicted that the price of nails will advance to $7 per keg.

"Pass the butter, gently, Mabel," is the greasy title of a new song.

Many a man who puffs at mounting a flight of stairs will run up an account with the greatest ease.

Maidens who now bang their own hair will be sure to bang the heads of their husbands in less than a year after marriage.

The habits of fruit is peculiar: we have seen a raisin box, a fig drum, and an apple stand all day on the corner of the street.

There is a young man in town called "Poster," not on account of the information he furnishes, but because he is so "stuck-up."

Don't be suspicious of everybody.—The man who is constantly looking for evil can find the greatest quantity of it in his own life.

It is difficult to understand why a wife never asks her husband "if the doors are all locked" until after he is snugly covered up in bed.

Mary made a little pie;
The upper crust was tough,
But Mary's brother chewed away,
And couldn't get enough.
She tried a piece herself one night,
And strange as it may seem
That simple chunk of pie became
The fabric of a dream.

With heavy durable castings, and extra large oven and low price, is well worthy of inspection. Of the Ranges, their Sunshine Hot Closet Range
has superior Cooking and Baking qualities, having a reputation equal to the best in Market. Their cheaper kinds, by name—CHARMS, ALPINES, MAYFLOWER and BEAUTY. (The last can be furnished with SYRONE celebrated grate) have been well tested and stand No. 1 with those buying them to use.
They are Sole Agents for the justly celebrated
Stag's Head Double Elevated Oven
RANGE. Other elevated oven Ranges have been set in and the Stag's Head put in on account of their superior qualities.

The Housekeeper's Friend.
HATLINGER'S CHAMPION CARPET SWEEPER!
Pat. June 24th, 1873, and July 20th, 1875.
No cogs to get out of order! No wear to Carpets! A clean Sweeper! And no dust!
This new and improved carpet sweeper has been contrived to meet a want which the old sweepers only partially supplied. Instead of cog wheels it is operated by belts running on pulleys, which, while revolving so rapidly and evenly as to take up everything in the shape of lint, hair, thread or dust, is never liable to get out of order, and can at any time be set and operated by any housewife. While being superior to any of the old styles as a carpet cleaner, it has this advantage that the metal bearings in which the brush revolves can be lowered as the brush wears off. The brush is in front of the box instead of the middle, it acts by hand power, not by the bottom of the machine. The box is so placed on the handle as to reach any angle of a room, under a sofa, around piano legs, or chairs and tables. It only needs a trial to be appreciated. Price $5.

POETRY.

MY PHILOSOPHY.

Through life's mutations
I onward move,
And all gradations
Of fortune prove;
To-day, in sunlight—
To-morrow, shade,
I greet all changes—
Of none afraid.

I take the pleasure
So freely given,
In toil or leisure,
Thanking Heaven.
What'er the sorrow,
What'er the joy,
No care I borrow
That shall annoy.

I ever for duty,
And always find
Flowers of beauty
For heart and mind.
Whither my pathway
Daily leads,
There's constant beauty
For daily needs.

Sometimes in sadness
I walk alone;
And then in gladness
Forget to moan.
For dark hours flying,
Reveal the day;
[illegible]
The burning ray.

Be mine the power
To cheer the sad,
The happy spirit
To make more glad,
So that my words
And deeds could prove
To fellow mortals
That God is love!

Still to be faithful,
Gentle, true,
All that is noble
I would pursue.
A grateful spirit
To me be given,
And I shall inherit
A daily heaven!

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

WHAT JOHN FOUND.

Recess was nearly over. The boys and girls were gathered in the play-ground outside of the log schoolhouse, but no play was going on. Most of the boys had their books in their hands, and were poring over them as if to make up for all the idle time of their lives; while the girls sat on the wood-pile whispering, and looking at the boys with a kind of awe.

The schoolhouse was built just outside of a mountain village in North Carolina. The boys were dressed in butternut or blue cloth, the girls in a kind of linsey, all of which their mothers had spun and woven.

Outside of the fence was a gang of little negroes, whom the white children ordered about with an air of authority; for, poor as they were, their fathers all were slave-owners. There was a row of shiny black faces at the top of the fence.

"Gorry! look at Mas' Will! I tink he get it!"

"Pshaw! g'long, you Victory! our Mas' Bob's twice as good a scholar. See how he pokin' into dat book!"

The others volunteered no opinion but shouted, "Hooray! which ob you a-gwine to be the sojer? Mas' Bob Sevier he gwine! Cunnel Bob Sevier! Hooray!"

Never had there been such a day known in Uncle Job's school. Bob Sevier, a fair thin boy with round blue eyes, sat on the steps turning over the leaves of his Historia Sacra. He knew every word and line, but he turned leaf after leaf with his cold shaking fingers.

When the little negroes shouted for "Cunnel Bob," he felt a lump in his throat, choking him. If he should not win! Bob had always been head boy in the school, but during the last month he had worked harder than ever. The cause was this:

Judge Peters, who was now Congressman from this district, had paid a visit to the village a few weeks before, and had dropped into the school one morning and made the boys a little speech.

"I was a pupil here," he said. "There is the very desk at which I sat. Uncle Job taught me pretty much all I know. My father could not afford to send me to college, and I am sure neither can your fathers afford to send you there. But I want to give some boy here a chance such as I did not have. I have the appointment of a cadet to West Point, and I propose instead of giving it to some rich man's son, that the boy in this school who passes the best examination a month from now shall have it."

This was the speech. It had made the boys as wild as if he had put fire into their brains. Not a boy there who did not see himself a colonel in full regimentals, preceded by a brass band, riding up the streets of the village in triumph.

They fell to studying, most of them for the first time in their lives, for they were bone in the idlest, laziest quarter of the United States. They never had done anything but lounge about the grassy street of the sunny, chilly highland hamlet, listening to the interminable stories of the hunters who came in with peltry, or playing "Sixty-out," with the little negroes.

John Fremoy, the shabbiest of them all, sat apart from the other boys, with his sister Louisa.

"Now, Lou, just hear me this page;" and he began:

"Charlemagne, otherwise Charles the Great, was the son of Pepin the Short, the first of the Carlovingian—Carlovingian—oh, what comes next?"

"Dynasty," prompted Lou.

"And what's the meaning of 'dynasty' I'd like to know? Such rubbish! I don't understand a word of it! There's no use to try, Lou!"

Lou's eyes filled, and the tears rolled down her flushed cheeks; but John only shut his jaws a little firmer, and fixed his dark eyes on the ground. They were honest, kind eyes, but dull; very different from Bob Sevier's, which glowed like lamps.

"I might as well give up, Lou. Uncle Job says patience and hard work will take any boy through. But there's a difference in boys. Now Bob Sevier don't work half as hard over his books as I do, but just look at him! I reckon he could go over the Carlovingians or any other Virginias like a trottin' horse."

"Oh yes, I reckon he could," groaned Lou. "But only think of West Point, Jack! You'd be a gentleman and a soldier and see the world. An' if you don't get it—why, then—"

"Then Uncle Bill 'll set me to plowin' with the niggers in the fall. He said only this mornin' he'd wasted enough money on our schoolin'; and you and I is to go to work to earn our salt."

John took up the book and went at the lesson with a desperate energy, while Lou sat crying silently.

The children were orphans, and lived with their uncle, a farmer, on Mt. Craggy. He was wretchedly poor, like the other mountaineers, and was, besides, a coarse, hard-natured man. The school-bell rang.

"It's comin' now," said John, as he got up and shut his book.

"You're powerful on 'rithmetic, Johnny; mind that! Just you keep up!" eagerly whispered Lou, running along beside him.

The boys crowded into the hot little school-house and the girls followed, excepting Lou, who hung back, and finally went to the wood-pile again. She knew she should not be missed, and she could not bear to hear John's examination.

The poor little girl had but one friend in the world—her brother. She sat down, her hands shaking as if she had a chill.

"He'll fail! I know he'll fail!" she said, looking up to the sky and talking aloud. "I can't stand it, Heavenly Father! I can't!"

As with most Southern children, "Heavenly Father" was very real to Lou. Then she began to pray, fast and hard, to this far-away friend in the sky, to help John.

"Oh dear! Only get him over the Latin and them Virginses! He'll manage the 'rithmetic himself."

She sat there an hour or more, hearing only a droning voice now and then from the open windows. At last there was a hush. Uncle Job was going to give his decision.

The little negroes crowded up the school-house steps. Lou stood up and threw her calico sun-bonnet off her head. She did not know what she did. She was stifling with sudden, terrible heat.

Her strained eyes were on the door. Presently she heard Uncle Job's voice, in a few brief words. But she could not catch them. They sounded to her like "John has won. John Fremoy."

Suddenly there was a cheer inside. Then the negroes took it up. "Bob Sevier! Cunnel Bob! Hooray for Bob!"

Lou sat down and covered her face with her hands. Her brother came to her in a moment.

"Get up and come along home!" he said roughly.

She caught his arm and pulled it. "Don't you mind it, Johnny," she said. "You kin do lots of things Bob Sevier knows nothin' about!" she cried, fiercely.

"No, Bob won it fair," he said sturdily. "I'm a dunce; I didn't deserve it; that's the worst of it!"

His face was colorless, even to the lips, but he showed his disappointment in no other way.

Judge Peters came to the village the next day, heard the report of the examination, sent for Sevier, and promised him the appointment. He then went out to a farm which he owned near to Caleb Fremoy's, John's uncle.

The boy crept over, towards night, to catch a glimpse of the great man who might have made him happy for life, but had not done it. He hung miserably about the place, until evening, and then set out homeward.

Coming to the edge of Craggy Creek, just where it turns from the mountain, he sat down on the bank, and put his hot feet into the water. To-morrow he was to be set to plowing with the negroes.

"It's all yer fit for," his uncle said. "Ye'd a chance for West Point, and ye didn't take it. So you kin kennel with the darkeys for the rest of yer life. I'll feed you no more."

John sat moodily flinging pebbles into the water until the dusk came on, and an owl began to hoot.

Suddenly the boy stood up, trembling with excitement, holding a stone in his hand up to the fast fading light. It shown like a brilliant lustre, like a great drop of dew in the morning sun. As he moved it, it flashed, a blood-red star, in his dirty palm. John had heard of the ruby which had once been found in the next gorge.

"It was worth thousands of dollars!" he sobbed rather than spoke. "I heard Judge Peters tell my uncle there was corundum on his farm, and a ruby is a kind of corundum. I am rich for life!"

He sat down, breathless, carefully rubbing the brilliant lump in his hand, as Aladdin might have done his lamp. What was West Point to this? Money, beautiful houses, a glimpse of the world, an easy, happy life for himself and Lou!

"Poor Lou! I was so cross to her to day! I'll go and tell her."

Then he stopped as if somebody had struck him. The ruby was not his. He was on Judge Peters' land.

The boy sat down again, and for one whole hour the tempter strove with him. If there was one quality strong and dominant in John Fremoy, it was his honesty. But this was a temptation such as seldom comes in the way of any man.

The next morning Judge Peters was mounting his horse to go into the village, when a boy came across the yard. He walked quickly, as if driven by some force behind. The Judge waited, one foot in the stirrup.

As long as John Fremoy lived, he remembered, like a sudden, terrible picture, the glaring light on the little muddy yard, the staring negro boy holding the horse, the portly, kind-looking man waiting his approach.

When John reached the judge, he stopped and was silent. He had his little speech all ready, but his tongue was stiff, and his throat parched.

"Well, my boy, what is it?" asked the judge.

John thrust out his hand.

"A ruby, sir. It's worth a great many thousand dollars. I found it on your land."

Judge Peters took the stone, and examined it eagerly. Then he turned to John, and looked at him as curiously.

"Why didn't you keep it, if it is worth so much?"

"I had a mind to. But it's yours."

He turned away.

"Stop, boy! Who are you?"

"John Fremoy, sir."

"Oho! Uncle Job spoke of you to me. You are uncommonly quick at figures, eh?"

"If I am, I am a dunce at everything else. If I had not been, I might have gone to West Point."

"Ye-es," looking thoughtfully at John. "Very Well, Fremoy; I'm very much pleased with your honesty. Good-morning;" and the judge rode abruptly away.

He rode direct to Uncle Job's house, and was closeted with him for an hour.

The next day the village was electrified by hearing that Judge Peters was going to take John Fremoy to Annapolis to pass an examination in the engineers' department at the Naval Academy, and that Lou was to be put to school in Raleigh by the same kind friend.

John Fremoy is now a middle-aged man, ranking high in his profession. He met Judge Peters about a year ago, at his sister's house—for Lou married a planter in Virginia, and is a happy wife and mother.

"I have often wondered, judge," he said, "why you befriended me as you did. I certainly was a dunce as far as Latin was concerned, and I am not at all sure that I am accurate about the Carlovingian dynasty yet."

"Honesty is a rarer quality than good scholarship, and more useful in the world, Fremoy."

"And—another question—is not that the ruby I found which you wear on your watch-chain?"

"Yes."

"May I look closely at it?"

The judge hesitated, then laughed, and gave it to him.

"Why, it is only colored quartz!" exclaimed Fremoy.

"Yes, but it is more valuable to me than any jewel, for it gave me an honest man for a friend."

REBECCA HARDING DAVIS.

"TIS WELL."

A citizen of Detroit, whose best weight never exceeds one hundred and twenty pounds was the other day buying a couple of hens of a farmer in the market, and before the bargain was concluded the two became quite friendly, and the farmer said he had something on his mind to communicate. One of his boys had a passion for theatricals and was desirous of becoming an actor. The idea was so strong on him that he had become worthless around the farm, and the father was in a peck of trouble to know how to turn the boy's attention from the foot-lights to the plow-handles.

"'Spose I send him to you, and 'spose you make fun and ridicule him and let him see how foolish it is?" suggested the father, and the citizen agreed. As a result of their planning the boy walked to the citizens' place of business on Congress street east, next morning. The father had called him a boy, but he weighed one hundred and sixty pounds, stood nearly six feet high, and had a pair of hands as large as the chromo of the Yosemite Valley. His arrival was expected, and after a few words about the weather, the citizen queried:

"So you think you would make an actor, eh?"

"Yes, I kinder think so," was the reply.

"What line would you take?"

"Well, I kinder like tragedy."

"Tragedy! Why, you couldn't succeed in tragedy! Look at your hands! Look at those feet! Remember your voice! You'd be hissed off the stage. Don't never think of tragedy."

"How would I do in a drama?" asked the boy.

"Not at all; in the first place your ears are too large. Then your heels stick out too far. Then your hands would hide half the other actors. Don't try the drama, for you will be a dead failure."

"Could I do anything in comedy?"

"Not a thing. The sight of you in comedy would be the same as the sight of a hearse on the stage. All the facial expression you have is behind your ears."

"I've thought some of being a nigger minstrel," observed the boy, after a long silence.

"That's the worst of all. I tell you, boy, you'd better stick to the farm. You are not cut out for an actor, and you should drop the idea."

"Couldn't I act as usher?"

"No, sir: you are too stiff in the knees."

"Couldn't I take tickets?"

"Never! Your hands are too big for that work."

"Couldn't I shift scenes?"

"No: You are too big and unwieldy."

There was a long and painful silence. Then the boy rose up and said:

"Well, I'm bound to go into theatricals. If I can't be anything else I'll be the feller that stands at the door to raise a row, and I'll begin on you! Come over here!"

He hauled the adviser over the table, clutched him by the small of the back and spun him around, slammed him against the wall and dropped him to get a better hold. When the curtain rose on the next act there was a strictly private conversation going on between Hamlet and the Ghost, and the ghost's coat was ripped up the back and his collar torn open. Then Hamlet suddenly demanded in a loud voice:

"Caitiff! do you declare that I cannot act?"

Then the Ghost dodged around the table and replied:

"No, I don't! You are all right—you are a splendid actor—you can't help but win!"

"And you'll tell my father so?"

"I will—you bet I will!"

"If you don't——!"

Here Hamlet took three steps forward, two back; scowled his fiercest, and the Ghost jumped behind the stove and vowed that he'd even pay $50 for a private box on the night of the debut.

"'Tis well!" said Hamlet, and he went over on the market to see if he could sell three pecks of onion sets for cash down.

PEARLS.

Good manners are made up of petty sacrifices.

Virtue is the safest helmet—the most secure defense.

As we live on God's bounty we should live to his glory.

The author of our being is also the author of our bliss.

No rank can shield us from the impartiality of death.

If sin is harbored in the house, the curse waits at the door.

They are never alone who are accompanied by noble thoughts.

What God requires of us he works within us or it is not done.

He that swells in prosperity will be sure to shrink in adversity.

We should be concerned for our sins rather than for our sufferings.

Evil doers try to get others to do evil; they do not like to be alone.

Heaven is above all yet; there sits a judge that no king can corrupt.

Those who would be kept from harm should keep out of harm's way.

None were made to be idle; he who gave us being gave us business.

Aspirations after truth and virtue are pledges and beginnings of immortality.

A promise is a just debt, which you must take care to pay, for honor and honesty are the security.

True goodness is like the glow-worm; it shines most when no eyes except Heaven's are on it.

Our life is like Alpine countries, where winter is found by the side of summer, and where it is but a step from a garden to a glacier.

Man often weeps in his sleep. When he awakes, he scarce remembers that he has shed a tear. So regard life. In the second, thou wilt no longer know that thou has wept in the first.

THE EDITOR'S DREAM.

Once upon a time an editor dreamed that he was dead and in another world. He approached a city before him and knocked for admittance, but no one answered him. The gate remained closed. Then he cried aloud for an entrance, but the only response was scores of heads appearing above the wall on the other side of the gate. At sight of him, the owners of the heads set up a dismal howl, and one of them cried:

"Why didn't you notice that big egg I gave you?"

At this horrid and most unexpected interrogation, the poor local turned in the direction of the voice, to learn its owner, when another voice shrieked:

"Where's that piece you were going to write about my soda fountain?" and close upon this was the awful demand, "Why did you write that piece about old Tomlinson's hens, and never speak of my new gate?"

Whatever answer he was going to frame to this appeal was cut short by the query, "Why did you spell my name wrong in the programme?"

The miserable man turned to flee, when he was rooted to the ground by these terrible demands: "Why did you put my marriage among the deaths?"

He was on the point of saying that the foreman did it, when a shrill voice madly cried:

"You spoilt the sale of my horse by publishing that runaway!" And another, "If I catch you alone, I'll lick you for what you said about me before the police court." Another, "why didn't you show up the school question when I told you to?"

And this was followed by the voice of a female shrilly exclaiming: "This is the brute that botched my poetry and made me ridiculous!"

Whereupon hundreds of voices screamed: "Where's my article?" "Give me back my article!" And in the midst of the horrid din the poor wretch awoke, perspiring in every pore, and screaming for help.—Stamford Advocate.

TALL LYING.

The other afternoon, says an exchange, as a city sportsman with a $200 gun and a bunch of bought ducks was waiting for the city-ward train at Millbrae, and bragging fluently to the people at the station, another 'Frisco Nimrod hove in sight, dressed in a superb hunting outfit, followed by four dogs, and solemnly carrying two small sand snipe at the end of a yard of string.

"What luck?" said hunter No. 1.

"Oh, so so," replied duck devastator No. 2. "I got eighty-four, I believe. I gave 'em to the man at whose ranch I stayed."

"Where did you waylay those enormous snipe?" said No. 1, winking significantly at the crowd.

"Oh, these snipe? Funny thing about them. Killed 'em both at a hundred and sixty-five yards with No. 10 shot. What do you think of that?"

No. 1 was considerably disconcerted for a few moments by this truly remarkable lie, and said: "Where I went the ducks were as thick as fleas. I might have killed 200 if it hadn't rained so."

"Ah! that shows you haven't much endurance in the field. Why the other night I shot by moonlight until 1 o'clock and, as I didn't want to lose the morning flight, I just laid down on the grass and slept until a puddle formed around me, and I was awakened by the water running into my mouth."

"Indeed!" said the other liar sarcastically; "I suppose, then, you took the rest of your nap standing up?"

"Oh, no," continued the boss romancer without moving a muscle, "I just drank up the puddle and snored right ahead."

And the other deserving but extinguished liar sat out on the rear platform of the last car and sighed all the way up to the city.

DEMOCRATS! ORGANIZE!

It is the duty of Democrats throughout the whole country to assemble in their respective Cities and Townships and organize for efficient work.

To the casual observer the political sky may, at the present time, appear comparatively cloudless, yet, elements are there gathering which portend disaster to the vital principles of representative government and the rights of the people.

To defend those principles and rights is the especial mission of the Democratic party, and as watchers against approaching danger, it is incumbent upon us to speak a warning word.

We assert that perils do exist, and they are the more hostile to free institutions because artfully masked.

Washington, that safe counselor and the very embodiment of patriotism, by both precept and example, declared the public welfare required that occupancy of the Presidential chair should be restricted to two terms, and a proposed amendment to the Constitution, making the term six years and a President ineligible for re-election, has since been widely advocated.

Notwithstanding all that, and in defiance of wise precedent, an attempt is now being made by a certain class of politicians to force ex-President Grant into official power for a third term, and to re-establish the notorious corruption of his former administration.

There is a deep-seated purpose in that, but it is not for the public good, nor for the safety of the Republic.

A third may resolve itself into a life term, and from thence comes forth the iron hoof of Military Dictatorship or arise the throne of Empire.

The scheme is full of peril to the dearest interests and cherished hopes of true-hearted Americans.

Democrats! Organize for its suppression!

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

The Executive Committee of the National Democratic Committee met Tuesday, Feb. 24th, at the Arlington Hotel, Washington, D. C., with a full attendance, Mr. W. H. Barnum in the Chair, and issued the following call:

The National Democratic Committee having met in the city of Washington on the 23rd day of February, 1880, has appointed Tuesday, the 22d day of June next, at noon, as the time, and chosen the city of Cincinnati as the place of holding the National Democratic Convention. Each State is entitled to a representation therein equal to double the number of its Senators and Representatives of the United States. All Democratic, Conservative and other citizens of the United States, irrespective of past political associations or differences, who can unite with us in the effort of pure, economical and constitutional government, are cordially invited to join in sending delegates to the Convention. At the last National Democratic Convention, held in the city of St. Louis in 1876, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the States be requested to instruct their delegates to the National Democratic Convention to be held in 1880 whether it be desirable to continue the two-thirds rule longer in force in National Conventions and that the National Committee insert such request in the call for the next Convention.

DAVID NAAR.

David Naar, for many years editor of the Trenton True American, died in Trenton, N. J. Tuesday, Feb 24, in the 80th year of his age. He was born in the Island of St. Thomas, West Indies. Coming to New York with his father, David was educated under the tutorship of an old Irish schoolmaster named Tom Finlay, of Manhattanville, his classmate being the late Peter Goelet, of New York.—He was married in St. Thomas, in 1820, and after spending some time in the tropics he returned to New York in 1834, and entered the mercantile business with his father and brothers. Having shared in the ruin caused by the great fire of 1835 he purchased a farm near Elizabeth, N. J., and settled down on it. He took an active part in politics, warmly espousing the Democratic cause. In the Polk and Dallas campaign he stumped the State and achieved success as a great political stump speaker. In 1845 President Polk appointed him Consul at St. Thomas, a position he held until 1848. He was Mayor of Elizabeth, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, Member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1844, Clerk of the House of Assembly in 1851-52, Mayor of Trenton, State Treasurer and Secretary of the Sinking Fund Commission, a position he held at the time of his death. He was the oldest Mason in New Jersey, and probably the oldest member of the thirty-third degree, Ancient Scottish Rite, in the United States. Deceased was a Hebrew.

BEECHER AND GRANT.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher supports the third term nomination of General Grant.

That don't amount to much, for the reason that Mr. Beecher has made himself conspicuous for doing foolish things.

The Cincinnati Commercial, a Republican paper, remarks as follows:

"Mr. Beecher's indorsement of Grant at the celebration of Lincoln's birthday in New York, reminds us of a very doubtful note that was presented at a bank with a certain indorsement on its back. The bank officer examined the note and then looked at the indorsement, and returned it to the party who presented it, with the remark: 'The face of the note is bad enough, and with that indorsement it is not worth a blank.'"

That is severe on Beecher and not very flattering toward Grant.

PRINCIPLES NOT MEN.

"Principles not Men" has ever been a motto of Democracy and it remains unshorn of worth.

Men are transitory, principles are everlasting.

Public men when governed by principles deserve honorable mention, but swayed by mere personal motives they become justly entitled to contempt.

When a man seeks to make party and the welfare of country subservient to his own selfish ambition and profit, and as a partisan gratifies the ignoble spirit of revenge, regardless of cost or consequences, it is time he was handed a passport into political oblivion.

The following order was presented in the Maine Legislature by a member: "Ordered, that the judiciary committee be directed to inquire into the expediency of so amending the constitution of the state that the right of suffrage shall be limited to those who are able to read and rite the English language."

THE PUBLIC LAWS.

At every session of our State Legislature, there is always some self-styled "Reformer" sure to introduce a bill to abolish the act respecting the publication of the Laws in the newspapers, and favoring a "job" in the way of having them printed in pamphlet form. This session is no exception to the general rule, for that great statesman from the "State of Essex," Senator Francis, has championed such a bill to a successful issue in the Senate. From the very remarks he made in its favor on the final passage of the bill, it is evident that he had enlisted in his favor two or three prominent newspaper men from Essex and Hudson, who desire to gobble up the fat contract of printing the laws in pamphlet form. He claims that the laws are not read in the newspapers. We claim they are, and can prove it from the fact that we are oftentimes solicited for copies of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST containing them by other than our regular subscribers and who, as well as regular subscribers, file such copies carefully away for future reference. Were the laws published in pamphlet form, they would not be accessible to the taxpayers of the State a hundredth part as easy as they are when published in the papers. Not one man in a hundred would apply for them, and if he did, he would probably receive a reply that the supply was exhausted. Neither would he be able to receive them until 3 months after adjournment of the Legislature. Senator Sewell, who opposed this repealer, struck the right key when he said, "if the people demanded the publication of the laws in the newspapers, they should have them. He considered newspapers an essential part of the education of the State." It is a singular, yet true fact that all such "reformers" as those who voted for this "repealer," don't vote worth a cent when a move is made to cut down fees of business which they are engaged in. We have got too many lawyers in our Legislature.—Senator Francis says, "the influential press favored the measure." This is not so. For in nearly every instance where this pretended "reform" is advocated, the same comes from either a small, unknown journal, with but little circulation, a new-fledged bantling or else the "dog-in-the-manger" chap, who either has no influence or circulation, and feels sore to see a more fortunate and enterprising contemporary publishing that which he would only be too glad to receive himself. Again, we doubt if there is more than two or three offices in the State that has facilities for printing the laws in pamphlet form. Should the "repealer" pass the House, one or two proprietors of printing establishments in the State would receive the job of printing the laws, because all the smaller offices would not be able to do the work. The newspaper editor however, must still labor on for the good of his party, receive nothing but empty thanks, and close his eyes to all acts of the lawyer reformers when they legislate for their own interest. We shall see. The following Senators voted against the bill, Messrs. Cooper, Deacon, Martin and Sewell.

ARISTOCRACY.

Between Democracy and Aristocracy there is an impassable gulf.

It cannot be bridged.

Prominently two grades of aristocracy infest the world, one, the arrogant claim of noble birth, and the other, equally as absurd and more dangerous, the assumed superiority of wealth.

They both assert exclusive rights.

The aristocracy of blood has a dim prospect in this country; that of wealth, with greater chances of success, is striving to gain mastery here.

Privileged classes, of every name and nature, are alien to the American Constitution.

Keep them away!

The Republican Legislature show a dogged determination not to confirm the nomination of ex-Governor Parker for one of the Supreme Court Judges, which is a direct insult to the Governor of the State. There is not a man in the State who is regarded as a more honorable and upright man than Joel Parker, even by his political opponents. Talk about non-partizanship when such a name is refused confirmation. If the name of a half-rate lawyer of Republican procliviti es had been presented for so high a position, he would have been confirmed at once. The name of New Jersey's favored son, however, will not suffer in the action of a partizan Legislature refusing him the deserved honor asked for by the Governor.

Tumult is reported as raging in a Methodist Church in Westchester County, N. Y., because a part of the congregation refuse to stop dancing so long as the minister and deacons play croquet. Near a village in the Highlands of the Hudson, anti-Temperance people are engaged, it is alleged, in destroying the fruit orchards of a liquor traffic opponent because he wants to shut up drinking houses. Why cannot people come together and reason as becomes intelligent creatures? What a world of trouble it would save!

A profound lecturer, one of those chaps who are learned in all kinds of sense except common, once delivered himself thus—"The aggregation of bioplastic germs evidences an irresistible tendency to coarctate the molecules in inverse ratio to the capillary process of differentiation." One of the audience became so angered and befogged as to threaten, if that man ever repeated the sentence in his hearing, he would knock him down.

Thomas Mills, a prominent Indiana Republican, said before the Congressional exodus committee:—"What we want is twenty thousand bucks to vote in the close counties," and that the national immigration society sent too many negro women and children into that State. A very inexcusable mistake but it is too late to correct it this season.

Hon. Wm. J. Magie, of Elizabeth, Republican, was on Wednesday last nominated by Gov. McClellan for one of the Supreme Court Judges. His nomination was immediately confirmed by the Senate. The nomination is an excellent one. The Senate still refuses to confirm ex-Gov. Parker as one of the Judges.

The average daily circulation of the New York Herald is declared to be 120,171. Give us the profits of its advertising and we, too, would aid the cause of humanity and science through liberal donations. We have the will but not the dollars, and there the important difference comes in.

It has been decided by a Judge in Brooklyn, N. Y., that a definite offer of marriage is not essential to a suit for breach of promise. If a man is peculiarly attentive to a woman that settles it. Young man, keep a sharp watch over yourselves!

THE LEGISLATURE.

From our Trenton Correspondent.

TRENTON, Feb. 25, 1880.

Bills of any importance to your readers are as follows:

H. 278, by Mr. Martin, sup. to legal advertising, reduces the price 50 and 25 cents per folio, instead of 60 and 30 cents; H. 280, by Mr. Van Duyne, sup. to Co. Physicians act, provides that a detailed statement of effects found on dead bodies shall be filed with the Clerk of Board of Freeholders, to be disposed of by the County Collectors; H. 285, by Mr. Ewing, provides a penalty for poultry trespassing on other people's property; H. 289, by Mr. Bossall making taxes a first lien on real estate and providing for the sale of the same; H. 291, State Inspector of Illuminating oils; H. 296, places the pleuro-pneumonia business in the hands of the State Board of Health, at an expense of $500, vesting the Board with all the powers of the pleuro-pneumonia bureau; Sen. 163, by Sen. Schenck, amends the act incorporating the Somerville Gas Company, in reference to directors.

BILLS PASSED.

Sen. 74, by Sen. Schenck, in reference to a County Engineer, the Bill defines his duties, the provisions of the Bill shall not apply to any County unless upon a vote of three-fourths of the Board of Freeholders. The Bill was lost yesterday, 9 to 9, and was re-considered to-day and passed 11 to 5; Sen. 110, which has passed the Senate, was laid over in the House until next Monday, it provides that manufacturing corporations shall be taxed same as individuals; Sen. 97, in reference to North Plainfield, Town Committee, passed to-day, 32 to 1; H. 99, passed, partnership associations to be limited, partners shall only be responsible to the amount of their capital in said firm.

The Bill relating to the government of cities has just been put on the member's desks. It is the result of a year's labor of the Commission, appointed for the purpose. It is a very long Bill.

The tax report is out and the Committee have been instructed by the House to prepare a Bill.

The Senate, in executive session today, confirmed the nomination of ex-Senator Magie in place of Judge Woodhull; in consideration of his having been a member of that body the Senate did not refer as usual to a Committee, but confirmed him without reference.

There has been no action yet by the Senate upon the nomination of ex-Gov. Parker. The prevailing opinion is that he will not be confirmed.

Upon a tax bill before the House today, which prevents any person from deducting personal indebtedness, all the Newark and other city members advocated it. It is to prevent their rich men from evading taxation by creating a debt for the purpose. The members from rural districts strenuously opposed. It came from Newark and contains provisions similar to the Tax Commission Report.

FOR PRESIDENT,
GEORGE B. McCLELLAN,
OF NEW JERSEY.

We want him because he is an honest man.

We want him because he is an able man. We want him because he is a competent man.

He has the confidence of the people.

He has the backbone to do right every time. Rings and cliques cannot control

GEORGE B. McCLELLAN.

He commands the respect and admiration of men of all parties.

He is a man who will never deceive the people.

If nominated and elected he will be inaugurated.

He is next to Horatio Seymour—the man that can more surely carry New York, Connecticut and New Jersey, than any other living man.

Let the friends and admirers of GEO. B. McCLELLAN speak out.

Let the people consult their best interests and raise their voices for him.

Let bygones be bygones, and Kelly men and Tilden men can unite on GEORGE B. McCLELLAN better than any one else.

Let the politicians stand aside, and let the people nominate and elect "LITTLE MACK."—Hunterdon County Democrat.

The advance in the price of straw paper is attributed to its increased consumption in Cuba as an ingredient for the manufacture of genuine Havana segars. How fragrant! And American lard goes to the South of Europe and comes back pure olive oil. How sweet!

P. T. Barnum gave a round $1,000 to the Irish Relief Fund. A big heart and a big circus has Barnum.

Both branches of the Legislature have agreed to adjourn March 12th.

Commission on Municipal Corporations.

This commission, on Saturday last, completed its work and presented to the Governor its report, enclosing copies of three general bills for the government of cities, townships and counties. The following is a synopsis of the bill:

All cities, towns and cities to be made cities under this act, who shall assume all the powers, properties, debts, &c., of the present corporation. This act not a repealer of any existing law until the new city signifies its assent by ordinance; Legislature shall provide for first election. If wards do not exist ordinance may be passed to so divide; Council may by ordinance rearrange districts or wards, if a majority of the voters of the city petition, every fifth year, beginning in 1881; no bonds to be issued in excess of ten per cent. of valuable of ratables; a series of sections enables bankrupt cities to compromise debts; a penalty of not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment not exceeding three years is prescribed for voting for any excess of appropriation. In emergencies as riots, conflagrations, &c., an excess of appropriation may be spent under an order of the Circuit Court.

1. Legislative Powers—Shall consist of a Council of two members from each ward. Provides that members whose terms shall not have expired shall hold over; at the first meeting they shall draw lots for one and two years; they shall meet on the first day of each month, and the mayor to call special meetings.

2. Mode of Legislation—Council may pass ordinances upon these readings by majority; if it is to raise money, two-thirds vote necessary; ordinances involving the raising of money or personal liberty must be published for ten days between the second and third readings; Mayor's veto must be within ten days of its passage and a two-third vote to pass it over veto.

3. Executive Powers.—Mayor to be a resident of city for five years; shall be commander of police and military in case of riot; in absence or death of Mayor the President of Council to act.

4. Executive Departments—These shall consist of Police, Health, Fire, Public Works, Streets, Finance, Charities and Public Schools.

1. Police.—The Mayor shall be its head. Council by ordinance shall fix grades, ranks, duties, pay, time of service and rules of the officers and members. The members to be retained during good behavior, and never to be removed for political reasons, but always for cause after a fair trial. Officers of force to hold office during the term of the Mayor, by whom appointed. All over 50 years shall be ineligible to hold. A police force now in existence shall continue, the officers for exceeding three years, the members during good behavior.

2. Health.—Shall consist of Mayor, City Physician and Health Inspectors, unless a Board of Health is created, in which case the two latter shall be ex-officio. City Clerk to be Clerk of the Board. The Mayor to appoint the City Physician and Health Inspector, with consent of Council for three years.

3. Fire.—Mayor to be Chief Executive; shall appoint a Chief, with consent of Council, for three years. Council may organize a Pay or Volunteer Department. If a Paid Department the members to be appointed by the Mayor, with consent of Council, to serve during good behavior. If Paid Department exists, officers to continue for three years the members during good behavior.

4. Public Works.—Members to be appointed by Mayor, with consent of Council, for three years. Mayor and Treasurer to be ex-officio members.

5. Street.—Shall have full control of street improvements, drainage and cleansing.

6. Finance.—Shall have full control of the levying of taxes and their collection. The City Treasurer shall be appointed by the Mayor, with consent of Council, for three years and give bonds. The City Auditor to be appointed in the same manner, except a Comptroller is appointed.

Division of the Sinking Fund.—The Mayor, City Treasurer and Comptroller, shall be the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, and shall have control of its management, and shall make monthly statements to the Council.

Public School Department—Shall consist of a Board of Education and a Superintendent. The Board to consist of two from each ward, to be appointed with the consent of Council, to be evenly divided politically, to hold office for two years and reside in the wards for which appointed. Shall make a yearly report to the Council. The City Treasurer to hold the School Fund, subject to the drafts of School Board.

Department of Charities.—Shall have the maintenance and relief of paupers. The chief officer shall be the Overseer of the Poor, appointed by the Mayor with the consent of Council for three years, and have supervision over all Alms Houses, &c.

Law Department.—Shall consist of a City Attorney, appointed in the same manner as above. A City Counsellor may also be appointed. Law officers now holding office shall continue during unexpired term.

Survey Department—Shall consist of one or more Surveyors; appointed as above.

Department of Correction.—The Council shall appoint one or more Police Justices. The act prescribes their duties.

License Department.—The Mayor shall be its head ex-officio; the other members to be appointed by the Mayor, to hold office for such time, perform such duties and receive such pay as shall be fixed by ordinance of Council, and shall have control of granting licenses.

There shall be one Sealer of Weights and Measures. The City Clerk shall perform usual duties.

Appropriations.—On or before July 15th, each year, Council shall, by order, declare, what amount shall be raised for expenses in the ensuing year; money under each head to be kept and spent separate for its objects.

Bonds and other Indebtedness.—Council shall, by ordinance, raise money as a sinking fund to pay off bonds. The Governor of the State, with consent of the Senate, shall appoint four citizens of the State, who shall give bonds and shall constitute with the State Treasurer and Comptroller as ex-officio Commissioners of the Sinking Fund of the State, to hold office for three years, and shall keep and safely invest bonds and moneys paid by cities subject to the drafts thereof under prescribed rules.

The act concludes with voluminous provisions as to local improvements.

The political scheme creating the city goes into effect April 1st, 1881, the election scheme January 1st, 1881.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

Democratic Primary Meeting, Saturday evening, March, 6th, at 7:30 o'clock, at Hughes Hotel, the call for which will be found at the head of our local columns.

The mysterious little building, No 39 Duer Street, after considerable gossip, is to be finally occupied. And by who, and for what purpose, will undoubtedly be asked. Well, to tell you the truth, Mr. L. E. Barkalew, the owner, advertises in another column that he will occupy the same as a carpenter shop and that all orders for anything in his line will receive prompt attention.

Mr. Francis H. Gardner, Treasurer, and L. B. Boice, Collector, of North Plainfield Township, have presented their annual reports in pamphlet shape. The document is a very concise, clear and important one. Mr. Gardner has devoted a great deal of time and care in ascertaining as near as possible, the exact indebtedness of the Township. This was a difficult matter, as there was not to found any books containing a complete record of the bonded debt for street improvements, and he was compelled to hunt up owners of the bonds. He finds one bond, No. 146, which is not recorded and is due in 1882. He thinks this bond is No. 145, which is recorded, and for which no owner has been found. The original issue of bonds for improvements was $60,000, as follows: For Somerset street, $37,000; Johnston Drive, $25,000; Grove street, $3,000. There has been paid by property owners of Somerset street, $21,635.93, out of which $12,000 was paid on the bonded debt and the balance to pay interest on debt for balance of the improvements. Total amount of bonds found outstanding, $52,180; by crediting amount in treasury due sinking fund, it is reduced to $50,529.80. There is a floating debt of $5,150, consisting of four notes issued in anticipation of taxes. To meet this there is $810.17 in the treasury. The notes are under protest awaiting action of the people at the next election. There is $4,248.79 of uncollected taxes due for the years 1874 to 1879. A small part only can be collected. The report is too lengthy to publish in full; a sufficient number have been printed to give each voter a copy. Mr. Gardner is to be congratulated upon the clear statement he has made after so much labor. Mr. Boice's report, too, is plain to understand, brief and to the point.

We Can't Talk

Without showing the condition of our teeth. Every laugh exposes them. In order not to be ashamed of them let us use that standard dentifrice, SOZODONT, which is sure to keep them white and spotless. No tartar can encrust them, no canker affect the enamel, no species of decay infest the dental bone, if SOZODONT is regularly used. It is a botanical preparation, and its beneficial effects on the teeth and gums are marvelous, as it removes all discolorations, and renders the gums hard and rosy.

A Mother's Grief.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Simmons' LIVER REGULATOR

LIVER DISEASE and Indigestion prevail to a greater extent than probably any other malady, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Indigestion or want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered for these ailments. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for forty years, and hundreds from all parts of the country will vouch for its virtues, viz: Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia; John Gill Shorter, of Alabama; Gen. John B. Gordon, R. L. Mott, of Columbus, Ga.; Bishop Pierce, of Georgia, are among the hundreds to whom we can refer. Extract of a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1872: "I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active medicines."

It is not the quantity eaten that gives strength, life, blood and health. It is the thorough digestion of the food taken be it much or little. Therefore, do not stimulate the stomach to crave food, but rather assist digestion after eating by taking

Surrogate's Order to Limit Creditors.
Union County Surrogate's Office,
February 18th, 1880.
Robinson Pound, Executor of Anna J. Barclay, deceased.

On application of the abovenamed Executor it is ordered that said Executor give public notice to the Creditors of the estate of said decedent to bring in their debts, demands or claims against the same, under oath, within nine months from this date, by setting up a copy of this order within twenty days hereafter in five of the most public places in the County of Union, for two months, and also within the said twenty days, to advertise the same in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST for the same space of time; and if any creditor shall neglect to exhibit his or her debt, demand or claim within the said period of nine months, after public notice being given as aforesaid, such Creditor shall be forever barred of his or her action therefor against the said Executor.

North Plainfield Democratic Primary Convention.

The Democratic voters and citizens of North Plainfield Township who are in favor of a change in the administration of the Township affairs, are respectfully invited to attend a meeting, on Saturday evening, March 6th, 1880, at 7:30 p. m., at the Somerset House, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the different Township officers, to be elected at the Annual Town Meeting.

By order of
Chairman of last Convention.

Thunder and lightning, Thursday evening.

Now that Lent is here, women are repenting in sacque cloth and ashes.

J. Miller, corner of Somerset Street and Johnston Drive, is selling fine hot-bed radishes very cheap.

Lilienstern, Clothier, will remove shortly to the store now occupied by Blackford, confectioner, on Front St.

Three bonds, issued by the Plainfield Gas Light Co., have been stolen or lost. See advertisement in another column.

The Plainfield Saengerbund on last Saturday evening serenaded their leader, Mr. George Braun, at his residence on Central avenue.

In the absence of Mrs. J. K. Meyers, her place in the choir of the Crescent avenue church is most satisfactorily filled by Mrs. Cutter.

The Plainfield Vocal Society announce a Grand Concert in the Congregational church, March 18th, in aid of the "[illegible] Home."

The game of Fifteen now so popular, is not a new game. It was invented by the Republicans in 1876 and was known as "Arbitration" or "8 to 7."

A Mr. King will be the manager of Hotel Netherwood the coming summer in the place of Mr. Mower, who gave such unqualified satisfaction to the guests of the house last season.

The Annual Meeting for the election of fifteen Directors of the Plainfield Mutual Assurance Fire Company will be held Monday, March 8th, between the hours of 2 and 3 o'clock, P. M., at Association Hall.

Auction sale of furniture and housekeeping articles on Tuesday next, at 1 o'clock, P. M., in the rooms formerly occupied by City National Bank, Front St., opposite the Post Office. T. J. Gillies, Auctioneer.

It is estimated that the time wasted by women of the United States in looking under beds for men at night, if devoted to work, would result, in a year's time, in making over 17,000 pairs of suspenders for the heathen.

In a letter from Mr. Craig Marsh, formerly in the office of Suydam & Jackson, to a friend in this city, he says that he has appeared for the defendant in five different suits since his arrival in San Francisco and has gained them all.

D. J. Marshall, Esq., has, through Van Winkle & Mason, obtained from the Supreme Court a judgment against the city of Plainfield for $285.67, with costs, on a claim assigned to him by [illegible], former City Surveyor of Plainfield.

Save your rags and waste paper—they have gone up to three and four cents per pound. Old paper is worked over again, and it pays well to save it for the rag man. Any family can save enough in old rags and paper each year to pay for all the newspapers they take.

The Congregational Society will hold a meeting in the lecture room of the church next Wednesday evening, to consider the advisability of holding their Sunday services in some other building. It is thought that they will vacate the premises they have been occupying.

Berry & Thorn, the old established hardware merchants, announce in another column what they know about Tinware, and Seeds, and Hardware, and Nails, etc., etc. Having purchased goods before the "rise" they are enabled to sell very low for cash. Their adv. is placed in our columns to read. After doing so, give them a call.

Charles Foster, hackman, was arrested on Wednesday last, at the instance of Peter Hoagland, Expressman, on a charge of violating a City Ordinance in carrying and charging for a trunk of a passenger. A hearing of the case was held before City Judge Runyon yesterday (Thursday) morning. The Judge reserved his decision until Saturday.

Wednesday was "moving day" with the officers and attaches of the Dime Savings Institution, Washington Fire Insurance Company and J. C. Pope & Co's. Insurance Agency, the quarters of each institution being removed from Dunlap's building, corner of Front and Somerset streets, to handsomely fitted up rooms in Coward's building, over the City National Bank.

Mr. Chas. S. [illegible], coal merchant, has purchased of the Central N. J. Land Improvement Co. a part of the lot now occupied by Mr. John Hall, 125x50 feet in dimensions, fronting on Peace Street, and removed thither his large coal buildings, sheds and office, and will, in the future, be located there. He has also caused to be constructed a substantial stone wall along the railroad embankment.

A large crowd was attracted to the vicinity of L. M. French's carriage factory on Friday last, to see one of the heavy business wagons of Messrs. Schepflin, Baldwin, Twombly & Co., which stood there on its return from a trip over the mountains. The spokes of the wheels was so thickly coated with mud as to not leave space enough between them to run a person's finger through. Thorn, the photographer took a picture of the wagon.

In nearly every city from which we have accounts the coming of St. Patrick's day, 17th of March, will be commemorated by devoting the probable expenses of a celebration to their starving countrymen in Ireland. This is a wise resolve, and more grateful to the spirit of St. Patrick than millions spent in festivities. Let every Irishman work that day, and if he wants to do something noble, devote the day's earning to the poor, starving men, women and children of the old sod.

It is with pleasure we record the announcement that a report of the death of Robert Perry, a former resident of this city, is unfounded. Mr. Perry received severe injuries from a fall while painting an elevated railroad structure in N. Y. City, a couple of weeks since, but will recover from the effects of the same. One reason why no particulars of the accident were given in the New York papers, was the fact that the Superintendent of the road "bounced" the reporters out of the station when they came for particulars, saying that they had already done the road enough injury by their misrepresentations.

Council meeting next Monday evening.

The Grand Jury is still in session. The eighth week.

Township elections throughout this State will be held March 9th.

The 8 o'clock a. m. passenger train now stops at Netherwood station.

The Mansion House is daily increasing in popularity under the proprietorship of Mr. E. F. Thorn.

The hackmen had a harvest last night, the occasion being the Annual Sociable of "Alert" Hose Co.

Mr. Jones has sold a corner lot opposite the Park House to a gentleman who contemplates erecting a handsome residence thereon.

Ground has been broken for the erection of a large new dwelling house on Park avenue, just near the city limits for Mr. Isaac Steele.

Fine segars and tobaccos at Fink's, Park Avenue, near Second Street. Exact figures and distances given regarding the late trial of the "laddies."

We are in receipt of the 21st Annual Report of the Board of Trustees of the New Jersey State Normal School, which is an interesting document.

The real estate men now looketh into the eyes of every stranger alighting from the railroad trains. They can tell by the expression whether the person is house-hunting or not.

Citizens desiring a copy of Comptroller Stockton's admirable Report of the Finances of the State, may secure a copy of same by addressing him at the State House, Trenton, N. J.

Mr. Geo. E. DeRevere, Proprietor of the Park House, the past year, has re-leased the hotel building for another year. There will be many valuable improvements made to the interior and exterior, conducive to the comfort of guests and attractiveness of the building.

A Requiem mass was said at St. Mary's R. C. Church last Monday morning for the repose of the soul of Mary Shea, a young lady of excellent qualities, only daughter of Mr. John Shea, of North Plainfield, she having died of consumption at the age of 23 years.

As before stated in these columns, John H. French, Plainfield's popular and reliable Clothier, will ere long remove to new quarters opposite the Post Office, in the rooms lately occupied by the City National bank. In the meantime he is disposing of his large stock of ready made clothing at astonishingly low prices to make room for new goods when he opens in his new store.

It is contemplated to re-construct the fore-bay and dam on the site of Bound Brook's burned mill, and re-fill the pond above with water, which the people of Bound Brook do not like, as they have for years endeavored to have the pond drained, claiming that its existence created malaria. Perhaps the dam will disappear some night. The mill did.

"Mayor Harper is the best Mayor we ever had. He watches the financial interests of the city with zealous eye, and I would vote for him if he was re-nominated," was the remark we overheard a well-known Republican citizen say to another the other evening. Which tends to show that our Democrat Mayor is appreciated for his efforts in the city's behalf in the discharge of his duties.

Mr. Drier, the well-known personage who keeps a second-hand Clothing Store opposite Chamberlain's Hotel, on Friday last sued Mr. Benoit Brittin, of Scotch Plains, before Justice Nodyne, to recover amount of cost of a carpet, which Mr. B. claimed she presented him in recognition of favors done her financially and otherwise. Mrs. Drier denied this. Mr. B. produced witnesses who testified the carpet was moth-eaten when he received it, and an expert who testified that the same carpet could have been purchased at the time of receiving for less money than was claimed for it. Nevertheless a jury of twelve men decided that Mr. Brittin must pay Mr. Drier the sum of $51 37. The ways of trials and juries in Plainfield are very uncertain, very. Wm. B. Maxson for plaintiff and Geo. P. Suydam for defendant.

Thanks.

Messrs. Hapenny and McDonald desire to express their thanks through our columns, to those citizens who so generously contributed toward the purchase of powder to fire the salute on Washington's Birthday anniversary.

The Ellis Family

Who gave such a pleasing entertainment at Vandeventer Hall a week or so since, will give another of the kind in the same place next Saturday afternoon and evening for the benefit of Warren Mission School. See advertisement in another column.

For Ireland's Sufferers.

Last Sunday evening the Society known as Plainfield Ancient Order of Hibernians, No. 4, took up a collection in their rooms on Park Avenue, amounting to $44 50, which will be forwarded, through the Land League, in aid of the famishing people of Ireland.

For Ireland's Relief.

The St. Mary's T. A. B. Society of this city will hold their annual Ball in Laing's Hall, the night of St. Patrick's Day, March 17th. The proceeds of same will be devoted toward swelling the Relief Fund now being gathered all over our country for the relief of Ireland's starving people. The object is a good and deserving one and our citizens should aid the cause by purchase of tickets.

The Deliber Society.

The first lecture of a course under the auspices of the Deliber Society of the High School, was given by Dr. Vincent last Thursday evening, his subject being "Chapters of Travel." The lecture was a highly interesting and instructive one, as the Dr. always gives. It was interspersed with incidents of his travels through the Holy Land, intermingled with humor and pathos. The next lecture of the course will be held in Assembly Hall, March 9th, and delivered by Rev. Dr. Fowler.

Washington's Birthday.

The observance of Washington's Birthday, which fell upon Monday, Feb. 23d this year, was carried out in Plainfield by a general suspension of business among storekeepers, a liberal display of bunting and a salute of 38 guns from a brass piece in the morning, under the supervision of Messrs. Richard Hapenny and Thomas McDonald. The Republican Legislature of the State did not think the occasion worthy of observance, probably, as a session of that body was held the night of the 23d. As a general rule, business was suspended in all large cities of the country, and the day properly observed in various ways.

A Petition for Pardon.

A petition is being circulated and signed by some of the most influential citizens of Plainfield, addressed to His Excellency Gov. McClellan, praying him to grant a pardon to Lewis Cass Teller, convicted in the Somerset Courts a few months since on a charge of surreptitiously taking a horse and buggy belonging to William Smalley, Esq., and sentenced to three years imprisonment in the State Prison. Cass Teller is now lying seriously ill of consumption in the Prison Hospital, and the doctors say if he is not discharged he will not live to see the day when his sentence is ended. It is to be hoped that the Gov. will grant the pardon asked for.

Read Curtiss & Griffen's new adv.

All interested in the Drive Well business are requested to meet at the Board of Trade rooms, corner Front street and Park avenue to-night (27th inst.) See advertisement in another column.

A New Industry for Plainfield.

Mr. B. J. Shreeve, of North Plainfield, has leased the upper part of Mr. Lobbeus L. Manning's building next to the M. E. church, and will start a hosiery factory there, employing a large force of workmen. The steam whistle of the factory was heard for the first time on Wednesday. Mr. Manning will furnish the steam power necessary to run the machinery of the factory, from the engine in his Marble Works, which was put in by Mr. John N. Schenck, of North Plainfield.

The Last of the Recitals.

The music-loving citizens of our city are sorry to recognize the fact that there remains but one more of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Feininger's pleasing Music Recitals for them to attend. That one will be given in the Congregational church next Tuesday evening. The programme for the evening is an exceptionably fine one. Miss Annie O. Marsh and Miss Carrie Dewey, both of this city, and pupils of Mrs. Feininger, will be participants on the occasion, the former as piano soloist and the latter as accompanist. Without a doubt the house will be filled. The programme will be found in another column.

Mendelssohn Club Concert.

The lovers of fine music gathered in force at the Congregational Church last Monday evening to listen to the Concert of the Mendelssohn Quintette Club, of Boston, given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. It is unnecessary to comment on or criticise the performance. The name of the Club above is sufficient guarantee that the Concert was a grand success, and the managers of the Y.M.C.A. Course of Entertainments are to be congratulated by the citizens of Plainfield for furnishing them such a delightful evening's enjoyment. Miss Abbie Carrington, the vocalist of the occasion, is a new artist to Plainfield audiences, but that she was appreciated, was well evidenced by the applause given her the evening in question for her efforts.

Washington Monument Association.

The annual meeting of the Washington Monument and Historical Association was held Monday afternoon, February 23rd, the President in the chair.

The following named gentlemen were duly elected officers of the Association for the ensuing year:

President—Nathan Harper.
Vice Presidents—Alfred Berry, Stephen O. Horton.
Treasurer—Elias R. Pope.
Corresponding Sec.—James E. Martine.
Recording Sec.—T. J. Gillies.

The following Standing Committees were then nominated and confirmed:

Finance—Alfred Berry, Elias R. Pope, Wm. B. Maxson, J. Frank Hubbard, L. V. F. Randolph, Wm. J. Leonard, Wm. L. Force.

Monument—Peter P. Good, Stephen O. Horton, John H. Staats, Geo. R. Pound, John H. Jackson.

Printing—N. Carnes Dunn, James Lyon, Henry J. Storrs.

Judge Good offered as follows:

Whereas, It having pleased the Almighty Father, in His inscrutable wisdom, to remove from life our valued friend and fellow member, Christopher C. Staats, with whom we so long enjoyed pleasant intercourse, therefore

Resolved, That as a slight tribute to the memory of our deceased associate, we hereby make sorrowful record of the loss we have sustained.

Which being adopted, the Association adjourned.

T. J. Gillies,
Recording Sec.

Personals.

Mrs. Fred. Knowland and daughters Josie and Cad, started last week for Jacksonville, Fla., where they will remain some months. Mr. K. started on Sunday for the same destination, intending to be absent a week.

Billy Dean, Proprietor of the Club House, Park Avenue, is very happy, the cause of which is a very small boy who came to his home the day before Washington's Birthday. He is a bright little fellow and if he lives he will be one year old next time we celebrate the birthday of the Father of our Country.

Rev. George H. Whitney, President of the Hackettstown Seminary, is spoken of as a possible successor to Bishop Haven. No better selection could be made, as he possesses the requisite ability and would adorn the office. Mr. W. is a son-in-law of P. M. French, Esq., of this city.

Miss Kittie Le Ross Sisson, formerly of this city, was married on the morning of February 17th, at the residence of her father in West Burlington, to Mr. Chas. H. Burgess.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Feininger gave a Music Recital at Orange, N. J., last (Thursday) evening. Miss Carrie Dewey, Pianist, of this city, was one of the artists on the occasion.

Rev. N. E. Smith, D. D., late of this city, lies very ill of Pneumonia at his residence, MacDonough Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Alert's Third Reunion.

The third reunion of Alert Hose Company, which had been looked forward to for some time by the friends of its members, was given last Wednesday evening, and the numerous invitations sent out were generally accepted. The Chiefs of the Fire Departments of other cities were sent personal requests to be present by Foreman Saltzman, which Messrs. Hendricks of New Haven and Doane of Plainfield accepted, and were in attendance. The comfort and convenience of the guests were most satisfactorily achieved by the selection of the Park House for the holding of the reception; and the placing in hands of Mr. Geo. DeRevere, of the arrangements to a great extent, resulted most favorably. Dressing rooms were provided for the ladies and gentlemen, who began to assemble about nine o'clock, and soon after an order of judiciously selected dances was commenced in the large parlors of the hotel. The adjacent halls afforded pleasant promenading places, and smoking rooms for the gentlemen were available.

The Reception Committee was composed of Messrs. Cock, Mayer and Stelle, who filled their respective positions most favorably; and the Floor Committee, Messrs. Potts, [illegible] and Erickson, took care that all who wanted to dance did so. The music was under the leadership of Prof. Frazee, assisted by artists from New York, and no better could have been desired. The gentlemen in charge of this matter, as well as the rooms and supper, were Messrs. Voorhees, Stover and Varian, and the perfection of the arrangements under their charge, and the tasteful decoration of the walls, reflected great credit upon them.

At midnight the dining room was thrown open, and about forty couple, headed by Foreman Saltzman and his lady, entered to partake of the bountiful supper of material pleasures set forth by Mr. DeRevere. Tables were spread lengthwise of the room, and loaded with pyramids of cream, dishes of fruit, salads, boned-game, jellies and other tempting eatables. Handsomely engraved menus were furnished each guest, from which could be ordered almost anything desired; and these attractions were only left after all were satisfied. Subsequent dancing finished the pleasures of the night, and at an early hour the third of this Company's successful reunions broke up, each lady carrying with her a handsome souvenir of Mr. Saltzman's friendship, consisting of a rich blue-satin ribbon, on which was stamped in gold the Company's title and the compliments of its Foreman.

Mr. Ellis A. Campbell will take the "Club House" adjoining the Fair Grounds, April 1st. Mr. Dean, the present proprietor, has leased the entire building known as the "Cosmopolitan" hotel No. [illegible] North avenue, next to [illegible] Jewelry Store, and will conduct the same as a hotel.

East End Social Club.

This organization gave one of their pleasant sociables in the parlors of [illegible]'s building, last (Thursday) evening. About thirty couple joined in the evening's dance, including many from New York and Elizabeth, and an enjoyable night was the result. The supper was furnished by a well known caterer of this city, and the music consisted of three pieces from New York. Under the efficient management of Messrs. H. Hatfield, J. Gavett and G. Hallock, the affair passed off most pleasantly, despite the fact that an "amateur" [illegible] mixed the dance up.

Y. M. C. A. Reception.

The second of the Y. M. C. A. monthly Receptions took place last (Thursday) evening in Vandeventer Hall. The extreme unpleasantness of the weather prevented the assembling of the large gathering that is usually in attendance upon these enjoyable occasions; the Hall, however, was more than half filled. The programme consisted of many fine vocal selections from well-known and admired composers, which were rendered in a manner highly appreciated by the audience, by the Hatton Glee Club of N. Y., consisting of Messrs. E. A. Sommers, first tenor, F. S. Van Horn, second tenor, Alex. Irving, first bass, W. S. Church, second bass, assisted by Miss Nettie Balmer, soprano, all showing themselves to be artists of great ability and talent. The third of these receptions will take place about the [illegible] of next month.

FIRE MATTERS.

Last Wednesday evening, the occasion of "Alert Hose Co's." Re-Union, Chief Doane, in order to show Chief Hendricks of the New Haven, Conn., Fire Department, who was a guest of Foreman Saltzman, how soon the various Companies could respond to an alarm of fire, arranged with them all that an alarm should be sounded from the tower at half-past ten o'clock in the evening. Some eager young genius however, raised an alarm at half-past nine o'clock, and the bell was struck. Instantly all the companies were dashing toward the goal assigned, in front of the Park House, arriving in an incredibly short time in the following order: "Zephyr" No. 1 truck, "Gazelle," No. 1, steamer and carriage, "Plainfield" No. 2 steamer and carriage, "Warren" No. 3 carriage and steamer. The latter company had the longest distance to run and the heaviest apparatus. The truck and No. 1 engine, which lay side by side on Second street, had the disadvantage of pulling over a bad piece of road before they struck the McAdam, but lay a little nearer the objective point. Upon their arrival there No. 1 steamer's rope lapped the side of the truck, No. 2 steamer was a half block behind and No. 3 the same distance behind her. The entire distance run from the farthest engine house, (Warren's) was about ½ of a mile. The time made was about six minutes. After giving three cheers for "Alert Hose," No 2 steamer went to Cedar Brook for a "wash" and Nos. 1 and 3 steamers to the fire well corner of Fifth street and Park Avenue. By eleven o'clock all the apparatus were again housed. About one o'clock another false alarm, emanating from North Plainfield, brought out steamers No. 2 and 3 and truck No. 1. No alarm was sounded from the tower.

Chief Hendricks complimented the firemen for their quick response to the fire alarm last Wednesday evening.

The grist mill, situated along the line of the railroad near the depot, at Bound Brook, was totally destroyed by fire on Friday morning last, about three o'clock. The structure was owned by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, and was known as "McNabb's Mill," Mr. Robert McNabb occupying it. The building was fully insured, as was also Mr. McNabb. The origin of the fire is unknown. The fire was seen in this city plainly, and so impressed was officer Happeny that the fire was within the department limits, that he rang the fire alarm bell, which brought the whole department out about four o'clock. The hour being that time when people sleep soundest, it was some time before the fire apparatus were gotten under way, in consequence of lack of numbers of firemen to pull them. After tugging and pulling two or three blocks, the firemen turned back, as they saw the fire was beyond the limits. There was much swearing and grumbling at officer Happeny for ringing the alarm bell, but he should not be too severely censured, as it is not every person who can accurately locate a distant fire. Besides, Dick is green on fire matters yet and may improve by age.

The other members of the Plainfield Fire Department, not caring to be behind their associates in the matter of a sociable gathering, held a pleasant dance in the house of "Zephyr H. & L. Co. No. 1," on the evening after the "Alert" Reunion. The plan was originated and carried out by Messrs. Charles Davis, of "Zephyr," and Frank Vail, of "No. 2." About one hundred and fifty invitations were sent out, and a large number of the lady and gentlemen friends of the two Companies were present. Prof. Frazee furnished his usual inspiring music, and during the progress of an order numbering about twenty dances, a supper was furnished and enjoyed. For many donations to the refreshment table the gentlemen are under obligations to their lady friends, and to Messrs. Davis and Vail the two Companies are truly thankful for a night's enjoyment.

In company with Chief Doane, Foreman Saltzman and other members of "Alert Hose, No. 1," Chief Hendricks, of New Haven, Conn., was on Wednesday last escorted to the various houses of the Fire Companies of this city, and viewed the apparatus and parlors within the same. Chief Hendricks expressed himself as highly pleased with the condition of the houses, apparatus and firemens' paraphernalia, also as to the status of the Department, before he returned home.

Steamers No. 1 and 3 were taken out for a "wash" last Thursday evening, the location being at Cedar Brook on Park Avenue. No. 3 took suction at the stream and passed water to No. 1 a distance of 600 feet, the latter steamer throwing the water out of [illegible] feet of hose. Both engines worked finely.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

On Thursday evening the congregation of the Presbyterian Church gave a reception to their pastor, Mr. Gill, at the Lecture Room.

The Ellis Family visited us again on Tuesday evening last, at the Presbyterian Church, and drew a full house.

The W. M. T. are getting ready to give an entertainment at Lyceum Hall.

Mrs. L. H. Wilcox has bought out Mrs. H. D. [illegible], and will commence business next month corner Broad and Elm Sts., formerly kept by P. R. Conant.

Mr. Boyden and family will return to our village again this Summer, after an absence of 12 months.

There was married at the house of Mr. John Ingram, on Elm St., on Wednesday evening last, Miss Jennie Lake to Mr. Chas. E. Reed, of Rahway.

Mr. Griswold still remains in our village with that Feather Renovating Machine. He seems to have plenty to do, and gives entire satisfaction.

The bridge muddle of Road District No. 14, still remains one of the interesting topics of the day. Mr. [illegible], the Road Master, is in receipt of another notice to open drain on Mr. E. G. Brown's land, which that gentleman has forbid him to do. Mr. B. very much desires to see this settled; if he opens the drain Mr. Brown will sue him for damages; if he don't somebody else wants to indict him; so he stands between two fires.

Rev. Chas. A. Harris has been confined to his bed for the last week, and was unable to officiate at the marriage of Miss Lake and Mr. Reed.

The Public School Fair was a complete success, as all things are with which Mr. Blazier, the Principal, superintends. The little ones all did their best to make the old folks spend their money. The voting on the different articles was very spirited. The large doll brought nearly 500 votes, of which Miss Maggie Mapes received 112, Miss Lulu M. Fleming, 126, Miss Louise Decker, 185. Elmer VanDyke was elected to receive the Holly Scroll Saw, Mr. Blazier, the Clock, and a Crayon Drawing by Chas. H. Darsch. There was a tie on the first ballot for the stand of Wax-flowers, between Miss Stryker and Mrs. Goodrich. Fifteen minutes more was given to the children, in which Miss Stryker received 24 votes, and Mrs. Goodrich 8, a majority for Miss S. The Shooting Gallery competition was very spirited, especially on the last night of the fair. Mr. L. Welsh won the 1st prize, and Mr. Wm. Hart the 2d. All unsold articles were auctioned off and sold regardless of cost to the highest bidder. The net proceeds of the Fair amount to near $250, which goes toward improving the School rooms. A Concert will be given on this Friday evening, at Lyceum Hall, for the benefit of the School.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

Mr. John Cook, Sr., of this village, who was some months since stricken with paralysis, is lying very low at his residence, with but small hopes of recovery. Mr. Cook is the father of several children, among whom we class as our friends, Herman and John, the latter engaged in business in Scotch Plains, and the former, who for 15 years was engaged in business for himself, until recently, in the employ of Mr. J. W. Woodruff, of Summit. He contemplates shortly, however, engaging in business again for himself in New York city. Mr. Cook, Sr., who is about 78 years old, is comforted in his declining years and sickness by the kind attention and care of his children.

The first Lecture of a course, under the auspices of the Fanwood Lyceum, held Monday evening, Feb. 23d, and delivered by Rev. W. E. Wright, of Middletown, N. Y., was a grand success. His subject was "Washington." The officers of the Lyceum are—John Brower, Pres.; T. J. Nicholl, Vice Pres.; Willard Johnson, Sec.; W. R. S. Taylor, Treas.; Max Greibel and D. P. Hall, Directors.

The Third Entertainment of The Young Ladies' Association of Scotch Plains, will be held at the residence of Mr. Treadwell, March 3d, at 8 p. m. Admission, 15 cents. Proceeds to go to Sunday Schools of Scotch Plains.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Woodcock have made their appearance in this section, which is earlier in the season than usual. Now let us hear from the "scape," "scape" family.

The "New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society" is rapidly increasing in membership. Any information regarding the Society may be obtained of the Secretary, W. L. Force, headquarters, Plainfield, N. J.

There was a trial of skill as marksmen between a couple of Plainfield's amateur sportsmen on Tuesday last near Dean's Club House, Park Avenue. A mark two inches square was set up at forty yards distance. At the first trial each put eight shot in the bit of paper. Next trial resulted in one peppering it with nine and the other seven shot. After the trial, which was for a small piece of greenish looking paper, with a figure 5 on the end, some glass ball shooting was indulged in. One of the Judges in the above-named match beat both principals in shooting at the little glass spheres.

When McNabb's mill at Bound Brook was burned last week, the flames burned away the wood work of the fore-bay so that the waters of the pond above it ran out into the Raritan. Old residents, who were aware of the existence of snapping turtle and pickerel in the pond, were soon briskly engaged in capturing them. Large numbers of enormous pickerel were speared through the thin ice on the edge of the pond. One veteran fisherman, Ran. Martin, captured eight large snapping turtles, one of which, weighing at least 30 pounds, he exhibited in the bar room of the Mansion House on Tuesday last.

There was quite a large attendance at the pigeon shooting match near Brittin's Hotel, Scotch Plains, on Monday last, 23rd. Several sweepstake matches were shot off between Plainfield and Cranford sportsmen, the "honors being easy" at the conclusion. The day was one of the worst for pigeon shooting in the history of the writer. Fitful gusts of wind and snow squalls made it almost impossible for the marksman to average a decent score. The birds, which were a remarkably hardy and strong lot, when hit and not instantly killed, would be impelled beyond the boundary line, by the mere force of the strong wind prevailing, oftentimes falling dead just out of bounds, to the discomfiture and annoyance of the shooter. The usual army of pot-hunters were also on hand, and oftentimes even before a hit bird would reach the limits established, his body would receive the contents of a dozen guns. However, everyone went away satisfied with the day's sport and the good lot of birds furnished by "Ran."

COMMUNICATED.

For "The Constitutionalist."

Messrs. Editors:

I notice in your issue of the week before last an article on the feasibility of McAdamizing the Township of Fanwood. If it could be accomplished it would add wonderfully to the comfort and convenience of all people living on the streets improved, and also all who cross the Township.

There is an old saying that you "should never buy a pig in a bag;" and another to "look before you leap," and still another that "those who dance must pay the piper:" therefore, before any very decisive steps are taken it would prove to be of great benefit to consider many things connected therewith.

It might be beneficial to look at some place that now enjoys the blessings of McAdam. I think at present only of the Oranges; they have bonds out amounting to nearly $500,000 for street and road improvements and most of it appears to be for McAdamizing; now, about $20,000 for Fanwood Township would be equal to the half million for the Oranges according to the valuations as returned to the State.

Some things are absolutely certain, and one is that it is impossible to grade, drain and McAdam without paying for it, either at the time or during a term of years, and that must be the case if much or little is done at one time; and experience seems to have shown that the poorest and most costly way is for the town authorities to attempt to do it themselves; it is a business, and much better and cheaper done by parties who make a business of it.

Now to McAdamize the Road from Green Brook to the town line on Robinson's Branch, and Main Street, from Terrell Road to the town line on the Springfield Road, at a cost at the least calculation, if only 30 feet wide, over $50,000, done either by contract or the town authorities; but call it $50,000; to pay that with six per cent. interest in 10 years, in equal installments, would amount to $60,503. The first year it would require a tax levy of $1.20 on the hundred dollars (our present regular tax is 80 cents, including State and County tax) and then less than one-fourth of the principal roads of the town will have been McAdamized. If paid for as finished, it would require at the same rate about 2½ years to McAdam from Green Brook to Depot; and second, Main Street, 3½ years; and third, from Depot to Robinson's Branch, 4 years; in all 10 years.

It is well for the people to look at the matter in all its aspects, and this is one. There are many other things connected with it which will require considerable thought and the closest scrutiny.

I have also heard something about organizing a Joint Stock Association of the people of the Township; in that case, it might be a question in a few years which should run the town, the Association or the Town Committee?

Yet it must be acknowledged that nothing adds more to the attractiveness of the country than good roads.

A Friend of the Township.

For "The Constitutionalist."

Messrs. Editors:

Knowing that The Constitutionalist is the most widely circulated paper in our town, I desire to use some of its valuable space to obtain, and also to give certain information. Our Township has been well stirred up the last two weeks over the action of our Town Committee in abolishing all the old road districts and dividing the whole Township into two districts. Now what I and a great many other taxpayers would like to know is this: "Why is that change made?" Have our people asked for it? The Town Committee no doubt could have shown the citizens this little courtesy, and informed them that they would change the road districts, asking those interested in the welfare of our town to come to the meeting and discuss the subject; but that they did not think was at all necessary. Here it is where our otherwise good Town Committee made the mistake. If they had properly explained the matter to the public beforehand, it would not look so bad. Now as the case stands there is but little prospect that the ill feeling brought on by their action will be allayed by next Town meeting. Another matter we would like to have some light upon is this: "Why is it that the Primary meetings are not called until one or two days before election?" Are the men that generally make up the tickets for us to vote afraid that we might not like their men, or find something against them. We have had enough of bed-room caucuses; call your meeting, bring out only the best men and there is no fear but that they will be elected; give every one a chance to see and hear, and speak his opinion. The next Town meeting will probably show how the public thinks, and in whom they have confidence. Now if our Town Committee will explain why they made the change, and where it would be to our benefit, no doubt they could redeem a great deal of the good estimation in which they have heretofore been held by our citizens.

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

CHAPTER II.

A further supplement to the act entitled "An act constituting courts for the trial of small causes" (Revision), approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section one hundred and thirty-five of the act to which this a further supplement, which reads as follows, to wit:

"135. And be it enacted, That the constables of the several counties of this state shall be entitled to receive from the county collector of the said county, their lawful fees for serving any criminal warrant, together with all and any expenses by them incurred in conveying any offender to the county jail for commitment to the custody of the sheriff, whether any such offender shall be indicted or not, for the offense for which such offender may have been so committed," be amended to read as follows:

135. And be it enacted, That the constables of the several counties of this state shall be entitled to receive from the collector of said county, their lawful fees for serving any criminal warrant, together with any proper and reasonable expenses by them incurred in conveying any offender to the county jail for commitment to the custody of the sheriff, whether such offender shall be indicted or not, for the offense for which such offender may have been committed; provided, that the bill of expenses so incurred shall be itemized and shall be certified by the prosecutor of the pleas of said county to be proper and reasonable."

Approved February 5, 1880.

CHAPTER III.

An act relating to the distribution of law and equity reports and other publications.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That all publications, or republications, of the law and equity reports of this state, and all revisions or digests of laws or reports made or published since January first, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, and hereafter to be made or published, shall be distributed to the president law judges of the common pleas in all counties having such judges, in the same manner as they now are and have been distributed to the justices of the supreme court.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 5, 1880.

CHAPTER IV.

Supplement to act entitled "An act respecting appeals from justices' courts," approved April twenty-first, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section one of the act to which this is a supplement, which reads as follows:

"1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That all appeals from justices' courts to the court of common pleas of any county in this state, shall be put on the list for trial at the first term to which the same shall be appealed, unless the appeal shall have been taken within five days prior to the beginning of such term, and then at the next term thereafter," be and the same is hereby amended, so as to read as follows:

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That all appeals from justices' courts to the court of common pleas of any county in this state shall be put on the list for trial at the first term to which the same shall be appealed; provided, however, that if said appeal is taken within the five days prior to the beginning of such term, and if the papers are not filed with the clerk of said court three days prior to the beginning of such term, then, and in that case, said appeal to be put on the list for trial at the next term thereafter.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts, inconsistent with the provisions of this act, be and the same are hereby repealed.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 5, 1880.

CHAPTER VI.

A further supplement to the act entitled "An act respecting the orphans' court, and relating to the powers and duties of the ordinary and the orphans' court and surrogates," approved March the twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section twenty-nine of the act hereby amended, which section is in the words following, to-wit:

"29. And be it enacted, That if any person not resident within this State shall depart, or shall have heretofore departed this life, possessed of personal property or choses in action within, or the evidence of which shall be in the hands of any person resident within this state, and the executors or administrators of such decedent shall neglect, or shall have neglected for the space of sixty days after his death, to make application in this state for letters testamentary or of administration upon or in respect to such decedent's estate, any person alleging himself or herself to have any debt or legal claim against such decedent, which, by the laws of this state, survives against the personal representatives of parties deceased, may make application to the surrogate of the county wherein said personality, choses in action, or evidences thereof are situate; and on proof to his satisfaction of the matters herein stated, said surrogate shall issue letters of administration upon the estate of such decedent to some other person to be selected by him, either cum testamento annexo or otherwise, as the circumstances of the case may require, taking bond for the faithful performance of the duties of such administrator, as in other cases required by law," be amended so as to read as follows:

29. And be it enacted, That if any person not resident within this state shall depart, or shall have heretofore departed this life, possessed of personal property or choses in action within, or the evidence of which shall be in the hands of any resident of this state, or if any decedent died, or shall die, seized of any real estate, or any interest therein, within this state, and the executors or administrators of such decedent shall neglect, or shall have neglected for the space of sixty days after the death of such decedent, to make application in this state for letters testamentary or of administration upon or in respect to such decedent's estate, any person alleging himself or herself to have any debt or legal claim against such decedent, which by the laws of this state, survives against the personal representatives of parties deceased, may make application to the surrogate of the county in which such real estate or interest therein, choses in action or evidences thereof or personal estate are situate, and on proof to his satisfaction of the matters herein stated, and upon such notice to the executors or administrators of the decedent as the surrogate may prescribe, said surrogate shall issue letters of administration upon the estate of such decedent to some person to be selected by him, either cum testamento annexo, or otherwise, as the circumstances of the case may require, taking bond for the faithful performance of the duties of such administrator, as in other cases required by law.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 9, 1880.

CHAPTER VII.

A supplement to an act entitled "An act respecting the compensation of the chancellor and the justices of the supreme court of this state," approved March fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the chancellor of this state shall be entitled to receive an annual salary at the rate of ten thousand dollars, and the chief justice of the supreme court of this state shall be entitled to receive an annual salary at the rate of seven thousand and five hundred dollars, and each of the associate justices of the supreme court of this state shall be entitled to receive an annual salary at the rate of seven thousand dollars; and said salaries of said chancellor and said chief justice and associate justices shall be in full for all services by them respectively rendered in discharge of their duties as chancellor and justices of the supreme court and as judges of the court of errors and appeals, and in full for all services rendered or performed by said chief justice and said associate justices respectively as judges of the circuit courts, courts of common pleas, courts of oyer and terminer and general jail delivery, courts of general quarter sessions of the peace, courts of special quarter sessions, and orphans' courts; and all the salaries in this section fixed and provided shall be paid quarterly by the treasurer of this state upon the warrant of the comptroller of the treasury.

2. And be it enacted, That when the population of any judicial circuit or district in this state exceeds eighty thousand, according to the latest state or federal census taken or to be taken, the annual salary of the justice to whom such circuit or district may be assigned shall be increased beyond the salary allowed to him under the foregoing section by as many dollars as will equal two per centum of such excess of population over eighty thousand; and said additional salary or compensation required by the provisions of this section to be paid to the justice assigned to any such judicial circuit or district shall be apportioned to him according to said per centum of said excess of population, as aforesaid, by the comptroller of the treasury, state treasurer and attorney general of this state, under their hands, which apportionment shall be filed in the office of said comptroller; and the amount so apportioned shall be paid to said justice by said state treasurer, on the warrant of said comptroller, quarterly.

3. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the clerk of the supreme court, and of the county clerks of the several counties in this state, and of the clerk in chancery, and of the secretary of state of this state, to charge and include in the taxed bill of costs in every action or case, in each and all of the courts of this state, of which they are the clerk, respectively, and to collect from the attorneys therein, or from the other persons liable therefor, all costs or fees taxable in regard to or for the services of said chancellor, chief justice and associate justices, respectively, under the laws now or hereafter in force respecting such costs or fees, and to pay the same quarterly out of the first money received or collected by them on each and every taxed bill of costs, or in each and every such action or case, to the treasurer of this state, for the use of the state.

4. And be it enacted, That the said chancellor, chief justice and associate justices shall not be entitled to receive any compensation per diem, mileage, fees, pay, or allowances whatsoever, for any services performed by them in, or in connection with any of the courts of this state, or in their several official capacities, in addition to the salary or compensation in and by this act fixed and provided.

5. And be it enacted, That this act shall only apply to the chancellor, chief justice and associate justices of the supreme court whose term of office shall hereafter commence, or to those now in office whose term of office does not expire during the present year, who may file their assent in writing, under their hands, to the provisions of this act, in the office of the secretary of state.

6. And be it enacted, That so much of the act entitled "An act respecting the compensation of the chancellor and the justices of the supreme court of this state," approved March fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine, and to which this is a supplement, as relates to the annual salary of the chancellor, and so much thereof as relates to the annual salary of the chief justice and the associate justices of the supreme court being sections one, three, four and six of said act, and all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act is and are hereby repealed and that this act shall be a public act and take effect immediately.

Approved February 9, 1880.

CHAPTER VIII.

An act to confirm certain conveyances of sheriffs and other officers.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That no conveyances heretofore made in this state by any sheriff or other officer or auditors in attachment, prior to the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, shall be deemed invalid and inoperative by reason of the omission or neglect of said sheriff or other officer to comply with the requirements of the first section of an act entitled "An act for the better securing of titles to land sold by sheriffs or other officers," approved March twenty-fifth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, but the same are hereby made as valid and effectual as if the requirements of said section had been complied with.

2. And be it enacted, That the record of any such conveyance shall be as valid and effectual to all intents and purposes, and shall operate, and be construed to have operated, as notice to all persons, in the same manner as though said conveyance had been made in conformity with the requirements of said section of said act.

3. And be it enacted, That the said record of any such conveyance as provided in the next preceding section, or a certified copy thereof, may be used and given in evidence in the same manner as if the requirements of said section of said act had been complied with.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 9, 1880.

CHAPTER XVI.

An act to provide for the increase in the number of directors in certain corporations in this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for any corporations of this state incorporated under any general or special act, engaged in the business of manufacturing silk, cotton, jute and other fibrous material and the several branches of manufacture incident thereto, whose board of directors is now limited to seven persons, to increase said board to nine persons, if the said company shall desire so to do; provided, however, that the provisions of this act shall not apply to any such incorporation until it shall be so decided by a vote of the directors of any such company desiring an increase, passed at a regular meeting, and the written consent of at least two-thirds in value of all the stock outstanding against such corporation, and a certificate thereof, duly signed and properly attested, and filed in the office of the secretary of state.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 10, 1880.

CHAPTER X.

A supplement to the act entitled "An act regulating proceedings in criminal cases" (Revision), approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That if any person convicted of murder in the first degree shall make application to the justice who presided at the trial, or, in his absence, to the presiding justice of the court of common pleas of the county in which said trial was had, showing to such justice that he or she is about to apply for a writ of error, and is unable, by reason of poverty, to provide the means necessary to defray the expenses of printing the testimony for presentation; upon the application of such writ it shall be the duty of such justice, being satisfied of the facts stated and of the sufficiency thereof, to certify the same to the county collector of the county in which such trial and conviction were had, who shall thereupon pay the necessary expenses, as aforesaid, of the person convicted, the amount having first been approved by the justice who granted the application.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 10, 1880.

CHAPTER IX.

A further supplement to an act entitled "An act for the better enforcement in Maurice river cove and Delaware bay of the act entitled 'An act for the preservation of clams and oysters,'" approved April fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and forty-six, and of the supplements thereto.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section eleven of the act to which this is a supplement, which reads as follows:

"11. And be it enacted, That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to catch oysters from any of the natural beds in Delaware bay north of a line bearing southwest from the mouth of Bow and Pigs creek, in the county of Cumberland, from the last day of June in each year to the first day of April in the succeeding year, and no oysters shall be caught south of said line for the purpose of planting at any season of the year; and any person or persons so offending shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay a fine of one hundred dollars and the boat or vessel so violating shall be liable to seizure by the special officer provided for in an act to which this is a supplement, and such boat or vessel shall be liable for the payment of such fines and forfeitures, and the moneys arising therefrom shall be paid to the collector of the oyster fund provided for in an act to which this act is a supplement; the said line and bearing as herein stated shall be marked out by the said special officer by monuments upon the shore, or in such manner as the said board of direction may order," be amended so as to read as follows:

11. And be it enacted, That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to catch oysters from any of the natural beds in Delaware bay north of a line bearing southwest from the mouth of Bow and Pigs creek, in the county of Cumberland, from the last day of June in each year to the first day of April in the succeeding year, and no oysters shall be caught south of said line for the purpose of planting at any season of the year; and any person offending against either of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall, for every such offence, be punished by a fine of one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days, or both, at the discretion of the court; and any canoe, bat, scow, boat or other vessel used and employed in the commission of any offence against this section, with all the clams, oysters, clam rakes, tongs, dredges, tackle, furniture and apparel, shall be forfeited, and the same seized, secured and disposed of in the manner prescribed in the ninth and tenth sections of the act entitled "An act for the preservation of clams and oysters," approved April fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and forty-six, and in section eight of the act to which this is a further supplement; provided, that said procedure shall be before a single justice of the peace of the county where such seizure is made; the said line and bearing as herein stated shall be marked out by the said special officer by monuments upon the shore, or in such manner as the board of direction may order.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 10, 1880.

The cause of reform goes on. Bills have been introduced in our Legislature for the creation of two new offices—an inspector of oils of all kinds and an inspector of charities and chief of the bureau of pauper statistics. The latter, we believe, has been withdrawn, but efforts will be made to have the former office created.

People of doubtful age are already hunting up their bibles and family records to see if they have not been in error about their respective births. It will be a severe blow to some of the spinsters to have to tell the enumerators when and where they were born, but they must do so or suffer punishment. Besides they are tough and can stand it, even if their records are open to public review.

At Bloomsbury, Hunterdon County, the iron mining industry is unusually active. Every landowner is sure that there is iron ore on his land, and is digging for it, and in many cases with success. In the upper part of Hunterdon County ore in paying quantity is found almost anywhere. All the old shafts are being worked again, and the large number of idlers who have existed during the early part of the Winter find employment. A company with ex-Senator F. A. Potts as President has secured the Turkey Hill Mines.

* * *

The Senate has refused to confirm several of the names sent in by the President for Supervisors of the Census, some on account of their extreme partisanship and others because they are unfit. We trust that the Democratic Senators, especially our New Jersey Senators, will stand up for their rights and demand that the Democrats have at least an equal share of the Supervisors. This they can do without hurting anybody's feelings, especially the Republican Senate of New Jersey which just now is particularly careful not to confirm some of Gov. McClellan's appointments for judicial positions, simply because they happen to be Democrats. Of the three names sent in by Hayes for New Jersey, all of them are well-known Republicans, and active ones too. New Jersey is a Democratic State and is fairly entitled to two of three Supervisors.—Mt. Holly Herald.

POETRY.

For The Constitutionalist.

TO MY GRANDCHILD.

BY A. E. NICHOLS.

A gentle child, blue eyed and fair,
With shining curls of yellow hair,
Like tangled threads of fine spun gold,
Shading a brow of classic mould,
Her rounded cheeks, as lilies fair,
With pink sea shells nestling there
And coral lips with pearls between,
And breath like fragrant eglantine—

Her small white hands a sculptor's pride,
Her form erect as warrior's pride,
Yet every motion filled with grace
As bounding fawns in sportive chase,
Or bending flower by the brook,
Or swaying vine in leafy nook,
Her voice the sweetest silver bells
That to the ear their music tells—

Yet better still than all of these
The gentle ways that always please,
The pitying heart that ever shows
Quick sympathy for others' woes,
Obedient, faithful, free from guile,
A world of love in her winsome smile,
Mirth in her laugh, joy in her song,
A very sunbeam all day long.

Scotch Plains, Feb. 26, 1880.

CREATION.

Ere the dawn of orient morn,
  A trackless tract of waste appeared;
Erewhile all space of beauty shorn
  Till Nature's God our world had reared.

The evening and the morning came—
  When bidden by the hand of God;
Then came the light, called day by name,
  Darkness, night, on day's footsteps trod.

"The waste of waters" knew no bound;
  Their utmost limit knew no shore
'Till God's firmament did bound
  And marked their limit evermore.

By architect's supreme command,
  The waters were assigned a place,
Were shaped and bounded by dry land,
  Which first were all a trackless waste.

To land He gave the name of earth;
  The gathered waters called he seas;
Of trees, grass, herbs, there was no dearth,
  Forth from his bidding came all these.

Then in the power of his might
  Set [illegible] in the firmament;
Made greater and a lesser light,
  Then was his work the 4th day spent.

The greater light to rule the day,
  The lesser one to rule the night;
Thus matter did behests obey
  Which he pronounced all good, all right.

Now void of life was earth and seas,
  Nor fish nor fowl, insect or beast,
No creature air or land had these
  Until the fifth day's work had ceased.

And now the sixth day's work began,
  The crowning labor of the whole;
From dust of earth he formed man,
  And gave to him a living soul.

In his own image made he man,
  To him he earth dominion gave;
Of fish that swim, of beasts that run,
  Of fowl that fly or in water lave.

For food the fruit of shrub and tree
  And seeds that from the earth shall grow,
These for man's sustenance shall be,
  For God hath said it shall be so.

The morning of the seventh came,
  God rested from his labor then,
And called it "Sabbath day" by name,
  A day of rest for beast and man.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE GHOST IN THE MILL.

"Come, Sam, tell us a story," said I, as Harry and I crept to his knees, in the glow of the bright evening firelight, while Aunt Lois was busily rattling the tea-things, and grandmamma was quietly setting the heel of a blue-mixed yarn stocking at the other end of the fireplace.

In those days we had no magazines and daily papers, each reeling off a serial story. Once a week the "Columbian Sentinel" came from Boston with its slender stock of news and editorial; but all the multiform devices, pictorial, narrative and poetical, which keep the mind of the present generation ablaze with excitement, had not then even an existence. There was no theatre, no opera; there was in Oldtown no parties or balls, except perhaps the annual election or Thanksgiving festival; and when Winter came, and the sun went down at half-past four o'clock and left the long dark hours of evening to be provided for, the necessity of amusement became urgent. Hence in those days, chimney-corner story-telling became an art and accomplishment. Society then was full of traditions and narratives which had all the uncertain glow and shifting mystery of the firelit hearth upon them. They were told to sympathetic audiences, by the rising and falling light of the solemn embers, with the hearth crickets filling up every pause. Then the aged told their stories to the young—tales of early life, tales of war and adventure, of forest days, of Indian captivities and escapes, of bears and wildcats and panthers, of rattlesnakes, of witches and wizards, and strange and wonderful dreams and appearances and providences.

In those days of early Massachusetts, faith and credence were in the very air. Two-thirds of New England was then dark, unbroken forest, through whose tangled paths the mysterious Winter wind groaned and shrieked and howled with weird noises and unaccountable clamors. Along the iron-bound shore the stormful Atlantic raved and thundered and dashed its moaning waters, as if to deaden and deafen any voice that might tell of the settled life of the old civilized world, and shut us forever into the wilderness. A good story-teller in those days was always sure of a warm seat at the hearth-stone, and the delighted homage of children; and in all Oldtown there was no better story-teller than Sam Lawson.

"Do, do tell us a story," said Harry, pressing upon him and opening very wide blue eyes, in which undoubting faith shone as in a mirror; "and let it be something strange, and different from common."

"Wal, I know lots o' strange things," said Sam, looking mysteriously into the fire. "Why, I know things that if I should tell why people might say they wa'n't so; but then they is so, for all that."

"O do, do tell us."

"Why, I should scare ye to death, mebbe," said Sam, doubtingly.

"O pooh! no you wouldn't," we both burst out at once.

But Sam was possessed by a reticent spirit, and loved dearly to be wooed and importuned; and so he only took up the great kitchen tongs and smote on the hickory forestick, when it flew apart in the middle and scattered a shower of clear, bright coals all over the hearth.

"Mercy on us, Sam Lawson!" said Aunt Lois, in an indignant voice, spinning around from her dish-washing.

"Don't you worry a grain, Miss Lois," said Sam, composedly. "I see that are stick was almost in two, and I thought I'd jest settle it. I'll sweep up the coals now," he added, vigorously applying a turkey wing to the purpose, as he knelt on the hearth, his spare, lean figure glowing in the blaze of the firelight, and getting quite flushed with exertion.

"There, now," he said, when he had brushed over and under and between the fire-irons, and pursued the retreating ashes so far into the red, fiery citadel that his finger ends were burning and tingling, "that is done now as well as Hepsy herself could have done it. I allers sweeps up the hearth; I think it is part of the man's business when he makes the fire. But Hepsy's so use to seeing me a doing on't that she don't see no kind of merit in it. It's just as Parson Lothrop said in his sermon—folks allers overlook their common marcies—"

"But come, Sam, that story," said Harry and I, coaxingly, pressing upon him and pulling him down in his seat in the corner.

"Lordy massy, these 'ere young uns!" said Sam, "there's never no contenting on them; you tell them one story, and they jest swallow it as a dog does a gob of meat and they're all ready for another. What do ye want to hear now?"

Now the fact was that Sam's stories had been told so often that they were all arranged and tickled in our minds. We knew every word in them and could set him right if he varied a hair from the usual track, and still the interest in them was unabated. Still we shivered and clung to his knee at the mysterious parts, and felt gentle, cold chills run down our spines at appropriate places. We were always in the most receptive and sympathetic condition. To-night in particular, was one of those thundering stormy ones when the winds appeared to be holding a perfect mad carnival over my grandfather's house. They yelled and squealed round the corners. They collected in troops and came tumbling and roaring down the chimney. They shook and rattled the buttery door, and the sink-room door and the cellar door and the chamber door, with a constant undertone of squeak and clatter, as if at every door were a cold, discontented spirit, tired of the chill outside and longing for the warmth and comfort within.

"Wal, boys," said Sam, confidentially, "what will ye have?"

"Tell us 'Come down, come down,'" we both shouted with one voice. This was in our mind A No. 1 among Sam's stories.

"Ye mus'n't be frightened, now," said Sam, paternally.

"O no, we aren't frightened ever," said we both in one breath.

"Not when ye go down the cellar after cider?" said Sam, with severe scrutiny. "Ef ye should be down cellar and the candle should go out now?"

"I ain't," said I; "I ain't afraid of anything; I never knew what it was to be afraid in my life."

"Wal, then," said Sam, "I'll tell ye. This 'ere's what Cap'n Eb Sawin told me, when I was a boy about your bigness, I reckon."

"Cap'n Eb Sawin was a most respectable man; your grandfather knew him very well, and he was a deacon in the church in Dedham afore he died. He was at Lexington when the fust gun was fired agin the British. He was a dreffle smart man, Cap'n Eb was, and driv team a good many years atween here and Boston. He married Lois Peabody that was cousin to your grandfather then. Lois was a real sensible woman, and I've heard her tell the story as he told her, and it was jest as he told it to me, jest exactly; and I shall never forget it if I live to be nine hundred years old, like Mathusalah.

"Ye see, along back in them times there used to be a fellow come round these 'ere parts Spring and Fall peddling goods, with his pack on his back, and his name was Jehiel Lommedieu. Nobody rightly knew where he come from. He wasn't much of a talker, but the women rather liked him, and kind of liked to have him round; women will like some fellows, when men can't see no sort of reason why they should, and they liked this 'ere Lommedieu, though he was kind of mournful and thin and shad-bellied, and hadn't nothing to say for himself. But it got to be so that the women would count and calculate, so many weeks afore it was time for Lommedieu to be along, and they'd make up ginger-snaps and preserves and pie, and make him stay to tea at the houses, and feed him upon the best there was; and the story went around that he was courting Phebe Ann Parker, or Phebe Ann was a courting him—folks didn't rightly know which. Wal, all of a sudden Lommedieu stopped coming around, and nobody knew why, only jest he didn't come. It turned out that Phebe Ann Parker had got a letter from him saying he'd be along afore Thanksgiving, but he didn't come, neither afore nor at Thanksgiving time, nor arter, nor next Spring; and finally the women they give up looking for him. Some said he was dead, some said he was gone to Canada, and some said he had gone over to the old country. As to Phebe Ann, she acted like a gal of sense and married Bijah Moss, and thought no more about it. She said she was sartin that all things was ordered out for the best, and it was jest as well folks couldn't always have their own way; and so in time Lommedieu was gone out of folk's minds, much as a last year's apple blossom. It's really affecting to think how little these 'ere folks is missed that's so much sot by! There ain't nobody, ef they's ever so important, but what the world gets to going on without them pretty much as it did with them, though there's some little flurry at fust. Wal, the last thing that was in anybody's mind was that they ever should hear from Lommedieu agin. But there ain't nothing but what has its time of turning up and it seems his turn was to come.

"Wal, ye see 't was the nineteenth o' March when Cap'n Eb Sawin started with a team for Boston. That day there come on about the biggest snow storm that there'd been in them parts sence the oldest man could remember. 'Twas this ere fine siftin' snow that drives in your face like needles, with a wind to cut your nose off; it made teamin' pretty tedious work. Cap'n Eb was about the toughest man in them parts. He'd spent days in the woods a loggin', and he'd been up to the deestrict o' Maine a lumberin', and was about up to any sort o' thing a man gen'ally could be up to; but these 'ere March winds sometimes set on a fellow so that neither natur' nor grace can stan' 'em. The Cap'n used to say he could stan' any wind that blew one way 't time for five minutes, but come to winds that blew all four p'ints at the same minit, why they flustered him.

"Wal, that was the sort o' weather it was all day, and by sundown Cap'n Eb he got clean bewildered, so that he lost his road, and when night came on he didn't know nothin' where he was. Ye see the country was all under drift, and the air so thick with snow that he couldn't see a foot afore him, and the fact was he got off the Boston road without knowin' it and came out at a pair o' bars nigh upon Sherburn, where old Cack Sparrock's mill is. Your gran'ther used to know old Cack, boys. He was a dreffel drinkin' old critter that lived there all alone in the woods by himself, a tendin' saw and grist mill. He wa'n't allers jest what he was then. Time was that Cack was a pretty consid'ably likely young man, and his wife was a very respectable woman—Deacon Amos Pennengill's darter, from Sherburn. But ye see, the year arter his wife died, Cack he gin up goin' to meetin' Sundays, and all the tithingmen and selectmen could do they couldn't get him out to meetin'; and when a man neglects means of grace and sanctuary privileges there ain't no sayin' what he'll do next. Why, boys, jist think on't! an immortal critter lyin' round loose all day Sunday, and not puttin' on so much as a clean shirt, when all 'spectable folks has on their best close and is to meetin' worshippin' the Lord! What can you spect to come of it when he lies idlin' round in his old week-day close, fishing or some sich, but what the devil should be arter him at last, as he was arter old Cack?"

Here Sam winked impressively to my grandfather in the opposite corner, to call his attention to the moral which he was interweaving with his narrative.

"Wal, ye see, Cap'n Eb told me that when he come to them bars and looked up and saw the dark a comin' down and the storm a thickenin' up, he felt that things was gettin' pretty consid'able serious. There was a dark piece of woods on ahead of him inside the bars, and he knew come to get in there the light would give out clean. So he jest thought he'd take the hoss out of the team and go ahead a little, and see where he was. So he driv his oxen up agin' the fence and took out the hoss and got on him, and pushed along through the woods, not rightly knowin' where he was goin'.

"Wal, afore long he sees a light through the trees, and sure enough he come out to Cack Sparrock's old mill.

"It was a pretty consid'able gloomy sort of a place, that are old mill was. There was a great fall of water that come rushin' down the rocks and fell in a deep pool, and it sounded sort of wild and lonesome, but Cap'n Eb he knocked on the door with his whip-handle and got in.

"There, to be sure, sot old Cack beside a great blazin' fire, with his rum-jug at his elbow; he was a dreffal fellow to drink, Cack was; for all that, there was some good in him, for he was pleasant spoken and 'bliging, and he made the Cap'n welcome.

"'Ye see, Cack,' said Cap'n Eb, 'I'm off my road, and got snowed up down by your bars,' says he.

"'Want ter know!' says Cack; 'calculate you'll jest have to camp down here till mornin',' says he.

"Wal, so old Cack he got out his tin lantern, and went with Cap'n Eb back to the bars to help him fetch along his critturs; he told him he could put 'em under the mill-shed. So they got the critturs up to the shed and got the cart under, and by that time the storm was awful.

"But Cack he made a great roaring fire, 'cause ye see Cack allers had slabwood a plenty from his mill, and a roarin' fire is jest so much company. It sort of keeps a fellow's spirits up, a good fire does. So Cack, he sot on his old teakettle and made a swinging lot of toddy, and he and Cap'n Eb were havin' a tol'able comfortable time there. Cack was a pretty good hand to tell stories, and Cap'n Eb warnt no ways backwark in that line, and kept up his end pretty well, and pretty soon there was a roarin' and haw-hawin' inside about as loud as the storm outside, there come a loud rap on the door.

"'Lordy massy! what's that?' says Cack. Folks is rather startled allers to be checked up sudden when they are carryin' on and laughin', and it was such an awful blowy night, it was a little scary to have a rap on the door.

"Wal, they waited a minit, and didn't hear nothin' but the wind a screechin' round the chimney; and old Cack was jest goin' on with his story, when the rap come again harder than ever, as if it'd shook the door open.

"'Wal,' says old Cack, 'If it is the Devil, we'd just as good as open and have it out with him at onst,' says he; and so he got up and opened the door, and sure enough there was old Ketury there. Expect you've heard your grandma tell about old Ketury. She used to come to meetin's sometimes, and her husband was one of the praying Indians. But Ketury was one of the rale wild sort, and you couldn't no more convert her than you could convert a wild-cat or a painter (panther.) Lordy massy, Ketury used to come to meeting and sit there on the Indian benches, and when the second bell was a tolling, and when Parson Lothrop and his wife was coming up the broad aisle, and everybody in the house rose up and stood, Ketury would sit there and look at them out of the corner of her eyes, and folks used to say she rattled them necklaces of rattlesnakes' tails and wild-cat teeth and sich like heathen trumpery, and looked for all the world as if the spirit of the old Sarpint himself was in her. I've seen her sit and look at Lady Lothrop out of the corner of her eyes, and her old brown baggy neck would kind of twist and work, and her eyes looked so, that it was enough to scare a body. For all the world she looked jest as if she was a working up to spring at her. Lady Lothrop was jest as kind to Ketury as she always was to every poor critter. She'd bow and smile as gracious to her when meeting was over, and she come down the aisle, passing out of meeting; but Ketury never took no notice. Ye see Ketury's father was one of those great powows of Martha's Vineyard, and people used to say she was set apart when when she was a child to the service of the Devil; anyway, she never could be made nothing of in a Christian way. She come down to Parson Lothrop's study once or twice to be catechised, but he couldn't get a word out of her, and she kind of seemed to sit scornful while he was a talking. Folks said if it was in old times Ketury would not have been allowed to go on so, but Parson Lothrop's so sort of mild, he let her take pretty much her own way. Everybody thought that Ketury was a witch; at least she knew considerable more than she ought to know, and so they was kind of afraid on her. Cap'n Eb says he never see a fellow seem scareder than Cack did when he see Ketury a standing there!

"Why, ye see, boys, she was as withered and wrinkled and brown as an old frosted punkin' vine, and her little snaky eyes snapped and sparkled, and it made yer head kind o' dizzy to look at 'em, and folks used to say that anybody that Ketury got mad at was sure to get the worst of it, fust or last; and so no matter what day or hour Ketury had a mind to rap at anybody's door, folks gen'lly thought it was best to let her in; but then, they never thought her coming was for any good, for she was just like the wind—she came when the fit was on her, she stayed jest so long as it pleased her, and went when she got ready, and not before. Ketury understood English, and could talk it well enough, but always seemed to scorn it, and was allers mowin' and mutterin' to herself in Indian, and winkin' and blinkin' as if she saw more folks round than you did, so that she wa'nt no ways pleasant company, and yet everybody took good care to be polite to her.

"So old Cack asked her to come in, and didn't make no question where she came from or what she came on; but he knew it was twelve good miles from where she lived to his hut, and the snow had drifted, and Cap'n Eb declared that there wa'nt no track nor sign of a track of anybody's coming through that snow next morning."

"How did she get there then?" said I.

"Didn't ye never see brown leaves riding on the wind? 'Well,' Cap'n Eb, he says, 'she came on the wind,' and I'm sure it was strong enough to fetch her. But Cack he got her down into the warm corner, and he poured her out a mug of hot toddy and give her; but ye see her being there sort of stopped the conversation, for she sot there a rocking backwards and forwards a sipping her toddy, and a muttering and looking up the chimbley.'

"Cap'n Eb says in all his born days he never heard such screeches and yells as the wind give over that chimbley, and old Cack got so frightened you could fairly hear his teeth chatter.

"But Cap'n Eb he was a 'putty brave man, and he wa'nt going to have the conversation stopped by no woman, witch or no witch; and so when he see her mutterin' and looking up the chimbley, he spoke up, and says he, 'Well, Ketury, what do you see?' says he. 'Come, out with it, don't keep it to yourself.' You see Cap'n Eb was a hearty fellow, and then he was a leetle warmed up with the toddy.

"Then he said he see an evil kind of smile on Ketury's face, and she rattled her necklace of bones and snakes' tails, and her eyes seemed to snap, and she looked up the chimbley and called out, 'Come down, come down, let's see who ye be?'

"Then there was a scratching and a rumbling and a groan, and a pair of feet come down the chimbley, and stood right in the middle of the hearth, the toes pintin' outwards, with shoes and silver buckles a shining in the firelight. Cap'n Eb says he never come so near being scared in his life, and as to old Cack he jest wilted right down in his chair.

"Then old Ketury got up and reached her stick up the chimbley, and called out louder, 'Come down, come down, let's see who ye be;' and sure enough down came a pair of legs and jined right on to the feet; good fair legs they was, with ribbed stockings and leather breeches.

"'Wal, we are in for it now,' says Cap'n Eb; 'go it, Ketury, and let us have the rest on him.'

"Ketury didn't seem to mind him; she stood there as stiff as a stake and kept calling out, 'Come down, come down, let's see who ye be;' and then come down the body of a man with a brown coat and yellow vest, and jined right on to the legs, but there wa'nt no arms to it. Then Ketury shook her stick up the chimbley, and called, 'Come down, come down,' and there came down a pair of arms and went on each side of the body, and there stood a man all finished, only there wa'nt no head on him.

"'Wal, Ketury,' says Cap'n Eb, 'this is getting serious. I suppose you must finish him up, and let us see what he wants of us.'

"Then Ketury called out once more louder than ever, 'Come down, come down, let us see who ye be;' and sure enough down come a man's head and settled on the shoulders straight enough, and Cap'n Eb, the minit he sot eyes on him knew he was Jehiel Lommedieu.

"Old Cack knew him, too, and he fell flat on his face, and prayed the Lord to have mercy on his soul; but Cap'n Eb he was for getting to the bottom of matters, and not have his scare for nothing, so he says to him, 'What do you want, now you have come?'

"The man he did not speak, he only sort of groaned and pinted to the chimbley; he seemed to try to speak but could not, for ye see it is not often that his sort of folks is permitted to speak; but just then there came a screeching blast of wind, and blowed the door open, and blowed the smoke and fire all out into the room, and there seemed to be a whirlwind and darkness and moans and screeches; and when it all cleared up, Ketury and the man was both gone, and only old Cack lay on the ground rolling and moaning as if he would die.

"Wal, Cap'n Eb he picked him up, and built up the fire, and sort of comforted him up, because the critter was in distress of mind that was dreful. The awful Providence ye see had awakened him, and his sin had been sent home to his soul, and he was under such conviction that it all had to come out—how old Cack's father had murdered poor Lommedieu for his money, and Cack had been privy to it, and helped his father build the body up in that very chimbley; and he said that he had not had either peace nor rest since then, and that was what had driven him away from ordinances, for ye know sinning will always make a man leave praying. Wal, Cack didn't live but a day or two. Cap'n Eb he got the minister of Sherburn and one of the selectmen down to see him, and they took his deposition. He seemed railly quite penitent, and Parson Carryl he prayed with him, and was faithful in setting home the Providence to his soul, and so at the eleventh hour poor old Cack might have got in—at least it looks a leetle like it. He was distressed to think he could not live to be hung. He sort of seemed to think that if he was fairly tried and hung it would make it all square. He made Parson Carryl promise to have the old mill pulled down and bury the body, and after he was dead they did it.

"Cap'n Eb he was one of a party of eight that pulled down the chimbley, and there sure enough was the skeleton of poor Lommedieu.

"So there you see, boys, there can't be no iniquity so hid but what it will come out. The wild Indians of the forest and the stormy winds and tempests jined together to bring out this here."

"For my part," said Aunt Lois, sharply, "I never believed that story."

"Why, Lois," said my grandmother, "Captain Eb Sawin was a regular church member, and a most respectable man."

"Law, mother, I don't doubt he thought so. I suppose he and Cack got drinking toddy together till he got asleep and dreamed it. I wouldn't believe such a thing if it did happen right before my face and eyes. I should only think I was crazy, that's all."

"Come, Lois, if I was you I wouldn't talk so like a Sadducee," said my grandmother. "What would become of all the accounts in Dr. Cotton Mather's Magnilly if folks were like you?"

"Wal," said Sam Lawson, drooping contemplatively over the coals, and gazing into the fire, "there's a putty considerable sight of things in this world that's true; and then again there's a sight of things that are not true. Now my old grandfather used to say 'Boys,' says he, 'if ye want to lead a pleasant and prosperous life, ye must contrive allers to keep jest the happy medium between truth and falsehood.' Now that there is my doctrine."

POETRY.

For The Constitutionalist.

TO MY GRANDCHILD.

[illegible] NICHOLS.

A gentle child, dove eyed and fair,
With shining curls of yellow hair,
Like tangled threads of fine spun gold,
Shading a brow of classic mould.
Her rounded cheeks, as lilies fair,
With pink of sea shells nestling there
And coral lips with pearls between,
And breath like fragrant eglantine—

Her small white hands a sculptor's pride,
Her form erect, a warrior's pride,
Yet every motion filled with grace
As bounding [illegible] in sportive chase,
Or bending o'er by the brook,
Or swaying [illegible] leafy nook,
Her voice like sweetest silver bells
That to the [illegible] music tells—

Yet better still, beyond all of these
The gentle ways that always please,
The loving heart that ever shows
Quick sympathy for others' woes.
Obedient, truthful, free from guile,
A wreath of love in her winsome smile,
Mirth in her laugh, joy in her song,
A very sunbeam all day long.

CREATION.

Ere the dawn of orient morn,
A trackless void of waste appeared;
Grim while all spare of beauty shown
'Till Nature's God our world had reared.

The evening and the morning came—
Were made by the hand of God;
Then came the light, called day by name,
Darkness, night, on days footsteps trod.

"The waste of 'waters'" knew no sound,
Their utmost limit knew no shore
Till God a firmament did found
And marked their limit evermore.

In architect's supreme command,
The waters were assigned a place,
Were shored and bounded by dry land,
Which erst were all a trackless waste.

To land he gave the name of earth;
The gathered waters called he seas;
Of trees, grass, herbs, there was no dearth,
Forth from his bidding came all these.

Then in the power of his might
Set his great sun in the firmament;
Made greater and a lesser light,
Thus was his work the 4th day spent.

The greater light to rule the day,
The lesser one to rule the night;
Thus matter did behests obey
Which he pronounced all good, all right.

Now void of life was earth and seas,
Nor fish, nor fowl, insect or beast,
No ocean throng or land had these
Until the 5th day's work had ceased.

And now the sixth day's work began,
The crowning labor of the whole;
From dust of earth he formed man,
And gave to him a living soul.

In his own image made he man,
To him all earth dominion gave;
Of fish that swim, of beasts that run,
Of fowl that fly or in water lave.

For food the fruit of shrub and tree
And seeds that from the earth shall grow,
These for man's sustenance shall be,
For God hath said it shall be so.

The morning of the seventh came,
God rested from his labor then,
And called it "Sabbath day" by name,
A day of rest for beast and man.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE GHOST IN THE MILL.

"Come, Sam, tell us a story," said I, as Harry and I crept to his knees, in the glow of the bright evening firelight, while Aunt Lois was busily rattling the tea-things, and grandmamma was quietly setting the heel of a blue-mixed yarn stocking at the other end of the fire-place.

In those days we had no magazines and daily papers, each reeling off a serial story. Once a week the "Columbian Sentinel" came from Boston with its slender stock of news and editorial; but all the multiform devices, pictorial, narrative and poetical, which keep the mind of the present generation ablaze with excitement, had not then even an existence. There was no theatre, no opera; there was in Oldtown no parties or balls, except perhaps the annual election or Thanksgiving festival; and when Winter came, and the sun went down at half-past four o'clock and left the long dark hours of evening to be provided for, the necessity of amusement became urgent. Hence in those days chimney-corner story-telling became an art and accomplishment. Society then was full of traditions and narratives which had all the uncertain glow and shifting mystery of the firelit hearth upon them. They were told to sympathetic audiences, by the rising and falling light of the solemn embers, with the hearth crickets filling up every pause. Then the aged told their stories to the young—tales of early life, tales of war and adventure, of forest days, of Indian captivities and escapes, of bears and wildcats and panthers, of rattlesnakes, of witches and wizards, and strange and wonderful dreams and appearances and providences.

In those days of early Massachusetts, faith and credence were in the very air. Two-thirds of New England was then dark, unbroken forest, through whose tangled paths the mysterious Winter wind groaned and shrieked and howled with weird noises and unaccountable clamors. Along the iron-bound shore the stormful Atlantic raved and thundered and dashed its moaning waters, as if to deaden and deafen any voice that might tell of the settled life of the old civilized world, and shut us forever into the wilderness. A good story-teller in those days was always sure of a warm seat at the hearth-stone, and the delighted homage of children; and in all Oldtown there was no better story-teller than Sam Lawson.

"Do, do tell us a story," said Harry, pressing upon him and opening very wide blue eyes, in which undoubting faith shone as in a mirror; "and let it be something strange, and different from common."

"Wal, I know lots o' strange things," said Sam, looking mysteriously into the fire. "Why, I know things that if I should tell, why people might say they wa'n't so; but then they is so, for all that."

"O do, do tell us."

"Why, I should scare ye to death, mebbe," said Sam, doubtingly.

"O pooh! no you wouldn't," we both burst out at once.

But Sam was possessed by a reticent spirit, and loved dearly to be wooed and importuned; and so he only took up the great kitchen tongs and smote on the hickory forestick, when it flew apart in the middle and scattered a shower of clear, bright coals all over the hearth.

"Mercy on us, Sam Lawson!" said Aunt Lois, in an indignant voice, spinning around from her dish-washing.

"Don't you worry a grain, Miss Lois," said Sam, composedly. "I see that are stick was almost in two, and I thought I'd just settle it. I'll sweep up the coals now," he added, vigorously applying a turkey wing to the purpose, as he knelt on the hearth, his spare, lean figure glowing in the blaze of the firelight, and getting quite flushed with exertion.

"There, now," he said, when he had brushed over and under and between the fire-irons, and pursued the retreating ashes so far into the red, fiery citadel that his finger ends were burning and tingling, "that is done now as well as Hepsy herself could have done it. I allers sweeps up the hearth; I think it is part of the man's business when he makes the fire. But Hepsy's so use to seeing me a doing on't that she don't see no kind of merit in it. It's just as Parson Lothrop said in his sermon—folks allers overlook their common marcies—"

"But come, Sam, that story," said Harry and I, coaxingly, pressing upon him and pulling him down to his seat in the corner.

"Lordy massy, these 'ere young uns!" said Sam, "there's never no contenting on them; you tell them one story, and they jest swallow it as a dog does a gob of meat and they're all ready for another. What do ye want to hear now?"

Now the fact was that Sam's stories had been told so often that they were all arranged and ticketed in our minds. We knew every word in them and could set him right if he varied a hair from the usual track, and still the interest in them was unabated. Still we shivered and clung to his knee at the mysterious parts, and felt gentle, cold chills run down our spines at appropriate places. We were always in the most receptive and sympathetic condition. To-night in particular, was one of those thundering stormy ones when the winds appeared to be holding a perfect mad carnival over my grandfather's house. They yelled and squealed round the corners. They collected in troops and came tumbling and roaring down the chimney. They shook and rattled the butter door, and the sink-room door and the cellar door and the chamber door, with a constant undertone of squeak and clatter, as if at every door were a cold, discontented spirit, tired of the chill outside and longing for the warmth and comfort within.

"Wal, boys," said Sam, confidentially, "what will ye have?"

"Tell us 'Come down, come down,'" we both shouted with one voice. This was in our mind A No. 1 among Sam's stories.

"Ye mus'n't be frightened, now, said Sam, paternally.

"O no, we aren't frightened ever," said we both in one breath.

"Not when ye go down the cellar after cider?" said Sam, with severe scrutiny. "Ef ye should be down cellar and the candle should go out now?"

"I ain't," said I; "I ain't afraid of anything; I never knew what it was to be afraid in my life."

"Wal, then," said Sam, "I'll tell ye. This 'ere's what Cap'n Eb Sawin told me, when I was a boy about your bigness, I reckon."

"Cap'n Eb Sawin was a most respectable man; your grandfather knew him very well, and he was a deacon in the church in Dedham afore he died. He was at Lexington when the fust gun was fired again the British. He was a dreffle smart man, Cap'n Eb was, and driv team a good many years atween here and Boston. He married Lois Peabody that was cousin to your grandfather then. Lois was a real sensible woman, and I've heard her tell the story as he told her, and it was just as he told it to me; just exactly; and I shall never forget it if I live to be nine hundred years old, like Methuselah.

"Ye see, along back in them times there used to be a fellow come round these 'ere parts Spring and Fall peddling goods, with his pack on his back, and his name was Jehiel Lommedieu. Nobody rightly knew where he come from. He wasn't much of a talker, but the women rather liked him, and kind of liked to have him round; women will like some fellows, when men can't see no sort of reason why they should, and they liked this 'ere Lommedieu, though he was kind of mournful and thin and shad-bellied, and hadn't nothing to say for himself. But it got to be so that the women would count and calculate, so many weeks afore it was time for Lommedieu to be along, and they'd make up ginger-snaps and preserves and pie, and make him stay to tea at the houses, and feed him upon the best there was; and the story went around that he was courting Phebe Ann Parker, or Phebe Ann was a courting him—folks didn't rightly know which. Wal, all of a sudden Lommedieu stopped coming around, and nobody knew why, only just he didn't come. It turned out that Phebe Ann Parker had got a letter from him saying he'd be along afore Thanksgiving, but he didn't come, neither afore nor at Thanksgiving time, nor arter, nor next Spring; and finally the women they give up looking for him. Some said he was dead, some said he was gone to Canada, and some said he had gone over to the old country. As to Phebe Ann, she acted like a gal of sense and married Bijah Moss, and thought no more about it. She said she was sartin that all things was ordered out for the best, and it was just as well folks couldn't always have their own way; and so in time Lommedieu was gone out of folk's minds, much as a last year's apple blossom. It's really affecting to think how little these 'ere folks is missed that's so much sot by! There ain't nobody, of they's ever so important, but what the world gets to going on without them pretty much as it did with them, though there's some little flurry at fust. Wal, the last thing that was in anybody's mind was that they ever should hear from Lommedieu agin. But there ain't nothing but what has its time of turning up and it seems his turn was to come.

"Wal, ye see 't was the nineteenth o' March when Cap'n Eb Sawin started with a team for Boston. That day there come on about the biggest snow storm that there'd been in them parts sence the oldest man could remember. 'Twas this 'ere fine siftin' snow that drives in your face like needles, with a wind to cut your nose off; it made teamin' pretty tedious work. Cap'n Eb was about the toughest man in them parts. He'd spent days in the woods a loggin', and he'd been up to the deestrict o' Maine a lumberin', and was about up to any sort o' thing a man gen'ally could be up to; but these 'ere March winds sometimes set on a fellow so that neither natur' nor grace can stan' 'em. The Cap'n used to say he could stan' any wind that blew one way 't time for five minutes, but come to winds that blew all four p'ints at the same minit, why they flustered him.

"Wal, that was the sort o' weather it was all day, and by sundown Cap'n Eb he got clean bewildered, so that he lost his road, and when night came on he didn't know nothin' where he was. Ye see the country was all under drift, and the air so thick with snow that he couldn't see a foot afore him, and the fact was he got off the Boston road without knowin' it and came out at a pair o' bars nigh upon Sherburn, where old Cack Sparrock's mill is. Your gran'ther used to know old Cack, boys. He was a dreffel drinkin' old critter that lived there all alone in the woods by himself, a tendin' saw and grist mill. He wasn't allers just what he was then. Time was that Cack was a pretty consid'ably likely young man, and his wife was a very respectable woman—Deacon Amos Pennengill's darter, from Sherburn. But ye see, the year arter his wife died, Cack he gin up goin' to meetin' Sundays, and all the tithingmen and selectmen could do they couldn't get him out to meetin'; and when a man neglects means of grace and sanctuary privileges there ain't no sayin' what he'll do next. Why, boys, jist think on't! an immortal critter lyin' round loose all day Sunday, and not puttin' on so much as a clean shirt, when all 'spectable folks has on their best close and is to meetin' worshippin' the Lord! What can you 'spect to come of it when he lies idlin' round in his old week-day close, fishing or some sich, but what the devil should be arter him at last, as he was arter old Cack?"

Here Sam winked impressively to my grandfather in the opposite corner, to call his attention to the moral which he was interweaving with his narrative.

"Wal, ye see, Cap'n Eb told me that when he come to them bars and looked up and saw the dark a comin' down and the storm a thickenin' up, he felt that things was gettin' pretty consid'able serious. There was a dark piece of woods on ahead of him inside the bars, and he knew come to get in there the light would give out clean. So he jest thought he'd take the hoss out of the team and go ahead a little, and see where he was. So he driv his oxen up agin' the fence and took out the hoss and got on him, and pushed along through the woods, not rightly knowin' where he was goin'.

"Wal, afore long he sees a light through the trees, and sure enough he come out to Cack Sparrock's old mill.

"It was a pretty consid'able gloomy sort of a place, that are old mill was. There was a great fall of water that come rushin' down the rocks and fell in a deep pool, and it sounded sort of wild and lonesome, but Cap'n Eb he knocked on the door with his whip-handle and got in.

"There, to be sure, sot old Cack beside a great blazin' fire, with his rum-jug at his elbow; he was a dreffel fellow to drink, Cack was; for all that, there was some good in him, for he was pleasant spoken and 'bliging, and he made the Cap'n welcome.

"'Ye see, Cack,' said Cap'n Eb, 'I'm off my road, and got snowed up down by your bars,' says he.

"'Want ter know!' says Cack; 'calculate you'll jest have to camp down here till mornin',' says he.

"Wal, so old Cack he got out his tin lantern, and went with Cap'n Eb back to the bars to help him fetch along his critturs; he told him he could put 'em under the mill-shed. So they got the critturs up to the shed and got the cart under, and by that time the storm was awful.

"But Cack he made a great roaring fire, 'cause ye see Cack allers had slabwood a plenty from his mill, and a roarin' fire is jest so much company. It sort of keeps a fellow's spirits up, a good fire does. So Cack, he sot on his old teakettle and made a swinging lot of toddy, and he and Cap'n Eb were havin' a tol'able comfortable time there. Cack was a pretty good hand to tell stories, and Cap'n Eb warnt no ways backwark in that line, and kept up his end pretty well, and pretty soon there was a roarin' and haw-hawin' inside about as loud as the storm outside, there come a loud rap on the door.

"'Lordy massy! what's that?' says Cack. Folks is rather startled allers to be checked up sudden when they are carryin' on and laughin', and it was such an awful blowy night, it was a little dreary to have a rap on the door.

"Wal, they waited a minit, and didn't hear nothin' but the wind a screechin' round the chimney; and old Cack was jest goin' on with his story, when the rap come again harder than ever, as if it'd shook the door open.

"'Wal,' says old Cack, 'If it is the Devil, we'd jest as good as open and have it out with him at onst,' says he; and so he got up and opened the door, and sure enough there was old Ketury there. Expect you've heard your grandma tell about old Ketury. She used to come to meetin's sometimes, and her husband was one of the praying Indians. But Ketury was one of the rale wild sort, and you couldn't no more convert her than you could convert a wild-cat or a painter (panther.) Lordy massy, Ketury used to come to meeting and sit there on the Indian benches, and when the second bell was a tolling, and when Parson Lothrop and his wife was coming up the broad aisle, and everybody in the house rose up and stood, Ketury would sit there and look at them out of the corner of her eyes, and folks used to say she rattled them necklaces of rattlesnakes' tails and wild-cat teeth and sich like heathen trumpery, and looked for all the world as if the spirit of the old Sarpint himself was in her. I've seen her sit and look at Lady Lothrop out of the corner of her eyes, and her old brown baggy neck would kind of twist and work, and her eyes looked so, that it was enough to scare a body. For all the world she looked jest as if she was a working up to spring at her. Lady Lothrop was jest as kind to Ketury as she always was to every poor crittur. She'd bow and smile as gracious to her when [illegible] come down [illegible] ing; but Ketury [illegible] see Ketury's [illegible] great powow [illegible] people used [illegible] when she was [illegible] Devil; [illegible] nothing of it [illegible] down to Parson [illegible] twice to be [illegible] get a word [illegible] seemed to [illegible] talking. Folks [illegible] Ketury would [illegible] go on so, but [illegible] mild, he let [illegible] way. [illegible] was a witch [illegible] able more than [illegible] they was [illegible] Eb says he [illegible] than Cack, standing there [illegible]

"Why, ye [illegible] and wrinkled [illegible] frosted punkin' [illegible] eyes snapped [illegible] yer head [illegible] folks used to [illegible] got mad [illegible] of it, just [illegible] day or hour [illegible] anybody's [illegible] was best to [illegible] never thought [illegible] good, for she [illegible] came when [illegible] jest so long [illegible] when she got [illegible] well enough [illegible] it, and was [illegible] herself in Indian [illegible] as if she was [illegible] did, so that [illegible] company, and [illegible] care to be [illegible]

"So old Cack [illegible] didn't make [illegible] from or who [illegible] it was twelve [illegible] lived to his [illegible] and Cap'n Eb [illegible] track nor [illegible] nothing there [illegible]

"'How did she get there then?' said I.

"'Didn't ye never see brown leaves riding on the wind?' 'Well,' Cap'n Eb, he says, 'she came on the wind,' and I'm sure it was strong enough to fetch her. But Cack he got her down into the warm corner, and he poured her out a mug of hot toddy and give her; but ye see her being there sort of stopped the conversation, for she sot there a rocking backwards and forwards a sipping her toddy, and a muttering and looking up the chimbley.'

"Cap'n Eb says in all his born days he never heard such screeches and yells as the wind give over that chimbley, and old Cack got so frightened you could fairly hear his teeth chatter.

"But Cap'n Eb he was a putty brave man, and he wa'nt going to have the conversation stopped by no woman, witch or no witch; and so when he see her mutterin' and looking up the chimbley, he spoke up, and says he, 'Well, Ketury, what do you see?' says he. 'Come, out with it, don't keep it to yourself.' You see Cap'n Eb was a hearty fellow, and then he was a leetle warmed up with the toddy.

"Then he said he see an evil kind of smile on Ketury's face, and she rattled her necklace of bones and snakes' tails, and her eyes seemed to snap, and she looked up the chimbley and called out, 'Come down, come down, let's see who ye be?'

"Then there was a scratching and a rumbling and a groan, and a pair of feet come down the chimbley, and stood right in the middle of the hearth, the toes pintin' outwards, with shoes and silver buckles a shining in the firelight. Cap'n Eb says he never come so near being scared in his life, and as to old Cack he jest wilted right down in his chair.

"Then old Ketury got up and reached her stick up the chimbley, and called out louder, 'Come down, come down, let's see who ye be;' and sure enough down came a pair of legs and jined right on to the feet; good fair legs they was, with ribbed stockings and leather breeches.

"'Wal, we are in for it now,' says Cap'n Eb; 'go it, Ketury, and let us have the rest on him.'

"Ketury didn't seem to mind him; she stood there as stiff as a stake and kept calling out, 'Come down, come down, let's see who ye be;' and then come down the body of a man with a brown coat and yellow vest, and jined right on to the legs, but there wa'nt no arms to it. Then Ketury shook her stick up the chimbley, and called, 'Come down, come down;' and there came down a pair of arms and went on each side of the body, and there stood a man all finished, only there wa'nt no head on him.

"'Wal, Ketury,' says Cap'n Eb, 'this is getting serious. I suppose you must finish him up, and let us see what he wants of us.'

"Then Ketury called out once more louder than ever, 'Come down, come down, let us see who ye be;' and sure enough down come a man's head and settled on the shoulders straight enough, and Cap'n Eb, the minit he sot eyes on him knew he was Jehiel Lommedieu.

"Old Cack knew him, too, and he fell flat on his face, and prayed the Lord to have mercy on his soul; but Cap'n Eb he was for getting to the bottom of matters, and not have his scare for nothing, so he says to him, 'What do you want, now you have come?'

"The man he did not speak, he only sort of groaned and pinted to the chimbley; he seemed to try to speak but could not, for ye see it is not often that his sort of folks is permitted to speak; but just then there came a screeching blast of wind, and blowed the door open, and blowed the smoke and fire all out into the room, and there seemed to be a whirlwind and darkness and moans and screeches; and when it all cleared up, Ketury and the man was both gone, and only old Cack lay on the ground rolling and moaning as if he would die.

"Wal, Cap'n Eb he picked him up and built up the fire, and sort of comforted him up, because the crittur was in distress of mind that was dreful. The awful Providence ye see had awakened him, and his sin had been sent home to his soul, and he was under such conviction that it all had to come out—how old Cack's father had murdered poor Lommedieu for his money, and Cack had been privy to it, and helped his father build the body up in that very chimbley; and he said that he had not had either peace nor rest since then, and that was what had driven him away from ordinances, for ye know sinning will always make a man leave praying. Wal, Cack didn't live but a day or two. Cap'n Eb he got the minister of Sherburn and one of the selectmen down to see him, and they took his deposition. He seemed railly quite penitent, and Parson Carryl he prayed with him, and was faithful in setting home the Providence to his soul, and so at the eleventh hour poor old Cack might have got in—at least it looks a leetle like it. He was distressed to think he could not live to be hung. He [illegible]

"Cap'n Eb he was one of a party of eight that pulled down the chimbley, and there sure enough was the skeleton of poor Lommedieu.

"So there you see, boys, there can't be no iniquity so hid but what it will come out. The wild Indians of the forest and the stormy winds and tempests jined together to bring out this 'ere."

"For my part," said Aunt Lois, sharply, "I never believed that story."

"Why, Lois," said my grandmother, "Captain Eb Sawin was a regular church member, and a most respectable man."

"Law, mother, I don't doubt he thought so. I suppose he and Cack got drinking toddy together, till he got asleep and dreamed it. [illegible]"

"Come, Lois, if I was you I wouldn't talk so like a Sadducee," said my grandmother. "What would become of all the accounts in Dr. Cotton Mather's Magnalia if folks were like you?"

"Wal," said Sam Lawson, drooping contemplatively over the coals and gazing into the fire, "there's a putty consid'able sight o' things in this world that's true; and then ag'in there's a sight o' things that ain't true. Now my old gran'ther used to say, 'Boys,' says he, 'if ye want to lead a pleasant and prosperous life, ye must contrive allers to keep jest the happy medium between truth and falsehood.' Now that are's my doctrine."

How many [illegible] will a [illegible] of circumstances carry?

To Georgy: No; crab cider is not [illegible].

National Democratic Convention.

The National Democratic Committee having met in the city of Washington on the 23d day of February, 1880, has appointed Tuesday, the 22d day of June next, as the time, and chosen the city of Cincinnati as the place of holding the National Democratic Convention. Each State is entitled to representation therein equal to double the number of its Senators and Representatives in the Congress of the United States. All Democratic, Conservative, and other citizens of the United States, irrespective of past political associations or differences, who can unite with us in the effort for pure, economical and constitutional government, are cordially invited to join in sending delegates to the convention. At the last National Democratic Convention, held in the city of St. Louis in 1876, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the States be requested to instruct their delegates to the National Democratic Convention to be held in 1880, whether it be desirable to continue the two-thirds rule longer in force in National Conventions, and that the National Committee insert such request in the call for the next convention.

WILLIAM H. BARNUM, of Conn.,
Chairman.
FREDERICK O. PRINCE, of Mass.,
Secretary.

THE DEMOCRATIC IDEA.

The real purposes of government, when practically comprehended, are few and simple, and may be briefly outlined as follows:

Protection to the person and estate of each citizen, regardless of birth, creed or worldly condition.

The maintenance of peace and good order, and the enforcement of duly enacted law.

A sound and equitable currency, freely available for the transaction of every kind of business, and the exchange of industrial products, domestic and foreign.

The raising of revenue from taxation, whether direct or indirect, and justly levied upon all property, real and personal.

Economical expenses, but no useless outlay of any description.

Ample recompense to officers for the faithful discharge of appointed duty, but no official sinecures.

The honest payment of public obligations.

Equal and exact justice to all the people, without any distinction as to class or section, and a full and free opportunity for them to prosecute and reap the advantages of enterprise and industry, unobstructed by monopoly and undefrauded by favoritism.

The foregoing enumerates the essentials of a government designed for the benefit of the people, and which is the only kind adpated to or wanted in this country.

It is the Democratic idea, and such as the illustrious authors of the Constitution and Union intended should flourish and expand.

The tendency of some political gentlemen in the United States is toward an entirely different result. Their ideal is a magnificent governmental structure, a grand and imposing edifice, bayonet guarded and spear propped, wherein the privileged few can enter and fare sumptuously, leaving the taxburdened masses, like menials, hewing wood and drawing water outside the lordly portals.

That is the Old World model, and it is as far removed from true Americanism as Royalty is from Democracy.

We want none of it.

The founders of our Republic had in view a plain and substantial representative form of government, strong because free, the sovereignty of States and People for their mutual safety and welfare, and to preserve that in its original integrity is the duty of to-day.

There is nothing of greater importance.

Light exactions for its support, and broad opportunities for the development of mind and matter, constitute the best system of government a people ennobled with the character of freemen can possibly possess. It is the only kind that confers upon man the dignified title of "citizen" and saves him from the degrading term "subject."

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

According to the call for the National Democratic Convention to be held in Cincinnati, June 22d, each State is entitled to be represented by twice as many delegates as its representatives in Congress. This gives New Jersey eighteen delegates. The State Conventions are also required to instruct their delegates in regard to the continuance or abolishment of the rule which now makes a two-thirds vote necessary to the nomination of a Presidential candidate. The delegates to the State Conventions will, therefore, necessarily be chosen with reference to this question.

The tariff on printing materials has always operated as a practical prohibition of the importation of printing paper and type, to the enriching of a combination of nine type-founders, and a comparatively small number of paper manufacturers, while the government obtains little or no revenue, because under the operation of the tariff law there are no importations of those articles. The recent advance in the price of paper is caused, it is alleged by the manufacturers, by the tariff on the chemicals and rags, and other raw materials used in its manufacture. The tariff thus acts as a tax upon knowledge, because it enhances the price of books and newspapers, the effects of which fall upon the poorer classes of the community. It robs this class not for the benefit of the government, but for the benefit of a very few manufacturers of type and paper. We hope our representatives in Congress will give this subject a careful investigation, for if they do we are sure they then will use their best efforts to have all these articles put upon the free list.

Edward R. Stoutenburgh, of Newark, has been convicted in the Essex County Courts of embezzling a diamond from a Mrs. Leavitt, by substituting a paste diamond for a real gem contained in a ring given him by her husband as security for a loan. Judge McCarter, on Monday last, sentenced Stoutenburgh to two years at hard labor in the State Prison and to pay a fine of $500. Mr. S. has always been regarded as an honorable and upright citizen, and this sentence is thought by many to be an unjust one in view of the circumstances, allegations being made that the case is one of blackmail. The evidence, however, was strong against the accused.

Mr. Frederick Shieker, of the Elizabeth Freie Presse, has received the appointment of Translator of State Laws, passed by this Legislature, into German. This is for the use of the German papers which publish the State laws.

THE LEGISLATURE.

From our Trenton Correspondent.

TRENTON, MARCH 3, 1880.

As both Houses adjourned last Wednesday evening, my last letter contained all that was done last week.—Nothing of any great importance has been done this week. On Monday evening the Governor sent in a message vetoing Sen. 36, a sup. to township act, relative to the election of Overseer of Roads; and also Sen. Bill 97, introduced by Sen. Schenck, reducing the number of Town Committees in North Plainfield Township; both being in the judgment of the Attorney-General, unconstitutional.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

The Jersey City Bridge Bill, by Mr. Potts; act to prevent selling of fruit, &c., on trains without consent of Company, by Mr. Blodgett; H. No. 319, which provides that Sheriffs shall, at their own expense, make a list of the names of men liable for jury duty and keep the same open for inspection from these lists; in open court, names to be selected and deposited in a box from which the Grand Jury is to be drawn; act reducing the fees of Sheriffs on sale of land; by Mr. Kreuger, making a penalty of $50 for using any box or bottle stamped with the name of the manufacturer; H. 326, provides that trustees under a will shall be entitled to same commissions as executors and administrators; H. 340, enables School Trustees to use one-half of surplus school money to repair buildings, &c., by permission of the County Superintendent; H. 349, by Mr. Albertson, to repeal act exempting from taxation mortgages held by the School Fund Commissioners; H. 351, by Mr. Ringleman, asks an appropriation of $5,000 to defray expenses of defending suits against citizens of the State brought by Green and others against parties using driven wells; H. 352, by Mr. Taylor, repealing Gen. act in reference to water works; H. 354, by Mr. Godown, act permitting Flemington Water Company to issue bonds; Sen. 177, appropriates $5,000 for a reservoir at Morristown Asylum; Sen. 187, by Mr. Schenck, sup. to Freeholder act, requiring the roll to be called on any motion to pay money on bills over $25, or election of any officer, also requiring Clerks of Boards to give bonds and other provisions; Sen. 189, refers to election of Overseers of Roads, to take the place of the one declared unconstitutional. It can hardly have time to pass and be signed by the Governor before town meeting.

Sen. Hobart introduced a Bill appropriating $5,000 for stocking the waters of this State with food fishes.

Sen. Schenck's Freeholder Bill, to permit Town Committee to build bridges not costing over $100, was defeated in the Senate by a vote of 7 to 14.

A Bill to return the money raised by the 2-mill tax to each County, according to value of ratables instead of number of children, was defeated in the House.

No action yet on the nomination of ex-Gov. Parker. In executive session the matter was brought up by Mr. Beekman and on motion of Sen. Hobart was tabled.

P.

According to the annual report of the managers and officers of the State Asylum for the Insane at Morristown, of the New Jersey State Lunatic Asylum at Trenton, Union County has 137 patients in all; Essex and Hudson, each, 131; Passaic, 86; Morris, 85; Bergen, 72; Warren, 71; Sussex, 34; Monmouth, 2; Camden, Ocean and Mercer 1 each; Hunterdon, 2. There are 74 private patients from New York. Middlesex has six private patients. The total number of patients under care during the past year was 644, of whom 305 were men and 339 women.

The term of imprisonment of Joseph B. Cornish and Jacob H. Sweeny will expire on the 17th of March. Mr. Cornish will return home and devote himself to the organ business, which under the management of his son has been continually increasing.

The Republican State Convention for the selection of delegates to attend the National Convention, will be held in Trenton, May 6th.

Hon. Miles Ross has recently presented several important bills before Congress.

COMMUNICATED.

For "The Constitutionalist."

MESSRS. EDITORS:

I desire to submit a few facts in reference to my action on the present Town Committee, also in reference to the nomination, by the Republicans, of J. L. Miller for Freeholder. In making returns to the Comptroller we found that the annual expenses of this town amounted to over $6,000 per annum, nearly $3.50 for every man, woman and child in the town. We thought to reduce this by cutting off a number of useless office holders; we, therefore, reduced the number of road districts to two, seeking thereby to economize in expenses and get a dollar in value for a dollar spent; we paid this year on roads about $1,900. I will give any person in Westfield fifty dollars if he will show five hundred dollars in value for nineteen hundred spent; the balance of fourteen or fifteen hundred is gone nobody knows where.

This year is but a history of every year in road matters in Westfield, except that the tax was three times as much the year Mr. Pierson was Chairman. The proposition to divide the town into two districts was submitted to Mr. Jos. L. Miller one month before it was brought before the Town Committee; he thought it was a good thing and hoped that it would go through. When it was adopted by the Town Committee the hue and cry raised about it frightened him. He immediately made arrangements to conciliate the "Old Hunker" element by agreeing to nominate a Town Committee that would "rip this thing up." The intention was to nominate a Union ticket with the present Town Officers, (except myself, as I avowed my purpose months ago not to accept any nomination), ignoring politics and drawing the line distinctly between improvement in town affairs and low taxes on the one hand, and high taxes and no improvement on the other hand. The Westfield Lyceum was started for the purpose of village improvement; in pursuance of that idea I moved at a meeting of the Westfield Lyceum, last Fall, that a Committee be appointed to secure the passage by the Legislature of a general act to enable towns of 2,000 inhabitants and over to obtain a charter or increased powers for Town Committees—make them a road board, a health board, police board and other powers. Mr. Miller seconded the motion and was one of the Committee. He now seeks a nomination for the Legislature from this District next Fall, and as a condition precedent, must show his ability to carry Westfield for Freeholder, so that a vote for J. L. Miller for Freeholder, makes a vote for a charter. The Westfield Lyceum has degenerated into a miniature Tammany Hall with Mr. Miller for "Boss" with one or two like him to run it. In furthering his political fortunes, I see no reason why Westfield should wallow in the mud for years to come, in order to have Mr. Miller represent them in the Assembly. It would be more manly in Mr. Miller to come out like a man and accept victory or defeat, than to sneak into office under false pretences as he is now doing.

R. M. FARNAM.

Westfield, N. J., March 3, 1880.

Judge Magie, recently appointed one of the Supreme Court Judges of the State, sat in council with that body for the first time on Monday last.

Wm. B. Manson's Claim.

It seems to us unwise policy in Common Council delaying the payment of the claim of Wm. B. Manson for services rendered the city in securing a title to the piece of property known as the City Park. He was lawfully retained by a previous Council to act as Counsel in the suit, which he gained, and now presents his bill for payment. It would seem in much better taste if the Council would pay the bill before there is a judgment rendered against the city in the case. We have had enough of such stigmas cast upon our city. Pay the bill or repudiate the claim.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

At a recent meeting of the National trotting Association, a number of new laws governing the meetings of the association were made, which cannot but result advantageously. The new rules impose the penalty of expulsion for ever from the association for false driving, pulling or fraud of any kind. Supervisors will also be appointed to attend all the fairs to watch the trotting and see that it is conducted fairly and also to report all cases of fraud. The judges will be required to report all "breaks" during heats and all horses "ringing in" will be photographed for the protection of the association. In the future no record will be given on half mile tracks and tracks outside of the association, but the time will be given as usual. The rules have been all favorably received by horsemen and sporting men.

A member of the "scape" "scape" family was seen about a spring run, with nice green grass adjacent to its outflow, last Saturday. Let the destroyers of the worm come on; we are not afraid of them. Give us a chance at them and—

An exchange, writing of a recent shooting match, says: "Each man was allowed 5 birds, and the shooting was under Smith's Island rules. Scott killed one bird and one died of pleurisy in the trap, making two deaths in all. Twenty-seven rounds were fired. It was one of the most interesting matches ever witnessed."

Wild ducks are reported as very numerous along the Passaic River. Last week over a hundred were killed by sportsmen in the vicinity of the "Out Off."

The wise (?) legislators of the House of Assembly of our State Legislature, last Monday evening passed a bill prohibiting the shooting of woodcock from Jan. 1st to Sept. 1st, in each year. Another one of those foolish bills passed by a majority of legislators who know no more about what the game laws of the State should be than those permanent residents of an institution at Morris Plains. We hope, however, that these wiseacres will pass a few more bills regarding the game laws, which are gotten up by some parties for the benefit of their own dear respective districts. Probably, then, the Sportsmens' and Game Protective Associations will come together, as they should do, and frame a bill to be presented to the next Legislature, which will revise and consolidate all the game and fish laws of the State into one bill, so that the "pot hunter" may understand its provisions—which he don't now. The N. J. Game & Fish Protective Society, whose headquarters are in Plainfield, propose having that very same mentioned bill drawn.

The first shad of the season taken in the Raritan river, was taken by George Sabone, at New Brunswick last Monday night.

No more will "Rudder," the famous trotter of "Van," throw the snow balls in the face of those who attempted to follow him on the road. His body now lies mouldering in the dust. Old age the cause.

Mr. William Moore, of this city, better known as "Uncle Billy," has as fine a stud of trotting horses as can be found in this section of country. They comprise "Carbolic," "Lady Mattison," "Gypsie Queen," "Contract" and other blooded stock. In their daily exercise by grooms, their appearance is most favorably commented upon by those who know the merits of the animals. Plainfield needs a Trotting Association, composed of gentlemen who own good stock, who will trot their horses under the National Rules, the same as Newark and Elizabeth does. We have fine roads and tracks for such trials of speed, and we wonder that such an Association is not formed. Our horsemen and lovers of the turf should take initiatory steps at once toward forming such a club, we will wager that "Uncle Billy" will be the first to head the list.

The Rhode Island Legislature has passed a bill making it unlawful to shoot pigeons from a trap or for tests of skill.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

A. Berry, Esq., has purchased the entire property fronting on Grove Street and Craig Place, belonging to the estate of Stelle Manning, deceased. The property is a valuable one. For building sites there is none more so in North Plainfield.

Two young men of Neshanic Mountain, by the name of Ferrell and Whitenack, were arrested and lodged in the Somerville Jail on Thursday last, on suspicion of being the murderers of Isaac Smith, who was killed some two years ago near his residence on the mountain. Smith formerly resided in North Plainfield.

Carpenters, painters, masons and building movers have made a very perceptible change in the external and internal appearances of the Somerset House. The stable has been removed to the rear of the strip of land recently purchased by Mr. Hughes and new and commodious sheds are being built to better accommodate his increasing patronage. Inside the house, painting, kalsomining and a general renovation is taking place.

The Republicans hold their Primary Meeting to select candidates for Township offices, Friday afternoon, March 5th, at 4 o'clock, in the Public School building. The Democrats hold a like Primary at Hughes' Hotel, Saturday evening, at 7½ o'clock. With good candidates, the Democrats can win this time. Let sound judgment prevail at the Primary in the selection of candidates.

Governor McClellan has vetoed the bill which reduced North Plainfield's Town Committeemen and gave them pay for their services.

The Town Committee, on Friday last, divided road district No. 2, making a new district, to be known as No. 8. The division does not give general satisfaction.

WESTFIELD WHIPS.

Mr. A. C. Foster has been very ill for the past two weeks. He is improving and hopes soon again to be about.

The Grand Concert given under the supervision of Mr. Blazier, Principal of the Public School, Friday evening, Feb. 27, on which occasion there was a chorus of 50 voices from St. Paul's Church, Newark, was a fine success. The audience was a large and select one, and the singers gave entire satisfaction to all present.

Mr. Joseph W. Burhans, who a short time ago journeyed to Nashville, Tenn., in search of health, died upon his arrival there. His remains will be brought back for interment.

The Young People's Union of the M. E. Church held their regular meeting on Monday night. After the business part of the meeting, the social part was taken up and the Misses Ella and Mary Ferris favored their friends with some fine solos and duets; Miss Lulu Fleming with readings and recitations by Mrs. E. L. Embree. Mr. E. L. Embree was on hand with his Magic Lantern and gave the audience several pleasing celestial scenes. The attendance was large and interested.

The colored folks were very much interested in the marriage of Miss Margaret Taylor to Josiah Bryant of Cranford. Mr. Valentine Buck performed the ceremony at the Baptist Church in place of Mr. Harris, who is confined to his home by sickness. The bridesmaid was Miss Maria Peterson, and the grooms best man was Jerry Graham. Mr. Theo. Williams and David Cummings acted as ushers. After the ceremony Mr. & Mrs. Bryant held a reception at the residence of Mr. Geo. Burrell, where our old friend, John Neisser, catered to the wants of all their friends. The couple then started on a trip to Baltimore. This was the grandest wedding the colored people have held in this place.

Miss Carrie P. Stirling died on Tuesday March 2nd, after a lingering illness. Funeral on Friday. Interment in Brooklyn, L. I.

The Westfield B. & L. Co. No. 1, will hold their annual meeting on Monday night, March 8th, at the Town Rooms. They are about to start a Relief Society.

A runaway horse and wagon came down the R. R. track from Fanwood, Tuesday night last. As it neared Broad street, the wagon caught on the upper switch, the harness broke and the horse was caught by Wm. Applegate, the flagman. The next coal train that came along, Engine No. 165, caught the light spring wagon and made kindling wood out of it. The owner will find the horse at Mr. Moffatt's Livery Stable, North Ave.

The Republican Primary was held in Lyceum Hall, on Tuesday evening last. J. L. Miller was re-nominated for Freeholder.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

The next Sociable of the Young Ladies Society of Fanwood will be held at the residence of Mr. Roland C. Steadwell on Wednesday evening, 10th inst., instead of the third, as we last week announced.

Thos. Paff, Jr., was very much "surprised" last Friday night to receive a call from a large number of his friends at his father's hostelry, the well-known Hotel of Scotch Plains, in honor of his birthday. Prof. Frazee, of Plainfield, delivered the occasion by good music for those inclined to dance in the spacious rooms of the Hotel, Mr. and Mrs. P. doing everything in their power to make all parties concerned happy and enjoyable. Tom, Sr., is noted for this trait of character. Some 30 couple were in attendance, and at the conclusion of the festivities gave cordial thanks to Mr. David King, who was the originator of the project of "surprising" "young Tom."

Vacant Places

In the dental ranks will never occur if you are particular with your teeth, and cleanse them every day with that famous tooth-wash, SOZODONT. From youth to old age it will keep the enamel spotless and unimpaired. The teeth of persons who use SOZODONT have a pearl-like whiteness, and the gums a roseate hue, while the breath is purified, and rendered sweet and fragrant. It is composed of rare antiseptic herbs and is entirely free from the objectionable and injurious ingredients of Tooth Pastes, &c.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Simmons' LIVER REGULATOR. LIVER DISEASE and Indigestion prevail to a greater extent than probably any other malady, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Indigestion or want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered for these ailments. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for forty years, and hundreds from all parts of the country will vouch for its virtues, viz: Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia; John Gill Shorter, of Alabama; Gen. John B. Gordon, R. L. Mott, of Columbus, Ga., Bishop Pierce, of Georgia, are among the hundreds to whom we can refer. Extract of a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1872: "I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active medicines." It is not the quantity eaten that gives strength, life, blood and health. It is the thorough digestion of the food taken let it be much or little. Therefore, do not stimulate the stomach to crave food, but rather assist digestion after eating by taking MESSRS. Curtiss & Griffin are agents for the sale of Bicycles. See their advertisement in another column.

AMOS QUINN, a former resident of Elizabeth, was killed by a female woman in Plainfield, Feb. 28th. No inquest.

MR. Frank Bergen has been admitted as a partner in the law firm of Elizabeth, known as Cross & Magie. The firm name now is Cross, Bergen & Noe.

HART MOORE, the well-known hotel keeper of New Brunswick, has leased the "County House" of Somerville. Mr. Wm. Moore, of this city, is the owner of the property.

ADDISON S. CLARK, ex-Surrogate of Union County, has been appointed a Surveyor of properties coming within the jurisdiction of the Plainfield Mutual Fire Association.

SOME miscreants have recently thrown mud upon the sign and buildings of Schepflin, Baldwin, Tweedy & Co. The firm offer a reward for the apprehension of such parties.

A WEATHER prophet says that we must not be surprised if the sun crosses the line ahead of time this year, and that the vernal equinox will be just so much in advance of almanac time.

R. V. LINDABURY, Esq., has been appointed Examiner in the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of Hon. Wm. J. Magie to a Judgeship on the Supreme Court bench.

MR. Geo. L. Van Emburgh, manager of Edsall & Price's large Dry Goods House, on Front street, has taken up permanent residence, with his family, in Plainfield, on Second Street, near Washington.

PARTIES having musk-rat and other skins for sale, will receive the highest market price by disposing of them to Messrs. W. H. & R. Burnett, whose advertisement appears in another column.

MR. WM. MOORE, owner of the Livery Stables of the late John Roselle, has purchased the residence of deceased, adjoining the above mentioned property, through the executor, County Clerk Vosseller.

THE time is fast approaching and is almost here when the young people can swing on the garden gate and swap gum without being afraid of catching cold or subjecting themselves to the evil and inquiring gaze of the old folks.

ROCKFELLOW and Kilbourn, corner of Park and North avenues, are selling luscious strawberries at 50 cents a basket. The berries were grown in South Carolina. This firm is doing a fine business also in Florida oranges, which they receive direct from that State.

As Spring is here the ladies will soon desire to know where to look for the latest styles of dress, etc. "Smith's Elite Fashion Magazine" gives them all. A copy may be obtained at Mrs. Force's Fancy Goods Store, No. 8 Park avenue, near Front street.

EVERY business man should have one of the Stylographic Pens, which is always ready for use. It is a fountain pen and holder, and may be carried in a pocket. Mr. N. W. Pike, of this city is agent for this really valuable article. His P. O. address is Box 63, Plainfield.

FAIRCHILD, the Furniture dealer, Front street, next to Whitney's Dry Goods store, has found it necessary to secure more room to accommodate his increasing business, and will shortly occupy the floor above his present location. New goods are constantly being received.

ACCORDING to rumors the work of grading and opening a new railroad line from the Packer R. R. at New Brooklyn to New York, will soon be commenced. The survey has been made for several months. The proposed new road will cross Park Avenue near Mr. John I. Holly's residence, below the Fair Grounds.

ASK a man now-a-days what he has got in the hand that he carries in his coat pocket, the invariable answer will be—"I can do it!—see here—put the 13 there, the 15 there and move so and so, and you have got the whole thing." Just so—in a horn. We have no confidence in the game since Joe finally played it.

MESSRS. J. C. Pope & Co. are now located in their new quarters over the City National Bank. The rooms occupied by them are handsomely and tastefully fitted up. The firm represent some of the soundest Fire Insurance Companies of the United States. The Washington Insurance Company and Dime Savings Bank are also located on the same floor.

COMMON COUNCIL refused Mr. John H. Tier the privilege of erecting a wooden awning in front of his property on Park avenue. He has gone on all the same, however, and put up an "awning" of corrugated iron covering, which adds to the appearance of his property and comfort of pedestrians. Lewis & Co. will re-occupy the place above mentioned as a meat market.

MR. DANIEL ROBERTS, the livery merchant on Park avenue, has made an exchange of property. By it he disposes of his late purchase, the "Webster" property on Broadway, and secured one of Mr. E. A. Campbell's fine houses on Second street, above Peace street. "Uncle Dan" has come among us to stay and desires a good and pleasant location for his family. He has got it by this move.

MR. John Rafferty has purchased of Jacob Laing, the property on Park ave., in which he is now engaged in business. He, as well as Mr. Jerome Park, will in time improve their adjoining properties, by lowering the first floors and bringing the fronts out to a line with Vanderbeek's building, which is erected on the building line of the street, established by City Surveyor Dunham some years ago.

IN Tuesday's issue of a contemporary, it was announced that "a Democratic Justice of the Peace of this city had been indicted for taking exorbitant and illegal fees. In another column of the same issue it was stated that the official referred to desired the matter to be kept quiet until he could explain the matter in Court." That official was tried upon the indictment at Elizabeth on March 4th, inst. Mr. Lindabury appeared as his Counsel, and the Prosecutor of the Pleas on the part of the people. All the persons examined, except the defendant, were subpoenaed on the part of the State. Arguments were made, the charge of the presiding Judge delivered, and the jury retired, but within ten minutes, re-appeared, and rendered their verdict, of acquittal. The Jury, and most of the persons attending court, warmly congratulated the Justice upon the result of the trial.

MARCH 1st, 1880, pleasant.

MARCH 2d, 1880, a snow squall.

MARCH 3d, 1880, blustering.

How will the last day of the first Spring month go out?

MESSRS. Lewis & Co., Butchers, yesterday (Thursday) removed from North Avenue to the old stand on Park Avenue, formerly occupied by Geo. Lewis.

ALEXANDER R. BURNS, Esq., of our city, left for Washington, D. C., last Wednesday, where he will remain for a few days to attend to the claims of New Jersey soldiers.

MR. John Wilson moved his prize Durham bull and three cows to his new farm last Monday morning. The menagerie as it passed along Front street attracted much attention.

ON Saturday, March 13th, the Real Estate Committee of the Building and Loan Association, will offer for sale at public auction the Hartfelder property, situated on Emily Street, North Plainfield. See advertisement in another column.

A BILL has passed the Legislature and been signed by the Governor, granting more power to the New Jersey Detective Bureau. By this new act, the officers of this association are authorized to make arrests in civil as well as criminal cases, in all parts of the State.

TWICE within a week has the Plainfield morning mail been thrown off at Fanwood depot, and the mail for that village carried here in consequence of the carelessness of a mail agent, who ought to know by the weight and size of the mail bag to which place it belonged.

A PIECE of pebble has been found in the cellar of Vanderbeek's new building, which has the appearance of gold quartz, flecks like unto that precious metal appearing in its body. Some people are so unsympathizing as to tell "Van" that the particles mentioned are only iron pyrites.

Two pleasing entertainments were given by the Ellis Family in Vandeventer Hall last Saturday afternoon and evening, in aid of the Warren Mission School, which were a success financially and enjoyably. The Ellis Family are fine vocalists, and little Fannie May is a wonder.

A CORRESPONDENT, signed "Mechanic," complains of the fact that the Post Office is closed too early in the evening, 7 P. M. It is argued that working men have not time between the hour of their quitting work, washing up and eating their supper, to get to the Post Office by seven o'clock to receive any mail there may be for them. The Postmaster is urged to have the office remain open later.

An Old Record.

Mr. William Wright, clerk at Vermeule's Hat Emporium, on Front street, has in his possession the leaves of an old account book, which is a curiosity. The date of charges in it run back to 1676. Go look at it. "Billy" will show you the curiosity without even asking you to buy one of the veteran hat merchant's latest style of tiles.

The Deliber Course.

Next Tuesday evening, Dr. C. H. Fowler will deliver the second lecture of the Deliber Course, in Assembly Hall, his subject being—"The Bible, the Prophet of Science." The subject is a grand one, and the Dr. an able lecturer. The Hall should be filled with a first-class audience the evening in question. We have no doubt but that it will be.

Nellis' Floral Instructor.

This is the title of a beautifully printed and illustrated quarterly devoted to Gardening in all its branches, containing a complete list of Seeds, Plants, Bulbs, &c., at greatly reduced prices, and much other useful information. The subscription price is only 20 cents per year.

He sends a sample copy and packet of Choice Flower Seeds as a trial to any one who sends him a 3 cent stamp. His address is A. C. NELLIS, Canajoharie, N. Y.

Fine Stock.

Postmaster Vail and R. S. Little, Esq., are the possessors of some fine blooded stock. Mr. Vail has a handsome heifer, whose sire is "Much Ado," owned by Mr. John I. Holly. He has named it "Petite Stetson," in honor of its mother—"Lady Stetson." Mr. Little's wonder claims the same parental origin on the father's side, but "Nellie," the thoroughbred, who took the first premium at the first Fair of the Union & Middlesex Counties' Agricultural Society, is the mother. He has named the gentleman calf—"Kaiser." Both prodigies may be seen on Mr. Vail's premises, back of the Post Office. It will take much money to make a purchase.

The Hack Ordinance Violated (?)

Last Wednesday a "drummer" for a well-known Philadelphia house, who has many patrons in our city, desiring to have his baggage, consisting of a trunk of samples, etc., conveyed to the depot, looked around for an expressman. Nobody being about, he asked Hackman Foster if he would take himself and baggage to said point. "Certainly," said handsome George—and he took the goods. Upon arrival, the passenger asked—"how much?" "N-o-o-t a c-e-e-n-t" said George; and the agent for the "prevention to cruelty against expressmen," who was waiting around to "make a case" went away disappointed, and the gentleman passenger said—"Much obliged." Query: Can George be arrested and fined for this breach (?) of law, or how.

Drive Well Meeting.

A large and spirited meeting in the interest of the driven well suits, now pending, was held on Friday evening last at the Board of Trade Rooms. A goodly number was added to the already large roll of members, and several hundred dollars in cash was handed and sent in to pay expenses of the suits. A large amount of new evidence was also produced to show up the fallacy of Green's pretended patent. The following, an extract of a letter now in the hands of the Secretary, being a fair sample: "James H. Engley, of Attleboro, Mass., says he drove a pipe well, same as the one Green claims his patent on, in 1859, and used it for a year or more. He can also give evidence of other parties having done the same." Petitions are now being circulated and readily signed asking the Legislature to appropriate a sum of money to assist the people of this State in opposing such unjust, expensive and oppressive litigation. As it now looks Green's case is a precarious one.

The Coming Event.

The Plainfield Athletic Club, who have lately been so thoroughly successful in all their undertakings, intend giving their friends an opportunity of witnessing an amateur minstrel entertainment at Vandeventer Hall, on Saturday evening, the 13th inst. The performers of the occasion are well-known Brooklyn gentlemen, members of the Brunswick Club of that city, whose entertainments for the benefit of the 23rd Regiment last month gained for them such flattering reception by the public and such favorable notice by the press. Desiring to make the coming entertainment under their auspices, first class in respect to audience as well as the artists, the P. A. C. have decided not to place the tickets on sale at any place, nor at the door;—the members have taken the entire number of seats themselves, and from them their friends can obtain such as they may desire. We consequently feel justified in recommending all to avail themselves of an opportunity seldom offered the elite of Plainfield to witness a minstrel entertainment by gentlemen.

THE roads are dusty.

LAST week they were muddy.

AND so they are yet out of town.

NEVERTHELESS, there is a good time coming.

CITY Judge Runyon on Saturday last rendered a decision that a fine of $10 should be imposed upon Chas. Foster, hackman, for carrying the trunk of a passenger in violation of a city ordinance, which prescribes that hackmen shall not charge for such carrying. Sentence was suspended, however, on condition that defendant's counsel should apply to Common Council for an amendment to the ordinance, allowing hackmen to carry trunks with passengers. This amendment would seem to be a proper one.

Personals.

We are glad to see our friend Al. Donovan, one of Express Agent Holmes' trusted employees, once more about, after an absence of some five weeks on account of severe illness.

David Robinson, a well known resident of Plainfield, left his home last Monday morning to try his fortune among the gold mines of California. He went by steamer, the time of trip occupying 26 days.

Mr. Andrew J. Onderdonk, former city surveyor of Plainfield, was in our city last week. Mr. O. is now located in San Francisco, Cal., where he has fine business opportunities.

We are pained to record the death of the wife of Col. Desanges, a former resident of this city. Her many friends will sympathize with Mr. D. in his bereavement.

Mr. Kimball, of Chicago (the well-known "debt-raiser") and Miss Kimball, are at present the guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Roney of this city.

Mr. Charles Woodland, after a short Southern trip through Norfolk, Richmond and other prominent cities, has returned home as brown as a nut and as fat as ever. He reports a mild season in the lower latitudes.

Mr. John L. Brewster, Jr., who is at present engaged in a very lucrative business in surgical instruments at Kansas City, is at home for a short visit with his parents on Union Ave. He will make this city his head-quarters, while buying goods in adjacent cities.

St. Patrick's Day.

Our Irish fellow citizens of the St. Mary's T. A. B. Society are meeting with good success in disposing of tickets for their Annual Ball, the night of March 17th, the proceeds of which are to be devoted toward the relief of Ireland's famishing citizens. The object is a most worthy one, and should be liberally sustained by our citizens.

The Grand Concert of the Season.

At the last meeting of the Plainfield Saengerbund, held Monday evening, it was almost finally decided to hold their grand concert for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid Society, on the 22d of this month.—If such date is satisfactory to the vocal Associations who will take part, and the promoters of the cause to which its profits will be contributed, that evening will be settled upon. The Saengerbund itself is just in the midst of increasing prosperity. About 20 new members were elected at its last meeting, and many new ones proposed.

Charity Concert.

The Plainfield Vocal Society have at last completed their arrangements for giving a Grand Concert in this city in aid of "The Children's Home." It will be given in the Congregational Church, Thursday, 11th inst., under the leadership of Mr. E. J. Fitzhugh, assisted by talented artists from Philadelphia, New York and St. Louis. The programme selected for the occasion comprises glees, choruses, solos, etc. The previous Concerts of the Vocal Society in this and neighboring towns, have given unbounded satisfaction. The approaching entertainment promises to eclipse all previous efforts. The Soprano Soloist for the occasion, Miss Henson, is spoken of as a singer of great merit. During the coming year she will sing in the choir of Rev. Dr. Taylor's Church, N. Y. City, taking the position formerly occupied by Miss Thursby. Miss Belle S. Foster, Pianist, also is highly spoken of in musical circles for her skill at the piano.—In fact, all the artists on the occasion will be first-class. The object is a worthy one and we hope to see the Church filled on the occasion. Reserved seats may be obtained at Shaw's Drug Store. See adv.

The Closing Recital.

For the first time since the commencement of Mr. and Mrs Carl Feininger's series of Recitals, the weather of Tuesday evening was favorable, and the audience gathered together to hear the last of the entertainments witnessed by its size the number of admirers that gentleman and his wife have gained by their remarkable talents. The evening's programme was on the whole one of the most enjoyable; the selections being well judged and calculated to please the musical tastes of those assembled. The piano execution of Miss Anna O. Marsh was all that could have been desired; and of the singing and playing of Mrs Feininger and the violin performance of Mr. Feininger, there is no need of words of praise. Criticisms in favor of or against the work of these artists, have no power to change the unanimous verdict of applause already passed upon them.

"At the close of Mrs Feininger's first solo, she was presented with a magnificent basket of flowers, to which was attached a card stating that the tribute was "from Mrs. Feininger's pupils with their best wishes."

In this pleasant manner, with universal good feeling on all sides, was closed this most successful series of recitals, and its managers are to be congratulated on the flattering appreciation they have commanded throughout. Should they decide upon a repitition next season, they may be assured of receiving hearty support.

Netherwood.

The locality known as "Netherwood," near the city limits of Plainfield, is rapidly growing as regards building and popularity. Here has been erected one of the finest Hotels for Summer guests that can be found in any inland town or city in our State. The season of 1879 proved that the "Netherwood Hotel" was a success, under the management of that Prince of Hotel Managers, Mr. Breslin.—This season, it is announced, he will again assume proprietorship, with Mr. ——— King, as manager. The latter named gentleman has had vast experience in the business, and without doubt will enhance the reputation of the "Netherwood Hotel," as such Manager. Many improvements are being made about the Hotel grounds, the "Belvidere Land Improvement Company" being the prime movers. Under the supervision of Mr. Michel Uhdal, the grounds about the Hotel are being graded and laid out in fine style, new avenues constructed, etc.—Back of the Hotel two new avenues have been laid out 50 feet wide, running parallel with South Avenue. The scenery along the same during the Summer will be beautiful. Undoubtedly there will be many new residences spring up along these thoroughfares before the Fall season. Already, a Mr. Plummer has contracted for the erection of a handsome residence on one of the new avenues, the grounds about it to be properly graded by Mr. Uhdal, who, by the way, is a proper person to select for such work, as he has had much experience in like matters. Another improvement about the Hotel, is the contemplated construction of an additional bowling saloon on the grounds for the use of the coachmen of the house.

Now look out for colds.

ROCK and Rye will help you.

ED. P. THORN, Mansion House, has the pure article.

COMMON Council last Monday evening confirmed the nomination of George P. Suydam for Corporation Counsel.

THE rise in the price of ice has come a little sooner in Plainfield than was expected. The dealers have advanced the price of the commodity to double the former price.

MEMBERS of the Board of Education declare that in order to meet the increased demand for room for pupils in the Public Schools of this city, it will be necessary to erect another school building.

GRAVEL is being carried from the bed of Green Brook and Hyde's Pond, and placed on that portion of Front Street opposite Mr. Hyde's residence, to raise the road bed to a proper grade. The material obtained is good for the purpose used.

PECK, the successful "cash price" merchant, corner of Front and Grove Streets, has thoroughly renovated his store by painting, etc., and it looks ten times more cheerful than before with its freshness and beautiful goods displayed. Go see Peck.

Indicted Officials.

The citizens of Elizabeth and certain city officials are in a high state of excitement over the action of the Grand Jury in finding bills of indictment against Comptroller Leggett, Daniel W. Leeds, (his clerk) David J. Meeker, Charles E. Brown and Mr. A. Wheelright. The Grand Jury came into Court on Friday last and presented twenty indictments against Mr. Leggett, ten against Mr. Leeds, and four against Mr. Meeker. Mr. Brown and Wheelright are charged with being co-conspirators in the alleged frauds, and were quietly arrested on Sunday following, by Court officers on capiases. All the accused plead "not guilty," and procured bail. Chief of Police Yates, Councilman J. O. Little and Daniel H. Noe became bondsmen for Brown and Wheelright. The Grand Jury were ordered to complete their labors and appear before the Court March 15th.

The Congregational Society Decide to Change their Place of Worship.

In response to a call of the Trustees of the Congregational Society, of Plainfield, about fifty of its members met in the lecture room of the Church last Wednesday evening. At the close of the usual prayer meeting, the pastor, Rev. Wm. Manchee announced that the business that called them together was in order, and Mr. W. A. Freeman was chosen Chairman. After the reading of the call by the Secretary, Mr. Benj. R. Force, Mr. Everett P. Curtiss moved that the Society vacate the premises at present occupied by them, as soon as others suitable could be obtained by the Trustees.

Upon a call for remarks being made by the chairman, Mr. S. C. Roney said: "I don't know as it is necessary to say anything in regard to this matter, as its advisibility is so apparent that every member is ready to vote understandingly on the question. There is a good deal of feeling in regard to the former associations of the First Congregational Church with this building, and for one I am free to say that I have carried the burden as far as I want to. The time has now come for us to break away from its history, its associations and everything connected with it, and start afresh. We are also subject to the unpleasantness of having with us those who are not in sympathy with us; yet we can say nothing against their remaining. Now is the time when we can free ourselves from this mixed multitude. We don't need so large a room as the one we have had, but one just large enough to admit every member and every friend who wants to come in and worship with us. We don't want a room large enough to hold one single traitor. We can ask all who are loyal to come in with us, and we can ask the others to please go somewhere else. We do not want, and we do not propose to have any one who, while a member and an officer, will pick out the foundation stones from under us and build another church with them. Those are whom I mean by traitors.

"It has been stated publicly that a majority of those present at the meeting when we called our pastor, did not vote, and that two-thirds of those who did were driven into it. Such statement is a malicious and malignant falsehood. At that meeting there was a spontaneous and unanimous feeling in favor of the call."

Mr. Jacob Kirkner stated for the information of the meeting that a suitable place for holding public worship could be obtained at once, and mentioned as such place the church building on the corner of Central Avenue and Second Street.

A standing vote was then taken on the motion and announced by Messrs. Lamson and Kirkner to be forty in favor and none against.

Mr. Kirkner then moved that the Trustees be empowered to procure suitable premises at once. The motion was unanimously carried, and the mover continued: "I have seen the Cashier and one of the Directors of the First National Bank, which is the owner of the building, and from them learned that we could secure it for one year at $200, if we made such repairs as are needed. It can be made a very comfortable place, but I should like to hear the opinion of others here present regarding the subject. The owners do not care to let it for more than one year, but at the end of such time we will no doubt be in condition to buy it or erect a building to suit us."

Mr. Force moved that the Trustees be empowered to procure the building on the corner of Second St. and Central Ave., known as the 2d Baptist Church.

Upon a call for remarks upon the question being made, no one replied, and Mr. Roney arose and said: "I wish there would be more of an expression of opinion from all the members. It is said that this church is run by one man and that that man is me. But I don't care worth a cent; such remarks run off of me like water on a duck's back. Work has to be done at these meetings, and as we don't want to sit here all night, some one is bound to push the business forward, and in consequence is credited with trying to run the church. It is not fair!"

Mr. Force's motion was then carried, and Mr. Kirkner's following remarks were received with satisfaction:

"The members of this Society need not concern themselves about the rent of their church; I will see that it is paid, and they can look after their pastor's salary and other incidentals. We do not propose to run it as the First Congregational Church was run; and, although I do not say that I will pay the rent, I will see that it is paid. We propose to let the ladies take charge of the putting of the premises in order, and therefore there is no doubt about its being ready by Sunday the 14th inst. It is however necessary to raise a little ready money towards getting carpet, repairing organ and putting things to rights, and I will start a list of subscriptions with $25."

Messrs. Hale, Roney and the "Ladies of the Society" followed with like amounts, and Messrs. Rockfellow, Curtiss, B. R. Force, P. M. Demarest and Mrs. Kirkner with $10 each. Mr. Roney then asked for contributions of smaller amounts to make up a total of $200, which was thought needful. Messrs. France, Messersmith, Freeman, Morse, Habens, J. B. Clarkson, Mrs. Runyon and Mrs. VanAlstyne, subscribed $5 each; Mr. Benj. Wright, $3; Mr. H. A. Clarkson, $2; the Misses Demarest, $1 each; Mr. France's class, $1, and the balance of $3 was pledged by Mr. Roney to be raised by his class.

The meeting then adjourned.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Council met in regular meeting.

Present—Coriell, Dunlap, Flanders, Potts, Rushmore, Redfield, Finch, Ryder, Whiton. Absent—Lidgley, Darling.

Pres. Potts in the chair.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Mr. Whiton presented petition of L. Kane for a truck license. Ref'd to License Com.

Mr. Redfield presented petition of R. W. Mahaffee for an express wagon license. Ref'd to License Com.

By the same—Com'n from F. Bergen, counsel for James H. Platt, in reference to a judgment against the city for damages, amounting to $286.88, asking Council for an early settlement, and thus save further costs. Ref'd to Law & Ord. Com.

By the same—Petition of H. H. Baker and others, asking for a crosswalk at 5th Street, over Park Ave. Ref'd to Com on Sts.

Mr. Coriell presented petition of Sam'l Humpston for a truck license. Ref'd to License Com.

Mr. Rushmore presented petition for an amendment to the Hack Ord., signed by the Hackmen, asking for privilege of carrying baggage. Ref'd to Law & Ord. Com.

Mr. Dunlap presented petition of S. C. Ryder for a truck license. Ref'd to Com. on Licenses.

Mr. Coriell presented claim of J. S. Cutter, groceries for Poor, $119. Ref'd to Alms Com.

Mr. Redfield presented the following claims: Woman's Christian Temperance Union, meals for two men at Station House, $5.30; Jno. L. Ralston, Overseer of Poor Westfield Township, $15.90; A. M. Runyon, coffins, etc., $17; Henry Garls, rent, $4; Raritan Township, groceries for one Todd, a Plainfield pauper, $11.40. On motion, these claims were ref'd to Alms Com.

Mr. Flanders presented claim of W. L. Force & Bro., adv'g, etc., $49.50. Ref'd to Printing Com.

Mr. Ryder presented claim of A. H. Willett, boots, etc., for Poor, $2.50. Ref'd to Alms Com.

Mr. Redfield presented the following police claims: Geo. W. Moore, $21.46; Richard Hapeany, $41.67; Chas. W. Dodd, $7.58; I. L. Tingley, 2 claims, (January and February, $71.91. Ref'd to Police Com.

Mr. Coriell presented claim of St. Com'r Geo. M. Angleman, $38.90. Also, claim of Weed & Hall, timber, $9.12. Ref'd to St. Com.

Mr. Redfield presented the following report from City Judge Runyon:

To the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN: During the month of February I have directed relief to be granted to 16 applicants therefor.

Feb. 9th. John Henson, colored, was brought before me, arrested for being intoxicated on the street. It being his first offence he was reprimanded and discharged.

Feb. 9th. Thomas Dunn, an American, was brought before me, having been arrested for being intoxicated on the street. He admitted the charge, and was sentenced to pay a fine of one dollar, and in default of payment to stand committed to the City Jail for twenty-four hours. He paid the fine.

Feb. 24th. On complaint of Peter Hoagland I issued a warrant for the arrest of Charles Foster, for an alleged violation of the ordinance to license cartmen, expressmen and hackmen. He was brought before me on 25th ult., and pleaded not guilty, and I set the case down for hearing on 26th. After hearing the evidence, I reserved my decision until Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, at which time I rendered my decision, holding that said Foster was guilty of the violation complained of, and had forfeited the penalty designated for such violation.

On motion of Mr. Bolton, Attorney for said Foster, I have refrained from collecting said penalty until he shall have had opportunity to apply to Council for relief.

Respectfully submitted,
NELSON RUNYON, City Judge.
PLAINFIELD, March 1, 1880.

On motion, filed.

The Pres. then presented com'n from His Honor Mayor Harper, in reference to amending the Hack Ord., so that Hackmen could have the privilege of carrying the baggage of their passengers, &c. Ref'd to Law & Ord. Com.

Also, a com'n from His Honor the Mayor, nominating for special policemen, Geo. W. Grant, Geo. Powers and James Daly, in place of three not qualifying. On motion, confirmed, Mr. Whiton voting no.

Mr. Ryder presented the following from City Judge Runyon:

To the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN: My attention has been called to an ordinance introduced at the last meeting of Council, held 16th, inst., entitled an ordinance to provide for the relief and support of the poor of the city of Plainfield.

Inasmuch as if passed it will effect me officially in the carrying out of some of its provisions I take the liberty of calling attention at this time to some of its salient features.

Leaving out of the question whether or not the result required could not be reached with less circumlocution, does not the Council in Section 11, assume authority not warranted by the Charter when it provides that

The legal status and liabilities of all poor persons in this city * * * * shall be such as are defined and specified in the act of the Legislature * * * * entitled "an act for the settlement and relief of the poor, passed March 27, 1874, excepting in so far as the same are otherwise defined and regulated by this ordinance," and when it provides that all duties of said act imposed on one or more justices of the peace, shall be performed by the City Judge or Mayor?

It seems to me that when the Legislature has specified certain duties to be performed by certain constitutional officials, it is not in the province of the Common Council to designate some other person to perform such duties.

Again Section 12 provides that "any person who shall in any affidavit or deposition required by this ordinance wilfully make any false statement * * * shall upon conviction thereof be punished for each offence by fine not exceeding $50 * * * or imprisonment * * * for a term not exceeding 60 days, or both, such fine and imprisonment."

It is not so stated, but I assume the offence here designated is perjury—and that a person charged with the same may, in case said ordinance be adopted, be brought before the City Court for trial. It is, I presume, unnecessary for me to say that such offence is not cognizable before that court. However, I may possibly have misconceived the purport of this section.

The ascertaining of the legal settlement of a pauper is a matter of considerable consequence, as in case a mistake is made the Corporation making the blunder will not only have the costs of the investigation to pay, but will still have to maintain the pauper until the legal settlement is ascertained. Hence the Legislature in the act referred to, has provided a way to ascertain such settlement, which it may not be wise to depart from.

The provisions of section 11 and 12 are substantially if not precisely the same as in the existing ordinance. In my opinion it would be advisable to amend or modify said ordinance in accordance with above suggestions.

What my observation of the practical working of this ordinance shows is specially required, is a sound discretion vested in the Overseer of the Poor to grant immediate temporary relief to persons requiring it, without waiting for the approval of a majority of the Alms Committee. This is provided for in section 5 of the new ordinance.

Lastly, I have grave doubts as to the propriety of the Common Council imposing upon the City Judge multitudinous duties not authorized or required by the charter, but as this is more of a personal matter than the other points referred to, different views may be taken thereof by different persons.

Very respectfully,
NELSON RUNYON, City Judge.
Feb. 28, 1880.

Mr. Whiton took exception to the above com'n. He thought that the Council was capable of attending to its own affairs. The ord. had been carefully prepared, and he was of the opinion that it was correct in every particular, &c. He further said, "if the Judge was not a friend of mine, I would send the com'n back to him," but will move, instead, that it be placed on file. Seconded.

Mr. Ryder thought the com'n should be referred to the Law & Ord. Com.

Mr. Whiton did not see why it should be referred to any Com. The Ord. had been carefully drawn, employing eminent counsel to see that it complied with the charter and State laws, and taking considerable time himself in looking carefully into the matter, etc.

Mr. Coriell asked Mr. Whiton "if the Ord. had been referred to Corporation Counsel?" Mr. Suydam being present, said it had not. Then, Mr. Coriell remarked, "the Ord. is not before us." The motion to file was then adopted, Mr. Ryder voting in the negative.

Mr. Redfield, from Alms Com., reported as correct the first claim of Overseer of Poor of Westfield Township, $15.85. Referred to Aud. Com.

Mr. Whiton, from Finance Com., presented the following:

J. M. WHITON,
Plainfield, March 1st, 1880. Ch'man Fin. Com.

Rec'd and filed.

By the same—The following:

Resolved, That the Treasurer and the Collector of Taxes of the city of Plainfield be and they each hereby are required to execute a bond to the inhabitants of the city of Plainfield, with one or more sureties to be approved by the Common Council of the city of Plainfield, in the sum of ten thousand dollars; each conditioned for the true and faithful performance of all the duties of his office;

Resolved, That the two city Constables be and they each hereby are required to enter into a bond to the inhabitants of the city of Plainfield in their corporate name and capacity, with one or more sureties, to be approved by the Common Council of the city of Plainfield, in the sum of one thousand dollars; each conditioned for the true and faithful performance of all the duties of his office.

On motion, adopted.

Mr. Whiton, from Fire, Water & Lamp Com., reported as correct claim of Plainfield Gaslight Co., $229.34. Ref'd to Aud. Com. Also as incorrect, not properly signed, claim of E. A. Vermeule. Ref'd back for correction.

Mr. Redfield, from Law & Ord. Com., reported verbally as to res. of daily paper to publish legal notices of Council, that they saw no obstacle in the way of its request.

Mr. Coriell thought that the report should be in writing. On motion, the res. was re-referred back to the Com. for a written report later in the evening.

Mr. Finch, from Police Com., reported as correct the police claims presented this evening. Report rec'd and claims ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Flanders, from Printing Com., reported as correct claim of E. O. Chamberlin, $6.50; W. L. Force & Bro., $49.50. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Ryder, from Salary Com., reported as correct claim of St. Com'r George M. Angleman, $50. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Dunlap, from Aud. Com., reported as correct, the following claims: Henry Garls, $4; H. H. Lowrie, $62.50, Poor Account; J. D. Nodyne, 2 claims, $43.86; Plainfield Gaslight Co., $232.90; N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gaslight Co., 2 claims, $234.38. Report rec'd and warrants ordered drawn for the several amounts. All aye.

Mr. Rushmore presented the following:

Resolved, That the License Committee be instructed to procure thirty metal badges for the use of hackmen, ten for the use of expressmen, and ten for the use of truckmen. Also, to have printed one hundred of the accompanying notices, one of each to be placed on the inside of each hack, all of which is necessary to carry out the provisions of the ordinance to license cartmen, expressmen and hackmen. Adopted.

The notices alluded to in the above res., are the rates of fare, etc.

Mr. Ryder presented the following:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed, with power, to confer with Wm. B. Maxson with a view to the settlement of his claim against the city for legal services in the Park suit.

Mr. Ryder said that he had a talk with Mr. Maxson a short time since, and said he (Maxson) would take $800 in settlement of the claim. Mr. Ryder thought perhaps if a committee was appointed to wait upon Mr. Maxson and talk the matter over, he might make it less yet. Mr. Ryder further stated that Mr. Maxson had performed his duty faithfully, and should be paid for it; he knew the amount looked large, but he understood that the fees charged on the other side were equally as large, etc.

After some further discussion by Messrs. Coriell, Whiton and Redfield, it was, on motion of Mr. Finch, (with all due respect to Mr. Ryder), laid upon the table.

The written report from the Law & Ord. Com. relative to publication of notices in the daily newspaper was substantially the same as verbally reported at the early part of the meeting.

On motion of Mr. Whiton, the report of the Com. was accepted.

Mr. Finch moved that the Mayor's nomination for Corporation Counsel be acted upon this evening, and the remainder of the nominations lie over until our next adjourned meeting. Agreed to.

Upon a ballot being taken for Corporation Counsel, Geo. P. Suydam received 8 votes and Geo. W. Suydam 1 vote.

The Pres. announced as Corporation Counsel elect, Geo. P. Suydam.

Mr. Finch moved that when Council adjourn it adjourn to meet two weeks from to-night, March 14th. Agreed to.

Mr. Whiton called from the table the Ord. for raising money by taxation for the present year, for its 3d reading. Read 3d time, and on motion, passed. All aye.

Council then adjourned.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

Heat and Sickness.

During the hot and sultry weather an unusual amount of sickness prevails in every community, especially among females and children, caused by the fermenting poisonous gas or nitrogenous matter floating in the air, arising from decaying vegetation. This bad air effects everything we eat, and engenders in it [illegible] fermentation, which, when taken in the system is like leaven, and operates on [illegible], starting in the bowels and [illegible] producing a violent fermentation, causing diarrhoea and dysentery. It has been found that the use of Speer's old Port Grape Wine of New Jersey has an extraordinary effect in checking this fermentation and restoring the system to its original strength and vigor. Invalids and debilitated persons have found it the most nutritious and strengthening tonic in the market, and the greatest help in resisting the poisonous effects of the vitiated atmosphere. This wine, so long established, has become the standard wine upon which physicians rely as the most rich in body and genuine in character, containing the great amount of medicinal properties with the least intoxicating qualities. Speer's vineyards produce a larger yield this year than usual, and he has reduced the price of his wine that any person can now purchase [illegible] of druggists for [illegible] per bottle. None of this wine is bottled until it is four years old.—Gazette. For sale by all druggists.

Bankrupt Sale—New York.

Ladies, we shall open this day an immense assortment of Underwear (purchased for twenty cents on the dollar) at the great Bankrupt Sale last week. Coughs and Colds.

Speer's Horehound, Rye and Rock. Horehound, Old Pond Rye and White Rock Crystal Candy. A simple and effective remedy for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Sore Throat and all Lung and Bronchial complaints. Highly recommended for Consumption and General Debility. This is no patent medicine mixture but the pure extract of Horehound, combined with an extract of Rye, made near Lexington, Ky. Sold by W. E. Voorhees and R. J. Shaw. Prepared only by Alfred Speer, Passaic, N. J., and 34 Warren street, N. Y. Price 50 cents per bottle.

"Though the times repeated, it will please." The most obstinate cases of Catarrh and Hay Fever are cured by the use of Ely's Cream Balm, the only agreeable remedy. Price 50 cents. See adv. For sale by Wm. E. Voorhees.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 9, 1879.

MESSRS. ELY BROS., Druggists, Owego, N. Y.—I cheerfully add my testimony to the value of your Cream Balm as a specific in the case of my sister, who has been extremely debilitated with Catarrh for eight years, having tried ineffectually other remedies and several specialty doctors in Boston. She improved at once under your discovery, and has gained her health and hearing, which had been considered incurable.

MORALITIES.

Adversity is a balance to weigh friends.

Feeling is no criterion of right or wrong.

It's poor foolishness to run down your enemies.

Make yourself necessary and your success is certain.

A great deal of mischief is easier done than a little good.

No one is ever fatigued after the exercise of forbearance.

The scales of Justice are for the weight of the transgressor.

The word "impossible" is the mother-tongue of little souls.

Words have double weight when there is a man and character back of them.

Watch your own speech, and notice how it is guided by your less conscious purposes.

A string of opinions no more constitutes faith than a string of beads constitutes holiness.

A man's action is only a picture-book of his creed. He does, after all, what he believes.

An ounce of heart is worth a ton of culture, their mightiest force in the world is heart force.

We are hanging up pictures every day about the chamber walls of our hearts that we shall have to look at when we sit in the shadows.

Diogenes, being asked what beasts were apt to bite the worst, answered: "Of all wild beasts—the slanderer; and of all tame beasts—the flatterer."

Ruskin says that the noblest building made with hands for spiritual ends must lack the perfection of grace and beauty unless lit from the lamp of sacrifice.

Energy will do everything that can be done in this world; and no talents, no circumstances, no opportunities will make a two-legged animal a man without it.

A man—so to speak—who is not able to bow to his own conscience every morning is hardly in a condition to respectfully salute the world at any other time of the day.

It is very pleasant to see some men turn round, pleasant as a sudden rush of warm air in Winter or the flash of firelight in the chill dusk; they shed radiance on all around them.

Even to those with whom we are the most intimately associated we should not be less courteous than to strangers, for courtesy to others is the best evidence of our regard for them.

As they who for every slight sickness take physic to repair their health, do rather impair it, so they who for every trifle are eager to vindicate their character, do rather weaken it.

Dignity and firmness go hand in hand—the former always followed by courtesy to all, the latter always commanding respect, and neither ever arbitrary when charitably exercised.

Blessed be the man who knows how to caper and enjoys nonsense; woe to the man that parted early with his boyhood, and blessed be the man that carries his boyhood down latest into life.

SO LIKE ITS DADDY.

Babies are indeed a mystery, but what is said about them is more mysterious still. To the ordinary eye all babies look alike, but it is fashionable, if not absolutely necessary, to say of each one which is exhibited that he looks either like his father or his mother. A French society woman lately called on a friend to congratulate her on a recent accession to the family circle. Her speech of admiration was already composed, and she only waited the proper moment to deliver it. The door opened, and a mild looking woman appeared with something in her arms. The high-born dame at once arose, worked herself into a becoming ecstacy of delight, and, without even looking at the little parcel, exclaimed, in touching tones: "Why, it is the very image of its father." Imagine her dismay, and the equal dismay of the two fond parents, when it was discovered that it was not the nurse who had entered, but the housemaid with an armful of wood. The gentle critic may have seen a resemblance between a bit of wood and the father, but it was certainly not very complimentary to speak it.

CRITICISING NEWSPAPERS.

It is a very easy matter to criticise a newspaper; but to publish one, so as to interest, amuse and instruct the public is no small undertaking. Those who are so prone to find fault with every little item which does not suit their critical and exalted ideas, should buy type, ink and paper, and publish an organ of their own. Let them try it for three months only, and if it don't give them some new ideas of the newspaper business, then we are no judge of human nature. The conceit would be taken out of such individuals so quickly that they would hardly know what was the matter with them or whether they stood on their heads or feet. We would however suggest a trial.

It is proposed to hold a meeting of indignant Republicans in Virginia City and to submit the following questions to the Supreme Conundrum Court of Maine:

1. Is it in accordance with the Constitution to buy stocks when they are low and to sell 'em when they go up?

2. Suppose the dog hadn't stopped, is it in the opinion of the Court at all certain that he would have caught the rabbit; and if so why not—or rather which?

3. Is a strict construction of the statutes necessary to determine that a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush?

4. If the streak of ore that Hank Smith says he found on the 2,700-foot level of the Belcher mine is now only ten inches wide, how wide will it be on the 3,000-foot level? [N. B. The importance of an early decision of this grave question is most urgently pressed upon the Court, as the Belcher transfer books close next Saturday.]

5. When will Captain John Kelly have money enough to retire from the turmoil of the stock market?

6. How many blue beans make five?

7. Which would Your Honors rather do or go fishing?

"Now, then, state your case," said a Detroit lawyer, the other day, as he put the $5 bill away in his vest pocket.—"Well," began his client, "suppose the man next door wants to put a barn right against my line, coming within two feet of my house?" "He can't do it, sir—can't do any such thing," replied the lawyer. "But I want to put my barn right up against his line," remarked the client. "Oh—ah—yes, I see! Well, sir, go right ahead and put your barn there. All the law in the case is on your side."

A well-dressed lady called at a carpet warehouse and asked to look at some carpets. The goods were shown, every pattern in the shop being spread out for examination. After looking at everything about the place, and driving some very close bargains in the matter of price, the lady selected a carpet for each room in her house, running up a bill which filled the salesman's heart with joy. When all was completed, he asked where the carpets were to be sent. The lady replied, without hesitation, that she would call and let him know. "You see," she added, "my husband has bought a piece of ground, and talks of soon building a house on it. If he does you know, I shall want some new carpets and I will call and order these."

A sad looking man went into a Burlington drug store. "Can you give me," he asked, "something that will drive from my mind the thoughts of sorrow and bitter recollections?" And the druggist nodded and put him up a little dose of quinine, and worm-wood, and rhubarb, and epsom salts and a dash of castor oil and gave it to him, and for six months the man couldn't think of anything in the world except new schemes for getting the taste out of his mouth.

A boy in the wild West who for the first time in his life saw a military company out for a drill with fife and drum, gave his mother the following account of the business: "A little man blowed on his squealin' stick, and a big man that stood beside him hammered on his thunder box, then the boss man pulled out a big, long knife and shook it at the fellers what was standin' up in a long row, and they all walked off on two legs."

A country doctor, being out, for a day's shooting, took his errand boy to carry the game bag. Entering a field of turnips, the dog pointed, and the boy, overjoyed at the prospect of his master's success, exclaimed: "Lor, master, there's a covey: if you get near 'em won't you physic 'em?" "Physic them, you young rascal! What do you mean?" said the doctor. "Why, kill 'em, to be sure," replied the lad.

Several young men were sitting together, and a young lady happened to approach the vicinity. One "real sweet" young fellow seeing, as he supposed, the young lady looking at him, remarked, playfully, and with a becoming simper: "Well, Miss ——, you needn't look at me as though you wanted to eat me." "Oh, no," replied the young lady; "I never eat greens!"

A little boy in New Haven was saying his prayers the other night, when his little brother teased him. The boy struggled between his sense of duty and his inclination for a time, but finally compromised by saying: "Please, Lord, excuse me while I punch my brother Johnnie's head." Johnnie's head having been duly punched, the prayer was finished.

We don't know whether it is old or not, but we heard a lady ask a friend in a street car, the other day: "Annie, is it proper to say this 'ere, that 'are?" "Why, Kate, of course not," was the reply. "Well," said Kate, "I don't know whether it is proper or not, but I feel cold in this car from that air." The conductor fainted.

An ingenious manager has made a drop curtain representing an enormous bonnet, with sprays of flowers and drooping plumes. This is let down on the play early in the first scene and is kept down all the evening, and the audience seeing about as much of the play as it is accustomed to seeing, goes away delighted.

A young mother was giving to her son, aged five years, a touching description of the misery into which the prodigal son had fallen. "Far away from home and his kind father, obliged to take care of swine, with nothing to eat but the husks of corn left by them," etc. "Then why didn't he eat the pig" was the practical reply.

The other day, at a Cincinnati wedding, the organist occupied the time before the coming of the bride and groom by playing various voluntaries, and just before they arrived at the church door he thoughtlessly struck up, "Trust her not, she's fooling thee."

"A census-taker," said the old lady. "Wall, thar is me and Jeremiah, an' Sarah Ann, an' that's all, 'cept Jim, an' he's a fool an' ain't got no senses to take."

Lady—How old are you, little boy? Little darkey—Well, if you goes by what mudder says, I's six. But if you go by de fun I's had, I's most a hundred.

It is strangely singular how much the boy with a pair of new suspenders hates to wear a coat.

[BY AUTHORITY.]

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

CHAPTER XV.

A Supplement to the act entitled "An act to incorporate trustees of religious societies," approved April sixth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever any diocese has been or shall be created in this state, under and by virtue of the authority of the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America, and shall desire to become a legal corporation in this state, it shall be lawful for the convention of said diocese, at any regular meeting thereof, in which a majority of the parishes belonging thereto are represented by both clerical and lay deputies, to declare by resolution their desire and intention to become such legal corporation; and upon their filing in the office of the secretary of state of this state, a copy of said resolution together with a certificate stating the name of said diocese, with the name of its president, secretary and its standing committee, which shall consist of not less than four clerical and four lay members, duly signed by said president and secretary in the presence of the chancellor, or of a justice of the supreme court of this state, the said convention shall thereupon become a body corporate, by the name or title expressed in such certificate.

2. And be it enacted, That all the estate and property now or hereafter belonging to or held by such diocese, shall be vested in and managed by the said corporation, which shall have perpetual succession, and exercise and be clothed with the powers and privileges enumerated in the first section of an act approved April seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, entitled "An act concerning corporations;" and shall also be capable of taking and holding by gift, grant, devise, bequest or otherwise, any property in trust for religious, ecclesiastical, charitable or educational objects, appertaining to, or under the control of said convention or other ecclesiastical authority of the Protestant Episcopal Church in said diocese, and of executing the same; provided, that the same shall not be inconsistent with the constitution, canons or laws of said church.

3. And be it enacted, That the said corporation shall have power to appoint or elect, in such manner as they may determine, discreet persons as trustees, not less than five in number who shall be members of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and citizens of this state, residing within the limits of said diocese; and upon the filing in the office of the secretary of state of a certificate, under the hand and seal of the president and secretary of said convention, stating the corporate name selected for said trustees, and also the names of said trustees, they, the said trustees, shall become a body corporate, under the name and title so certified, and shall have perpetual succession, and exercise and be clothed with the powers and privileges enumerated in the first section of the act aforesaid, entitled "An act concerning corporations."

4. And be it enacted, That the said trustees when so incorporated, shall have the management and care of any fund already existing, or which may hereafter be contributed, acquired, or received, and any accumulations thereof, for the support of the episcopate of said diocese, and the appropriation of the income of said fund for that purpose, according to the direction to be from time to time given by said convention of said diocese; they shall also be capable of taking and holding by gift, grant, devise, bequest or otherwise, any property, funds or securities of any kind in trust for religious, ecclesiastical, charitable or educational purposes, appertaining to, or under the control of the convention or other ecclesiastical authority of said diocese, and of executing the same; provided, that the same shall not be inconsistent with the constitution, canons or laws of said church.

5. And be it enacted, That said trustees shall present to each regular diocesan convention a statement of their proceedings, exhibiting the condition of the fund, together with an account of their receipts and disbursements; they may provide by-laws for the removal of a trustee for good cause, and on such removal, may declare the place vacant, and fill the same until the next regular meeting of said convention, which body shall permanently fill all vacancies existing in said trustees.

6. And be it enacted, That whenever any diocese has heretofore existed, or which now exists, or which may hereafter exist, within the state of New Jersey, in connection with the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America, has been or shall be divided into two or more dioceses, it shall be lawful for the body of trustees holding in trust, or having control of the fund for the support of the bishop of said original or dividing diocese, to make such divisions of all bonds, mortgages, securities or property as may be or may have been agreed upon by the said original and said new diocese, whether after or in prospect of such division, and to assign, transfer and set over the same to such trustee as may be appointed for said new diocese, to hold to them and their successors for the trusts upon them imposed; and in case of such division so effected, all trusts in relation to the securities thereby conveyed, incumbent upon the former trustees, shall ipso facto cease and be discharged.

7. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 10, 1880.

CHAPTER XII.

A further supplement to an act entitled "An act concerning corporations," approved April seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any banking corporation having capital stock divided into shares, and created under the laws of this state by special act of incorporation or otherwise, the capital of which has become impaired, shall have power to reduce the par value of each share of its stock to such an amount as shall be agreed on by the consent of stockholders representing two-thirds of its capital stock, and shall also have power, by like consent, to determine to issue so many additional shares of its capital stock at the par value so fixed as by a like consent shall be agreed to, not exceeding in the whole, with the shares of stock previously issued and outstanding, at the par value so fixed, the amount of capital limited by its act of incorporation or certificate of organization; and upon filing in the office of the secretary of state a certificate in writing, signed by stockholders representing two-thirds of its capital stock, setting forth the number of shares of stock previously issued and outstanding, the reduced par value fixed and agreed on and the number of additional shares of stock agreed on and determined to be issued, then and from thenceforth the par value of such stock shall be taken and considered to be the amount so fixed and certified, and the additional shares so determined to be issued may be issued in the following manner, viz.: the directors, managers, trustees, or other governing body of such corporation, shall give not less than ten days' notice, by advertisement in one or more newspapers of the state and by circulars sent by mail to the stockholders whose post office address is known, of a time and place when they will open books of subscription for such additional shares of stock, and at such time and place shall receive subscriptions therefor; the previously existing stockholders of such corporation shall each be entitled at such time and place to subscribe for and take such proportion of such additional stock as their shares bear to the total number of previously existing shares, and if any additional stock is not so taken by stockholders within ten days after the books for that purpose are opened, it may be subscribed for and taken by any person or persons.

2. And be it enacted, That when said stock is so subscribed, taken and paid for, the directors shall cause a certificate thereof to be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and thereupon the persons so subscribing, taking, and paying for said additional stock shall become stockholders to the amount and proportion of stock so taken by them.

3. And be it enacted that this shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 10, 1880.

CHAPTER XIII.

A supplement to an act entitled "An act respecting the court of chancery," approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section thirteen of said act, and which reads as follows:

"13. That every subpœna or process for appearance shall be served on the person to whom it is directed, or a copy thereof left at his dwelling house or usual place of abode, at least ten days prior to its return," be amended so as to read as follows:

13. That every subpœna or process for appearance shall be served by the same officers now authorized to serve writs of summons and other common law processes, on the person to whom it is directed, or a copy thereof left at his dwelling house, or usual place of abode by one of said officers, at least ten days prior to its return.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 10, 1880.

CHAPTER XIV.

A further supplement to an act entitled "An act to encourage the improvement of real property in this state" (Revision), approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That all corporations organized now or hereafter under the act to which this is a further supplement, may, at any meeting of the stockholders called for that purpose, increase the capital stock and the number of shares therein, until it shall reach the amount named in the original certificate, and in case more capital is necessary, an additional certificate shall be filed, under the hands and seals of two-thirds in interest of the stockholders, or their legal representatives, stating the amount of such additional capital required, which shall be proved or acknowledged and recorded in the manner heretofore provided for in this act; provided, that for all stock issued under such supplemental certificates, such corporation, its directors and stockholders, shall be entitled to all the benefits, and subject to all the liabilities contained in said act.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 10, 1880.

CARPET SWEEPER!
Pat. June 24th, 1873, and July 20th, [illegible]
No cogs to get out of order! No wear to carpets! A clean Sweeper! And no dust!
This new and improved carpet sweeper has been contrived to meet a want which the old sweepers only partially supplied. Instead of cog wheels it is operated by belts running on pulleys, which, while revolving so rapidly and evenly as to take up everything in the shape of lint, hair, thread or dust, is never liable to get out of order, and can at any time be set and operated by any housewife. While being superior to any of the old styles as a carpet cleaner, it has this advantage that the metal bearings in which the brush revolves can be lowered as the brush wears off. The brush is in front of the box instead of the middle, it acts by hand power, not by the motion of the machine. The box is so placed on the handle as to reach any angle of a room, under a sofa, around piano legs, or chairs and tables. It only needs a trial to be appreciated. Price $5.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

BRIDGET'S VALENTINE.

The postman rapped sharply on Mrs. O'Donohue's door (this door belonged to the back room on the third floor of a tall, narrow, dingy house in a long, narrow, dark street containing many other tall, narrow, dingy houses) on St. Valentine's morning. His satchel and his left hand were filled with letters and valentines, and in his right hand he carried a pretty blue-and-gold paper box—a little battered, as paper boxes are apt to be when they come by mail—tied with a blue satin ribbon, and smelling like roses.

A young girl wearing a soiled calico dress and shoes down at heel, but with her rough curly hair piled in huge puffs on the top of her head, and a pair of cheap, tawdry ear-rings in her ears, holding a torn and crumpled novel in her hand, opened the door.

"Miss Bridget O'Donohue?" asked the postman.

"That's myself," answered the girl.

"Then here's a valentine for you," said he, handing her the box; and turning quickly, he was down the stairs and out of the house in a twinkle.

Mrs. O'Donohue was washing, and the windows of the room were dim with steam. Bridget went to one of them, wiped a couple of panes dry with the skirt of her dress, and opened the box. A howl of delight burst from her lips.

"An' what in the worruld is it Biddy dear?" cried her mother, rushing from the wash-tub, her arms covered with soap-suds to the elbows.

"Kape away! Don't come near it wid the soap-suds!" screamed her daughter. "It's one of thim Kitty Crowley was a-tellin' about last night—a valentine. An', och! ain't it lovely! Niver sor I the likes before."

Mrs. O'Donohue put her arms behind her and looked over her daughter's shoulder. "Bless us an' save us!" she exclaimed; "it makes me think of the fairies. Shure it looks like some of their worruk; it do entirely."

"Niver in all me life sor I the like before," repeated Bridget, and I don't believe she ever did. It was a beautiful valentine. A sheet of creamy, satiny paper, on which were delicately painted the loveliest white roses and snow-drops and blushing moss-rose buds, and in the centre of which was fastened a pretty gold ring, and beneath the ring this verse was written in a plain and handsome hand:

"I offer roses pure and white—
Emblems of girlhood's happy days—
And sweet moss-buds by Cupid pinched
To deck Love's ways;
And snow-drops—Hope's own dainty flowers—
That whisper you may yet be mine,
Dear girl with sunny hair and smile—
My Valentine!"

These lines Miss O'Donohue spelled out slowly, mispronouncing many of the words, and making sad nonsense of what was rather nonsensical already; but her mother listened with as much delight as though the reading were perfect—as, no doubt, she thought it was—exclaiming, as her daughter finished, "That bates Tom Moore intirely! But, Biddy darlint, you haven't 'sunny' hair; your hair is like the night."

"They mostly puts that kind of hair in songs," said her daughter, "an' I wish you wouldn't call me Biddy again. Bridget's bad enough, so it is, an' I'll change me hull name whin I get married, so I will. I wonder who in the wide worruld presinted me wid this beautiful valentine?"

"Bridget O'Donohue," said her mother, solemnly, at the same time looking at her with admiring eyes, "some young gintleman has fallen dead in love wid you, an' you only three months in this blissid country. An' I don't be surprised at it, for since you put them puffs on the top of your skull, an' I bought you thim illigant ear-rings, you look like a princess. An' sorra a doubt I have but that he'll be wantin' to marry you in a year or so—I was married meself at fifteen—an' I hope you'll not be desartin' your old mother when you're a foine lady."

"I wouldn't so demane meself," replied Miss Bridget, with a toss of her head, "if you bees only a washer-woman. I'll buy you a silk dress an' a hat wid an ostrich feather, an' a goold watch to wear whin you comes to see me. But you mustn't be comin' too often. He mightn't like it."

"Shure I'll never interfare between you an' him, me brave gurril," said her mother. "Mothers-in-law do be doin' that too much, they do; but I'll kape me place, never fear. An' now, Biddy—I mane Bridget—darlint, your frinds must see this valentine, goold ring an' all, an' larn the prospects that has arose before you. But it won't do for you to be runnin' about from house till house wid it as though you'd niver had the like before at all at all."

"Shure I niver had," said Bridget.

"Whisht! no nade tellin' that same," said her mother. "For all they know, you had hundreds in the old country. Put on your Ulster an' your knew hat, an' go an' ax your frinds here to a tay party. For a tay party I intend to have at four o'clock this very afternoon, an' while you're away, I'll put aside the washin' an' red up the place. An' you'll have to go widout the lace hankerchy I promised you till next month, for the money I've saved must go for the atin' an drinkin'."

So in a short time Miss O'Donohue, in a Pinafore hat set jauntily on the back of her head, and a gray Ulster coming down to her feet (thereby concealing the very much soiled calico dress) was knocking at various doors in the house in which she lived, the house next door, the house across the way, and a house around the corner, delivering verbal invitations to her friends to a tea party to take place at her residence that afternoon, all of which invitations, albeit, Miss O'Donohue was no great favorite, on account of her silly airs, were accepted, with loud expressions of pleasure.

"It's me birthday party," she explained to the invited guests.

"But, Bridget, I thought your birthday was last December, just after you come over," said Kittie Crowley.

"It was," said Bridget; "but me party was postponed for raisons."

And at four o'clock precisely a dozen or more young girls, with several of their mothers, grandmothers, and aunts, gathered around Mrs. O'Donohue's hospitable table, and devoured biscuits, cold ham, pickles, peanuts and cake, and drank vast quantities of lemonade and tea, with much gossiping and giggling. Mrs. O'Donohue thought they never would stop handing her their plates and tumblers and cups; but at last, to her great satisfaction, they did, and the opportunity for which she had been impatiently waiting arrived. And pushing the tea-table back against the wall, she called out, as though the idea had just occurred to her, "Bridget dear, perhaps your friends would like to see your valentine."

"An' did you git a valentine? Oh, you sly thing, to say nothing about it!" said Kitty Crowley.

"Is it a comical one?" asked Mary Lee.

"Bring it out this minit!" commanded Annie Pheeny.

And as Miss O'Donohue pretended to blush and hesitate, all the girls shouted in chorus, "The valentine! the valentine!"

And at last, with an air of great pride and importance, the valentine was produced. Its extreme beauty and resplendence for a moment struck the group of girls dumb with astonishment. And then there was another chorus of "Splendid!" "Beautiful!" "Illigant!" "Must have cost tin dollars at the very least!" "Who sint it to you, Bridget?"

"I ain't sure," said Bridget, with a simper and her favorite toss of the head, "but I mostly thinks I know. A young gintleman wid beautiful black eyes and a big dimant pin, that lives in a 'ligant house near the baker's. He sits in the windy an' smiles at me ivery day whin I goes for bread."

"An' you'll be marryin' him some fine day, an' forgittin' all your old comrades," said Kitty Crowley.

"I'll not be forgettin' thim," said Bridget, with emphasis.

"But you'll be forsakin' them," suggested Annie Pheeny.

"Sure an' I suppose he'd make me," replied Miss O'Donohue. "I'd have to 'sociate wid me own class thin. But I'd spake to ye all whin I met ye," she added, in a patronizing manner.

"Indade an' I'm obliged to you for your great condescension," said Annie.

"An' so are all the rest of the girruls, I'm sure," joined in Mrs. Crowley, Katie's mother. "You allus thought yourself above them, Bridget dear, but, faith! I never could see the differ."

"Me child's shuparior style an' beauty is the differ," announced Mrs. O'Donohue; "an' so I tell you, Mrs. Crowley, ma'am."

"I don't take in washin' to give shuparior style to me Kate," retorted Mrs. Crowley.

"An' no dacent girl would want 'style' when her mother had to find it for her in the 'washtub,'" declared Kate. "But I suppose the washtubs will be burned whin Biddy"—purposely using the obnoxious name—"gits the young gintleman, an' lives in the iligant house near the baker's."

"Indade an' they will, Kittie Crowley," said Bridget, her voice trembling and her ear-rings jingling, "an' iverything else belongin' to this low place; an' as for the low, common, jealous folks I've been forced to know hear, I'll wash my hands of them for iver and iver."

Just then there came a loud knock at the door.

"Maybe it's black eyes an' dimant pin comin' to see his bride," said Mary Lee. "If it is, you needn't introduce us, Biddy dear. We won't be offended."

But no young gentleman met Mrs. O'Donohue's gaze as she threw open the door. The postman confronted her. "I left a valentine in a box here this morning," he said.

"You did," replied Mrs. O'Donohue, in a faint voice.

"It was a mistake," he went on, hurriedly; "and I've nearly lost my situation on account of it—the young fellow that sent it raised such a row in the office. It's for Miss Bridget O'Donovan, who lives at the same number in the next street. Being used to bringing letters here, and the names being so much alike, I mixed things a little."

And, sure enough, there was the direction on the cover of the box as plain as could be, though Bridget and her mother (the latter for a very good reason, however) had neither of them noticed it.

Mrs. O'Donohue handed the valentine over in perfect silence. But as soon as the postman departed, such a Babel as there was!

"Shure, Biddy, it will be too bad if he don't let you 'sociate wid us." "Don't burn the washtubs yet awhile, me dear." "I thought that ring a little too genteel for anny of me lady's fingers." "Smile at us from the windy of the big house when we go to the baker's anyhow, that's a darlint."

"I'll be thankful to yez all if ye'll lave me house this instant, an' niver inter it again," said Mrs. O'Donohue, in a quiet rage.

"We're goin', ma'am—yes, ma'am," said Mrs. Crowley. "Thanks for your intertainment, ma'am. It's plisint to come where there's so much style an' beauty, ma'am, an' where the young lady is goin' to be married to a rich young gintleman, an' wash her hands of all her comrades for iver an' iver, ma'am. Sind for us when ye have another valentine to show us, ma'am. Good-avenin', ma'am. Good-avenin', Miss Bridget O'Donohue."

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

CHAPTER XXII.

Supplement to the act entitled "An act for the punishment of crimes" (Revision), approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section twenty-five of the act to which this is a supplement, which section reads as follows:

"25. And be it enacted, That if any candidate for office in any election, as hereinafter mentioned under the laws of this state, or any other person shall directly or indirectly, offer, promise, procure, confer or give any money, property, thing in action, victuals, drink, preferment, or other consideration or valuable thing by way of fee, reward, gift or gratuity for giving or refusing to give any vote in any election of any public officer, state, county or municipal whatever, or of any member of the congress of the United States, or of electors for president and vice president of the United States, such person shall be deemed and taken to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, at the discretion of the court, said fine not to exceed one thousand dollars, nor such imprisonment six months; and further, such person shall, on such conviction, and as part of the judgment of the court, be deprived of the right of suffrage, and such candidate for office be disqualified to hold any office to which he was elected at such election; and further, if any person shall directly or indirectly ask for, accept, receive or take any such bribe, or the promise thereof, by giving or refusing to give his vote in any such election, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and punished with the like penalties as hereinbefore provided," be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

25. And be it enacted, That if any candidate for office in any election hereinafter mentioned under the laws of this state, or any other person shall directly or indirectly offer, promise, procure, confer or give any money, property, thing in action, preferment, or other consideration or valuable thing, or shall furnish or supply any money, note, check, draft, credit or property to be used by way of fee, reward, gift or gratuity for giving or refusing to give any vote in any election of any public officer, state, county or municipal whatever, or of any member of the congress of the United States, or of electors for president and vice president of the United States, such person either offering or receiving the same shall be deemed and taken to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction therefor be punished by fine or imprisonment or both, at the discretion of the court, said fine not to exceed one thousand dollars, nor such imprisonment one year at hard labor; and further, such person shall, on such conviction, and as part of the judgment of the court, be deprived of the right of suffrage, and such candidate for office be disqualified to hold any office to which he was elected at such election; and further, if any person shall mark in any way for the purpose of corruptly identifying any ticket, that shall be afterward voted at such election, with intent to escape, evade or violate the provisions of said section twenty-five of the act to which this is a supplement, then any such person shall be deemed and taken to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, at the discretion of the court, said fine not to exceed one thousand dollars, nor such imprisonment one year at hard labor; and further, any person not indicted for the acts forbidden as aforesaid may be compelled to testify in any judicial proceeding against any person or persons charged with bribery, corrupt solicitation, or the offences hereby prohibited, and shall not be permitted to withhold his testimony on the ground that he may criminate himself or subject himself to punishment, but such testimony shall not be afterwards used against him in any judicial proceedings, except for perjury in giving such testimony.

Approved February 17, 1880.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Supplement to an act entitled "An act relative to sales of lands under a public statute, or by virtue of any judicial proceedings," passed March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

WHEREAS, The provisions heretofore in force relative to the advertisement and sale of lands have not been in all respects known or complied with, whereby the titles to certain lands are alleged to be defective and uncertain;

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That no sale of real estate heretofore made, shall be invalidated by reason of any advertisement of such sale having been in only one newspaper in the county where such lands lie; provided, such advertisement shall have been duly inserted in a newspaper published at the county seat of said county; and provided, that all the other provisions of said act shall have been complied with; but the purchaser of any such real estate having paid the price thereof and received a deed for the same, shall be deemed to have as good and complete a title thereto as if such advertisement of such sale, or any adjournment thereof, had been in all particulars duly advertised, and provided further, that nothing in this act shall affect any pending litigation.

Approved February 17, 1880.

CHAPTER XXV.

A supplement to an act entitled "An act respecting the orphans' court, and relating to the powers and duties of the ordinary and the orphans' court and surrogates" (Revison), approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

Whereas, Through inadvertence, orders to show cause why the lands, tenements, hereditaments and real estate of decedents should not be sold for the payment of their debts, have been made returnable at times when the orphans' court did not happen to be in session, and orders to sell in pursuance thereof have been accordingly made at the next or some subsequent sitting of said court; and whereas, doubts have arisen as to the legality of orders to sell so made; now, therefore,

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any order for the sale of the lands, tenements, hereditaments and real estate of any testator or intestate, for the payment of the debts of such testator or intestate, heretofore made by the orphans' court of any county in this state at the sitting of said court next after the return day of the order to show cause therein, shall be as valid and effectual, to all intents and purposes, as if made on said return day, though not made upon a day appointed by the court, and though, on such return day, said court was not in session; provided, that no objection, by or on behalf of any party interested, was presented to the court or to the surrogate prior to such making thereof; and provided further, that this act shall apply only to cases wherein all the other requirements of the law have been complied with.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 17, 1880.

CHAPTER XXVI.

An act respecting the statue of Major-General Philip Kearny.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the statue of Major General Philip Kearny, originally intended to be placed in the National Statuary Gallery at Washington City, be and the same is hereby directed to be erected at some suitable place in the city of Newark, and that to that end the same be delivered to "The Philip Kearny Monument Association" of that city, to be erected at the expense of said association, and without expense to the state.

2. And be it enacted, That all laws and resolutions inconsistent herewith be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 17, 1880.

CHAPTER XXVII.

A further supplement to an act entitled "An act to authorize certain townships, towns and cities to issue bonds and to take the bonds of the Montclair Railway Company," approved April ninth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the township committee of any township, or other governing board of any municipality, holding income bonds of the Montclair Railway Company are hereby empowered to sell them at private sale for the best price obtainable in their discretion, and to apply the proceeds according to law; and that so much of the act to which this is a supplement, as is inconsistent herewith, is hereby repealed, and this act shall be a public act and shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 18, 1880.

CHAPTER XXX.

An act to repeal chapter one hundred and two of the laws of one thousand eight hundred and seventy nine, entitled "An act concerning cities," approved March fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That chapter one hundred and two of the laws of one thousand eight hundred and seventy nine, entitled "An act concerning cities," approved March fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine, be and the same is hereby repealed.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 19, 1880.

CHAPTER XXXI.

An act entitled "An act concerning taxes and assessments and arrears of taxes and assessments in towns and townships."

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for the town council or township committee of any town or township in this State to authorize and direct the collector or receiver of taxes, or other proper officer or officers of such town or township to receive and collect upon all taxes and assessments remaining due and unpaid in whole or in part at the date of the passage of this act, interest at such rate, not exceeding twelve per centum nor less than seven per centum per annum, as shall be determined by said town council or township committee, from the time when such taxes or assessment became by law due and payable.

2. And be it enacted, That in cases of sales of lands heretofore made for arrears of taxes or assessments in any town or township in this State, where such town or township has become the purchaser, it shall be lawful for the town council or township committee to authorize and direct the treasurer or other proper officer of such town or township to cancel and surrender any certificate of sale held by such town or township, upon the payment to him of the amount of tax or assessment for or on account of which such sale was made, with interest from the time when such tax or assessment became by law due and payable, at such rate not exceeding twelve per centum nor less than seven per centum per annum, as shall be determined by such town council or township committee and the costs and expense of selling such land; provided, however, that the provisions of this act shall not apply to cases where such certificate of sale shall be held by any person or persons other than such town or township.

3. And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the town council or township to authorize and direct the collector or receiver of taxes or other proper officer or officers of such township, to receive and collect upon all taxes and assessments which may hereafter be levied, assessed or imposed by such town or township and which may remain wholly or partly due at or after the expiration of the time limited by law for the payment thereof, such rate of interest not exceeding twelve per centum nor less than seven per centum per annum, as shall be determined by such town council or township committee.

4. And be it enacted, That the town council or township committee may by a general order or resolution determine what rate of interest, not exceeding twelve per centum nor less than seven per centum per annum, shall be charged and collected in the cases set forth in the preceding sections of this act.

5. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

6. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 19, 1880.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to complete the geological survey of this state," approved March thirtieth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the annual appropriation for the completion of the geological survey of this state, made in the supplement to this act, which was approved March thirtieth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six, be further continued for five years.

Approved February 17, 1880.

CHAPTER XXIX.

A further supplement to the act entitled "An act to provide for the regulation and incorporation of insurance companies," approved April sixth, one thousand and eight hundred and seventy-five.

Whereas, it is a recognized principle that when practicable laws should be general and uniform in their character, and the general corporation act of the state, provides at elections for managers or directors of every incorporated company in this state, stockholders may vote in person or by proxy, and the proxies used shall be limited to three years from their date; and, whereas, by a late law of the state the right of persons entitled to vote at elections for managers or directors of insurance companies of this state is abridged by limiting the use of proxies to one year from their date by means of which females, invalids, or persons residing at a distance as well as other parties who cannot conveniently attend such elections are incommoded, for remedy whereof:

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That hereafter all persons entitled to vote at any election of any insurance company in this state may vote in person, or by attorney or proxy, but no proxy shall be voted or allowed or received for more than three years from its date.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with or repugnant to the foregoing shall be and the same are hereby repealed, and this act shall be deemed and taken to be a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 19, 1880.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

A supplement to an act entitled "An act to provide for the assessment and payment of the costs and expenses incurred in constructing sewers, and making other improvements in townships and villages," approved March twelfth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all cases where the township committee of any township in this state have applied for and obtained the appointment of commissioners to make a new assessment of the costs and expenses incurred in making an improvement in such township, under the provisions of the act to which this act is a supplement, it shall be lawful for the township committee of any such township to pay to such commissioners, and to any engineer and counsel employed by such commissioners, and to all other persons performing any of the services prescribed by the said act, such compensation, fees and costs as have been or shall be taxed and allowed by the circuit judge of the county in which such township is situated, notwithstanding the act under which such commissioners were appointed may not be applicable to such township.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 19, 1880.

CHAPTER XXXV.

An act validating defective conveyances.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That no deed of conveyance of land made prior to the year eighteen hundred and seventy, by any sheriff or other officer, or auditors in attachment pursuant to any decree, judgment, execution or order of any court, shall be null or void because it may lack the affidavit of the officer making the deed of conveyance aforesaid, and the approval of such deed by the chancellor, justice or master provided for and required by an act of the legislature entitled "An act for the better security of titles to land sold by sheriffs or other officers," approved March twenty-fifth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, nor shall the absence of the affidavit and approval therein so required be esteemed cause sufficient to
